

C. SMITH, M.D.

C. SMITH, M.D.

THE

ANCIENT AND PRESENT

STATE

OF THE

COUNTY AND CITY

OF

C O R K

CONTAINING &

NATURAL, CIVIL, ECCLESIASTICAL, HISTORICAL, AND TOPOGRAPHICAL DESCRIPTION THEREOF.

BY

CHARLES SMITH, M.D.

Equum oft min meninifie & m, qui diferent baican effe, er ein, qui Judicette ut fi probabilia dicentur, nibil ultra requiratie. Cicero Universi.

IN TWO VOLUMES.

V. O L. L

THE SECOND EDITION, WITH ADDITIONS.

DUBLIN PRINTEDS

And Soup in LONDON

By W. CATER, Flolborn; J. Robson, New Bond-Street; T. PATHE, Mews-Gate; D. WILSON and G. NICOL and T. EVANS, Strend; S. BAEER and G. LEICH, York-Street; L. DAVIS, Holborn; B. WHITE, Fleet-Street; and G. Robinson, Pater-noster-Row.

M,DCC,LXXIV.

(Price FOURTEEN SHILLINGS Bound.)

2 77 790

VHCIERENS TRESELL.

JAGISTINI CARREST AND TO DIAM

enante et en en en en en

semerany many read is ancore and

D. O. B. L. L. Painten.

Partie, C. Traciliobosa, I. Sevica, Marwick Struct. T. Parties, Make Grane C. William and G. Hicker and T. William and G. Hicker and T. William, Struct. Struct. Struct. Struct. Struct. L. David, I. L. Sevica, C. Sevica, Struct. Struct. Struct. Struct. Struct. Struct. Struct. Struct. Struct. Struct.

VEX.X

Price-Pauls par Sant (Sect. 1)

1 vi 7

ADVERTISEMENT.

AT A BOARD OF THE PRESICO HISTORICE

THE same motives that induced a republication of the History of Waterford, by the late learned Dr. Smith, persuades the editor to offer a new edition of the History of Cork, by the same hand: both works have received considerable corrections, and many important additions, from the author's manuscripts in expence has been resused to give each publication every additional embellishment, that was thought might contribute to obtain the encouragement of the public.

AND CONTRACTOR

sengle have be a a prefunction of the checkets when the conference of its side of a prefunction of the side of the

the the same territors and great al-

hamble success, she description

MARSHAL, Secretary.

LORD.

Imprimatur

ED. BARRY, M. D. Vice-Prefident.

Nov. 6. 1749.

PHYSICO HISTORICAL AT A BOARD OF THE SOCIETY, THE REVEREND AND RIGHT HON. THE LORD VISCOUNT STRANGFORD IN THE CHAIR.

TR. CHARLES SMITH having laid before the Society a MS. copy of the ancient and prefent STATE OF THE COUNTY AND CITY OF CORK. with an accurate two-sheet map of that county, &cc. It is Ordered, that the faid work be published, with the approbation of this Society,

the late lengted Dr

Signed, STRANGFORD

J. MARSHAL, Secretary.

Imprimatur

ED. BARRY, M. D. Vice-President.

Baron of Brognill, and Baron Boyes of Marston,

could never have rebelled and

My Lord, gaitel a godt) and T might have been a presumption in the Author, to have inscribed this Work to Your Lordship, if the subject of it did not, in some measure, merit your Lordship's notice : for I humbly conceive, the description of a country, that owes so many great ad-vantages to your Lordship's ancestors, cannot not claim a more proper patron, than one of the noble family of Boyle; so that I flatter myself, it will not be thought impertment to present it to your Lordship, since it would be unpartionable to inscribe it elsewhere.

The county has had the honour to give the stille of Earl to the first of your Lord-ship and fors who settled in fact and; a dignity none ever more justly merited. Alnour by the title of Barl of Conk, yet the county received more intrinsic benefits from him, who was certainly the greatest advancer of every improvement in it, that ever the kingdom knew. He not only erected feats and private buildings, but churches, hospitals, schools, bridges, and other public works, owe their foundation to his munificence : nor were thefe all for IRELAND received fuch additional strength from the considerable towns he built, witness those of BANDON, CLOCHNARDLTY, INISKEEN, &c. that when the penetrating CROMWELL faw them, he acknowledged " if there had been " an Earl of Cork in every county, the " IRISH could never have rebelled."

But these (though lasting monuments of worth and magnificence) were not the only behefits this county received from your Lordhip's ancestors. For when a torrent of destruction wasted the land, in the times of anarchy and tebellion, the sons of that hobseman made a brave stand against the enemy, one of whom fell, sighting for his enemy, one of whom fell, sighting for his religion and his country, in the battle of LISCAROLL, where three of his brothers also fignalized themselves, and the youngest (afterwards Lord SHANNON) narrowly escaped being slain, in a magnanimous and successful attempt to recover his brother's body, with his horse and arms, from the enemy.

It would, my Lord, be tedious to mention the particular actions of your noble ancestor, the first Earl of Orrery, in this country. The several battles he fought in it, were so many deseats given to the Irish; in which, though always victorious, he charged at the head of single troops, in comparison of an army on the enemy's side. In imitation of his father, he also founded towns, and planted English colonies in this country, of which Charleville and Castle-Marter are remaining instances. These were, my Lord, actions truly noble, and truths that will long shine in the Irish annals.

This noble and heroic conduct of so many illustrious ancestors, would be thought, by many persons, a sufficient stock of honour for them to subsist upon, without any pursuits of their own; but your Lordship hath nobly distinguished yourself, by receiving nothing from your family, which you have not shewn an equal ability and willingness to repay, and transmit to your posterity; and the circle of your acquaintance observe you with pleasure, exerting the same public spirit, the same generosity and love of liberty, and the

the same take for the polite arts, that has not only rendered the name and family of BOYLE so truly amiable to GREAT-BRITAIN and IRELAND, but also to much celebrated throughout EUROPE.

May the same happy taste be ever as conspicuous in your Lordship's posterity, and may the example of your Lordship continue to influence them to the pursuit of it, as you have done THAT so well pointed out to you by your ancestors, is the sincere wish of,

monisofihis father, he and a M town

Your Lordship's most obedient,

mainy performs a Collectent Stock of honour for them to holds upon, without any purfairs of their own; but your sordthip hads not dictor an equal chility and willings of to repay and transmit to your postering the circle of your acquainty recomblerye vice with pleasure, everting the foot public specthe fame generality and love of liberty, and

two of which CHARLEVILLE and CAS

and devoted humble Servant,

Charles Smith.

which, though always

at the field of ingle troops, in

CONTENTS.

VOL L

THE INTRODUCTION.

Page i met de l'ar la les

BOOK I.

Containing the ancient Names of the Territories and Inhabieants, with the Civil and Ecclefiastical Division thereof.

CHAP. I.

Of the ancient Names of the Territories, and Inhabitants of this county, together with those of the middle and present Age.

CHAP. II.

Of the Ecclefiaftical State of this County.

6r

CHAP. III.

An account of the foundation of the Collegiate Church of YOUGHAL: with the particulars of a remarkable dispute between the Earls of STRAFFORD and CORK, relating to this Foundation.

CHAP. IV.

Of the Bounds, Extent, Length and Breadth of this County, with its Latitude and Longitude. 92

BOOK II.

Containing the Topography of the County and City of Cork.

CHAP. 1.

A Topographical Description of the Towns, Villages, Churches, Seats, &c. in the Baronies of IMOKILLY and KIL-NATALLOON, with the Town of YOUGHAL. 99

CHAP, II.

Containing a Description of the Baronies of BARRYMORE. BARRETS and MUSKERY.

CHAP. III.

A Description of the Barony of KINALEA and KERRY-CURIHY, the Towns of KINSALE and BANDON. with the adjacent Baronies of COURCIES, IBAWNE and BARRIROE, and the Cantred of KILBRITTON. 207

CHAP. IV. ONTWINE

The Barony of CARBERY.

CHAP.

The Barony of BEAR and BANTRY. 283

CHAP. VI.

The Topography of the Barony of DUHALLOW; with that of ORRERY and KILMORE. 291

CHAP. VII.

The Topography of the Town and Liberties of MALLOW. with the Baronies of FERMOY and CONDONS, 323

CHAP, VIII.

A Topographical Description of the Liberties of the City of rubuding strates : 1 h no uo 352 CORK.

CHAP . IX so shound singly A fraise becaused the

The present State of the City of CORK, its ancient and modern Names, Situation, Extent, Churches, Hospitals, Abbeys, public Buildings, Schools and other Foundations, Government, Officers, Courts, Franchifes and Privileges, Companies, Militia, Arms, &c. 361

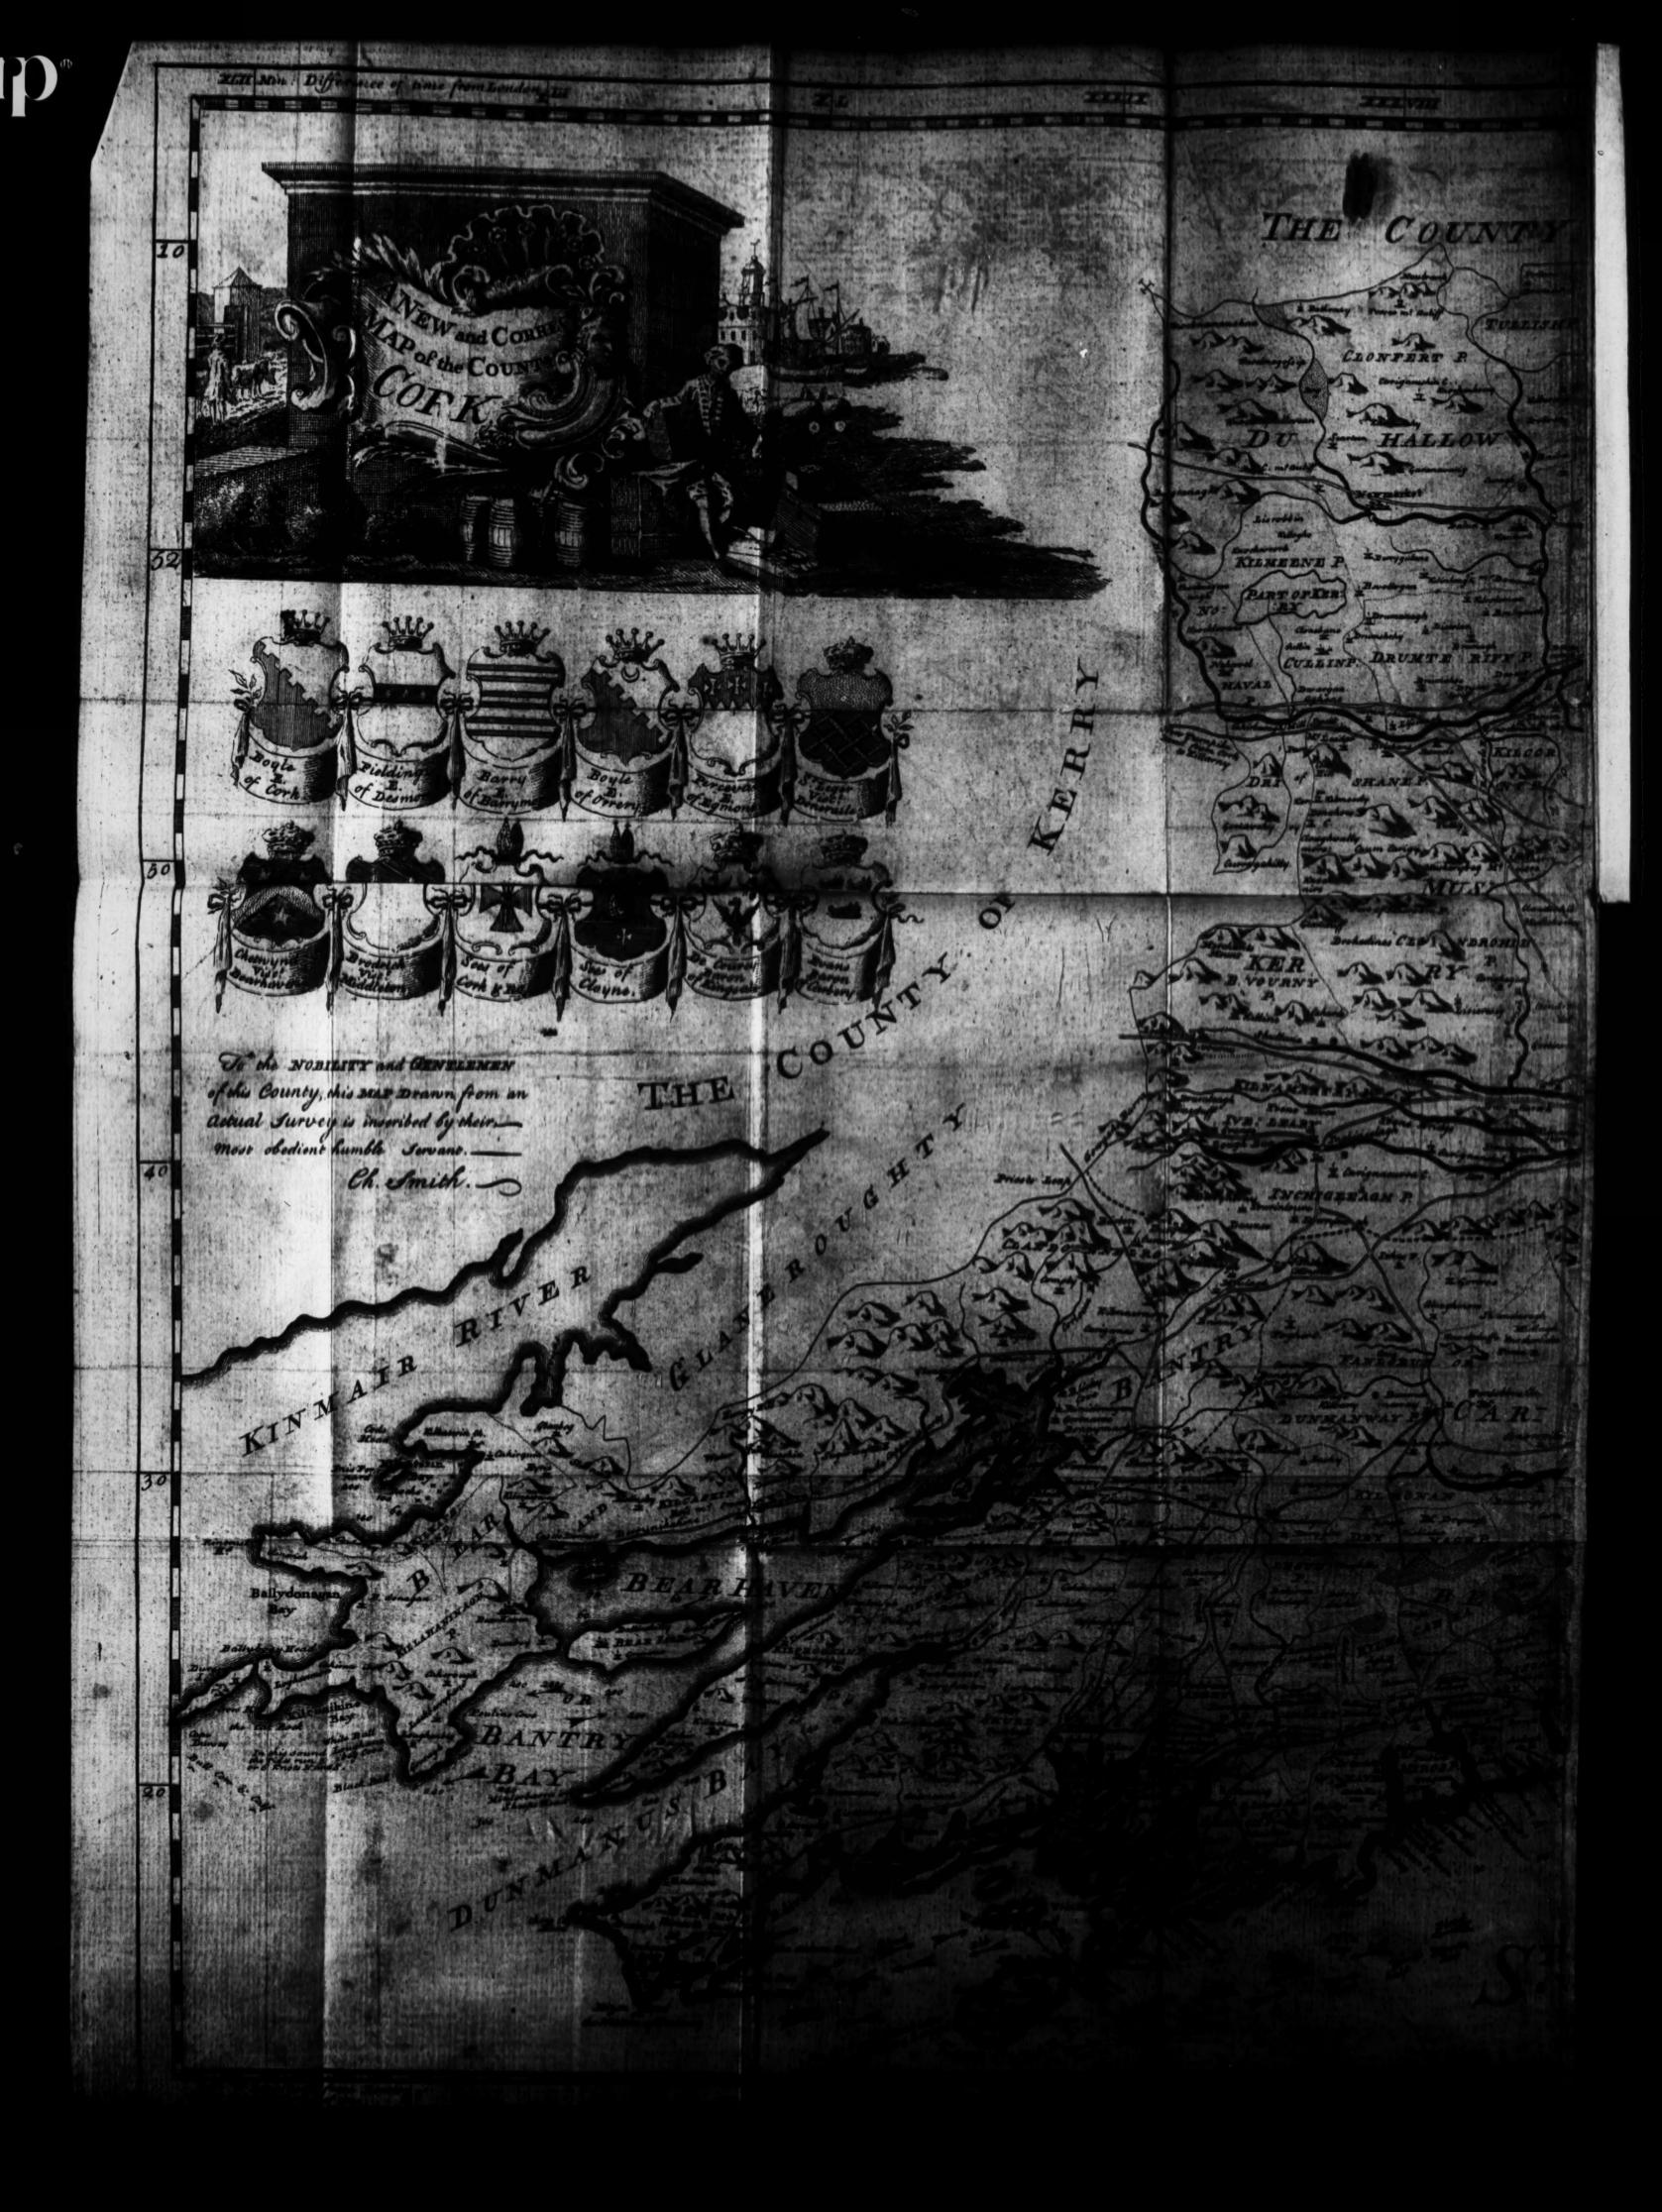

Containing the Topography of the Course and City of Carl.

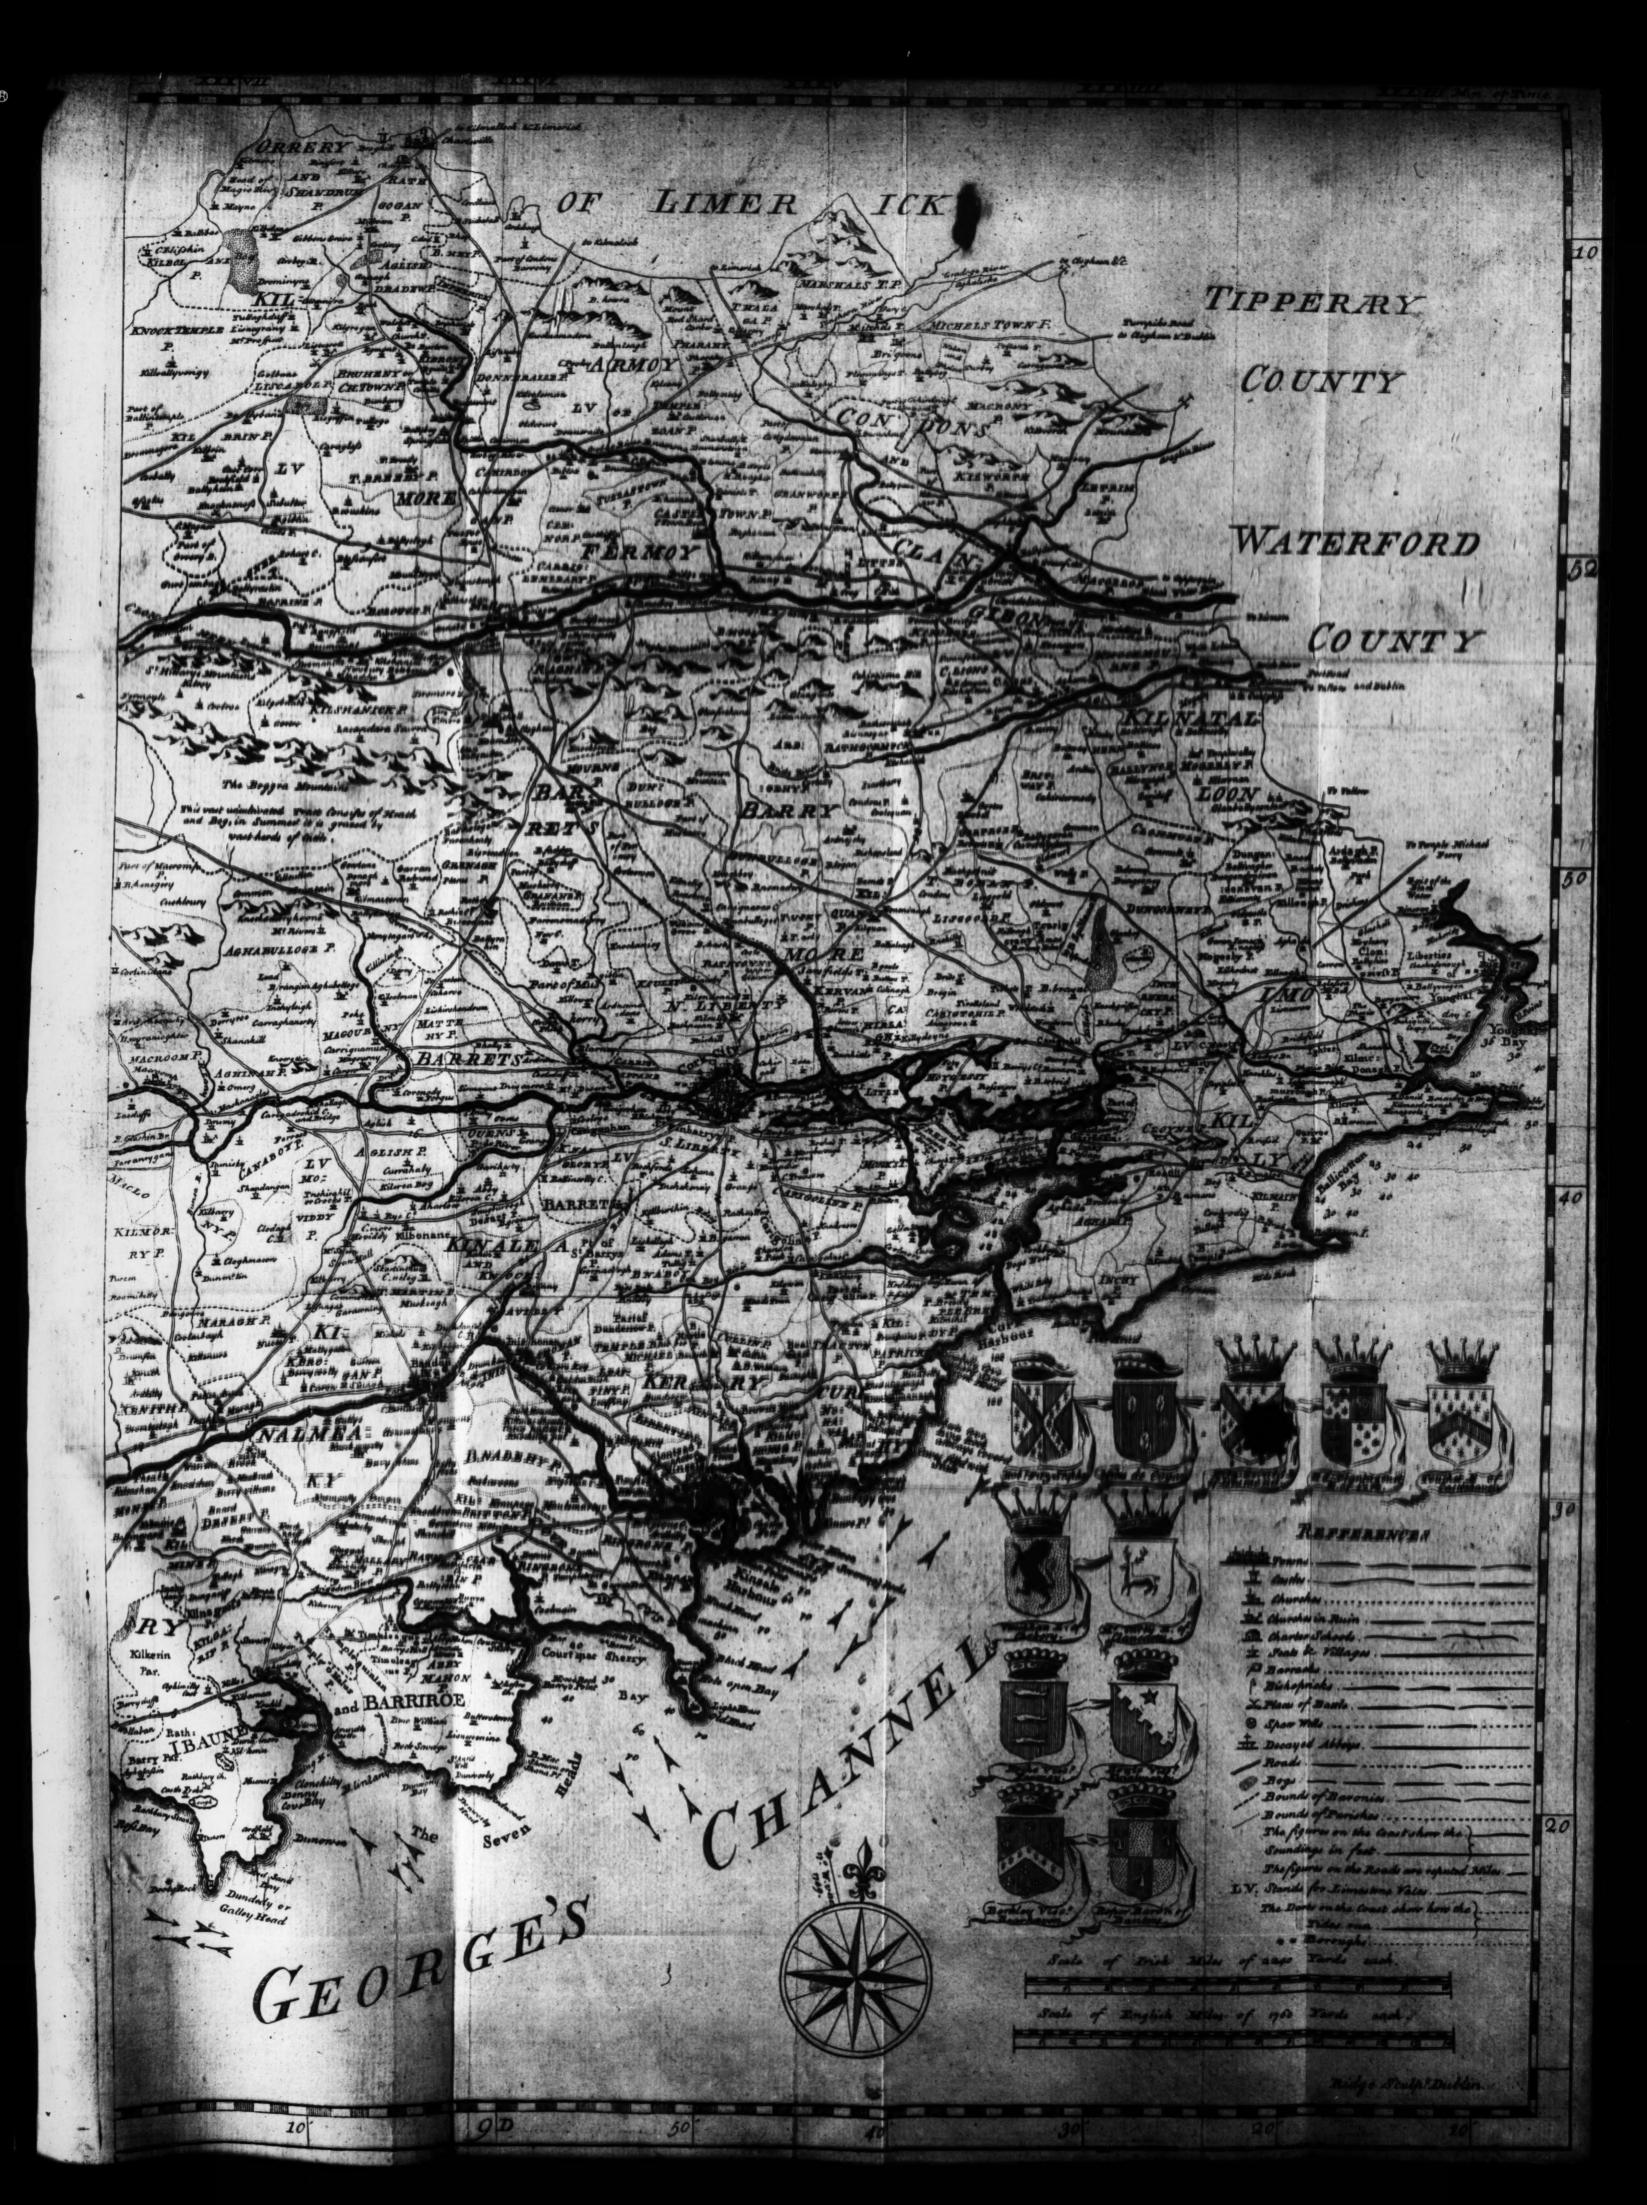

A Sopographical Defor ston of the Town, Villager, Churcher, Seats, Lee, in the vieweries of Informery and Kin-KATALLOOK; with the Town of You CHAL. Co

X 0 0 8 3

INTRODUCTION.

CHAP.

matelials are to be fought for in the falevery place viliand, to noke projet inque reformation, and its civiliand netural in

NTROPUCTION COLUMN OF THE CORE CHESTER OF THE CHESTER OF THE

onces allimomy, and practical trigonometry,

onceive it is the butteels of a wife

A N unusual, and, I must confess, an unmerited indulgence, received from the public, upon printing a description of nother county, has given the author of that track
acouragement to undertake the following perormance.

The reader will be pleased to silow, that a work of this kind may have some reasonable cause o plead excuse for a few slips, either in point of tyle, or other minute incidents. Hurry is a plea commonly brought by most writers, a plen, as weak as it is frivolous; and the public may, with ustice, retore, that there was no necessity for the appearance of such halty performances, lines publishing an immature work was, of all faults, the greatest, as it was in the power of the writer to mend his fault, at the time he pleaded his excuse. But, I humbly conceive, that although this plea is not to be admitted in favour of the general class of writers, a performance to mixt as what I now offer, and which might require much abler hands, skilled in very different branches of science to execute, (which there are no great hopes of procuring;) I presume, I may be allowed to please this general excute, for smaller errors that may, inevitably, creep into a work of this nature.

Such a work as this, is not to be wholly executed in the closet or study. Great part of its Vol. I. B. materials materials are to be fought for in the field; and every place visited, to make proper inquiry into its antiquities, and its civil and natural history, which last consists of very different branches of science. The topography of each place must be noted; its bearing, distance, lastitude, and longitude observed; with all the correctness and assistances astronomy, and practical trigonometry, afford.

n

le na

n

he tre es

f

on igo

ear

ur

nd

ny

nes, neni egu

ovit

ew o

I conceive, it is the business of a writer, who describes a country, to relate his observations without ornament; and in so plain and simples manner, that a person, who may afterwards view the places described, may be put into the easiest way to see what the author relates. A laboured elegancy of style, beautiful turns of period, and a studied connection of all parts of a discourse, will, undoubtedly, render fuch descriptions most pleasing to a reader of a polite and classical taste; but if he deligns to be more than a reader, and to consider his author in another light than as a writer of romance; that is, if he deligns to have recourse to the originals from whence those descriptions were taken; he will soon observe the difference between a native simplicity, and the addtional ornaments of a descriptive style. Some, indeed, affect a Ciceronian style in description; but were Tully himself to paint a country, he certain: ly would avoid a florid diction on fuch a subject. In my description of places, I have constantly endeavoured to draw the picture as like the original as possible, this, to me, was the most easy, as well as the most pleasing part of my task, for, as M. Paschal observes, (1). "Curiosity is little better than meer vanity; for the most part, we desire to see things that we may relate them; sew " would undertake such dangerous voyages, and travels, travels, for the bare pleasure of entertaining their fight, if they were bound to secrecy on their return, and for ever cloistered from conversation."

I have, in the introduction to a former work of his kind, fufficiently proved the great advanages industrious foreigners have been of to several ations.

ilo Ons

44 ew eft

red

12

ill,

ing

to s a ave

de-tif-

ď-

in-

but

in:

ect.

ėn-

nal

well

M.

tter

fire

few

and els.

Among other methods of inviting artists and aders to fettle in a country, artful descriptions, ven beyond the truth, have been used by other naons. When the Dutch first began to plant their aft-India settlements, almost every wharf and nding place in Batavia, belide their churches, prifications, and buildings, were pompoully enraved on copper, and embellished with all the leafing variety of landscape the painter's art was pafter of ; and this, to induce the european Holnders to quit their native foil, and strengthen heir infant colonies; many years fince grown fo owerful, as to vie with their mother country in rength, and support it with their rich commodis. Hence I would infer, that a just description f a country, which needs no exaggeration to reommend it, may be one method of inviting foeigners to settle in it.

If we cannot, like Italy or Holland, boaft of the cauties of art, and improvements of planting and wilding in this country, we may, at leaft, present ur readers with natural beauties, no less pleasing and attractive. It is a true piece of wisdom in my state, by the magnificence of its public structures, by a neatness and symmetry in its private mes, which may atone for splendour and ornament; and by adorning towns with pleasant and egular plantations of trees, and public walks, to wite travellers to come and see them. There are ew countries but what have instituted great marts r fairs, and contrived, by extraordinary public

B 2 (1)

hew

r

þī

e u na rii

is re

ng ble

n

di

is bu

ot

Ot

nı

E

n:

shews, to draw a concourse of people to them, in the neighbouring, and remote nations; whose travelling and intercourfe, increase wealth trade; and are a fecret motive to people to inh a country, where they may meet with more tertainment than at home. Such were the Gr olympic games, which drew together a prodigi concourse of people from all parts; and when fimple wreath, only, was the reward of the vice which made Tygranes (2), a Perfian command cry to his general, "Heavens! to what men you leading us? infentible of interest, they or bat only for glory." Such were also the trium trophies, and fecular plays of ancient Rome justs and tournaments formerly used in all courts of Christendom; the festivals of them celebrated orders of knighthood; and the pre carnivals of Venice and other cities; with the bilees of modern Rome. In the Netherlands, the have their kirmithes, and, in fome of them, a great deal of pageantry, as well as traffic; be equally allurements to pleasure, as to gain. I other country, in Europe, can boast of such am titude of hands as the United Provinces inota spot of ground of the same extent can equal The perfecution, in the empire, for the gion, under Charles V. in France, under He H. and in England, under queen Mary, for great numbers out of all those countries, to she themselves in the Netherlands, where the la protected those oppressed strangers; who peop their towns, filled them with manufactures, raifed the city of Answerp to fuch renown, as a tinued till the antival of the duke of Alvar whose rigorous proceedings, more than 1004 families quitted the country, and were rece and protected by the feven United Provin errom tores have in the event tarty and acias a(3)

INTRODUCTION.

fen

nk

then countenanced by England and France. Tom which period, trade flourished at Amsterdam, and decayed, in proportion, at Antwerp. The ng civil wars, in France, Germany, and, lastly, England, increased the swarm in this republic, wited there by the maritime situation of the puntry, the easiness of the government, goodess of the laws, freedom of conscience, and rength of their cities; all which, in a few years, onspired to raise the credit of the bank of Amerdam to an incredible sum. Insomuch, that ome have estimated it at no less than 3000 tuns of old (4). Sir William Temple, (who was, probably

(3) Nothing can give an higher idea of the advantages of onmerce to a nation, than the flourishing condition of the outch republic. Before the revocation of the edict of Nants which established great numbers of manufacturers both in ingland and the United Provinces) the manufacturers of that epublic consisted in very little more than their linen and voollen cloths. It was to those refugees, the Dutch owed he erecting, among them, the arts of weaving the richest silks and brocades; which latter was principally set up in Amsterlam. They also taught them the art of ribbon weaving, naking paper, weaving stockings, gold and silver laces, hats, ringes, and point; dressing leather in all its different branches, is tanning, currying, alluming, making buff, purple, blue, yellow, and crimson Morocco; the art of gilding and stamping it; refining and making all forts of sugar; making salt, bleaching wax, &c. all which, before the edict of Nants, were ittle known to the Dutch.

Their sea-ports contain an almost incredible number of ships, and vessels of all sorts. Sir William Temple, in his curious remarks on those provinces, thinks them equal to all the other shipping in Europe: And yet their harbours are but very indifferent; for that of Amsterdam, which is so much frequented, is so shoal, that the smallest vessel cannot come up to the city but at high water; nor can large vessels enter the Texel, without unlading; and yet no less than 15,000 vessels sail yearly out of this port, for the Baltic only; besides an incredible number to England, France, Spain, the Mediterranean, the East and West-Indies, &c. A celebrated Dutch writer informs as, that no less than 15000 herring busses sail yearly out of the ports of Holland to fish.

(4) The Dutch call 100,000 florins a tun of gold.

ns

im

he

he

BOI

it Hi

ro

VI

nt

e

er

in

al io

bably, carried to see it, being then ambassadors the Hague.) says, that whoever is entertained with the sight, shall never sail to find, the appearance of a mighty real treasure, in bars of gold and silver; but the burgomaster having only the inspection of this bank, and no man taking a particular account of what issues in or out from one age another, it is impossible to make any just calculation, what proportion the real treasure may hold to the credit of it. Its security lies not only in the effects that are in it, but in the credit of the whole town or state of Amsterdam, whose stock and revenue equal those of many kingdoms (5).

It is afferted, that the paper credit of England and Holland, more than ten times exceeds their national cash; but this credit is founded mostly on the security of the nation itself. How such a national bank, with proper counters kept in the several trading towns of this kingdom, would augment its commerce, and render paper currency completely secure, I leave the intelligent reader to determine.

We need not feek for examples of the benefits arifing from commerce among the ancient Tyn-

(5) In 1672, when Lewis XIV. was at Utrecht, there was a general run on this bank, occasioned by the universal terror of the French troops. The magistrates took some of the most confiderable, and most popular of those who talked loudest, and offered to convince them, by ocular demonstration, that the vast treasures deposited in the bank were really there. An infinite number of bags certainly appeared, which the magistrates affirmed to be full of money; and that upon proof it would be found, that the original fums lodged in the bank were there to a fliver; but they faid, at the same time, that those who continued to diffrust them, and to break the public credit, by making their demands at a time when the flate wasm fo great an exigency, should be stigmatiz'd as bad subjects, and should not be permitted to replace their money in the bank when the ftorm was over This bold declaration had its effect; the call ceased, and the bank preserved its credit Burrish's Batavia Illuftrat.

ors

Wit

rand

dil

ipeo cula

ge II

cula-

hold the hole reland

heir

on /

na-

Ve-

ent

m-

to fits

ns,

of

oft

nd

he

An gi-

re

íc.

e-in 3,

ts

ns, Carthaginians, or Alexandrians; more modern imes afford us a number of authentic histories of The French historians inform us, to he kind. he honour of trade, that Jaques Cœur, a native of Bourges, by his merchandile, gained as much proit as all the other merchants of France together. His immense riches, so lawfully acquired, and the robity of the man, celebrated his fame in foreign ountries, and made him known at court. Charles VIII. of France, promoted him to the ministry, ntrusted him with the administration of his finanes, and made him his great treasurer. Yet, his levation did not interrupt his commerce; it only erved him to persevere in it with more reputation, and fuccefs. This generous merchant, whose heart was greater than his fortune, had still more exalted views in following his merchandife, and preerring his country's interest to his own gain. He found means, out of his private fortune (which affifted more than the royal treasury) not only to e-establish the affairs of the kingdom, exhausted by along war; but also to carry on enterprises against its ancient enemies, and to unite to the crown the rich province of Normandy, which England had, for many years, possessed.

It was to commerce, that noble Florentine family, the House of Medicis, owed its rise. The ancestors of Cosmus the great, (the father of his people, and deliverer of his country) according to the custom of the Italian nobility, neglected not this resource to support themselves in the honour of the magistracy, and the expences of war. Cosmus, more intelligent or more fortunate than his predecessors, acquired such a fortune by trade, as equalled the treasures of the other sovereigns of Europe, and which made him be all his life so much sought after, and regarded in the affairs of Italy. His brother Laurence, who also merited the same title, as also that of father of the belles lettres,

error to obtuoo sut riwas

vers (though

was fo well known at the Ottoman Porte, on account of the number of factors he employed all ow the Levant, and the numerous fleets he fent a ther, that the proud Ottoman emperor Bajaze not only always regarded him as one of his allie but also honoured him with the appellation of hi friend. The fucceffors of those two great men by following their steps, did not deprive them felves, by a falfe delicacy, of the advantages of commerce. At length, the merits of another Comus raised this family to the sovereignty of Tust ny, from whom fprang two queens of France four pontiffs to the church, and a great number of cardinals. Posterity will scarce believe, the amount of the immense fortune raised by this house, were there not many still in being, eye-witnesses of it and to the time of the diffolution of the Medican court, the palace of the grand duke was ever open to traders and manufacturers.

The great remoteness of Ireland from the continent of Europe, the very little that is said of it by authors, and the young gentlemen of it, when they visit foreign nations, passing all for English, make it very little known to the rest of Europe Bleau, at the end of his volume of Scotland, (which is one of the best in his great collection) has only five of Speed's bad maps, and a few pages of the description of this kingdom. Moren is very short, incorrect, and trisling; and Echard, labours under the same desects. Moll, who published a small set of maps of this kingdom, made great complaints of the sew and superficial corrections that were made on those he sent, for that purpose,

e

n

lo li

В

C

a 1

t

В

to Dublin.

The old geographers, particularly those mapshanded down to us as Ptolemy's, are greatly erroneous. Cambden, Sanson and Morden, only copied the error of other geographers. I have, indeed, met in Speed with the course of some rivers (though very incorrect)

the fituation of some lakes, occ. more the expressed, than even in some more modern aps; but he had no notion of the true distances places, nor their latitude; and the true shape of e coasts was as ill designed. Riccioli, in his Geographia Reformata, was one of the first that placed ar principal towns near their true latitude. Dubling has in 53 deg. 11 min. which is nearer the truth an any who have gone before him,

Sesseria po

for nce

rof

unt rent

iti

can pai

00-fin

ifh,

pe, ich

aly

the rt,

n-

.

eat

íc,

d-

25

9)

Sir William Petty's furveys, as far as they go. e tolerably exact, as to distance and situation of laces; but his furveyors did not trouble themselves ith taking the altitude of the pole, fo that the nitudes of places are wanting; neither are the pads marked down, nor is the fea coaft, in any torable degree, exact. Those particulars being foeign to the defign of his furvey, which was only o render an account to the state of the number of cres that were forfeited lands, many other tracts eing left blank; and from those returns, fir Wiliam Petty formed his maps. The fate of a great art of fir William's performance is to be regret-The plates of all the barony maps, to the number of 252, being on board a ship, were, during the late wars in queen Anne's time, taken by French privateer, and carried into St. Malo's; and ome fay, they are now in one of the French king's libraries.

In the year 1733 (6), cardinal Fleury, having thought it necessary to construct a map of France, being informed that the work could not be better carried on than by the astronomers of the royal academy of sciences, applied to M. Cassini on that head, who was of opinion, that, in order to execute it with the utmost exactness, the same method ought to be employed, as was formerly for the meridian; by taking, through the whole extent of the kingdom, triangles linked together, by the means d objects feen successively one from another, & This project of making a map, by fuch triangle had been already offered to M. Colbert, by M. P. cart, in 1681, but was not then executed howe ver, M. Cassini proposed, that these triangles should be begun in a direction perpendicular to the mendian, in order to render those operations of service towards the decision of the question relating to the true figure of the earth. Upon this hint, I proceeded in my furvey of this county; which will be found to be of a confiderable extent. The road from Cork to Limerick, I found had been, some time ago, exactly chained, and each mile marked on a map of the same, with all the respective windings, which made 63 English miles. But laying a rule directly on the map, from one city to the other, in a right line, they are not further than 46 miles afunder, almost N. and S. which admeasurement, being exactly chained, I thought it would be no difficult talk to carry on the faid line fouth to Kingfale, by which I had an almost north and south meridian for one degree of latitude; which also served as a base for all my feveral triangles. When I took the fides of these triangles, from elevated places, as on the tops of mountains, I found it necessary to reduce them to what they would be, had they been obferved in plains parallel to the horizon; for this purpose, the shortest method of taking those heights, I found was by the barometer, making a proper allowance, by the best constructed tables, for that purpose.

⁽⁶⁾ Vide Phil. Transact. Numb. 445. p. ap. Jan. 1737.

3

The latitude and longitude of the out-lines of this county, viz. the extream east and west points for the latter, and the northern and southern extremities for the former, were determined by observations, of which a more particular account will be given in the fecond chapter of this volume.

PV

n

90

n

V

u

th

d

hi

738

We

uld

en-

the

ed-

ind ork

go, ich

tly

er,

X-

ult

by

or

le.

es

he 04

1

114

le l

8 ts

ę

The antiquities of this kingdom are a subject, which, although, in some fort, already treated of in eneral, yet there is, in every part of it, fufficient cope for more discoveries in this way which can ever be made without vifiting every particular part of the country, where one not only meets with the emains of edifices, infcriptions, MSS, and records, out alfo, in fome places, with intelligent perfons, killed in the native language, traditions, and anent writings of the country; from all which I have received many curious hints and discoveries, hat I flatter myfelf will be no way difagreeable o a person who delights in such researches, Though, to confess the truth, the best hand that can be made of this part of study, is to collect, and gather together, what fragments remain, in the best manner we can, For as lord Bacon (7) justly ays, "Antiquitates seu Historiarum reliquiæ sunt tanquam tabulæ naufragii, quas homines industrii & fagaces ex genealogiis, fastis, titulis, numismatibus, archivis & instrumentis tam publicis quam privatis, a temporis diluviis eripiunt & confervant."

The natural history lies more open; but its knowledge is still to be discovered by inquiries made on the spot. Dr. Douglas (8) says, that the great sir Isaac Newton was sensible that something more than knowing the name, the shape, and obvious qualities of an insect, a pebble, a plant, or a shell, was requisite to form a philosopher, even of the lowest rank. We all of us (says he) remember that saying so frequently in his mouth, that natural history might, indeed, furnish materials for natural philosophy. It was not, that he despised so useful a branch of learning as natural history, he was too wife to do so; But still he indeed

⁽⁷⁾ De Augm, Scientian Lib. a. Cap. 6.

⁽⁸⁾ Preface to Winflow's Anatomy.

judged that this humble hand-maid to philosophy, though the might be well employed in amaling materials and implements, for the fervice of he mistress, yet must very much forget herself, and the meanness of her station, if ever she should presume to claim the throne, and arrogate to her felf the title of queen of the fciences.

Doctor Shaw has observed, in his abridgment of the philosophical works of the hon. Robert Boyle "That this great philosopher was always taken up with the objects around us, and of which we are or may be put into possession, though we remain ignorant of their properties virtues, and uses, till he calls them out, sets then before us, and furprifes us with a fight of our own ignorance of things to near us, to momentous in themselves, and so necessary to our well being, and the true enjoyments of life. There is no condition or profession of men but may be benefited by his discoveries. The mechanic the merchant, the gentleman, all are benefited by Mr. Boyle. He shews us trades in a new light, and makes them what they really are, a part of natural philosophy, and considering " them accordingly, reveals forme of their myste-" ries. The goldsmith, the lapidary, the jew-" eller, the refiner, the Rone-cutter, the dyer, " the glas-maker, artisans of all kinds, will, from " him, receive the best informations, as also the " husbandman, &c. Thus no part of mankind " is neglected by him, but he shews a more parti-" cular regard to those professions, wherein the " health of the species is more nearly concerned. " In a word, there is scarce any art or natural pro-"duction known, but he makes some improve-" ment in it,", ob of sur out as

Hence

⁽⁹⁾ Gen. Pref. 2d Edit. London 1938. p. 13, in 4to

rhy, ling

and ier-

of 14 ays of

CS.

em

tut

n-

ere

be

r,

10

d

Hence we see the usefulness of such discoveries, especially in a country where sew or none have been made, and very little wrote, either on its origin, improvement, or natural history: In which branch, I must acknowledge the kind assistance of my friend Dr. Rutty, of Dublin, chieffy in the botanical part of this work; also, in making inquiries into the proper uses of the fossis transmitted to the physico-historical society, and experiments on the mineral waters.

It would feem prepofterous to introduce a number of strangers into this kingdom, before sufficient methods are discovered for employing them. But we shall not be long to seek for work for them, our neighbouring kingdoms set us examples sufficient, by employing their hands in husbandry, manufactures, and merchandise. The neglect of which, with an account of such as may be easily set up among us, and the manner they are carried on in other countries, where they flourish, I intend to treat of in the following sheets.

When we shall mind our true interest, in employing, and encouraging, every where, all our idle hands, and afterwards those of other nations, who may be induced to settle among us: When our nobility and gentry become examples in those particulars; when we shall be hereby engaged to enclose and improve every foot of our land; to make the utmost of our home-growth, above and under ground, and of all our sea ports; it is very easy to foresee what an additional lustre this island will be to the diadem of the British empire, both abroad and at home, in beauty, strength, and glory.

It would be ingratitude to close this introduction, if I did not acknowledge the many obligations I lie under to the nobility and gentry of this county, who affifted me in this undertaking; particularly in communicating several valuable materials and manu-

manuscripts, which will be found quoted in the civil history, and annals of the county; and othe encouragements afforded me in the prosecution of this work. And I should still acknowledge it as a further favour, that if any thing considerable is omitted, either in relation to the natural or civil history, or antiquities of the country, they will be pleased to advise me of it, in order to print it is an appendix to this work, or in a future edition.

tregenoid from pacific course to interchice at not med progress for towns in the company of them. -fful compared an les involve la grianodicial and -ara, when cuttal stand tistly vaivages vit and to the same of F. Shanel and and same same villas ed van sa dest la rausson nahitik i dila O'ny amony any ood Me common they are counted of I ade a f year endy to many radio who tad an area of in the following there, What e that third our true towers, in onploying and choomering, every where, all our de land a and all read of the or of our marion. who may be induced to fattle among us: When older of a learness amount of the bear with by me or begge a detail of that we make Trible into enclose and harrows every look on bond; to make the winsoft of our home graver, above and Middle ground, and of all our wa parm, it is very the foreign what an additional haste this illand HT to the diadon of whe distributing empire.

If you'd be ingraciande to close alie introduction, if I del not acknowledge the map you'd gations.

If it makes to the mobility and genery at this county, who affiled me is a successful tracking a particular by in continuous for a several valuable materials as the

ANCIENT and PRESEN

n d t a civil be t in

NTY and CI

BOOK I.

Containing the ancient Names of the Territories and Inhabitants, with the civil and ecclefiaftical Division of this County, &c.

Son C H A P. Label en doing

Of the ancient Names of the Territories and Inhabitants of this County, together with those of the middle and present Age.

TOLEMY (1) places several people in this country, fince known by the names of the counties of Cork and Desmond, and calls them Coriondi, Udiæ or Vodii, Velabori, and Uterini, which seem to be a corruption of the name Iberni, and are, according to Baxter (2), only fynonimous names for one and the same people.

The Coriondi, whose name still bears some affinity to the Irish name of this tract, were the inha-्राप्ति स्थान कि क्रिक्ट हो। सा अन्य कार्याच्या है ज्यानिक के क्रिक्ट

⁽i) Geograp. lib. 4. (a) p. 134.

HA

e fi

e f

at.

nul

f

hey

S

E

Fa

CIN

Ca

et

nd or her

cu

nd

V

(5)

bitants of the middle part of the county, partie larly near the present city of Cork. They feem be derived from the ancient Coritani, a British trib whom Cambden places in Northamptonshire, L ceftershire, Rutland, Lincolnshire, &c. or, secon ing to that other celebrated antiquerian Liber who makes them only to be a small colony, inh biting Lincolnshire: But whether our Coriondi be colony of the British Coritani (g), or not is, at the distance of time, no very easy matter to determin It is certain, that many of the ancient British per ple retired into Ireland, upon the invation of the Romans, in the reign of the emperor Velpalian about the year of Christ 76, during the govern ment of Petilius Cerealis in Britain. And Cambo adds, that they fled hither, forme, for the fake ease and quietness; others, to keep their eyes w tainted with the Roman infolence; and other again, to preferve their liberty no off minis bordering on rivers, corcais grounds. The heat made of wattles, covered over with raw hides, which the old Irish, as well as the ancient British used to fail, were called, in the Irish tongue, curaghs, in the old British, corcog, which comes wery near the Irish name for Cork, viz. Corcach, is nifying in the Irish language, a marshy place, or a place of curraghs, in boats (4). Hence the latin mame of those people Coriondi, i. e. navigators, from corion, leather the Welsh, to this day, call skins Gragh, for the greek X₂s, and also in the latin Corional

(4) Cork harbour was, in ancient manuferipts, call

Bealach Conglac.

⁽³⁾ The name Coritani might easily be changed for tword Coridani, which last our people have been called, by meer transmittation of the letter timo d, a change freque in language, as Alexanter to Alexander for and many amples might be given of this aifo in the Irish, was it prop to enlarge on so needless a criticism.

HAP. I. HISTORY of CORK.

e may give any credit to the old Irish chronicles, e first who made use of leathern boats in Ireland, as Eochaid Vairceas, king of Ireland, A. M. 3394, e surname Vairceas, signifying an open skiff, or sat. They add, that this prince was banished to years before he came to the throne, but, with number of his followers, kept the sea (5), in several vessels, from which he often landed his men, spoil the inhabitants, in these kind of boats. Spoil the inhabitants in these kind of boats. Since we mentioned as a fort of miracle, by Festus vienus (6), describing the Oestrymindes, or isses Scilly.

Non usque navibus turbidum late fretum Et belluosum gurgitem oceani secant, Non hi carinas quippe pinu texere, Facere morem non abiete, ut usus est, Curvant phasello: sed rei ad miraculum, Navigia junctis semper aptant pellibus, Corioque vastum sæpe percurrunt salem.

et not in ships they try the watry plain,
nd rouse the shapeless monsters of the main.
or neither gallies fram'd of losty pine hey know to make, nor weaker fir to join barks; but wondrous! skins to skins they sew;
cure in these to distant regions go,
nd pathless seas with keels of leather plow.

You. I. C The

(5) The ancients called our ocean, by the name of the Versian sea; which sea was called, by the Britons, Morveridh, the Irish sea; for Mor, in the British tongue, signifies the anti-anne Vergivium is derived. But Cambden will either to it from Morveridh, or Farigi or Fairrge, (the letter Fing pronounced like a V confonant,) which signifies, in the litish, the seas. Marcianus Heraeletea, who wrote a simplical treatise, in Greek prose, called simplify, says, it Ireland has 16 nations, 11 samous cities, 3 remarkable montories, and 13 principal rivers.

(6) De oris Maritimis.

The method of making those boats is also deficibed by Lucan (7), thus Utque habuit ripas Sicoris, camposq; reliquit, Primum cana salix, madefacto vimine, parvam Texitur in puppim, cæsoque induta juvenco Vectoris patiens tumidum superenatat amnem. Sic Venetus, stagnante Pado, susoque Britanus Navigar oceano: Sic cum tenet omnia Nilus, Conseritur bibula Memphitis cymba papyro.

Cæsar the champaign leaves, and spreading ground When Sicorean waves his troops surround; The twisting willows to the keel he joins, And reeking hides cements, and close the lines. Proud of their crew, they wast them to the shore, Such Venice knows, such Britons had before, And such as river Nile to Memphis bore.

From Cæfar's own description of this passage in his Commentaries, it appears, that he had learned the method of making thefe boats from the Briton For, fays he, " cum in his angustiis res effet, atq omne, vice ab Afranianis militibus, equitibula " obfidirentur, imperat militibus Cæfar, ut nave " faciant, cujus generis eum superioribus anni " ufus Britanniæ docuerat. Carinæ primum, se statumina ex levi materia flebant, reliquum corpus navium viminibus contextum Coriis intege batur, &cc," When things were brought to fuch extremities, and all the ways were guarded and thu up by the foldiers and horsemen of Afranius, Co far ordered the foldiers to make fuch boats as he had feen used in Britain formerly : The keels where of were made of light ftuff, and fmall timber, and the upper parts formed of ofiers, covered with hides, And Pliny (8) fays, "ad eam Britanni vitu-corio circumfutis navigare." We have an exle also of another place taking its name from a or veffel, viz. the country of Liburnia, being rt of Croatia, from Liburna, a kind of thip used these people.

v de

it,

am

0

m.

nna

4

and 47

e in ned

ve ni

10 ich

110

n

118

the Vodii or Udiæ, were a people which ter (o) will have to inhabit the inland parts Munfter. They took their name from their ation in a woody country; the British words theiu, Guydieu, denoting wood. Ptolemy, if maps handed down to us be his, places those ple on the coast, between the mouths of the and Avenmore (which last, I take to be the urona of that ancient geographer) S. of the fiondi. So that the great Cambden's conjece, for placing them in the county of Kilkenny, nded only in the likeness of the found of the rds Vodii, or Udize, to Idou or Idouth, a terry in that county, comprehending the modern ony of Fassaghdining, cannot be admitted a the position of that Barony is very remote from S. coast of Munster: Nor need we seek elseere for those Vodil, than in the very spot assignthem by Ptolemy, viz. the barony of Imokilly , ich, in the Irish tongue, signifies the woody ritory, the same as the word Vodii, a latin ternation of the British Vydhieu, also means. The ef place in which tract is Youghal, in old wrigscalled Ochella, derived from the words O-chill, Y-chill, the place of a wood. In all ages, whole untries, cities and towns, have been denomited from trees, as Cyparific in Greece, Cerafus Pontus, Laurentum in Italy, Myrhinus in Attica: alfo ports, mountains, and eminent places, as Viminalis, Æfculetum, &co. probably, from pontaneous growth and abounding of fuch u in the respective falls. A handy to live its its man dhea Camboga mir Ptolemy

ve

n

II

m

ir

1

1

Ptolemy places, near the Notium of Mun (which is now called the Missen-head, and, in Mullavogy-head) a people named Vellabori, in a copies of this geographer they are called own and also out 18000. We can neither seek for the ginal of those people, nor of the former, as the both take their names from the nature of the cotry, for Bel, or Bel Abor, in the old British, see the head of a bay, probably Blar or Beat-h

The fame geographer calls thole people, wh inhabited the more western parts of this coun viz. about Bear-haven and Bantry, Uterini, That these Iberni in fome editions, Iberni, their origin from the Iberi, or Spaniards, who, the Irish writers, have been said to send early of ries into Ireland, is very probable onot only for the affinity of the name, but also from those p of Ireland lying nearer, and more opposite to Spanish coast than any other. The distance tween cape Ortugal in Spain, and cape Clear Ireland, being but 150 leagues, almost opposite each other N. and S. and as far as to Uthant France, which is two thirds of the way, may b in a manner, coasted, the usual method of falls in those remote ages; they not daring to ventu far to fea, not having the use of the compass fleer by, but observing the fun by day, and the ftars by night, to direct them. Yet, notwithstand ing these difficulties, many of the ancients unde took long voyages, as the Phenicians and Carth ginians, which last nation had many colonies Spain, who often failed to Britain, and other no thern climes. Certain it is, that in Aristotle's tim (10) the Greeks had some notion of this island which limited their knowledge of the wester world, I make no doubt, but the northern an eastern parts of Ireland were peopled from Britain those parts lying opposite and contiguous to each Boo

Mu

in

in

Ouds

the 85

e co

1, 1

if-he

SOUN

ni h

1 00

fin

to I

e i nt

1

111 itu fo

ind de

10

П

n

er; the navigation being short and safe, even in en boats. Yet, if all the kingdom was origily inhabited this way, it would be hard to conve how there should remain such a diversity of others, customs, and dialects, between the norm and southern parts; which diversity being mon to all the other nations of Europe, can be ing to nothing else, but to the different colonies y were first peopled with.

should not dwell so much on this subject, but t many modern English writers treat this colony the Iberi, under Milefius, as a fable. But the mary appears from the testimony of all the old h MSS, which, like other early histories, are mided with truth and fable , belides, the remains the Irifh tongue is ftill fooken among the Vafcones d Cantabrians, as is thewn by Lihuyd in his cheologia, where we may also meet with many igular cultoms of theirs, which agree with the th, as wearing bonnets, fhort fkiens, or durks. Cantabria, the peafants ftill wear Irifh courrans, rough thoes, without heels, ute their pipes, nes, and ways of dancing stand, in their frape id features, refemble the tall, thin make, and ack, flender hair of our Momonian Irifh , a very fferent kind of bodied men, from the fquat, fhort, ick-limb'd people of the eastern coasts, refeming the Welfh, from whose country they unoubtedly came (11).

Having

⁽¹¹⁾ It may not be amis to quote a very ancient writer in is place, who says, that Eberus, Erimon, Ir, Don, Amerus, and Calptha, were the 6 sons of Milesius, who landed Ireland. From Eberus sprang the Momenii, or people of funster. From Erimon, were derived the people of Lethaii, and the Lagenii, or people of Leinster. The Ulides, or cople of Ulster, sprang from Ir. From Don, the territory Teach Duin, in the western parts of Ireland; and from laphtha, the river Inder Calptha was called, where the Bo-

Prima vita fanct. Patric. scholia veteris scholiaft.

Boo

Having given some account of those peoplentioned by Ptolemy in this country, I shall next lect together what I find, by any good authoriested of the ancient Irish septs, dispersed this large country, with the names their differentionics went by, before the arrival of English and to another polito estable of the Cork, before the arrival of the Strongbo conquerors, was a kingdom of itself, the king which were the Mac-Cartys, that family b found in possession of it by the English Diarm who was Mac-Carty-More, king of Cork or I mond, (wore fealty, gave hoftages, and fubjed his kingdom to a yearly tribute to king Henry in the year 1172 (12). This kingdom comp hended all that tract of country, from Lifmore Brandon hills, in the county of Kerry, where the face the eastern parts of that county. Befides county of Cork, and the western parts of Was ford, it also comprehended another county, i merly called Defmond, which county; bei a part of those of Cork and Kerry, it may not smis to mention its extent. It was divided three tracts, rft, Clancare, which lay next fea, between the bay of Dingle and Kilmaire ver. 2d, Bear, lying between that river and B try; and 3d, Iveragh or Evaugh, fituated between Bantry and Baltimore. There was also another part of it, which lay near the Shannon, being t fmall barony of Iragticonner. Defmond, in t Irish language, signifies South Munster.

danus empties itself. These ancient accounts differ much in each other; some making only three sons of Milesus to a in Ireland, whom Keating I follows; but the landing of the as well as of Partholanus, they all place in the bay of Bantr which they call Inber Sceine.

(12) Ware's Ann. p. 7.

next

perfec

diffe

l of ngbo

y be ar D

lenry

more

des

Wat

d Ba

noth

g t h fre

o la the

antr

101

The Irifh antiquarians allow but eight families of extraction in Muniters of which they place our in Carbery (13), which comprehended all the W. part of this county : And thefe were, befides Mac-Cartys above-mentioned, O Mahon or Mshown, O Donovan and O Drifcoll (14). Those Mahowns derive their pedigree from Kean Mac-Movle More, who married Sarah, daughter to Brien Boruma, king of Munster, by whom he had Mahown, the ancestor of all that sept. For, in that king's reign, furnames were given to the Irish, and were commonly deduced from the name of their principal ancestor, with O or Mac annexed. It is from this Kean, that the village of Iniskean, in Carbery, has its name ! and from this fept, that Bandon is called fometimes Droghid Mahon, and the aftle near it Castlemahon. The head branch of the family refided in west Carbery, and were called O Mahownfune, alias Owinyerer, or of the west, sight to the church alone, his offering made

(13) The territory of Carbery took its name from an ancient lish chief, so called. There were three brothers, according to the Irish antiquarians, a Carbry Riada, a Carbry Musc; and 3 Carbry Bascoin, who are faid to be sons to Fischad, who was brother to Eana Aighnach, monarch of Munster. They, and their posterity, were called Earniade Mumhan; from the first of these, this barony is said to take its name; and some add, that from him, or his race, Dailriada, in Scotland, was called. The second brother is said to give his name to Mustery, as did the youngest to Corca Bascoin, a territory where the city of Cork now stands. In the reign of Oilioli Olum, king of Munster, Carbry Musc presented a poem to the king, wherein he celebrated the valour, generosity, and magnificance of that prince, who so greatly liked the performance, that he rewarded him with the two Urmhumhains, i. e. upper and lower Ormond, called afterwards, from this Carbry, Mustery, and contained all the country from Oslory to Carrigneshure. Keating.

(14) According to the genealogical tables added to Kesting, all the tribes and fepts of the O Mahonys, in the counties of Cork and Kerry, are descended from Cas, brother to Nadfrech, and for of Core, kings of Muniter.

fraoch, and fon of Corc, kings of Muniter.

In an ancient life of faint Kieran, quoted by Archbiffiop Ulsher, Carbery is called Corcaluidhe.

HA

neir

he

om

fI

hey 'hi

ou uil ell

10

as

ln

ra ur

in

bt

where they had many castles, the chief of which were at Ardintenant and Three Castle-head (15). This family had also anciently possessions in part of the modern barony of Muskery, viz. the parished Kilmurry, Moviddy, Caneboy, Aglish, &c. which bore the name of Ive-slan-lee, from Flan, one of the Mahonys nursed there, who conquered almost all this tract, as appears from those ancient Irish lines.

O Glaise crithe fuair flan Na ciocha thuaig adteorinn Mar ar shaig cuan achros Gan chios uatha ach deaglais.

West from the stream of Glaisecrithe brook, To Muskery's paps, where holy Patrick struck His crosser; thence unto the southern main The conquering Flan o'er all this tract did reign. No rent, or tribute, for this land he paid, But to the church alone, his offering made.

From this Flan, descended Beake; from whom, according to the Munster Annals, the territory of Kinalmeaky (16) took its name, which was anciently part of Carbery (17).

The family of O Donovan (18) was the next

(15) Vide a note of the names of all the plowlands belonging to O Mahown-fune in Duaghe, a part of west Carbery, in the Lambeth library, L. fol. 105.

in the Lambeth library, L. fol. 105.

The division of the territory of Ivagh (a part also of Carbery) among the O Mahonys, may also be seen, in the manuscripts of the same library, X. X. fol. 10.

(16) Kinalmeaky fignifies the head of the noble root. From Kean a head, Neal noble, and Mecan a root, in old Irish, probably alluding to this sept of the Mahonys.

(17) The last of this sept, who was called Conogher O Mahony, was slain in Desmond's rebellion, and died selved of the seigniory of Kinalmeaky. Cox. vol. 1. p. 484.

feigniory of Kinalmeaky. Cox, vol. 1. p. 383.

(18) The O Conailles and O Cullinanes, also derive their pedigree from the same origin as O Donovan. What is remarkable

世子 子 G G G E H

CS.

m, n, of

Ct |

.

Œ,

2

ġ.

entioned, as allowed to be of royal extraction; eir territory, in this county, went formerly by e name of Clancahill, a part of west Carbery, omprehending the large and mountainous parish Drumalegue, and other tracks; in which parish hey had their chief residence, at Castle-Donovan. his family came hither, from a barony in the ounty of Limerick, called Coshma, where they uilt the famous caftle of Crom, which afterwards to the Kildare family; and from which the notto, Crom-a-Boo, still used by that noble house, as taken. The representative of this ancient fanly, has his feat at Banlaghan, in west Carbery. nother ancient fept, also said to be of royal exaction, are the O-Driscolls (19), who took this imame, as they pretend, from Heidersgoil, son of in, who sprang from Ith, son of Bregoan, which th, they will have to be uncle to king Milefius. ther antiquarians, with more probability, fay, they ad their name from Conary more Mac-Eidriscoll, ing of Ireland. But be that as it may, this fept ad possession of a large tract, both in this county nd in Kerry, called Iveragh, and also Cothilia, in ld Irish records, being a very confiderable country n the S.W. coast. They had in it several strong aftles, viz. Dunashad, now Baltimore; and opposite oit, in the island of Inisherkin, Dunelong castle; which island, fir Florence O-Driscoll founded a rancifcan abby, anno 1460. The island of Cape lear also belonged to them; the castle of which lace, together with all their other castles, were, by Fineene O-Drifcoll, delivered up to the Spanirds, anno 1601; but were retaken, by the English, arkable of this last family of the O Cullinanes, is, that it is never known without one or more physicians in it, which remarked by Cambden, infomuch that when a person is wen over, they have a saying in Irish, even O Cullinane canot cure him. Which profession still continues in the family.

(19) Keating's Tables,

two years after. In order to ingratiate himself wind queen Elizabeth, a fleet of English ships of war were supplied, for a considerable time, with fresh profitions, by this sir Fineene O-Driscoll, who also not entertained all the captains, and other officers, a his castles. The queen being informed of it, pardoned his joining the Spaniards, and sent for him a court. But before he arrived there, the queen died, and during his absence, great part of his possession were intruded into, by sir Walter Coppinger, which caused this ancient family to fall to decay.

I have already taken notice, that the Mac Carry were kings of Cork, but the chief of this name a Carbery, was Mac-Carty Reagh, who was also the chief person in the whole territory of Carbery. He is not only in the Irish chronicles, but also in seven patents and records, stiled prince of Carbery; and it is certain, that he enjoyed a chief-rent, more or less, out of the greatest part of this barony, computed to be 300 l. per annum; which, for the most part, was paid in hogs, beeves, sheep, and the like and was counted a greater and more noble chiefy, than was received, in those times, out of any other seigniory in Ireland.

It is also manifest, from the honourable maniages (20) and noble alliances of this family of MacCarty Reagh, that it was always esteemed amongst ⁽²⁰⁾ Donald Mac-Fineen Mac-Carty Reagh, was married to Elinor, daughter to Gerald, the eighth earl of Kildare, who was lord lieutenant of Ireland, anno 1406, by whom he had four fons, I. Florence, commonly called the deaf, who did without iffue male. 2. Cormac Mac-Carty Reagh, ancestor to the family of Banduff in Carbery. 3. Sir Donogh, alias Mac-Carty Reagh, ancestor of Charles Mac-Carty More, who lived in the reign of king William, and of Donogh Mac-Carty, of Carigypheeaghane, in Kerry, Esq. 4. Sir Owen Mac-Carty, Reagh, ancestor to the family of Trale in Carbery, and of Owen Mac-Carty, lieutenant-colonel in 1689, to Mac-Carty More. Sir Donogh and fir Owen were Mac-Carty Reaghduring their lives. Thomas, their elder brother, had iffur Donald.

OK

rovi

par

m to

Tion

rhid

arty

ne n

He

reni

e or

the

III-

8 55 2

会医多花

7 10

lac-

of of

arty

the most considerable in Ireland; nor was there any of this house in rebellion against the crown of England, until the unhappy year of 1641; which makes it strange, that so great a man as the head of this house was, had then but 12001, per annum. But the Irith give two reasons for this; the first is, that the younger fons of the family had drawn off many tracts from the patrimonial effate; And, another, that in the infancy of Daniel, who was called Nipipy (21), (who was Mac-Carty Reagh by taniffry) his uncle, fir Donogh Mac-Carty, gave his own fon Florence, a better estate in Carbery, than he left to the heir; or than his fon got by Mac-Carty More's daughter. For he gave him Tough Carriganastig, containing 12 plowlands; Tough Mountain, being 7 plowlands; and Tough Iniskean, 12 plowlands. So that he left Mac-Carty Reagh, only the 10 plowlands of Kilbritton (22), 3 of Cool-

(21) This Donald Ni-pipy, was so called, because, in his time, some pipes of wine were cast on shore at Burrin, and consequently, were his right, being a wreck, and accordingly he had them, which, in those superstitious simes, was reckoned very fortunate; the wreck being esteemed (as the Cornish mens phrase is) Gods' goods. His grandson, Donald Mac-Cormac, was high sheriff of this county, and a protestant, anno 1632. The additional name of Reagh, was annexed to this family, from the time of Donald Reagh, one of its ancestors, to distinguish it from the other family of Mac Carty More.

(22) Kilbritton belonged to the lords Kingsale, long before Mac Carty Reagh possessed it. For, by a composition of Walter de la Haye, the king's escheator of Ireland, anno 23 Edw. I. 1295, the manor of Kilbritton and Ringrone, with the mills, fisheries, &c. thereto belonging, the lands of Corrotsheran, Holderness, Listynia, Tathax, Lyssidie, and Kingsale, in the county of Cork; and other places in the extent roll taken on the occasion, being seized into the king's hands, upon the death of John de Courcey, who was slain by Mac Carty the same year, in the island of inchydonny, (as appears by a certificate of Samuel Mollineux, Ulster king at arms, concerning the said battle.) This Walter restores the said lands, &c. on a composition of 12 l. 12 s. to James Keating, per brevi domain, 2 of Downdaniel, 4 of Ballynadee, 1 of Burrin, 2½ of Gorticlogh, now Skibbereen, one plowland of Knockandee, and some other parcels, besides his chief rent.

€

Of all the Mac-Cartys of Carbery, the abovementioned Florence Mac-Donogh was the most famous. He was a man of extraordinary stature, and as great policy; he had competent courage, and as much zeal as any body, for what he imagined to be true religion, and the liberty of his country. He married Ilen, daughter and heires to the earl of Clancare (23), and, purely by his merit, mini regis, &c. And the said Walter de la Haye restores the country of Glynardall, and other lands in the county of Kerry, to the said Keating, for the use of the heir of the said John, lord Courcy. Concordat cum original. in these infra Cast. Dubl. rememb. Philip Percevall. penes dominum de Kingsale.

(23) Donald Mac-Carty More, earl of Clancare (a territory in the county of Kerry) was so created by queen Elizabeth, anno 1566, having resigned his estate to her, and then had it restored, to hold of the crown of England, by sealty, after the English manner. He was, at the same time, created baron of Valentia, an island adjoining. Cambden says, he was a man eminent, of great power in those parts, and a bitter enemy to the Fitz-Geralds, who dispossessed his ancesters, kings of Defmond, of their country.

In a manuscript, called a Breviate of the getting of Ireland, &c. in the College library, E. Tab. 3. N. 18. Mac-Carty More, of Desmond, and these following, are enumerated among the chief Irish captains of Munster. Mac Donogh, of Duhallow. O Donogh, of Ross, by Loughlean, in Kerry. O Donogh, of Glansleske. O Kief, of Drumtarist, in this county. Mac Awly, of Clan-Awly. O Callaghan, of Clonmeene, in the same. O Sullivan-More, of Dunkerron, in Kerry. O Sullivan-Bear, of Dunboy, in this county. Mac Gillycuddy, of Doneboo, in Kerry. Mac Fyneen, of Ardentully, &c. These were all followers of Mac-Carty More; they brought into the field 60 horse and 1500 foot. They, and all other of Mac-Carty's followers, with his own forces, were to be at the call of the earls of Desmond. Mac-Carty Reagh, of Carbery, could raise 300 footmen, and 60 horsemen; his territory extended, in length, 50 miles, and, in breadth, 30 miles. Those following were his followers. O Driscoll, of Baltimore. Barry

CHAP. I. HISTORY of CORK.

L

ur-

W-

befa-

re,

2-

116 ſs

t,

y,

merit, dispossessed her bastard brother Donald, of the name and title of Mac-Carty More, which he himself assumed, by the unanimous suffrages of Tyrone, the clergy, and the people: this is the more strange; for, in Ireland, they usually prefered bastard sons before daughters, in order to preserve the name and the family, as in the Roman adoptions, and to defend the country. For this marriage, without the queen's licence, this Florence was sent to the Tower of London, where he was kept eleven years; and then, being set at liberty,

he joined in Tyrone's rebellion.

The other clans of the Mac-Cartys, in Carbery, and their territories, were, first, the branch of Clancrimine, so called from Mac-Crimin, a sept of the Mac-Cartys, whose feat was at Ballynorohor, anciently one of the best castles in this county; which he justly forfeited, together with his life, for a barbarous murder by him committed, anno 1641. A second branch of the Mac-Cartys possessed a tract, called Glawnacrime, being the parish of Fanlobush, now Dunmanway; near which place, they had their residence, in a castle lately demolished by sir Richard Cox. This family was famous for extravagant hospitality, a practice formerly much applauded in this county. The last of this house was called Teige O-Downy, who, besides the forenamed castle, had another, which is still standing, called Togher. A third branch of this family, had the furname, or rather the forbiquet of Rabagh, i. e. the hospitable.

West of the last territory, was another small tract in Carbery, called Clandonel-Roe's country, the Mac-Cartys also possessed it. As did another small branch of the same name, a little territory to

the

Oge Roe, and Barry-Oge, Oge, O Mahon, of Ardintenan, O Donovan, Mac-Patrick, O Crowley, O Mulrian, &c. He was also subject to the call of the earls of Desinond.

the east of Dunmanway, formerly called Mac-Inganauras, though some give this last to the Collins's.

These were the chief Irish septs in this large barony of Carbery, which is the greatest in Ireland; nor could I hear of any other who possessed any considerable territory in it, except the O-Crowleys, who inhabited a tract, called Kilfhalow, which lay west of Bandon, on the river of that name. This family derived their descent from Diarmuid, of Mylurig, in Conaught. Their country, in old MSS, is described to have been woody and mountainous; and mention is also made of a smart skirmish happening in it, between the Mac-Cartys, of Carbery, and the O-Learys, of Muskerry, anno.1600.

I have already observed, that Kinalmeaky was a part of Carbery, as was also the modern barony of Ibawn and Barriroe, which, though divided by an arm of the fea, comprehends but one fmall be-The tract, called Ibawn, i. e. the fair terrony. ritory, was, after the coming in of the English, wrested from the old proprietors, by lord Arundel, commonly called lord Arundel, of the Strand; and, from him, it fell to the Barrymore family. There are the remains of an ancient caftle on the strand of Cloghnikelty, formerly called Arundel caftle (24), but now Rine castle. Barryroe has its present name from a branch of the Barrys (25); but anciently it belonged to the O-Cowigs, who have been quite extinguished by the conquerors; yet there

(24) Spencer, in his view of the state of Ireland, observes, that the lord Arundel, of the Strand, who was anciently a great lord, and had an estate of 3500 l. per ann. was, in the reign of queen Elizabeth, a tenant to the lord Barry, to whom he performed those services which were only due to the queen.

(25) The greatest part of this tract, is now in the Barrymore family. In the Lambeth library, MS. X. X. fol. as are the lord Barry's titles to the lands of Barryroe.

CHAP. I. HISTORY of CORK.

re some remains of them in a promontory, called Dun O-Cowig, which was fortified with a small old castle. They were originally descended from the O-Driscolls, before mentioned. There was also a sept of the O-Donovans in those parts, named O-Hea, whose residence was at a castle, called Ahimilly; and they had a territory, called Pubble O-Hea, in this tract. The residence of the Barrys, in this barony, was named Rathbarry, which was a stately castle in its time; it is now called Castle-Freke, and is the seat of sir John Freke, bart. All this tract fell into English hands, anno 1642, being taken by colonel Myn.

1.

he

ge e-

ed

V-

X,

at i-

1-

y

of 2

Ä

Another Irish sept, west of Carbery, are the O-Sullivans, who were distinguished into the names of O-Sullivan Bear, and O-Sullivan Bantry (26). Bear, probably, retains its name from the Iberi beforementioned. Bantry (in ancient times named Bentraighe) was reckoned a part of Carbery, and is said to have its name from Beannt Mac-Farriola, a person descended from the O-Donovans and Mahonys. A son of his, called Bair Briver, possessed that small rugged tract, called by the name of Minterbairr, being now the parish of Killegrohan. I find, in latter times, the O-Dalys had this territory, who were successively bards or poets, to the O-Mahon, and the Carew family. O-Glavin,

who

(26) Vid. An inquisition concerning O-Sullivan's lands in Bear and Bantry, preserved among the MSS. of the Lambeth library, X. X. fol. 13. Vid. also, an account of the particular forces of O-Sullivan in this part of the country, in the same library, manuscript X. X. fol. 105.

In a manuscript, called, a Breviate of Ireland, and the diversity of Irish in the same, preserved in the college library, E. Tab. 3. N. 8. wrote by Philip O-Sullivan Bear, and presented to the king of Spain, anno 1618, by Florence, titular archbishop of Tuam; after O-Neil, and O-Donnell, the author sets down Don Dermitius O-Sullivan among the ancient Irish seculars in Ireland. This Dermot was then at Madrid, and assumed the title of earl of Bearhaven.

who was also their termon, or steward, possessed part of it. By these names, Daly and Glavin, I design the samily, and not any particular branch dit. In Bantry bay, there is still a place, called Adragoal, probably, named from a clan of the Gauls or Celtiberi, who landed here. Ardgoal, or Ardgyle in Scotland, is the same name. A colony of the clan of Gaul, or Celtiberi, sailed over from Ireland to the western isses, and gave the country of Argyle, in Scotland, their name. They called that country Gael Albenich, from old Albania; and those of Ireland, Gael Erinich; both nations, to this day, retaining the same language, manners, and customs.

Kerricurihy and Kinalea are now one barony the former was anciently called Muskery Millane, and was possessed by the Mac-Cartys, but granted, after the conquest, to Richard de Cogan, as I shall shew hereafter. It is, in old manuscripts, called Long a Gowganig, i. e. Cogan's Ship; and comprehended, not only the tract now called Kerricurihy, but also the barony of Imokilly, in which last the Carews, soon after the English conquest, likewise settled. In queen Elizabeth's time, it went by the name of Kerry-wherry. The other part, called Kinalea, was anciently named Infovenagh; and being also a territory of the Mac-Cartys, was granted to Robert Fitz-Martin, by king John (27), anno 1208. But, in latter times, it was possessed by Barry Oge.

Having thus far treated of the ancient tracts, and fepts of the maritime parts of this county; I now proceed to the inland territories. And first, of the large barony of Muskery, which still retains its ancient name, and was, according to the conquests of the Irish upon each other, sometimes of a greater, and, at other times, of a lesser extent. Kerricurihy, called, as before, Muskery Millane, being once a

HAP. I. HISTORY of CORK.

art of it; as was also Muskery Donegan, a tracting round Baltimore. It was anciently a wild and roody country, and so continued till the days of ambden. The Mac-Cartys (28) were, for many ears, the chief proprietors of it; and so continued ong after the conquest of the English: The head f this branch being created viscount Muskery, and arl of Clancarty, which titles have been forfeited ince the revolution.

The other Irish septs of Muskery, were the O-Learys, who had a considerable territory in the west of this barony, called Iveleary, and many castles. Also the Swinys, Riardans and Murphys, who were all followers of Mac-Carty. The modern barony of Barrets, was also a part of Muskery; as was, formerly, the present barony of Barrymore.

OOK

effed

, 1 de

nch d

called

of the

al, of olony

from untry

alle

and

this

and ny i ane

ted,

hall

lled

Sm-

CU-

ich

eft,

it

ter

1

11-ng

it

d

١

The eastern extremity of Barrymore, was called, in the English grants, the cantred of Olethan, also Ivelehan; part of it had the name of Coshbride, which territory extended into the county of Waterford, and there still retains its name. Besides the Mac-Cartys, who possessed the western part, which belonged to Muskery; the O-Lehans, an ancient was Castle-Lehan, now softened into Castle-Lyons. This country was granted, soon after the English came over, to the Barrys, who were, for some ages, called lords Barry, of Castlelehan. The great island, anciently called Arda-Neimhid, was also possessed by the same family.

The modern barony of Duhallow, in fome old manuscripts Alla, is a large tract, of which Mac-Vot. I. Donough, ⁽a8) I purposely omit giving a particular account of this branch of the Mac-Cartys, called the Clancarty family, in this chapter, as they will frequently occur in the historical part of this work.

X . St. A Smile of Actual

Donough, a branch of the Mac-Cartys (29), chief. He is, in feveral old chronicles, stiled pri of Duhallow; and lived in this country, with followers; in great splendor, till the year 161 His dependants were O-Kief, chief of Poble O-Kie a country in the north-west part of this country Mac-Auliff, chief of Clan-Auliff; and O'Callag an, chief of the territory, called Poble O-Callago an (30), west of Mallow, being the present parish of Kilshanick, and Clonmeene, where the chi fept of the O-Callaghans lived, and where a de scendant of the family still remains. nough

(20) Vid. a note in the Lambeth library, manuscript X. I fol. 15. concerning the feveral fepts and lordships of the Man Cartys, of Carbery. Also the division of Duhallow, amount the Cartys, X. X. fol. 43. 97.

(30) By an inquifition taken at Mallow, on the acth of Os tober, 1594, before fir Thomas Norris, vice-prefident of Mu ster, William Saxey, esq, and James Gould, esq, chief and cond justices of the said province, by virtue of a commission from the lord deputy and council, dated the 26th of June before, i is found, among other things, " that Conogher O-Callagha " alias the O-Callaghan, was and is feized of feveral large territories in the inquifition recited, in his demefie, as lod " and chieftan of Poble-Callaghan, by the Irish custom, time " out of mind used, that as O-Callaghan aforesaid, is lord the faid country, fo there is a tanift, by the custom of the fail country, who is Teig O-Callaghan; and that the faid Teig " is seized as tanist, by the said custom, of several plowland " in the inquisition mentioned; which also finds, that the cut " tom is further, that every kinfman of the O-Callaghan had! parcel of land to live upon, and, yet that no estate passed " thereby, but that the lord, (who was then Conogher O-Culaghan,) and the O-Callaghan for the time being, by culton " time out of mind, may remove the faid kinfmen to other " lands; and the inquifition further finds, that O Callaghan " Mac-Dermot, Irrelagh O-Callaghan, Teig Mac-Cahir O-Cal-" laghan, Donogho Mac-Thomas O-Callaghan, and other, " were feized of feveral plowlands according to the faid cuf-" tom, subject nevertheless to certain seigniories and duties, payable to the O-Callaghan; and that they were remove-ble by him to other lands at his pleasure." In the reign of king James I. taniftry was condemned as a lewd and barbarous custom. Vid. Davis's Reports, p. 28, &c.

p), with in 164 D-Kie Dounty allego allego a do C-Doughi

ough's chief residence was at Kanturk, near which the sumptuous ruins of one of his castles (31). nno 13th of James I. letters patent were passed to ermot Mac-Owen Mac-Carty, of the town, and nds of Keantwirk, Lohort, and divers other lands, c. containing the greatest part of the territory of buhallow, with a chiefry and other duties and cufoms, out of the territories of Poble-O-Callaghan, oble-O-Kief, and the lands of Donough-Oge, vith the royalties of all waifes, ftrays, goods of elons, court-leet, and court-baron, view of frankledge, &c., a weekly market and annual fair,. vith power to impark 550 acres, to have free chace nd free warren throughout the faid territory, and livers other ample privileges, to be held in free and common foccage of his majesty's castle of Dubin. Dated at Dublin, June 6, 1615 (32).

The

(31) Penes Comit. de Egmont.

(32) Upon the first of Feb. 1666, it was certified, by the court of claims, that fir Philip Perceval, knight, deceafed, had ent more money to Dermot Mac-Owen Carty, alias Mac-Donough, upon the territories of Duhallow, and manor of Kanturk, than they were worth, and that the faid fir Philip was in actual possession of them, upon the and of October, 1641. That the equity of redemption, which was of no value, was forfeited by the faid Dermot's engaging with the rebels; and that fir Philip Perceval, bart, then a minor, grandfon and heir of the faid fir Philip the elder, was legally entitled to the faid lordship

On the noth of Feb. 18 Car. II. 1867, the faid fir Philip Perceval, bart passed patent for the said lordship and manor, to him and his heirs for ever,

On the 10th of December, 27 Car. II, 1679, the faid fir Philip Perceval, bart, lord of Duballow and Kanturk, passed on the 15th of January, 36 Car. II. 1683, fir John Perceval, bart, lord of Duhallow and Kanturk, brother and heir to the faid fir Philip Perceval, passed another patent for the fame. From whom the same descended to John, late earl of Egmont, &c. fon and heir to the faid fir John Perceval, bart. from whom it descended to John, now earl of Egmont, &c. lord of Duhallow and Kanturk, fon and heir to the faid earl. Penes Comit. de Egmont.

CH

ea

rea

bif

bel te

arı

S

all fo

til

vi

Ca

A

n

n

C

٧

00

The large tract, now known by the names of the modern baronies of Armoy or Fermoy, Orrety and Kilmore, and Clangibbon, was, before the arrivald the English, a principality of the O-Kiefs, called Fearmuigh; which, fay the Irish antiquarians, is contraction of Fera Muighe Fere, which Flahem interprets, viros Mogruthii Militis; and adds, the Mogruth was a Druid, who, for services to his prince, had those territories given him, vid. Ogygi, p. 336. or, according to others, it is a contraction of Fera Muigh fene, fignifying the husbandman's graffy plains, and thus Colgan calls it (33). The princes of this tract did fometimes fo enlarge their territory, by conquest, that this whole county, in fome Irish manuscripts, is called Fermuigh, the patron faint of which was, in ancient times, St. Mo lac (34), whose festival was on the 30th of Janua But of this faint and his church, recorded in old manuscripts to have been so famous, there are now no traces here. The O-Kiefs of this country, pretend to be descended from a brother of Feidle mid Eochaid, fecond fon of Aongus, monarch of Ireland.

Anno 954, Donogh Mac-Kief, king of Fermoy, commanded the Irith forces in an expedition against the Danes, under Kenedy, prince of Munster, whose father Callaghan, with his brother Duncan, were retained prisoners by them. Donogh, with the assistance of an Irish fleet, pursued the Danes into Ulster, and, after an obstinate battle, rescued the prisoners, who were then on board a Danish vessel (35).

Keating mentions another prince of this territory, called Dubhagan, who was flain in a battle, fought by Flan Fiona, monarch of Ireland, affifted by the Leinster forces, against Cormac Mac Cuillinane,

king

⁽³³⁾ AQ. Sanct. p. 148. (34) Ib. id. (35) Keating, p. 548.

CHAP. I. HISTORY of CORK.

ing of Munster, in the plains of Magh Ailbhe, ear Leighlin. This battle was fought about the rear 908, in which king Cormac, who was also bishop of Cashel, loft his life.

OK

of the

and

ald

alled is a

ery the best of

an's

The .

teir

in 78-

4

in

re-

Keating also says, (p. 264.) that this country was bestowed, by Fiachadh Muileeathan, king of Munfer, upon an eminent Druid, for delivering his army out of the power of his enemy. This fable s fill believed, and reported in this country; and all their antiquaries add, it was given to this Druid for causing the fun to stand still, an hour or two. till the abovenamed monarch's forces gained the victory; and fo by fynderofis, they will have it called Fermoy. But this country was also named Armoy, i. e. the fresh field, and sometimes Urmagh, which has the same signification. This territory, after the conquest, was granted to Flemming, and, by the marriage of his daughter Amy, came to the Roches, or de Rupe, who were lords viscount Fermoy, and anciently barons of Poolecaftle, alias Caftlelongh, and all this tract is yet called Roche's country (36). Another part of the ancient Fermoy, now Condons and Clangibbon (37),

(36) It is fald, that Roche, who married the heires of Flemming, first ingratiated himself, by killing one of the Condons, against whom Flemming employed him as his champion, and that he slew this Condon, by a cross-bow shot in the thigh, which part happened to be uncovered, by the rising up of his cuirafs, (37). The White Knight, otherwise filled Clan-Gibben, was descended from Gislebert, or Gilebert, called, by the Irish, Gibben; the eldest son, by a second wife, of John Flue-Gerald, ancestor to the houses of Klishre and Desmend. From whom also descended Mac-Gibben, of Mohawnagh They had large possession in this territory; a part of which is now the estate of the right hon, the lord baron of Kingston, whose grand-stater, fir John King, was, September 4, 1660, so created by king Charles II. This first lord married Catherine, daughter to sir William Fenton, knt. and dame Margaret Flue-Gerald, his wife, sole heiress to the family called the White Knights, from whom the estate is descended to the present lord.

was, after the conquest, granted to the Canton alias Condons, one of whom was called baron of Ballyderawne, now a ruined castle, near the exit of the river Araglin. Orrery, after the English conquest, was possessed by the Barrys, from whom in old records, it has been called Orriria-Barra They had several castles in this tract, which the held till the general rebellion of 1641. The northern parts of it, near Limerick, were possessed mostly, by the Fitz-Geralds, till the same time.

Thus, having given an ample detail of the old Irish septs, and ancient territories in this county, I proceed to lay before the reader, an account of the grants, made to the first English adventurer, by the kings of England.

This kingdom being reduced to the power of the English, and publicly proclaimed so to be, king Henry II. distributed large possessions to the several adventurers, who had assisted in the reduction of it. This monarch granted the whole kingdom of Cork to Robert Fitz-Stephen (38) and Milo de Cogan. The words of the charter are as follows.

Henry.

(38) Robert Fitz-Stephen was fon to Stephen, constable of the castles of Abertiny and Pembroke, and Anne, daughter to Rees Gruffydth, prince of south Wales. She had been concubine to king Henry I. by whom he had a son Henry, sather to Miles and Robert Fitz-Henry, who were also adventurers under Strongbow. Her second husband was Gerald, ancestor to the Fitz-Geralds, by whom she had Maurice and William; which Maurice, came into Ireland with this Robert Fitz-Stephen, anno 1169 or 1170, and took Wexford, whereby a way was opened for conquering this kingdom. Robert had two sons, Radolph, and Mereduk who died in Cork, March 14, 1179-80, greatly lamented, and was slain in 1185, with Milo de Cogan, the younger, who was some time governor of Dublin, and joint sharer with his father in the kingdom of Cork, between Waterford and Lismore, by treachery, having (according to Giraldus Cambrensis) but a little before married the daughter of Milo de Cogan.

This Robert Fitz-Stephen, after his father, was also governor of Cardigan or Abertiny castle in Wales, and ancestor to

HAP. I. HISTORY of CORK.

BOOK

anton

aron d

exit d

Th cons

whom

Barrie

they e non

Telled

ie.

inty

nt of urers

er of

king

rera

n of

n of

Co.

iry,

e of

r to

CU-

r to

he

ch

" Henry, by the grace of God, king of England, and duke of Normandy and Aquitain, and earl of Anjou; to all archbishops, abbots, earls, barons, juffices, and all his ministers and faithful subjects, French, English, and Irish, greet-Know ye, that I have granted, and by this my charter confirmed, to Robert Fitz-Stephen and Milo de Cogan the government of my city of Cork, with the cantred which belonged to the Ostmen of the said city, which I retain in my own hands, to have and to hold them together during my pleasure, and as long as they shall serve me faithfully. I moreover, by this my charter, give, grant and confirm to them and their heirs, all the kingdom of Cork, except the faid city, and the before-mentioned cantred, which I retain in my own hands, to hold to them and their heirs, of me and my fon John, and our heirs, by an exact division towards the cape of Saint Brandon on the seacoaft, and towards Limerick and other parts, and as far as the water near Lismore, which runs between Lismore and Cork, and falls into the sea, by the service of 60 knights, to be performed thereout to me and my fon John, and our heirs, " the service of 30 knights to be performed by the faid Robert, and his heirs, and the fervice of 30 knights, by the faid Milo, and his heirs. Wherefore, I will and strictly command, that " the faid Robert and Milo, shall have and hold the government of the faid city and cantred, in manner as is before mentioned; and that they and their heirs, shall have and hold all the king. dom the Fitz-Stephens of this country, now extinct. He was the first Englishman that landed in Ireland in an hostile manner, with 30 knights, 60 esquires, and 300 foot soldiers, and after several successes, he was by king Henry II. together with Hugh de Lacy, Maurice Fitz-Gerald, his half brother, and Robert de Bruce, made joint governors of Ireland.

(B)

0 ti

t

dom aforefald, except the fald city, and cantrol (which I retain in my own hands) from me and my fon John, and our heirs, by an exact divi fion, as is above described; well and peacestly, freely and quietly, entirely, fully and honours-bly, in wood and in plain, in meadows and pastures, in waters and mills, in warrens, ponds and fishings, in ways and paths, and in all other places and things belonging thereto, with all their liberties and free cuftoms; fo that from the aforesaid river that runs between Lismore and Cork, the whole land as far as Waterford, to gether with the city of Lismore, shall remain in my hands for the government of Waterford "Witnesses present, John, bishop of Norwich, "Adam, bishop of St. Asaph, and Augustine, bishop of Norwich, and Augustine, and shop of Waterford, Richard de Lucy, William " Fitz-Adelm, my fewer, Hugh de Lacy, Hugh " de Burid, Roger Fitz-Remfey, Maurice de Pren-" dergaft, Robert Dene, Robert Firz-Eliodore, " Jeoffrey Poer, and Harvy de Monte Mariko, At Oxford."

This charter feems to be granted about the year 1177; for, at that time, according to Hoveden (39), "the king came to Oxenford, and, in a general council there held, created his fon John, king in Ireland, by the grant and confirmation of pope

" Alexander."

Two years after, Fitz-Stephen and Cogan came to a partition of feven cantreds; which Graldus Cambrensis (40), who lived at that time, thus de-" Therefore Dermod of Defmond (41) " being brought to terms, and other powerful men " of those parts, Fitz-Stephen and Milo divided " feven cantreds between them, which were contiguous to the city, and which they then possessed ⁽³⁹⁾ In vita Hen. II. (40) Expugnat, Hib. Ilb. 4 (41) Mac-Carty. cap. 18.

HAP. T. HISTORY of CORK.

and ide

Her

all

ind to rd,

ch. bi

かりか

3

in great fecurity , three of which, caftward, fell to Fitz-Stephen's lot, and four, westward, to-Milo's: The one had the fewer in his division, because they were the best , and the other had the larger number, because they were of worse The government of the city remained in common to them both, and the tribute of the other 24, centreds, which remained undivided. was to be equally distributed between them. when they should be brought under subjection." Cambrenfis has left us but very imperfect accounts. of the distribution made by Fitz-Stephen and Cogan to others, the death of Cogan, which happened in 1184, putting, some stop to the undertaking. But the confirmation charters of king John, granted in the 8th year of his reign, afford fome light in this matter; for he then confirmed to William de " Barry, the donation made by Robert Fitz-Stephen-" (to Philip de Barry, his fifter's fon (42), and fa-

(42) This Philip de Barry, succeeded his elder brother Robert de Barry, who was the first man (says Cambranis) that was wounded in the conquest, of this kingdom, and was also the first who ever manned an hawk in this island. The same author gives a noble character of him, and says, " he was a man rather ambitious to be eminent, than to seem so."

man rather ambitious to be eminent, than to feem fo."

This family hath afforded feveral eminent perform befides the above Robert de Barry, viz. Giraldus Cambrensis, who, in 1189, attended king John into Ireland, in quality of his fecretary, and was bishop of St. David's, alias Minevia in Wales, and refused the bishopricks of Ferns and Leighlin, in Ireland, which waste then vacanti During his stay here, he collected materials for his topography of Ireland, and his vatinical history of the conquest of it; but finished them in England. 2. Sie David de Barry, who was lord justice of Iteland, anno 1267. He subdued the Mac-Carrys in this county, founded the abbey of Buttevant, and enlarged the revenues of that of Ballybey, founded by his grandfather Philip de Barry, 3 Gernid de Barry, lord bishop of Cork, anno 1359. 4. James Barry, lord Buttevant, (anno 1354). 5. David viscount Buttevant, who did great fervice in Tyrone's rebellion, in 1601. 6. David, the first earl of Barrymore, who served against the Scots.

0

C

8

6 1

br

h

ther of the said William, whose heir he was d "three cantreds in his lands of Cork, i. e. Olethan " with all its appurtenances, and of two other can-"treds, i. e. Muscherie-Dunegan, and the cantrel " of Killede, by the service of ten knights, as the " charter of the faid Robert, which he had there-" of, testified." Thus far the charter of confirmation, which agrees with the charter of Fitz. Stephen, except that the two cantreds of Muscherie-Dunegan and Killede, granted to Philip de Barry, are not mentioned therein by name; but he was to have two cantreds in the kingdom of Cork, fuch as should fall to him by casting lots. King John's charter of confirmation of Fitz-Stephen's grant to Philip Barry is enrolled, (43) de anno 21 Eliz, and Fitz Stephen's grant is in the fame roll; the former whereof bears date the 21st of Feb. regni Johannis 8vo. (44) " He also granted to A-" dam de Rupe, (or Roch,) the cantred of Rolle-" lihir, with all its appurtenances, fave the de-" mesnes of the bishop of that see, by the service

Scots, anno 1639, and in the Irish rebellion of 1641, as will further be seen in the annals of this county.

There is an island, called Barry Island, on the S. W. coast of Glamorganshire in Wales, which, with a castle on the opposite shore, had their names from this family.

(43) Harris's Ware, p. 195.

(44) By an inquisition taken at Cork, before William de Roie, prior of the hospital of St. John of Jerusalem, chief justice of Ireland, on the eve of St. Bartholomew, ag of Edward III. 1355, it appeared from the oath of Giraid Fitz-Maurice and others, that it would not be to the king's loss, nor to any others, if the king granted William Barry power to bestow one carucate of land, with its appurtenances, in Cleynboly, in the great island, and the advowson of the church of Downgourney; and leave to John Barry, to give so pareds of land in Muscry O-Lethan, and Ibawne, and to John Fitz-Gerald, to give one carucate and half of land in Garanaeor in Ibawne, and the advowson of the church of Rathratha, and two acres of land, in Kylmide, in Kinaletha, with the advowson of that church, &c.

HAP. I. HISTORY of CORK.

d

an,

an-

red

the

re-

fir-

tz.

16-de

he

k,

ig s

1

b.

.

.

.

e

of five knights; also to Richard de Cogan, the cantred of Muscrie-O-Millane, with the appurtenances, by the fervice of 5 knights, lying between the harbour of Cork and the port of Infovenagh, and 25 Knights fees, which he ordered to be fet out to him in some other place, by the advice of Meiler Fitz-Henry, lord justice of Ireland, and John Mareschall, by the service of 4 knights: faving to the king, and his heirs, the aforesaid harbour, and his own demesnes. Also, to Robert Fitz-Martin, 20 knights fees in the cantred of Infovenagh, and 20 knights fees in fome other place, which he ordered to be fet out to him by the advice of Meiler Fitz-Henry, lord juffice of Ireland, and John Mareschall, and Phi-"lip de Prendergast, by the service of 4 knights, in full of all services." Lastly, he gave to two brothers, " Henry and Maurice Fitz-Philip, one " cantred of land, in which Dunalahoth is fituated, " by the service of 5 knights."

In the reign of king Edward III, Thomas de Carew fet up a title as heir to Eitz-Stephen, to all his share of that great estate. But by an inquisition taken at Cork, before fir Anthony Lucy, lord justice, on the 31st of August, the 5th of Edw. III, it was found " that Robert Fitz-Stephen died " seized of the moiety of the estate granted by king " Henry II. to him and Cogan, and that the faid "Fitz-Stephen was a baftard, and died without "iffue of his body, that the claim of Thomas de "Carew, afferting, that he and his ancestors were " heirs to Fitz-Stephen, could not be true, because "the faid Fitz-Stephen was a bastard, and died " without heir of his body (45), and further, that "the faid Fitz-Stephen, in his life-time, enfeoffed "Maurice Fitz-Thomas, before he was created earl ⁽⁴⁵⁾ A collateral branch cannot be helr to a bastard, nor any but the issue of his body.

Book earl of Defmond, of the castle and manor d Dunemarke, and the moiety of the estate granted

" to him by king Henry IL (46)"

For want of male iffue, the kingdom of Cork descended to daughters, and notwithstanding what was found by the above-mentioned inquisition, which was much influenced by the power of Maurice Fitz-Thomas Fitz-Gerald, the first earl of Defmond (47), a large part of this country came, by marriage,

(46) This title was again fet up in the reign of queen Elizabeth, anno 1568, by fir Peter Carew, who brought his case before the lords of the council, and came to Ireland very well recommended, being fully refolved to profecute the recovery of this ancient estate, who, besides other lands in Leinster, laid claim to one half of the kingdom of Cork, viz. Imobilly, Trybarry, Mulkery, Trycourcy, Carbery, Kinalmeaky, Collymore, and Collybeg, (two territories, near Skibbereen, is wost Carbery); Ivaugh and Synnagh O-Donovan, Banty, Bear, Minterbarry, Clandonogh, Cloigboigh, Iveragh, Kee rycurrihy, Clanmoris, Iragticomor, (thefe two last in Kerry,) Duhallow and Coffibride,

This fir Peter Carew fent his agent, John Hooker, to Cork, where he had a folema meeting with Mac-Carpy Reagh, at Cormac Mac. Teig, ford Muskery, Barry Oge, O-Drifcol, G-Daly, and others. They proposed to advance 3000 kine, with sheep, hogs and corn, in proportion for the present; and that if fir Peter would live among them, they would pay him an annual restonable rent. Upon which, Hooker took as house for fir Peter at Cork, and another at Kingfale. But w fir Peter was travelling to Cork, he fell ill at Rois, in the county of Wexford, and died there the 27th of November,

Cox, vol! 1 p. 327. 1575

(47) The Carews of reland are faid; by Cambden and other genealugifts, to be " descended from Arnolph de Ment gomery; who built the castle of Pambroke; in Wales. He had the title of that earldom, and afterwards fortified his caftle in the behalf of his brother the earl of Shrewfoury, in the time of his rebellion against king Henry I. They were both baniffied the realm, anno: 1112 , and this Arnolph being outlawed; the castle of Pembroke came to the crown. Odericus Vitalis, p. 573. (who was a monk of Utica, and a writer of the Norman history) says, that he married Lafracoth, a daughter Dugdale, vol. r. p. 481.

1782

CHAP. I. HISTORY of CORK.

OK

or d ante

Cork

What

hich

urice

Def-

, by

age,

Eli-

well well

flet,

rilly,

Col-

ij in veryi Ken

ty,

ork,

Ad

Q.

and him at

.

the jer,

nd

nt

tle me

uf-

Us:

er

narriage, to (48) Robert de Carew and Patrick de Courcey, who enjoyed it, anno 20 Henry III. viz. bout the year 1236. De-Courcey's part was afterwards subdivided among daughters, who were heirs general of that ancient family. The Carews were stiled marquisses of Cork, and built the castles of Ardentully, Dunkerron and Dunemarke (49), in the o one of the kings of Ireland, and their posterity took the

Anno 3d Edward II, 1310, the king iffued a precept to Maurice de Carew, to distrain the lands of David le Barry, and Maurice Fitz-Gerald, for services and duties due to him, as lord of several of their possessions. Bibl Lamb. L. fol. 38.

In the same place, may be seen a note of such lands as Thomas Fitz-Maurice held of Maurice de Carew, at the death of the said Thomas, which were forfeired to the king, but restored again to Maurice de Carew, anno 1312.

In the fame library, there is a grant from John de Carew, lord of the manor of Cattle-Cork, to Richard Fitz-Peter de Carew, of the custody of all the lands belonging to George Fitz-Adam, dated anno 1334. Ibid. fol. 23.

Anno 1340, the king iffued writs to the sheriffs of Cork, and Kilkenny, to possess John de Carew, of the manor of Clonmentach. Ibid. fol. 35.

Anno 1567, the possession of Castle-Cork, and all other lands belonging to this family, in this county, were delivered into the hands of Richard, the son of sir Peter Carew, which amounted to near one half of the county, as appears from MSS, in the same place.

About this time, fir Peter Carew, first petitioned fir Heary Sidney, then ford deputy of Ireland, and not only laid claim to a vast estate in this county, but also to the lands of Ballimaclethen, in Odrone, against fir Christopher Chever, which petition, with fir Peter's answer, and the names of such lands as he claimed in this county, may be seen at large in the Lambeth Library. See also farther concerning this claim, in the fourth book of this work.

(48) Hooker, p. 46. Hanner, p. 158. Brady, p. 369.
(49) Anno 1601, when fir George Carew, lord prefident of Munster, was in the west of this county, he and his army quarter'd at Dunemarke, a castle in Bantry bay, which the author of Pacata Hibern. calls Carew Castle, and says is belonged to the president's ancestors.

R

the west of this country, and others in Imokilly, protect them from the natives. The chief men a this family, with many other English settled hen removed into England, upon the breaking out of the civil wars, between the houses of York and Lancaster, to the great prejudice of the English in terest in this country. De-Courcey, who remained in Ireland, besides dividing his lands as portions to his daughters, loft many of them by force, and, in particular, the cantred and castle of Kilbritton which were wrested from him by Mac-Carty Read, who, with numbers of the Irish, attacked the few English that remained in this part of the kingdom. Notwithstanding, this ancient and noble family eniovs a confiderable estate to this day, in the berony, called, from them, Courcey's country, and have constantly preserved their loyalty untained, being never concerned in any rebellion against the crown of England. Their ancient feat was, for many ages, at Dun Mac-Patrick, fo called from Patrick de Courcey, who gave the name of Mac-Patrick to his posterity. This place, in ancient records, is faid to have been a royal feat of the kings of Ireland, being called Duncearma. The right hon. Gerald de Courcey, the present lord Kingsale, quarters the arms of Cogan, in right of the marriage with the daughter and heir of Milo de Cogan, the first grantee of the kingdom of Cork (50).

Belides

Anno 1304, an order issued to pardon Maurice de Carew, 400 l. arrears, which he owed the king for his lands in Defmond, because he was serving the king in Scotland. Manufcript. in Bib. Lamb.

(50) The ancient nobility in this county, in Henry IVth time, according to a letter then faid to be wrote by the inhibitants, were, the lord marquis Carew, whose yearly revenue was 2200 l. per ann. The lord Barnwell, of Bearhaven, who had 1600 l. per ann. The lord Uggan, of the great caste, 1300 l. per ann. The lord Balram, of Emforle, his revenue

HAP. I. HISTORY of CORK.

OR

y, t here

ut d

and

h in 18 to 1, in

ton,

om.

nily

ba-

and

ted,

the

for lac-

ent

the

The

ord

of

filo

of

jes

ef-

10-ne

ho

ne

Besides a considerable estate, which came to Maurice Fitz-John Fitz Gerald, by his marriage with Juliana, heires to John, lord Cogan of Belyoir (51), which I take to be Bellvelly in the great island.

The lord Mandeville, of Barnehelly, 1200 l. sterl. The lord Mandeville, of Barnehelly, 1200 l. sterl. The lord Arundel, of the Strand, 1500 l. per ann. The lord baron of the Gaurd, 1100 l. The lord Slinie, of Baltimore, 800 l. sterl. per ann. The lord Roche, of Poole Castle, his revenue, besides havens and creeks, (which the letter takes notice all the other lords also had) toool, per ann,

This letter fays, that the king had all Barry Oge's estate by forfeiture, worth 1800 l fterl. , and defires that those lords and the Irish may be bound over, upon pain of life and goods, not to make war upon each other, by which the country was brought to destruction, and the Irish, who were formerly drove to the mountains of Glanerought, were now returned, and become stronger than the English, of whom only the lords Roche, Courcey and Barry, then remained, and requests, that proper persons may be sent over to command the English, and quiet the country. See the letter, at large, in Campion, p. 94. Sir Richard Cox, vol. 1. p. 162. fays, this letter was wrote in Henry VIth's time, anno 1449. But I have feen a letter from archbishop Usher, to the lord Courcey, dated at Drogheda, Dec. 12, 1626, (of which I took a copy) wherein the primate fays, this letter was wrote in Henry the IVth's time, and gives an account of the lords Courcey mentioned in feveral ancient records, which he furnished lord Kingsale with, on occasion of a dispute between that lord, and fir Dominick, Sarsfield, who was created viscount Kingfale by king Charles I. but was obliged afterwards to change his title for that of Killmatlock.

(51) This Maurice was the only son to John Fitz-Thomas, by his first wife. He married Johana, or Juliana, daughter and heir to John, lord Cogan, of Belvoir, who brought into the Desmond family, the estate of Carigoline, Carigrohan, Castlemore, Mallow, Rathgogan, &c. His second wife was Matilda de Barry. Those lands are mentioned, with many others, in an inquisition, taken the 3d of Edw. III. 1310, by which Juliana de Cogan enseoffed him in the said lands.

Stanihurst, in his description of Ireland, printed 1586, in Holling. Collect. p. 37. says, that Maurice Fitz-Thomas, a Geraldine, was created earl of Desmond, anno 1300; but sallely, for he was created in 1329, as appears by his patent, dated at Gloucester. He made the following verses for him.

Evasi tandem, jactatus sluctibus altis Et precor in portu sit mea tuta ratis.

island, Robert Fitz-Geoffry Cogan granted to Jame the seventh earl of Defmond, all his lands in lie land, being half this county; (of which he puffelle himself, by virtue of a letter of attorney, dated the 12th of June, 1438) to the further prejudice of the Carew and Courcey families. The earl married Conaught, and brought the Ne Sheehys into the county, which he retained as his life-guard; a few afterwards very eminent, both in this and in county of Limerick. This earl, by the aid of James, earl of Ormond, whose family he had so fifted against the Talbots, obtained a patent, it 1444, for the government or custody of this count, together with those of Limerick, Waterford and Kerry, in which he was fuffered (during the go vernment of Richard, duke of York, who was in goffip, and of Thomas, earl of Kildare, his kinman) to raise upon the king's subjects, the hish in politions of coign and livery, conherings, ber naught, &cc. Notwithstanding these illegal extertions, he procured licence to abjent himself from all future parliaments, only fending a fufficient proxy in his room, as also to purchase whatever lands he pleased, by what service soever they were held of the crown. Thus, by these and other ulupations upon the liberties of the people, this family came to be the most powerful subjects of the time; and gained large pofferhous, nor only from the natives, but also from the English, many of whom, rather than undergo fuch exactions, quited the country, and had their estates seized by Defmond and his followers, who were very numerous in this county (52), as well as in Waterford, Limerick and Kerry.

I shall

⁽⁵²⁾ Gerald Fitz-Gerald, grandfon to the above-mentiond earl, and youngest fon to Thomas the eighth earl, (who we beheaded at Drogheda, for his unjust exactions, according to Davis, or, according to Russel's history of this house, which

HAP. I. HESTORY of CORK.

I shall here only take notice, that (as fir Johd re in manuscript, by the malice of king Edward the IVth's teen, for advising the king not to marry her) built the castle Mocollop, upon the borders of this county and that of aterford, and was the founder of the family of Coshbride, territory in both counties.

mei Ire

11年年年安全工作主定

主等巨石

ní-

10-

or-

受益を

ere

11-ly 2 2

of

d i

18

i

d

ed

He was knighted, and married the daughter of Maurice, d Roche, viscount Fermoy, by whom he had James, his ir, and Thomas, the father of John, who built the cattle of limatow, lately fallen to ruin. There were many of the tz-Geralds' castles in this tract, near the river Bride; those this county are Mogeely, once a feat of the earls of Def-ond, of which hereafter. Also Connough, built by Thomas tz-Gerald Roe, eldest son of James, the fifteenth earl of sommer, by a daughter of Maurice, lord Roche, from whom s father was divorced, upon pretence of being too near of n. This Thomas did not concern himself in the rebelon of his relations; but lived peaceably in his castle of onnough, where he died, anno 1593, and was interred nong his ancestors, in the franciscan abbey at Youghal. He d iffue by Ellis, daughter of Richard Poer, lord of Curraghore, three fons, James, John and Gerald, and one daughter, argaret, who was married to Donald Mac-Carty Reagh, and as mother of Cormac or Charles, great grandfather to Donald ac-Carty Reagh, who lived at the time of the revolution.

As this fir Thomas was fet afide by his father, upon pretence his being illegitimate, the earldom fell to Gerald, who was eeldest son by a second wife, and daughter to lord of Ely-Carrol; so that Thomas had only the barony of Kilnataon, and the manor of Castlemore, near Cork, assigned him. ide a grant of lands from James, earl of Desmond, to this homas, in the Bodleian library, Land. fol. 27.

After Desmond's rebellion was over, the eldest son of this Thomas took up arms, joined O-Neal, earl of Tyrone, in srebellion, and was afterwards known by the name of the gane earl of Defmond; of whom I shall give a further ac-

The Fitz-Geralds of Castle-Mariyr, formerly called seneshals of Imokilly, (being so appointed by the earls of Del-ond, who were lords of this barony) derived themselves om a second son of Maurice, knight of Kerry, fourth son of on Fitz-Thomas Fitz-Gerald, who was murdered at Callin, Defmond, by Mac-Carty This estate was given them by eir coufin Thomas Nappah, which they enjoyed till the re-llion of 1641, when it was forfeited by Edmund Fitz-Gefald. I John Fitz-Edmond, of Cloyne, was also descended from house of Designand. Jones James, bed of backer of to VOL. I.

Book Davis (53) observes) Maurice Fitz-Gerald, the fi earl of Desmond, raised the greatness of his hou by Irish exactions and oppressions; so Gerald, last earl, reduced it to nothing, by the same me and, at length fell into open rebellion, where perished, with numbers of his followers.

When this last earl was attainted, September 1582, he was possessed of a prodigious estate in counties of Kerry, Cork, Waterford, Limerick, His lands, extending 150 miles, and contain 574,628 acres of English measure, on which we many strong castles; he was lord of the regalit of the county palatine of Kerry, lord of Imokil in this county, &c. (54) He had a great numb of vasfals, and of his kindred and surname, abo 500 gentlemen; railed coin and livery, firm &c. upon his tenants, through all the county Limerick. He had all wrecks of the fea, throu

The whole barony of Kerricurihy was given to fir M of Definond, by his brother James, the 15th earl of Def This fir Maurice murdered James Fitz-Maurice, (who little before, returned out of England, to take possession of earldom, upon the death of his grandfather, Thomas Management earl of Defmond) in the barony of Fermoy, as he was go the county of Limerick. This fir I nomes of the feffed this barony 30 years, and was himfelf flain, annough by Dermot Mac-Teig Carty, lord Muskery. He left iffer fons and three daughters. The eldest daughter was married fons and three daughters. Mac-Carty Reagh, the fecond to lord Roche, and the thit the faid Dermot Mac-Teig, lord Mukery. Thomas, the fon, foon died after his father's murder, leaving iffue The Oge, who was also flain; but James, his fecond fon, it long after. He brought the Italian forces to Smirwith. Kerry, and was flain by the fon of William de Burgo, a Bourk, anno 1 579, for which his father was created lord be of Castleconnel. By this rebellion, the barony of Kerricus became forseited to the crown, by act of parliament, as B

(53) Historical Collections.

⁽⁵⁴⁾ Anno 1418, the manors of Moyallow, Broghil, Kilcolman, were affigued to Maurice, fon of Thomas the earl of Defmond, by his uncle James, who uturped the el dom.

HAP. I. HISTORY of CORK.

he fi

hou

d, t

ere per :

in t

we calind with a bound a bound

THE PRESENT OF THE PARTY OF THE PROPERTY OF TH

the ports and creeks of the county of Kerry; s. 4d. out of every fishing boat in the port Ventry and Ferreters island. It was afferted, at he was able to raise, at a call, 600 horse, and 2000 foot; all which possessions were utterly offeited, and, by act of parliament, vested in the usen and her heirs; as were those (55) of his conderates, a great part of which were restored to them,

(55) The following persons were, by an inquitition held at handon castle, in Cork, September 9, 1588, found to be con-emed in the earl of Desimond's rebellion, and were, most of hem, attainted by act of parliament. Patrick Condon, of loghleigh, esq; sir John Desimond, knt. John Piggot, esq; sir ohn Fitz-Gerald, knt. fir James Fitz-Gerald, knt. Edmund itz-Gerald Fitz-Gibbon, of Curribehy. Edmund Power, of allvinn. Donnough Mac-Cormac Oge, of Loughfaily. Der-not Oge O-Leary, of Carrignecuragh. Richard Fitz-Garret, not Oge O-Leary, of Carrignecuragh. Richard Fitz-Garret, of Drumada. Dermot Mac-Edmund Oge, of Bantry. Teig fac-Edmund Oge, of the fame. Conogher Mac-Daniel Mac-Rory, of the fame. Teig Mac-Daniel Mac-Rory, of the fame. Teig Roe Mac-Fineen, of the fame. Dermot Mac-Fineen, of the fame. Busine Mac-Conogher Mac-Mahony, of Rofsbrin. Maurice Fitz-Gerald, of Carigoline. Ulick Barret, of Curribehy. Cormac Mac-Conogher Mac-Mahony, of Rofsbrin. Maurice Fitz-Edmund Garrett, of Rathcourcy. John Fitz-Garret Mac-Shane, of the Great Wood. Gibbon Roe Mac-Shane Oge, of the fame. Conogher O-Mahony, of Cattlemahon. Rory O-Donoghoe, of Rofs-Donoghoe. John Barry, of Ballygonan. James Mac-Conogher, of Drumbeg. James Fitz-John, of Poulinkerry. John Fitz-David Condon, of Kilbree. Richard Fitz-David, of Rahenifky. Feneen Mac-Art, of Downabolloge. Gerald Fitz-Richard, of Ballynaciafhy. Art Mac-Donnel Mac Art, of Glanprehan. Thady O-Keif, of Knockargan. Edward Barry, of Bragoge. Richard Magner, of Cattle-magner. John Fitz-Edmond, of Ballymarter. John Fitz-James Fitz-Edmond, of Tymacmague. Garret Fitz-Richard Fitz-Morris, of Ballintsmple. John Fitz-Garret, of Dromada. Martin Fitz-Richard Fitz-Gibbon, of Curribehy. John Fitz-Edmond, of Ballymacudy. John Supple, of Ightermurragh. Fordorough Mac-William Mac-Brien, of Ightermurragh. Fordorough Mac-William Mac-Brien, of Kilnatoragh. William White, of Whites-iffand. Edmund Fitzf Drumada. Dermot Mac-Edimund Oge, of Bantry. Teig

n

1

cl cl an a solution of the sol

them, as to Patrick Condon, and the white knightheir countries: Also a considerable quantity to veral of the Fitz-Geralds and others. The refet the forseitures were divided into seigniories; as granted, by letters patents, to several Englishinghts, esquires and gentlemen, who were call undertakers, from those grants, and their being collined to the colline of the Fitz-William Oge, of Garran-James. Richard Mac-Ment of Litquinlan. Gerald Supple, of Ightermuragh. Thou Mac-Carty, of Kilbolane. Theobald Roch, of Creg. Jam Gare, of the illand of Inchydonny. Tieg Mulrian, of Om O-Mulrian. In the fame inquifition, the manor of Glyn, all Cullin, the caftle and 30 carrucats of land of Cloghros, a illand of Inchydonny, and the ancient corporation of Baltanony, were found to belong to the queen.

The lame jury enquired into the death of James Barre,

Barret's country, and made a return thereof.

They also presented the names of all persons whom the suspected were apt to work mischief, and were ill disposal the government. They also made a return of all the abid and religious houses, which were in this county, and became annexed to the crown. They presented the names of supersons, in this county, as held lands of the queen, by knightervice in capite, and died, leaving their beirs in minority, which equantity and value of all such lands. They returned such as alienated their lands without licence, also, an account such as alienated from her majesty in this county, which such as a succession of the such as a such as the su

The chief lords and gentlemen in this county, in queen El zabeth's time, were, befides those above mentioned, the earls Clancare. The lord viscount Buttevant. The lord Muster The lord viscount Roche, of Fermoy. Courcy, lord baron of Kingsale and Ringrone. The bishops of Cork, Ross, and Cloyne Sir Warham St Leger. Sir Fineen O-Driscoll. Sir Owen Osulevan. O-Donovan. O-Callaghan. Mac-Auliss. Also the Bartets, Cordons, Barry-Oge, the Barrys, Cartys, Flemming (Skiddys), Meaghs, Waters, Giraldines, Russels, O-Kief, & Owen Mac-Carty Reagh, the seneschal of Imokilly, &c.

Book

knigh

y to

S; an English Called being bligge Morning Morning Balled B

the fed to be can find with the can find to be can find the can find t

10 11

100000

liged to perform feveral conditions mentioned in equeen's articles, for the plantation of this pronce; an abstract of which, is as follows.

" All forfeited lands (56) were to be divided inmanors and feigniories, containing 12000, 8000, oo, and 4000 acres each, according to a plot d down. The undertakers to have an estate in farm, yielding for each feigniory, of 12000 res, for the first three years, 331, 6s. 8d. sterl. from 1590 to 1593, and from mich, 1593, 1 138 4d. fterl. and rateably for every inferior gniory, yielding, upon the death of the underker, the best beast as an heriot. To be dischargof all taxes whatfoever, except fublidies levied parliament. Bogs, mountains, &cc. not to be clided, till improved, and then to pay & d. for ch English acre. Licence to the undertakers to insport all commodities, duty free, into England, five years. That none be admitted to have ore than 1 2000 acres. No English planter to be mitted to convey to any meer Irish. Every mer of 6000 acres, to impark 600 for the breed-g of horses, &c. and the other seigniories a rate-e proportion. The head of each plantation to English, and the heirs semales to marry none t of English birth, and none of the meer Irish be maintained in any family there.

Each freeholder, from the year 1500, to furnish to horse, and horseman armed. Each principal indertaker for 12000 acres, to supply three horsem and six sootmen, armed, and so rateably, for to other seigniories; and each copy-holder, one other armed. That for seven years to come, by shall not be obliged to travel out of Munster on any service; and after that time, no more an ten horsemen and twenty sootmen, out of one igniory of 12000 acres, and so rateably; and fuch

T

n

fuch as serve out of Munster, to be paid by the queen.

That the queen will protect, and defend the find feigniories, at her own charge (57); for seven years to come. All commodities brought from England for the use of the same seigniories, to be duty see for seven years. The acres to contain 16 feet and to the perch, after the manner used in England Dated 27th of June, 1586, 28 Eliz."

The plot of the queen's offer for the peopling of Munster.

"For a feigniory, containing 12000 acres, the gent was to have for his own demesse 2100 acres. Six farmers, 400 acres each. Six freeholders, 100 acres each; and lands to be appropriated for mean tenures (of 50, 25, 10 acres), 1500 acres; whereon 36 families, at least, must be established. The other feigniories, of 8000, 6000, and 4000 acres, were laid out in the same manner in proportion. Each undertaker was to people his seigniory in seven years."

Notwithstanding, no person was to be an undertaker for more than 12000 acres, by the above anticles; sir Walter Raleigh procured a warrant of privy seal, dated Feb. 3, 1585-6, granting him three seigniories and a half in the counties of Cork and Waterford; (the lands mentioned therein may be found in the history of that county) (58) and accordingly letters patent were passed, dated the 16th of October, 29 Eliz. 1586, granting the said three seigniories and a half to fir Walter Raleigh (59), in the counties of Cork and Waterford.

The other undertakers and grantees in this county were, besides sir Walter Raleigh,

(57) This article was not performed. (58) Page 44.

⁽⁵⁸⁾ Page 44.

(59) Sir Richard Cox fays, by mistake, sled into it by the above-mentioned articles) that fir Walter Raleigh had but 1 2000 acres granted him; but the contrary appears from the privy seal, and letters patent above mentioned, which remain in the castle of Lisinore.

OK

e faid

yean land

free and and ling

the res

ean eon

her

ere

10-1

ing

MA

960

To fir Warham St. Leger, .	6000	acres.
Hugh Cuff, efq;		acres.
Sir Thomas Norris,	6000	acres.
Arthur Robbins, efq.	18000	acres.
Sir Arthur Hyde,	5574	acres.
Fane Beecher, efq;	12000	acres.
Hugh Worth, efq;	12000	acres.
Thomas Say, efq;	5775	acres.
Arthur Hyde, efq;	11766	acres.
Edmund Spenser, esq;	3028	acres.
Sir Richard Beacon, in Cork and Waterford,	6000	acres.

The grants in the counties of Kerry, Limerick, Tipperary and Waterford, were also very great. Some of the undertakers encroaching upon the loyal Irish, a proclamation was issued to restrain them. In the year 1602, fir Richard Boyle purchased all fir Walter Raleigh's grants (60); and not only those, but also a great part of Beecher's feigniory, on which he built the town of Bandon; and so stocked and planted the country with Englift, that, on the 30th of August, 1611, there were reviewed, at Tallow, by fir Richard Morrifon, knight, vice-president of Munster, and the other commissioners authorised for that purpose, a troop of 80 horse, mostly gentlemen and freeholders, compleatly armed, besides 186 pikemen, 356 armed with shot, 6 halberts, besides drums, trumpets, &c. in all 550, being English tenants, planted on the feigniories granted to fir Walter Raleigh, by fir Richard Boyle, afterwards earl of Cork (61). And on the 30th of August, 1622, there were reviewed before his Majesty's commisfioners at Bandon-bridge, being part of the feigniory (61) Manuscript at Lismore.

⁽⁶⁰⁾ The bargain and fale from fir Walter Raleigh to fir Richard Boyle, beam date the 7th of December, 1602, the 45th of Elizabeth.

granted to Fane Beecher, esq; a troop of 66 hork well armed and mounted, commanded by captain Andrew Kettleby, and 564 foot, well armed and trained, commanded by captain Anthony Stawell captain Herbert Nicholas, captain Richard Crofts and captain Anthony Skipwith, with five lieutenants, five enfigns, fix ferjeants, and fix drums Among whom, were 125 English tenants, who had leases for 200 years; and several freeholders, all tenants to fir Richard Boyle, the first earl of Cork,

On the 5th of September, the fame year, there were (62) reviewed at Tallow, by the same commissioners, 235 horse, in four troops, well mounted, armed, and disciplined, commanded by fir Robert Tynte, knt. fir John Leake, knt. captain Robert Gore, and captain Roger Carew, with 20 other officers, lieutenants, cornets, &cc. also 754 foot, in eight companies, commanded by captain Richard Smith, captain Thomas Mansfield, captain John Strongman, captain Richard Joliff, captain Anthony Southwell, captain John Oglethorp, captain Gregory Segar, and captain Gyles Bernard, with lieutenants, enfigns, ferjeants, drums, &c. among whom were 18 freeholders, and 30 copyholders, all tenants to the earl of Cork, and by him planted on the feigniories purchased from sir Walter Raleigh,

The great fervices performed by these forces and their descendants, under the lords Dungarvan, Kinalmeaky, and Broghil, fone to the faid earl, upon the breaking out of the rebellion, will appear hereafter (63),

⁽⁶a) MS. at Lismors.
(63) The following are the number of horse and foot, the earl of Cork's tenants were obliged to turnish upon occasion, with the patrimony given by his lordship to each of his sons, which affords a thort view of the great possessions acquired by that noble lord.

Ar. I. HISTORY of CORK.

OK

oric

otain

and

well.

ofts,

ute

ms

had

all

rk.

ere

med,

ert

of-

in

rd

m

7:

in

h

The long continuation of the civil wars in this untry, from the year 1641, to the year 1660, ry much weakened the English interest in it; it the loss was, in a great measure, repaired, by eossicers, soldiers, and adventurers, who began to ttle in the country. The chief of whom, as I determined to a declaration, published at Cork, abruary 18, 1659, antecedent to the restoration king Charles II. were colonel Ralph Wilson, lieunant colonel John Widenham, lieutenant colonel enjamin Lucas, lieutenant colonel A. Barrington, autenant colonel Francis Foulk; majors William Vade, William King, N. Purdon, Richard Goodyn; captains Andrew Ruddock, J. Wakeham, Geoffry

On the estate of lord Dungarvan, his eldest fon.
In the county of Waterford.

The manors of Dungarvan, Pilltown, Affane, Cappoquin, d Bewley. Also the manors of Lismore, Tallow and Lisny, Ballinatray and Stronecally, furnished, by their leases, 5 soot, and 43 horse.

In the county of Cork.
In and near Youghal, the manor of Inchiquin, the lands of imacow, the manors of Kilnataloon and Coole, the possession of part of St. Francis's-abbey, in Cork city, 58 foot and

In the estate assigned to lord Kinalmeaky, his second son.
Part of Gill-abbey, the manor of Kinalmeaky, lands of liber and Kilbroghan, the manor of Coolesadda, the town Bandon-Bridge, and Ballymodan, lands in the barony of arbery, and foot, 114 horse.

In lord Broghills possessions, afterwards earl of Orrery.

Part of the abbey of Molana, in Mac-Awliss's country, in a manors of Broghil and Rathgogan, the manor of Askeying, and several other lands in the counties of Limerick and erry, 418 foot, and 138 horse.

In the possessions assigned to Francis Boyle, esq, afterwards it Shannon.

The manors of Carigoline, Carigtoghill, and Barry's-court, d the lands and manor of Tracton-abbey, 430 foot, and 145

In the cltate assigned to Robert Boyle, esq, his youngest son. Lands in the barony of Fermoy and Condons, the abbey based Fermoy and Castle-Lyons, lands in the counties of Clare d Tipperary, and in the province of Conaught, sas foot, d 30 horse.

ne El

the ex

9

f

fe

6

.

١

Geoffry Dillon, James Manserghe, Robert Russel, John Nicholls, Sampson Towgood, Thomas Cullen, D. Coghlan, Hump. Hartwell, Thomas Lucas, Will. Pope, Will. Hartwell, John Friend, Christopher Perkins, &c. besides several officer, who had afterwards their debentures allotted them in this county. What also contributed to strenghten the English interest in those parts, and weaken that of the Irish, was, that numbers of the latter, who had estates in this county, were transplanted into Conaught, and had lands assigned them there.

In the year 1666, the militia of this county were commanded by the following gentlemen, under the earl of Orrery, then lord president of Munster. Anthony Woodbiff, efg. Emanuel Moor, efg. Mr. Francis Armitage, Mr. Robert Harris, captain Robert Gookin, lieutenant George Syms, Mr. John Langton, Mr. William Baldwin, captain Richard Hull, lieutenant Thomas Beecher, cornet Bryan Townsend, Mr. Edward Townsend, &c. officers of The foot officers were, captain John Freke, captain John Giffard, captain Richard Townsend, major Boyle Hull, lleutenant Francis Beamin, Mr. Richard Hutchins, lieutenant John Giffard, lieutenant Curtis, &c. Lord Orrery, in a letter to the duke of Ormond, takes notice, that the militia were all in excellent order, and well disciplined, They were undoubtedly as well officered as any militia fince their time, most of the commanders having served in the civil wars. In August, 1666, the duke of Ormond, lord lieutenant, made a progress through this county, and was escorted by the horse militia of each barony, who made a fine appearance, the earl of Orrery, and chief gentry of the country, being their officers.

In the year 1667, the militia of the city of Cork, confifted of 600 foot and 60 horse, all ready for duty (64).

In the year 1681, they amounted to 500 foot, and two gallant troops of horse; and might have been much larger, if there had been a demand. Those in the county, at that time, consisted of 1600 foot, and 26 independent troops of horse; though the whole barony of Muskery (a small part excepted) was in the earl of Clancarty's hands, and occupied by his popish tenants.

K L

u

11-

nd,

ers.

em

ten ist

ho

ito

ere.

er

et.

()a

in'

Id

in

of

d,

M

8.

10

1

d

4

Anno 1601, when fir Richard Cox was fent, by the lords justices, to govern this county and city, and the militia thereof, notwithstanding many protestants were dispersed, and lost to the country, fir Richard raised, in three weeks, eight compleat regiments of dragoons, and three of foot, which it regiments contained 6000 men. This militia defended a frontier of 80 miles against the enemies forces, made irruptions into their quarters, and brought off a booty worth 30,000 !. Besides, when the flege of Limerick was formed, 1000 of them guarded the important pals of Killaloe, as appears from general Ginkel's letters of thanks to them. where their courage, fidelity and diligence, are applauded.

I forbear to mention the number of the militia taken at the last arrays, anno 1746, as they do not much exceed those in 1691, whereas one might reasonably expect, at least, five times the number. For the cause of this decrease of the protestant interest, in this county, I refer the reader to an excellent pamphlet, called Seasonable Advice to Protestants, &c. published anno 1746.

An Alphabetical List of the Noblemen and Gentlemen in the Commission of the Peace for this County, in the year 1773, exclusive of the Mayors of Cork and Youghal, the Sovereign of Kinsule, and the Provost of Bandon, all for the time being.—Note, Thus marked , were appointed since the first edition of this work, published in 1750.

Adderley, Thomas, efq. Aldworth, Boyle, efq.

Aldworth, Richard, efq; PAldworth, St. Leger, efq; PAnderson,

Anderfon, William, efqs
Ahe, Richard, efqs
Athin, Walter, efth
Auften, William, efqs
Ball, Robert, efqs
Beecher, Edward, efqs

Beecher, Edward, eng Bernard, Arthur, eng Bernard, Francis, Jen. eng Bernard, Francis, Jun. eng Bernard, Juhn, eng Bernard, Juhn, eng Bernard, Royer, eng Berkeley, rev. Robert, Bligh, rev. Robert, Bousfield, Benjamin, eng Bowerman, Henry, eng Bowless, Ocoree, eng

Bawler, Genrge, elig Brereton, George, elli

Browne, Richerd, eigi Browne, Richerd, eigi Browne, Fev. St. John, Bullen, John, eigi Bullen, Robert, efg; Butter, Thomas, eigi

Callaghan, Robert, eligi *Capell, Joseph, eigs *Carey, Peter, efigs *Carey, William, eigi *Cheifer, Richard, eigi

Chinnery Broderick, ein Chinnery, rev. George, Chinnery, Nicholas, efig. Colthurst, fir John, bart.

Colthurft, fir John, bart, Colthurft, John, eig; Connor, Roger, eig; Conter, Chilley, eig; Jopinger, Maurice, efg;
Corker, Thomas, eig;
Cotter, fir James Lawrence, bart.
Cowley, William eig; Creagh, Michael, eig;
Creed, John, eig;
Crofts, Wilis, eig;
Crofts, Wilis, eig;
Crofts, Philip, eig; Dalacourt, Robert, eig;

Davies, Henry, etq; Davies, Rowland, etq; Davis, rev. Michael, Deane, Jocelyn, eig: Deane, fir Robert Tilfon, bart.

Devonshire, Abraham, elg; Donoghue, John, eig;

Drew, Francis, eig;

Durdin, Alexander, efg;

Earberry, Matthias, elg;

Elphin, right rev. Jemmett, lord bifliop of,

Evans, Eyre, eft.

Evans, Nicholas Green, eft.

Evans, rev. Thomas Waller,

Eyre, Richard, eft.

Falkiner, Riggs, eft.

Pits gerald, Richard, eft. of Mithe

Pitagerald, Robert, efti Pitagerald, Robert Unlacke, efti Pitamaurice, hon, John Pitafimmons, Walter, efti

Fitamaurice, hon. John, Pitafimmons, Walter, efti. Preeman, Jufeph, efti. Freeman, Matthew, efti. French, Savana, ofti. Prench, Savana, ofti. Prench, Savana, ofti. Gibbons, Thomas, efti. Gibbons, Thomas, efti. Gibbons, Thomas, efti. Goddell, James, efti. Goddell, James, efti. Goddell, James, efti. Grady, Standilh, efti. Grady, Standilh, efti. Gray, Prancia, efti. Gray, Prancia, efti. Gray, Richard, efti. Gumbleton, Richard, efti.

Gray, Richard, eng, Gumbleton, Richard, efgi Hendley, Matthias, efgi Herrick, Palkines, eim Herrick, Palkines, eim

Herrick, Faikines, eig, Hewitt, rev. Henry,
Hewitt, Ifiae, efg; Hingiton, rev. James,
Hoare, Edward, efg;
Hoare, Samuel, efg; Hodnett, rev. William,
Honner, Robert, efg;
Hull, William, efg, of Caheri-

*Hull,

Hull, William Richard, efq. Hungerford, Thomas, efq.

effries, James St. John, efq; effries, James St. John, efq; jephion, Denham, efq; ervais, Samuel, efq;

*Kearney, James, elq;

*Kenny, rev. John, *Knight, Christopher, efq;

*Lawton, Hugh, efq.
*Leader, William, efq.
*Liffe, right hon. John, lord baron of,

*Lloyd, Edward, efq;

Longfield, John, efq; *Longfield, Richard, efq;
*Lumley, William, efq; Lyfaght, John, efq; *Lyfaght, Nicholas, efq; *Lyfaght, William, efq;

CHAP. I. HISTORY of CORK.

Micarty, Ruby, efts
Mannix, Henry, efts
Marthall, John, efts
Maffrall, John, efts
Maffrall, John, efts
Mallefont, Richard, efts
Mellefont, Richard, efts
More, Emanuel, efts
More, Emanuel, efts
Morris, Jonas, efts
Morris, Jonas, efts
Montiscame, right hon, Stephen, Jord viteoure,
Newenham, fir Edward, Ant.
Newenham, Albert, efts
Newman, Adam, efts
Newman, Alchard, efts
O Callaghan, Danlel, efts
O Callaghan, Danlel, efts
Parker, Matthew, efts
Parker, Matthew, efts
Parker, Christopher, efts
Pearde, Henry, efts
Pearde, Henry, efts
Purcell, James, efts
Roberts, Kandal, efts
Roberts, Kandal, efts
Roberts, William, e q,
Roberts, William, e q,
Roberts, William, e q,
Roberts, William, e q,
Roberts, Milliam, e q,
Roberts, Milliam, e q,
Roberts, Milliam, e q,
Roberts, William, e q,
Roberts, George, efts
Saly, George, efts
Saly, George, efts

of CORK.

Snow, William, efti
Spright, Thomas, efti Spread, William efti
Stawell, George, efti
Stawell, George, efti
Stawell, Samfon, efti
Stawell, William efti
Steele, Robert, efti
Stransford, right hon, and rev.
Philip, land vitebunt, Sullivan, rev. John,
Supple, Filmand, efti
Supple, Filmand, efti
Supple, William, efti
Swayne, Benjamin, efti
Tanner, Jonathan, efti
Tanner, Jonathan, efti
Tanner, Jonathan, efti
Tomolon, Richard, efti Townfend, rev. Richard,
Townfend, rev. Horatle,
Townfend, John, efti of Maradyke
Travers, Bayle, efti dyke
Travers, Boyle, efty
Travers, Kobert, efty
Travers, Kobert, efty
Travers, Walter, efty
Underwood, Kichard, efty
Unlacke, John, efty
Wallis, Henry, efty
Wallis, John, efty
Warren, Robert, efty
Watkins, Westrop, efty
White, Richard, efty
White, Richard, efty
White, Simon, efty
White, Simon, efty
White, Richard, efty
White, Richard, efty
White, Richard, efty
White, Richard, efty dyke

CHAP. II.

Of the Ecclefiastical State of this County.

THE reader will find an account of the feveral abbies, monasteries and religious foundations, in the topographical part of this work, Book II. in their respective places.

In this county, there are three episcopal sees, Cork, Cloyne, and Rois, and a part of the diocese of Aghadoe, viz. the parishes of Drishane, Cullen,

No-

Nohavel, Killmeen and Drumtariff, in the barony of Duhallow. The church of Drifhane is in repair, the others in ruins. The rectories are impropriate and belonged, formerly, to the diffolved nunner of St. Catherine's, anciently called Monaster M Calliagh, in the county of Limerick. The bishop of Limerick presents to the vicarages.

SECT. I.

A State of the Diocese of CORK(1), with respect to the several Parishes, Taxation in the King's Books, Patrons, State of the Churches, Proxis, and Glebes, as mentioned in the Down survey, with other Observations.

THERE is no valuation of this see, in the king's books. In a MS in Marsh's library, there is mention made of a taxation thereof, anno 31st Eliz at 40 l. sterl. and in another MS. in the College library, at 25 l. sterl. 33 Eliz. (2)

As by act of parliament, all ancient popish patrons, recover their right of presentation, upon their conforming to the church of England; I have made mention of such as I could discover, which are, for the most part, taken from an old roll, transcribed by Robert Travers, register of this see, anno 1628.

In this diocese, were anciently the following rural deaneries, viz. Kerriwherry, Kinalea-Citra, Kinalea-Ultra, Corkinane, Clansalney and Fenyragh; and afterwards Kerrycurihy, Kinalea-Ultra, Corkemoone and Kilsalney.

ABBRE-

(1) Vide a catalogue of all the possessions of this see, in the decretal epistles of pope Innocent III. and by him confirmed, anno 1100.

(a) This fee is now taxed at 40 l. fterling, as appears by a certificate out of the auditor-general's office.

HAP. II. HISTORY OF CORK.

K. I.

rony

pair,

N

hop

Ma

ig's

the

ry,

he 14-

on

ve

ch

II,

e,

1-

d

K

d torial. Ch. for oburch. K. B. for king's books. Vie. for vicarial, or vicarage. Preb. for prebend. Pat. for patron, DIGNITARIES.

Confissing of the cathedral church of St. Pinburr. Confissing of the vic. of Templebredy, the entire red. of Cullin, anciently called the rect. of St. Piannan, and the impropriate rect. of Temple-Martin. The cathedral in repair, the other ch. in ruins. Pat. the king. Taxed in the K. B. 31. Proxies for the whole, 15 s. Glebe in Cullen, 13 A. 2 R. 16 P. The deanery house at Dean's Court, near the cathedral.

CHANTORSHIP. Confisting of the rect. of Currigippane, the rect. of Corbally, the rect. of Carrigrohan, anciently St. Peters, and one rectory of Kinneigh. Carrigrohan ch. in repair, the others in ruins. Pat. the bishop. Taxed in the K. B. 81. Proxies for the whole, 5s. 9d. Glebe in Carrigippane, 3A. 1 R. 8P. In Carrigrohan, in two parcels, 7 A. 1 R. In Kinneigh parish, belonging to the whole, 19 A. 3 R. 8 P. This ch. was anciently a cathedral, founded by St. Mocolomoge, but united to Ross. (3)

CHANCELLORSHIP. Confifting of the entire rect. of St. Bridget, the other vic. of Kinneigh, the vic. of Kilbonane, the vic. of Aglish, and the rect. and vic. of Moviddy. This last chain repair, the others in ruins. Pat. the bishop. The present chancellor holds all these, anno 1747, the corps of the chancellorship being very small The chancellorship taxed in the K. B. 21. Kilbonane, 11. Moviddy, 11. 10s. proxies rect. of St. Bridget, 5s. vic. of Kinneigh, 1s. 6d. vic. of Kilbonane, 1s. vic. of Aglish, 2s. and Moviddy, 3s. 4d. Glebe of Kinneigh, vide the Chantorship. In Kilbonane, 12A. 16P. in Moviddy, 48A. 2R. 8P. in Aglish, 5A. 4R.

TREASUREASHIP. Confishing of the entire rect. of Kilbogan, the entire rect. of Rathdowsan, one rect. of Macloneigh, and the entire rect. of Ballynadee, the last ch. in repair, the others in ruins. Pat. the bishop. Taxed in the K. B. 1 I. Proxies for the whole, 18s. Glebe in Macloneigh, 4A. 3R. 8P. Anciently Patrick, son of Robert de Courcey, presented to the rectory, and, in another roll, one Garrot is said to be patron.

ARCHBRACONAY. Confishing of the entire rect. of St. Peter's, Cork, the ch. of Dunbolloge, (anciently called St. Georgii de Dunbolloge, and to which, formerly, belonged a particle, called Wormley, to which the lord Roche presented) the entire rect. of Nohavel, the rect. of Kilmohonoge, (to which, formerly, belonged a particle of Bellgooly, presented to by

(3) In some old records, called Sanct Moium & Mocollo-moge de Kinneigh.

ho

no character

11

61

Nohavel ch. in repair, the others in ruins. Pat the billion Taxed in the K.B. 71. 1 s. 8d. Proxies for the whole, 11.11 Glebe at Dunbolloge, 1 A. 2 R.

PREBENDS.

PREBEND of KILBROGAN. The rect. and vic. of the do of St. Michael, of Kilbrogan, and one rect. of Aglish belong to the same preb. Kilbrogan ch. in repair, the other in ruis Pat. the bishop. Not taxed in the K.B. Proxies for Kilbrogan 6s. for Aglish, 2s. 6d. Glebe of Aglish, vid. the Chancellorship.

PREBEND of KILLASPUGMULLANE, (i. e. the ch. of the Bishop's Bell) besides which parish, one rect. of Canaboy, alia Canaway, belongs to this preb. This last ch. in old record, is called Sanct. Brendani de Kannavoy. Killaspugmullane is repair, the other ch. in ruins. Pat. the bishop. Taxed in the K. B. 61. Glebe of Canaway, 6A. 2R.

PRESEND of CAHIRLAG. (This ch. made a preb. and 1349, by John Roche, bishop of Cork, as appears from a ancient record.) The ch. in ruins. Pat. the bishop. One MacCottyr anciently presented to it. Not taxed in the K.S. Proxy 5 s. Glebe 5 A.

PRESEND of LISLEARY. (Anciently named Sancta Brigida de Lifly Clerigy.) This ch, made a preb. anno 1332, by John de Baliconingham, bishop of Cork. The ch. is in rain. Pat. the bishop. One Meagh, or O-Mide, presented anciently to this preb. Taxed in the K.B. 31. Proxy 6s. 9d.

PARBEND of the Holy TRINITY, alias CHAIST-CHURCH, Cork. Ch. in repair. Pat. the king. Proxy 9s. Not taxed in the K. B.

Taxed in the K. B. 41. Proxy 6 s.

PRESENDOT INSRENNY (anciently BALLIMOLMINEL.) Ch. in ruins. Pat. the bishop. Taxed in the K.B. si. cs. Proxy 61.

PRESEND OF KILNAGLORY, (anciently called BRATA Maria DE BRAVER, and made a preb. anno 1326, by Philip, bifhop of Cork.) Ch. in ruins. Pat. the bifhop. Taxed in the K. B. zl. zs. Proxy zs. No glebe.

PRESEND OF KILLBRITTON, (anciently named CAPALLA DE KYLSINTHIN DE KILLBRITTON.) Ch. in rules. Pat. the bishop. Taxed in the K. B. I L. 128. Ad. Proxy 48 No glebe.

bishop. Taxed in the K. B. 1 L. 13 s. 4d. Proxy 4 s. No glebe. Passend of St. Michael Shaneally. Ch. in ruins. Pat. the bishop. Taxed in the K. B. 11. Proxy 3 s. It was, according to an ancient roll, made a preb. anno 1 326, by Philip, bishop of Cork. Ware says, Philip of Slane died this year, who was bishop.

PARREND of DESERTMORE. Ch. in ruins. Pat. the bishop.

Taxed in the K. B. 31. I'roxy 3s.

PARREND

CHAP. II. HISTORY of CORK.

PREBEND of DRUMDALEGUE. Ch. in repair. Pat. the bihop. Taxed in the K. B. as a preb. of Rols, 1 l. Proxy 3s. VICARS CHORAL in number four. In a MS. wrote by Roert Travers, register, anno 1628, (transcribed from an ancient oll) p. 10, are these words, "Concessio Richardi episcop. Corcagiensis prebendariis ecclesiæ cathedralis Corke, ut propter exilitatem nullum habeant vicarium, sed presbiterum anualem qui parochianiis suis deserviat. Dat crast annuntiat B. M. 1278." Note, according to sir J. Ware, Robert Mac-Donnogh was bishop of Cork, at this time; but his name was Rithard, as appears from this MS. And, in the same page, is as follows, "Concessio magistri hospitalis de Morn ejusdem tenoris prebend de Moyallo. Dat. die ascentionis Beat. Virginis anno 1298." In the same MS. p. 10. " De proprietatibus vicariorum ecclesia cathedralis. Concessio jisdem vicariis facta per Walterum episcopum, Philip, decanum & capitulum Corcagiæ, 204 pedum terræ in longitudine, jacent. inter ec-clesiam predictam ex parte orientali, & curiam episcopi ex parte occidentali, in latitud. 200 pedum, inter viam regiam ex parte Australi, & viam que ducit ad curiam predict. ex parte Aquilon. Dat. crastino purificationis anno 1328. Appropriatio vicaria de Corbally per Johanem episcop. Geraldinum decanum, & capitulum Corcagi. ilidem vicaria facta. Dat. 5. Novembris 1 348. Que appropriatio prediet. confirmata fuit per Edwardum regem anno regni sui 220. per suas litteras patentes. Teste Walter de Bermingham justic. Hibernis. Collatio discem fact, per Milonem episcop. Corcagiens, eccles, parochialis de Desertserges 30. Junii 1431. Concessio ecclesia Beat. Maria de Narde lisdem vicariis facta per Jordanum episcop. Corcagiensis. Dat 31. Septemb. 1441. Concesso ecclesia Kitroan lisdem, per eundem epifcop. anno 1447.

"Donatio ecclesies parechialis de Drynagh & particula de Drumlag. In parochial de Defertierges, facta listem vicariis, per Robertum Coggan, anno 1437 de confirmat, per eundem episcop, anno 1446. Donatio listem vicariis facta per Edmund Riddefort, rectorias Fanlobbis & Kineagh, confirmata per Jordanum episcopum Corcag. & Cloniensis an. 1477. Legatio, listem vicar, per Will. Nogle terrarum nuncupatar. Classow alias Classius, Boirnecarty, Ynerynybrenig, &c." There were anciently only two vicars choral in this cathedral, as appears from an inquisition taken, anno 1370, and the same is observed in the instrument relating to Cahirlag, p. 45. of

the fame MS

4.1

the

In

B.

2

14.

To these vicase choral now belong, the entire rect. of Narie, called anciently Beats Maris de Narde (4), i. e. the

⁽⁴⁾ This ch. of Narde, was anciently possessed by Gill-ab-

e

C

ch. of the Bleffed Mary of the Spikenard. The scite of which ch. was, where the barracks of Cork now stand. The entire rect. of Marmullane, anciently called Beatæ Mariæ de Marmillane, given to the vicars, by the Roches of Carig. The ch. in repair. The vic. of Corbally, the entire rect. of Killowney, and the rect. of Drynagh; these three churches a ruins. The rect. of Desertserges, and the rect. of Fanlobbish, these two in repair; the last, is now the parish ch. of Dumanway, the scite of which, was removed, by act of parisment. Pat. the bishop. Taxed in the K. B. 161.

PARISHES.

ARDNEGINY, an entire rect. The ch. in ruins. Pat. the bishop. Not taxed in the K. B. Proxy 3 s.

which fee. The bishop presents to the vic. Proxy for the vic. 2s. Glebe, 5 A. 3 R.

ATHNOWEN rect. and vic. (anciently called BRATA Maria DE ATHNOWEN.) Ch. in ruins. Pat. the bishop. The master of Mourne preceptory was formerly pat. of this rector, on the E. of the river Bride, and the prioress of Grany, on the W. The bishop always presented to the vic. Taxed in the K. B. 11. 10s. for the vic. Proxy 4s. There is also one rect. which is improp. Proxy 3s. 4d. Ballydologe, alia Kilroan, an entire rect. Ch. in ruins. Pat. the bishop. (Asciently the heirs of Adam de Barry presented to the rect. and the bishop to the vic.) Not taxed in the K.B. Proxy 6s.

bey. Anno 1270, the parish of Narde was granted to Reginald, bishop of Cork, by prince Edward, then lord of Ireland, by donation from his father king Henry the IIId. " for the relief " and amendment of the flate of the church of Cork," as the record faith: As alfo, the chapel of St. Peter, at Cork, to hold in frank almoigne. Dated the 20th of May that year. But A. D. 1299, king Edward the 1st. recovered against Robert, biffind of Cork, by writ of right of advowion, the patronage of the fame churches, viz. St. Mary of Narde, in the suburbs of Cork, the ch. of Kilmanock, Nochynvall, and that of St. Peter's, of Dungarvan, in the suburbs of that city. The bithop's defence, as to the advowion of St. Mary of Narde, Kilmanock, and St. Peter's, was through the above-mentioned grant. But judgment was given against him, because king Edward, when he made the grant, had no right to the said advowion, his father king Henry being then alive, and the prince having, at that time, nothing in Ireland, but by his father gift; which shews that the prince was no other than a viceroy, or lord lieutenant. As to the church of Nochynvall, judgment was given against the bishop by default.

HISTORY of CORK. HAP. II.

BALLYMARTEL, alias KILLMEEDY, an entire rect. Ch. repair. Pat. the king. Anciently the Martels prefented. ot taxed in the K. B. Proxy 3 s.

Vide the treasurership. BALLYNADEE.

CI.

-

the

the 4 be ry.

he

ne 11 4 nd

4.

ut t,

t.

.

.

BALLYNADEE. Vide the treasurership.

BALLYMODAN. Ch. in repair. The rect. is impropne earl of Cork impropriator. Pat. to the vic. the bishop.

Anciently Barry-oge. Vic. taxed in the K. B. 21. Proxy 3s.

Id. for the vic. and 3s. for the rect.

St. Bridget. Vide the chancellorship.

Brinny vic. The ch. in repair. Pat. the bishop.

Wet taxed in the K. B. Proxy 2s. Anciently the prioress of Grany presented to the rect. and the bishop to the vic. The rect. is improp. Proxy 2s. 6d.

ed is improp. Proxy 2 s. 6d.

CAHERAGE, an entire rect. Ch. in ruins. Pat. the bihop. Not taxed in the K. B. Proxy 4:

St. Catherine's Vide St. Mary Shandon.

Cahirlad. Vide the prebends. Glebe, 5 A.

Carigaline, unciently called Braves, an entire rect.

Ch. in repair. Pat. the king. Not taxed in the K. B. Proxy 1.6s.

CARIGIPPANE rect. belongs to the chantorship, which fee-

Glebe, by the Down furvey, JA. 1 R. 8P.

CHRIST-CHURCH, Cork. Vide the Holy Trinity, a preb. Conway rect. and vic. Ch. in ruins. Pat. the bishop. Taxed in the K. B. 10 s. Proxy 4 s. Another rect. is part of the preb. of Killaspugmullane, which see. Corbally vic. belongs to the vicars choral, which see.

The rect. is part of the corps of the chantorfhip, which fee.

Caossenmans, alias Battynowsy. Ch. in repair. Pat.
the bishop. Taxed in the K. B. in the diocese of Ross, a.l.

Proxy 6s.

CULLEN, an entire rect. is part of the corps of the deanery, which fee.

DESCRIPTIONS VIC. Ch. in repair. Pat. the bishop.
Taxed in the K. B. by the name of Defertfelligie, al.
DESCRIPTIONS. See this among the prebends.
Down DESCRIPTION Ch. in repair. An entire rect. Pat. Francis Kearny, efg. Taxed in the K. B. 11. Proxy 11. 4.5.
Dunsullos is part of the corps of the archiescopry, which for Character.

which fee. Glebe, 5 A.

DUNISKY, an entire rect. is part of the archdeaconry.

DURRIS, alias DURRYS (5) rect. is improp. the earl of Cork impropriator. It anciently belonged to the priory of St. Catherine's. The bishop presents to the vic. Ch. in ruins.
Vic. taxed in the K. B. II. 6s. 8d. Proxies for the vic. 4s.

and for the rect. 45. at do F. av bas of Trather Daom-(5) Durrus, i. e. a pilgrimage.

DRUMDALEGUE. See this among the prebende

DAYNAGH (called also DUNDAYNAN) rect. belong to The bishop presents to the vic. The ne vicars choral. is taxed in the K.B. 21. and the vic. the fame, which is pays 3 s. proxy. It anciently belonged to Gill-abbey, and part to Mourne preceptory, as appears from fome old MSS.

FANLOBBISH. The rect. belongs to the vicars choral, who fee. The bishop presents to the vic. which is taxed in the K. I. alias Gobbancorn de Fanlobbish. The force of this church un moved, by act of parliament, to Dunmanway, by Anoe, c. 11. GARTVOR red. Ch. in ruins. Lord Kiefale is pat. No taxed in the K. B. Proxy os.

INCHEGERLAGH rect, and vic. Ch. in repair. Pat. the bifthop; anciently the mafter of Mourne preceptory allocated the rectory. Taxed in the K. B. 31. It has also one rect. in the earl of Cork impropriator. Proxy 2 s. Glebe, by the Down furvey, 74 A.

The CHURCH OF THE LITTLE ISLAND, formerly called SANCTI LAPPANI DE INSULA PARVA, Ch. in ruins. Pat. th bishop. The ancient pat, to the rect, were the heirs of Wa ter de Cardyffe. Rect. taxed in the K. B. 31. wic, 31. Proxiett

INSKENNY, a prebend, which fee.
ST. JOHN OF JERUSALEM, an entire red. This ch in rins, in the fouth liberty of Cork. Also Sr. Nicholas, ac. in repair, that belongs to the choir. Pat the bishop. The prior of Bath, in England, anciently prefented to St. John and the heirs of John Ballyfort to St. Nicholas. Not taxed a the K. B. Proxies for St. John's 4s.

INISHONANE rect. and vic. Ch. in repair. Pat. the bishop Anciently Barry-oge presented. Rect. taxed in the K. B. 51

6s. 8d. the vic. 2l. 10s. Proxies 11.

KINSALE. The rect. is improp. and anciently be longed to the prior of Bath, in England; the present impropriator, is Mr. Robert Chudleigh. The bishop presents to the vic. Ch. in repair. It was anciently called Sanct. Moloffa & Kuntaile. Vic. taxed in the K. B. 31. Proxies 3 a for the vic. and the fame for the rect KILBROGAN, a preb. which fee. The red. belonged to uch fee. Glebe.

Mourne abbey.

424

KILLANULLY, a preb. which fee-KILBRITTON, a preb. which fee.

KILLASPUGMULLANE, a preb. which fee. KILGOBAN, is part of the corps of the treasurership, hich fee. which fee.

KILLMIHIL rect. and vic. Ch. in repair. Pat. the bishop. Anciently the master of Mourne preceptory presented CHAP, II. HISTORY of CORK.

o the rectory. Taxed in the K. B. 11. proxy 8 s. Glebe, in he Down furvey, 8. A.

KILCOAN, an entire rect. Ch. in ruins. Pat. the bishop.

Anciently the heirs of Adam de Barry presented to the rect.

KILLCULLY rect, and vic. Ch. in ruins. Pat. the bishop. Anciently the Lombards. Not taxed in the K. B. Proxy 3 s. KILCONEY, alias KILOWEN, rect. Ch. in ruins. Pat. the bishop. Not taxed in the K. B.

KINNEIGH. Vide the chantorship for one red. The bishop presents to the vic. which is taxed in the K. B. 11.

OOR 1

to the

ne ret

ch and s

ASS. which

K. 1

orragi,

hun C. 11. Na

he b ted to

imp. by the calle

at, the Wes 1061

in ma di The

ohn's,

ted is

Thop.

. 51.

be-

pro-

o the na de

ed to hip,

binted to

KILBONANE: the rect. is improp. which belongs to -Rye, efq, The bishop presents to the vic. Ch. in ruins. Anciently the priores of Grany was rect. the vic. is taxed in the K. B. 11. Proxy 1s. Glebe, 12 A. 16 R.
KNOCAVILLY, an entire rect. Ch. in ruins. Pat. the Rect. taxed in the K. B. 4 1. bishop. Anciently Barry-oge.

Vic. 21. 10s. Proxy 10s. Glebe, 20 A.

KILMOR rect. and vic. Ch. in repair, and dedicated to St. Brandon. Pat. the king, and bishop, alternately. Vic. taxed in the K. B. 51. 108. Proxy 48. Glebe, 3 A. KILCROHANE: the rect. is improp. Mr. Richard Daniel impropriator; it belonged formerly to the priory of St. Catherine's. The bishop presents to the vic. Ch. in ruins. Taxed in the K. B. 21. 10s. Proxy 4s.

KILMACOMOGE rect. is improp. the earl of Cork impropriator. The bishop presents to the vic. Ch. in repair. Taxed in the K. B. 21. Proxies 2s. The scite of this Ch.

was removed, by act of parl. 2 Anne, chap. 2.

LEIGHMONY, an entire rect. Ch. in ruins. Pat. the king. Anciently the Barrys. Taxed in the K. B. 21. Proxy 4s.

LISLEARY. Vide the prebends.

MACLONEIGH, is part of the corps of the treasurership. One rect. taxed in the K. B. 11. the vic. 21. One rect. of this parish belonged to Mourne preceptory. There is another rect. and vic. to which the bishop is pat. Glebe, 4 A. 3 R. 8P.

MARAGH rect. and vic. Ch. in ruins. Pat. the bishop. Anciently Milo de Courcy. Not taxed in the K. B. Proxy 6s. MARMULLANE. Vide the vic. choral.

ST MARY SHANDON, Cork, rect. and vic. and the rect. of St. CATHERINE, near the same; the former ch. in repair, the other is not. Pat. the earls of Kildare and Barrymore, alternately. Anciently the lord Barry presented to St. Catherine's; and the lords Roche formerly were pat. of the rectory of St. Mary Shandon, and the bishops of the vic. The rect. is taxed in the K. B. 31. and the vic. 31. 10 s. Proxy for St.

CH.

preb

T

Tra

G

P

S

ford

and

F

1

ter

CÒ

1

Mary Shandon 8s. for St. Catherine's 1 s. There is another ch.-in this parish, called St. Anne's, of which see more, chan ix. lib. II.

ST. MICHAEL. Vide the prebends.

Movidor rect, and vic. Ch. in repair. Pat. the bishop. Anciently the master of Mourne preceptory was pat. to the rect. The vic. taxed in the K. B. 11. 10s. Proxy 35. 41 Glebe, 48 A. 2 R. 8 P.

ST. NICHOLAS. Vide St. John of Jerusalem.

NARDE. Vide the vic. choral.

NOHAVEL, is part of the corps of the archdeaconry, which

ST. PAUL's, an entire rect. Ch. in repair, in the city of Cork; of which fee more chap. ix. lib. II. The earls of Kil. dare and Barrymore, alternate patrons. Proxy 6s.

ST. PETER's Cork, is part of the corps of the archdeaconry, which fee.

RATHCLARRAN rect. and vic. Ch. in repair. Pat. the hop. Taxed in the K. B. 31. 16s. 8d. Proxy 11s. 6d.

RATHCONNY, an entire rect. Ch. in repair. Pat. the bishop. Anciently the Stantons were pat. Taxed in the K. B. (by the name of Rathwony,) 11. 10s. Proxy 3s.

RATHDOWTAN, belongs to the treasurership.

RINGCURRAN rest. and vic. Ch. in repair. Pat. the king. Anciently Barry-oge. The vic. taxed in the K. B. 41. and the rect. 41. Proxy 9s.

RINGRONE rect. Ch. in repair. Pat. in dispute between the fovereign and burgeffes of Kinfale, and lord Kinfale, with the bishop, alternately. Taxed in the K. B. 61. Proxies 11.41

Glebe, 3A.

SKULL rect. and vic. Anciently called Sancta Maria de Scholia, and belonged to the university of Ross. Ch. in repair. Pat. the king, and the bishop, by turns. The vic. tax-

TAXAX, (anciently Ty-Sassin. i. e. The Englishman's houfe.) An entire rect. Ch. in ruins. Pat. the king. Taxed in TEMPLEBREEDY vic. is part of the corps of the deanery.

The rect. is improp. Proxies 63. Temple-Martin, an improp. rect. is part of the fame.

TEMPLE-MICHAEL, an entire rect. Ch. in ruins.

the bishop. Taxed in the K. B. 11. Proxies 6s.

TEMPLETRINE, an entire rect. Pat. Francis Kearney, of Garret's-town, efq; Rect. taxed in the K. B. 41. Proxies 61. Ancient pat. were the Roches.

TEMPLEUSQUE. Ch. in ruins. Pat. the bishop, Taxed in the K. B. 31. Proxies 5 s.

TRINITT

HISTORY of CORK. CHAP. II.

K.L

other

hap

hop.

41.

of

Cil

17,

he

TAINITY CHURCH, Cork, a preb. which fee among the prebends. The bishop presents to the vic. formerly the king. These following are taken from an ancient MS. of Robert Travers, register, anno 1628.

Garinehie in presentat. hered. Johan. de Wall. Particula Lyfgormyn, in prefentatione Coppynger.

Sanct. Bracknan de Ross-beg, Sanct. Catherin. juxt. Waterford rector.

Particula de Montamiston, the vic. belonged to the deanery, and the rect. to Gill-abbey

Particula de Gortnagrols, Garod the ancient patron.

Particula de Ballymolan, White of Kinalea Ultra, patron. Sanct. Eldridæ de Dwaghe, particula de Cloghare & Kildorvery. Anciently belonged to the treasury.

Particula de Kilmanohill, White de Duagh, patron. Sanct. Michaelis de Duagh Barry-oge, rect. and vic.

Particula Cowlpogdity, alias Coullobeta Pertinet. ad Kilmanahill, White de Duagh patronus.

Beat. Mariæ de Killmanan, priorissa de Grany est rect. episcop. confert vicar.

Beat. Mariæ de Mael, magist. de Mourne rector. in feodo, episcop. confert vic.

Clonhegy, magist. de Mourne est rect. episcop, confert vic. Deserthony, magist. de Mourne est rect. vicarius de Moyallo Impropriations in the diocese of Cork, are the impropriate rectories of Ballyfoile, alias Poliplick, its proxy 6s: Ballynaboy, its proxy 8s. Ballyfeard, which rect. belonged, formerly, to Tracton-abbey, its proxy 5 s. Barnahealy, which rect. was possessed by the monks of Gill-abbey, also called Monasterium de Antro, and was a particle of the parish of St. Finbarr, its proxy 1 s. Clontead belonged to Tracton-abbey, its proxy 6s. Kilmoney belonged to Gill abbey, its proxy 3 s. Kinure belonged to Tracton, its proxy 3 s. Kilpatrick, near Tracton, belonged to the same; its proxy 4 s. And the improp. rect. of Templebrakney belonged to the same. To all thefe, the heir of lord vis. Shannon is impropriator. The improp. rect. of Ballymodan has been already noticed. Killmurry, its proxy 10 s. Kilasihil, its proxy 2 s. Inchegeelagh has been already noticed. Durrus already noticed, they all belong to the earl of Cork, with the improp: rect. of Killmaconioge. The improp. rect. of Kinfale, already noticed, as was Kilbonane. The improp. rect. of Aglish — Cross, esq; impropriator, proxy 2s. The improp. rect. of Kilcrohane, already noticed. The improp. rect. of Templequinlan, proxy 1s. 8d. These are in the diocese of Rois.

EHA Do

GL

refer d in

Kı

Kı

ric. i Kı

ente

Kı

ente

15.

K

bifh

51. K B. 6

Glel

K Pro

K

mor K ed i

H

in t

. 1

Pro

]

the

.] bu

K.

ta

m

T

bi

7

-A STATE of the Diocese of ROSS. The biffor rick is taxed in the K. B. 101.

DIGNITARIES.

EANERY Ross. Ch. in repair. The rect. of Defert belongs to the faid deanery. Pat. the king. Taxed in the K. B. 31. 25

CHANTORSHIP. Taxed in the K. B. 21. Pat. the bishop.

CHANCELLORSHIP. Pat. the bishop. Taxed in the K. B. 21.

TREASURERSHIP. Pat, the bishop. Taxed in the K. B. 6s. 8d.

ARCHDEACONRY. Confishing of the reft of Kilmacahea, the rect. of Kilfaughna-beg, the rect. of Kilcoe, the rect. of Kilcaskan, the rect. of Aghadown; this last ch. in repair, the others in ruins. Pat. the bishop. The archdeaconry is taxed in the K. B. 31, 10s. Proxies for the whole, 5s. 4d.

PREBENDS.

PREB. of TIMOLBAGUE. Ch. in repair. Pat. the bishop. Taxed in the K. B. 41. The vic. also taxed 41. Glebe, 3A. PREB. of the ISLAND. Ch. in ruins. Pat. the bishop. Taxed The vic. taxed in the K. B. 11. 13s. 4d. Proxy 3s. 4d. 11. 13s. 4d.

PREB. of CARRIGROHAUMORE. Ch. in ruins. Pat. the bilhop.

PREB. of TEMPLE-BRYAN. Ch. in ruins. Pat. the bishop. PREB. of DONAGHMORE. Ch. in ruins. Pat. the bishop. The rect. taxed in the K. B. 11. the vic. 11. Proxy 8d.

PARISHES.

The vic. is pre-AGHADOWN rect. vide the archdeaconry. fented to by the bishop, and taxed in the K. B. 61. 2s. 5d.

ARDFIELD vic. Ch. in ruins, Pat. the bishop. in the K. B. 21. Proxy 2s. 5d.

CASTRUM VENTRY vic. Ch. in ruins. Pat. the bishop. Taxed in the K. B. 11. 1bs.

CARRIGROHANMORE, a preb.
CLARE-ISLAND vic. Ch. in ruins. Pat. the bishop. Tage
ed in the K. B. 31. Proxy 1s. 8d.

CASTLEHAVEN. Vide Glanbarahane.

A ch. newly CREAGH rect. and vic. alias SKIBBEREEN. built at Skibbereen. Pat. the bishop. Taxed in the K. B. 21. 10s. Proxy 3s. 12d.

DESART vic. Ch. in ruins. Pat. the bishop. Taxed in the K. B. 21. Proxy 8d.

.

100

ne, to 25

the

be

7.

2,

DONAGHMORE, a preb. GLANBARAHANB red. and vic. Ch. in repair. refented to by the king's patent, the vic. by the bishop. Taxd in the K. B. 61. Proxy 2s. 5d. KILMACABEA rect. Vide the archdeaconry. The vic. is resented to by the bishop. Proxy 1.5.

KILFAUGHNA-BEG rect. Vide the archdeaconry. The

ic. is presented to by the bishop. Proxy 1 s.

KILCOE rect. Vide the archdeaconry. The vic. is preented to by the hishop. Taxed in the K. B. 10s. Proxy 1s, 8d. KILCASKAN rect. Vide the archdeaconry. The vic. is preented to by the bishop. Taxed in the K. B. 11. Proxy 15. 8d.

KILLAGHCONNENAGH vic. Ch. in repair. Pat. the ishop. The rect. is taxed in the K. B. 41. 2s. The vie.

SI. 35. 4d. Proxy 8s. 9d.
KILCATERN rect. and vic. Ch. in ruins. Taxed in the K. B.6s. 8d. for the rect. the same for the vic. Proxy 3 s, 4d.

Glebe, by the Down furvey, 13 A.
KILMANAGH rect. and vic. Ch. in ruins. Pat. the bishop.

Proxy 3s. 4d. Glebe, by the Down survey, 10 A.

KILMALODA rect. Ch. in ruins. Pat. earl of Barrymore. Taxed in the K. B. 31. Proxy 3s. 4d.

KILKERRANMORE. Ch. in ruins. Pat. the bifhop. Taxed in the K. B. 21. Proxy 8 d. KILGARUFF vic. Ch. in repair. Pat. the bishop. Taxed in the K. B. 31. Proxy 1 s. 8 d.

KILLSILAGH rect. and vic. Ch. in ruins. Pat. the bishop. Proxy 4 s.

KILLMINE rect. Ch. in repair. Pat, the bishop: Taxed in the K. B. 11. 5s. Proxy 3s. 4d.

KILNEGROSS, an entire rect. Ch. in repair, (being lately built.) Pat. the bishop, Taxed in the K. B. 1 l. 6s. 8 d. Proxy 3s. LISLEE vic. Ch. in repair. Pat the bishop. Taxed in the K. B. 61. Proxy 25. 8d.

Myros reet. and vic. Ch. in ruins. Pat. the bishop. Rect. taxed in the K. B. 31. Vic. 61. 6s. 8d. Proxy 5s. 4d. RATHBARRY vic. Ch. in ruins. Pat. the earl of Barrymore. Taxed in the K. B. 61. 13s. 4d. Proxy 3s. 1d.

TEMPLE-BRYAN, a preb.

Ch. in ruins Pat the bishop. TEMPLEQUINLAN VIC. Taxed in the K. B. 31. Proxy 3s. The rect. is improp.

TEMPLE O-MALUS rect. and vio. Ch. in ruins. Pat. the bishop. The rect. taxed in the K.B. 21. Proxy 3s. The TULLAGH rect. and vic. Ch. in repair. Pat. the bishop. Taxed in the K. B. 21, Proxy 3.5. 1 d.

Of the ancient franchifes of the fee, viz. wrecks of the fee. &c. there is an inquisition among the records of the count King's-bench, Dublin, in the case of Lawrence, bishop of Rose who was elected 1290 *.

Anno 29. Edw. I. Memb. 20.

SECT. II.

A State of the Diocese of Cloyne, with the Nomes of the Dignitaries, and other Ecclefiastical Benefices in the Same.

THERE is no record relating to the state of this diocese surther back than the year 1665, nor any entry relating to the livings, the old record being destroyed in the civil wars. By an act of parliament, the ad of George I. the burgary of Cloyne, formerly the inheritance of sir John Fitz-Gerald, knt. subject to the payment of a fee sam rent to the see of Cloyne, became vested in the crown, by the forseiture of the said sir John Fitz-Gerald, anno 1641, which lands were granted, by king Charles II. in augmentation to the see of Dublin, in pursuance of the act of settlement. By this act, the said lands are re-united to the see of Cloyne, with the consent of William, archbishop of Dublin, at the rent of 261, per annum. The said lands and houses, called the burgary of Cloyne, consist of the lands of Ballycroneene, Ballycotten, &c.

This fee is not taxed in the king's books; but in a MS. in Marsh's library, it is mentioned to be valued at 10 l. 10s. sterl. anno 33 Eliz. and in another MS. in the college library, at 16 l. sterl. It is now valued at 101, 10s.

DIGNITARIES.

THE collegiate church of St. Mary, of Youghal, is united to the see of Cloyne, to which the bishop is warden. The ch. is in repair. Pat. the king. To serve this ch. his lordship keeps a curate, and an affistant curate. Taxed in the K. R.

HISTORY of CORK. CHAP. II.

B. 100 marks. The vic. of Garankinfeky belongs o the menfal of the bishop of Cloyne. His lordship also olds in commendam, the union of Aghada, constituted of these arishes, viz. the rect. and vic. of Cork-beg, the rect. and vic. of Aghada, the rect. and vic. of Inch, otherwise Unich, the ect. and vic. of Rostillian, the rect. of Titeskin. The vic. of Cork-beg is raxed in the K. B. 2 l. Aghada, 1 l. 10 s. Inch, 1 l. tos. Rect. of Titeskin, 1 l. 6 s. 8 d. Corkbeg ch. in repair, being built by act of parliament, 27 Anne, thap. 12.

Confisting of the entire rect. of Pharahy. Ch. DEANERY.

CHANTORERED. The corps thereof, confits of the CHANTORSHIP. ect of Kilcredan, the rect of Ballycarany, the vic. of Lifgoold, the rect. and vic. of Impherick, the rect. of Ballygour-ny, alias Ballytemple. The vic. of the fame. The rect. of Mogeely, with the particle of Templebelagh. Pat. the biffsop. The chantorship taxed in the K. B. 3 I. Most of the ch. in repair.

Confifting of the rect, and vic. of CHANCELLORSHIP. Clenore, the entire rect. of Aghacrofs, one rect. of Ballyvour-ney, the entire rect. of Mosare, alias Temple-Molagy. Ch. in ruins. Pat. the bithop. The chancellorship only taxed in the K. B. 6 s. 8 d.

OR I

be for

urt of

Ros

es of

et in

ed 61

of

of 12 im the 12

by 16

his ne,

in,

nd

of

ut be

)-

The corps thereof is the rect. of TREASURERSHIP. Templenicarrigy united, in a perpetual union, with those parithes, the vic. of Castrachore, the vic. of Mogeasagh, the vic. of Ballyspellane, the rect. and vic. of Inchynabacky, and called the union of Middletown, the entire rect. and vic. of Temple-Gall. The treasurership is taxed in the K. B. 31. Pat. the bishop.

ARCHDEACONRY. Confifting of the rect. of Difert. Ch. in repair. The rect. and vic. of Gortroe. Ch. in repair. And the rect. and vic. of Aghabulloge, alias Aghinagh. Taxed in the K. B. Il. 5 s.

PREBENDS.

The ancient prebendaries were ten, viz. Glanore, Ballyhowly, Donaghmore, Cool, Coolliny, Subulter, Lackeen, Bruhenny, Inifcarah, and Kilmacdonough. In another place, I find four more added, viz. Brigoone, Ballyhea, Aghultie, and Ca-hirultane. They are now as follows:

PREB. of AGBULTIE. Ch. in repair. Pat. the bishop. Taxed in the K. B. by the name of the preb. of Ballyhooly, 3 l. 6s 8d. The same preb. holds the united parish of Macrony, confishing of the vie. of Killworth, the vic. of Macrony, the vic. of Kilcrump, and the vic. of Letrim.

1

Ch

T

6

PARR. of INISCARAN, to which is united the red. a vic. of Matchy, under the name of the parish of Inifcard Ch. in ruins. Pat. the bishop. Taxed in the K. B. at. 10s.

PARB. of BRIGOWN, alias MARSHALSTOWN, There and vic. of Ballyvourney. The rect. and vic. of Dungan novan. Ch. in repair, at Mitchelstown. Pat. the bishop.

PREB. of KILMACDONOUGH. The rect. and vic. of Kilmahone. The rect. and vic. of Clonmutt. Ch. in rains he

the bishop. . Taxed in the K. B. 41.

PREE. of CAHIRULTAN. The rect. of Kilnamarter, otherwise Ballyoughter. The vic. of the same, and the rect of Mogeely, as united by act of parliament, 9 Anne, chap. 23 and called the parish of Castlemartyr. Ch. of Castlemarty in repair, built upon ground given by Henry Boyle, equipment of Litter. The entire rect. of Moyallow. The entire rect. of Killeagh. The ch. in repair. Pat. the bishop. Ballymartyr taxed in the K. B. 11 55. Cahirultan, 6 s. 8 d. Glebe and spittle land to Ballyoughter, 2 A.

PREB. of KILLENEMER. The vic. of Carrigtohil. Ch. in repair, with the particle of Kilcurfin. Pat. to Carrigtohil the bishop, and the earl of Barrymore, alternately; to the protection only. Carrigtohil is taxed in the K.B. s. b.

PREB of GLANMORE, alias GLANWORTH, to which belongs the particle of Legans. Ch. in repair. Pat. the biflos.

Taxed in the K. B. 61.

PREB. of BALLYHEA, confolidated with the vic. of the fame. The vic. of Glanore. The vic. of Rathgogin. The entire rect. of Ballynorane, otherwise Aglishdraninagh. The rect. and vic. of Ardskeagh. The rect. of Shandrun, confolidated to the vic. thereof. Rathgogin (now Charleville.) Ch. in repair. This vic. taxed in the K. B. 3 l. Ballynorane rect. taxed in the K. B. 1 l. the vic. 10 s. The rect. of Shandrum, 7 l. 6 s. 8 d. the vic. 3 l. 13 s. 4 d. Pat. the bishop.

PREB of COOLE. The rect. of Castletown, and vic. of PREB of COOLE. The rect. of Castletown, and vic. of the same. The rect. and vic. of Monaminy. The rect. and vic. of Kilcummer, alias Kilcrumer. The rect. and vic. of Bridgetown. The vic. of Wallstown, and the particle of Ballygregin, all united together, under the name of the parish of Castletown. Ch. in repair. Pat the bishop. The preb. taxed in the K. B. 1 I, The vic, of Wallstown 6 I. Castletown 6 II. Castletown 6 III. Castletown 6 II. Castletown 6 III. Castl town 61.

PREB. of KILLMACLENINE. Ch. in repair. The vic. of Castlemagner, Ch. in repair. The vic. of Dromdenny. The vic. of Ballyclough, Ch. in repair. The vic. of Rokeen. The vic. of Kilcorney, Ch. in repair. The rect. and vic. of Clormeene, Ch. in repair. The vic. of Tulleash, the particle of Carigtoher. Pat. the bishop. Killmaclenine taxed in the

HAP. II. HISTORY of CORK.

B. 138. 4d. Castlemagner a l. Drumdenny a l. 1018.

Pass, of Suzutras. The vic. of Templebodane, Pat, bishop. Subulter taxed in the K. B. 101. Templebodane, in Dronmoyre, ad., The entire reft. of Mullowny, Para. of COOLINIE. The entire rest. of Mullowny, therwise Knocktemple. The perpetual curacy of Kilbolane. th in repair. Pat. the bishop. Coolinie taxed in the K. B. 1. 10s. Kilbolane, al. tos.

Parn. of Lacknew. The vic. of Cloufert, alias Trinity Christ Church Newmarket. Ch. in repair. Pat. the bishop. The last taxed in the K. B. 11. 10s. Lackeen taxed tos.

PARISHES.

AGHADA, a union. Vide the bishop's parishes, Art. 1.
AGHACROSS. Vide the chancellorship. Glebe, 4A. 2 R.

AGHABULLOG B. Vide the archdeaconry. Glebe, 13 A. AGHULTIE, a preb. which fee, and ...

AGHERN vic. Ch. in repair. Pat the hishop. The king is pat. to the rect. The rect. taxed in the K.B. 3 1. The wic. allas Carretto

AGHINAGH, rect. and vic. Ch. in ruins. Pat. the bishop. Glebe, 14 A. 1 R. 24 P. c, taxed in the K

ARDAGH, an entire rect. Ch. in repair. Pat. the king. ARDSKRAGH, rect. and vic. Ch. in ruins. Pat. the bifhop. Glebe, 4 A. 3 R. 8 P. This rect. of Artificeagh belonged to

BALLYBEC, an impropriation, Anthony Jephion, efq. im-propriator.

OOK.

A. as 40 op Ki

N

irtery, ie vic. p. 23, sarty, efq. The Those

the land

Ch tohi

preb

hich

hop.

the tire

and

the his

84

ric.

6

che se infine

BALLYCARANY. Vide the chantorship. Glebe, 2'A.

Vide the fame. BALLYGOURNY. BALLYTEMPLE: Vide the fame. Glebe, 6 A.

BALLYVOURNEY. Vide the preb. of Brigown. This

BRIGOWN, a preb. which fee. Glebe, 7 A. 30 P.
BALLYDELOGY vic. enjoyed by the preb. of Glanworth. The rect. is improp. Mr. Francis Hely impropriator.

BALLYNGANE. Vide the preb. of Ballyhea. The net. is improp. Barth. Purdon, efq; impropriator: Glebe, J.A.

BALLYSPELDANS reft. improp. Col. Carew impropriator.
BRITWAY, an entire rest. Ch. in ruins. Pat. the bifhop. Glebe, 17 A.

BOHILANE,

C

C

001

I

ect

iA

ria

he

G

50 G

BOHILANE, an entire rect. Ch. in ruins. Pat the bifhon Glebe, 8 A. 2 R.

BRUENHY, alias CHURCHTOWN, an entire vic. Cha 非工作证证证明

repair. Pat. the earl of Egmont.

BOTHON, alias BUTTEVANT, OF KIENAMUELAGH, a per petual curacy. Ch in repair. The rect is improp. Rich Newman, efq; impropriator.

BREGOGE. Ch. in ruins. The bishop is pat to the vic The rect. is imp. Richard Newman, efq; impropriator.

CAHIRDOWGAN, a perpetual curacy. Pat. the bishop. The rect. is improp. Anthony Jephson, esq; impropriator.

CARIGDOWNANE, rect. and vic. Pat. the bishop. Ch This rect. anciently belonged to the preceptory of Monaminy.

CAHIRULTAN, a preb. which fee.

CARIGLEMEBARY vic. Ch. in repair. Pat. the bishop. The rect. is improp. and belongs to the vicars choral of Christ-Church, Dublin. It anciently belonged to the preceptory of Monaminy. Vic. is taxed in the K. B. al. 101

CARRIGROHANDEG rect. and vic. Ch. in ruins. Pat. the bishop. The rect. belonged formerly to Mourne abbey.

CARRIGTORIL rect. is improp. col. Carew impropriator.

For the vic. vide the preb. of Killenemer.

CASTLELEHAN, alias CASTLELYONS, vic. Ch. in repair. Pat. the bishop. The rect. is improp. Mr. Francis Hely inpropriator. Vic, taxed in the K. B. 5 l. 124. Glebe, 17A. it two parcels.

CASTLEMAGNER VIC. Vide the preb. of Killmaclenine. The rect. is improp. Robert Longfield, efq; impropriator.

CASTLETOWN par. and union. Vide the preb. of Coole. CASYLEMARTYR union. Vide the preb. of Cahirultan

CLONDILLANE vic. Pat. the bishop. Rect. improp. the rev. R. Bligh impropriator. Glebe, 1 A. The vic. is taxed in the K. B. 61.

CLENORE. Vide the chancellorship. The rect is improp. lord bishop of Limerick impropriator. Glebe, 3 A. This rect. anciently belonged to the preceptory of Monaminy.

CLONDRONID rect. and vic. Ch. in ruins. Pat. the bishop. Taxed in the K. B. 11. 10 s. The rect. formerly belonged to the knights hospitallers of Mourne abbey. quagua a chait

CLONFERT. Vide the preb. of Lackeen. The red. is improp. Robert Longfield, efq; impropriator. Glebe, by the Down furvey, 3 A. I R.

CLONMEL vic. to which is united the par of Temple-robbin, both in the great island. Ch. of Clonmel in repair. Pat. the Dishop. The rect. of Clonmel belongs to the aconomy of Clove. CLONMULT. Vide the preb. of Kilmadonough. Glebe, 1A.

CLONPRIEST, an entire rect. Ch. in repair. Pat the king. Glebe, 10 A.

HISTORY of CORK. HAP. II.

CLONMEENE. Vide the preb. of Killmaclenine. The rect. improp. Thomas Holmes Pomeroy, efq, impropriator. his rect. belonged formerly to Mourne abbey.

Coolinie, a preb. which fee.

Coole, a preb. which fee.

CORK-BEG. Vide Aghada. Glebe to Cork-beg, by the Down furvey, 13 A. And in Aghada 12 A. 1 R.

Derrivillane, enjoyed by the preb of Glanworth. The ed. is improp. Mr. Francis Hely impropriator.

DISERT. Vide the archdeaconry. 42 A. 3 R. 8 P. of glebe, the Down furvey, in this par.

DONERAILE, a perpetual curacy. Ch. in repair. Pat. the The rect. is improp. Mr, George Giles improilhop. riator.

Downgonney, an entire rect. Pat. the bishop. Glebe,

A. 1 R.

KL

(hop.

h.s

per-

TIC

The

CN

of

or of

-

the

.10

21

ı.

DROMDENNY. Vide the preb. of Killmaclenine for the vic. The rect. is improp. Richard Newman, esq, impropriator.

DUNGANDONDVAN. Vide the preb. of Brigown.

DONAGHMORE. Pat. the bishop. Ch. in repair. Taxed in he K. B. al. Glebe, to A.

FARAHY, alias PHARAMY. Vide the deanery. Glebe in his par. by the Down furvey, 37 A. in one parcel, and 14 in nother.

GARINEINPERY, is the menfal of the bishops of Cloyne,

Glebe, by the Down furvey, 3 A. a.R. GARRIVOR vic. Pat. the king. Ch. in ruins. The rect. is mprop. Henry Rugg, efq. impropriator. Gebe, by the Down furvey, 3 A. a R.

GARRYCLOYNE rect. and vic. with the rect. and vic. of Granagh, united under the name of the part of Garrycloyne, by act of par. 27 Anne, chap. 12. Ch. in repair. Pat. the bihop. Glebe, 3 A. 8 R. Garrycloyne rect. formerly belonged Mourne abbey.

GRANAON rect. belonged to Mourne abbey.

GOATROR rect. and vic. Vide the archdeaconry. Glebe,

GLANMORE, or GLANWORTH, a preb. which fee. The

vic. belongs to Ballyhea. INCH. Vid. Aghada.

ICHTERMURRAGH, an entire rect. Ch. in repair. Pat. the king. Glebe, 2A. 1R. IMPHERICK. Vide the chantorship.
INISCARAH, a preb. which see. Glebe, 8A. 2R. 16P.

INCHYNABACKY, a rect. and vic. Vide the treasurership. Glebe, 6 A. 2 R.

KILALTY vic. is enjoyed by the preb. of Glanworth. The rect. is improp. and belongs to the vicars choral of Christ-Church, Dublin.

J.17711

CH

pre

31.

ie i K.

19

16

KILBRONY vic. Ch. in ruins. Pat. the bishop. Them is improp. Mr. John Watkins impropriator.

KILBRIN vic. Pat. the bishop. The red. is improp. Is bert Longfield, efq, impropriator. Vic. taxed in the K.B. il.

KILBROGAN rect. is improp. and belongs to the an KILCOLEMAN rect. and vic. united to a great particle Aghabolloge, otherwise Magourney, and called the part Magourney. Ch. in repair. Pat. the bishop. Taxed in the K. B. al.

KILBOLANE. Vide the preb. of Coolinie. The red. bla prop. the earl of Orrery impropriator. Glebe, AA. 4P.

KILCHMMEN. Vide the preb. of Coole.
KILCHEDAN. Vide the chantorship. The king presents the vic.

KILCORNEY vic. Vide the preb. of Killmaclenine. The rect. belonged, formerly, to Mourne abbey.

KILCRUMP rect. improp. the rev. Robert Bligh impro For the vic. vide the preb. of Aghultle. Glet. priator. 13 A.

KILCURPIN, this particle belongs to the preb. of Killer mer. The rect. is improp. and belongs to col. Carew.

KILNEMARTERY, an entire rect. Pat. the bishop. Gleby by the Down furvey, 25 A.

KILNEMARTERA, alias BALLYOUGHTERA. Vide Caffe

KILMACDONOUGH vic. Ch. in repair. Pat. the king. Tand in the K. B. 31. The rest belongs to the preb. Glebe, 8A. 18 KILMACLENINE, a preb. which fee.

KILMANLOE, otherwise SCRULANE, an impropriation

Robert Longfield, efq; impropriator.

KILMANONE. Vide the preb. of Kilmacdonough. Glex to Killeigh, 12 A.

KILMAHON rect. belonged to Mourne abbey.

KILLENEMER, a preb. which fee.

KILLEAGH, an entire rect. Vide Cahirultan, a preb. KILGULLANE, an entire recl. Vide the preb. of Glatworth. Glebe, 5A. 3R.

KILDORRERY vic. Pat. the bishop. The rect. is impropthe executors of the rev. Mr. Henry Harrison impropriators

KILSHANICK rect. and vic. Ch. in repair. Pat, the bishop Taxed in the K. B. by the name of the vic- of Kilshane, 1 l-101-The rect. belonged, formerly, to Mourne preceptory.
KILLWORTH vic. Vide the preb. of Aghultie.

KNOCKMOURNE vic. Ch. in ruins. Pat. the bishop. Tar ed in the K. B. 1 l. 10s.

Vide the preb. of Coolinie. KNOCK TEMPLE.

LACKEEN, a preb. which fee.

HISTORY OF CORK. CHAP. II.

LITTER reft. vid the preb of Cahirultan. The bifhop presents to this vic. Ch. in repair. Reet taxed in the K. B. 31. 6s. 8d. The vic. the same the same to the particle of the same to the sam

LISCARROL vic. Che in ruins. Pat. the bilhop. The rect. is impropriate, Francis Price, efq, impropriator. Taxed in the K. B. 51. 108.

Liscoopp, the vice belongs to the chanterfhip. The reft.

LETRIM vic. vid. the preb. of Aghultie. The rect. is line propriate, the revd. Robert Bligh impropriator. Glebe," A.

MACROOMP rect, and vic. Ch. in repair Pat, the bishop. Not taxed in the K. B. Glebe, by the Down farvey a A. The rect. belonged, formerly, to Mourne preceptory.

MAGOURNEY, the rect. and vic. of Kilcoleman is united to this par. vid. Kilcoleman. The rect. of Magourney belonged to Mourne abbey

MACRONBY vic. vid. the preb. of Aghultie. The rect. is impropriate, rev. Robert Bligh impropriator.

MATTERY, Vid. Inifcarah, a preb. The rect. of Mattehy enciently belonged to Mourne abbey.

MIDDLETOWN union, vid. the treasurership.

Moyallow, an entire rect. vid. Cahirultan, a preb.

Mogerry rect. vid. the chantorship. The vic. united to Castlemartyr. Glebe, 13 A. 2R.

Monare, alias Templemolagy. Vid. the Treasurership. MARSHALSTOWN vic. Pat. the bishop. Ch. in ruins. Rect. impropriate, the executors of the rev. Mr. Henry Harrison impropriators. Glebe, 2A. 32P

Monaminy rect. and vic. vid. the preb. of Coole. At this place was, formerly, a preceptory of knights of St. John of Jerusalem.

MOURNE preceptory, alias TEMPLEMICHAEL rect. and vic. Ch. in repair. Pat. the king. The whole tythes belonged, anciently, to the preceptory. Glebe, 42 A. lying in the par. of Defert.

MULLOWNEY, otherwise KNOCKTEMPLE, an entire rect.

Ch. in ruins. Pat. the bishop.

NATHLASH rect. and vic. Ch. in repair. Pat. the bishop. Nonang. Vid. the Chancellorship.

PHARABY. Vid the Deanery.

ROGERI CALVI, a reel impropriate, Robert Longfield, efq. impropriator.

RATHGOGIN rech is impropriate, lord Orrery impropria-

For the vic. vid. the preb. of Ballyhea.

RATHCDAMUCK red and vic. Ch. in repair. Pat. Redmond Barry, efq; Glebe, 17 A.

Vot. I.

Co

fi

le

PAGHIN rect. is impropriate, Robert Longfield, efer impropriator. The vic. is presented to by the bishop. The rect. belonged to Monaminy preceptory.

ROLDELE, OF ROLDAGE, an impropriation, Anthony Jeph.

fon, efq. impropriator.

ROSKEEN vic. vid. the preb. of Kilmaclenine. The real is impropriate, Thomas Holmes Pomeroy, equ impropriate. ROSTILIAN. Vid. Aghada. The rect. belonged to Moums abbey.

SHARBRUM rest. and vic. vid. the preb. of Ballyhea.
SONAGH, or SUNAGH, an impropriation, Anthony Jephson, esq. impropriator.

SUBULTER, a preb. which fee.

TEMPLERELAGE, a particle united to Mogeely. Vid. the Tulbelagu vic. vid. the preb. of Kilmselening. Red.

impropriate, My. Mervin Anketel impropriator.

TEMPLEROBBIN. Vic. Pat. the bishop. The rest. is inpropriate, and belongs to the vic. choral of Christ Church, Dubling formerly, to the preceptory of Monaminy. Glebe, 5A. TEMPLEROBBIN. Vid. Cloning.

TEMPLE-GALL rect. and vic. Ch. in rules. Fat. the bishop. The rect. of Temple-gall belonged, formerly, to Mourne preceptory.

TEMPLEROAN, an entire rect. Ch. in repair. Par the bishop. Formerly belonged to the preceptory of Mourne abby.
Thraskan. Vid. Aghada. Glebe at Titefkin, g.A. a.R.

THESKAN. Vid. Aghada. Glebe at Titekin, 9A. SR. VALLA NOVA, alias BALLYNOR. Vis. Ch. in ruins. Int. the bishop, to the vic. and rect.

WALLSTOWN. Vid. the preb. of Coole.

Youghas, united to the bishopsich.
There are, at present, 30 parish schoolmasters in the discess of Cloyne.

CHAP. III.

An Account of the Foundation of the Collegiate Church of Youghal: With the Particulars of s remarkable Dispute between the Earls of Strafford and Cork, relating to this Foundation,

27th of December 1464, by Thomas, earl of Defmond; this foundation was confirmed, by his fon

HISTORY of CORK. CHAP. III.

fon James, anno 1472; and by Maurice, his brother, in 1496. The community, at first, confifted of a warden, eight fellows, and eight finging men, who lived in a collegiate manner, having a common table, and all other necessaries allowed them, with yearly stipends (1), the whole donation, at the time of the foundation, being worth 600l. a year. In 1464, king Edward IV. granted letters patent to Robert Miles and Philip Christopher, chaplains in the college church of the B. V. Mary of Youghal, to purchase lands for the use of this church, to the value of 20 marks yearly, notwithstanding the statute of mortmain; and the same patent pardons them for what they had purshaled before this without licence (2).

The foundation charter, and the appropriation of the feveral tythes to this house, were confirmed by Jordan, bifhop of Cloyne, under his feal, and that of Wil. Roche, archdeacon of Cloyne, who was then the bishop's coadjutor. Pope Alexander, by a bull (3) dated in 1494, confirmed these grants, and gave the warden and fellows a licence to purchase others, and unite them to the college. 1590, pope Julius bestowed the vic. of Kilmacdonough to this house, and confirmed the bulls of his predecessors in its favour (4). In 1468, pope

Paul

mond, and the popes above mentioned.
(2) Rot. Canc. N. 29. anno 3 Ed. IV. (3) Preferved at Lifmore. (4) Ibid.

⁽¹⁾ This house was endowed with the following parsonages and vicarages. The churches of Youghal, Clonprieft, Kilcredan, Killeagh, Ardagh, Ichtermurragh, Garrivoe, and the vic. of Kilinacdonough, all adjacent to the town of Youghal; which churches were to be served by the warden and sellows. They had also the parishes of Ballynoe, alias Newtown, Aghern and Moyallow, in the diocese of Cloyne, belides Carigaline in that of Cork, the parish of Miros and Caharagh in Ross, and four more in the diocese of Ardiert. In the charter of foundation, there is only mention made of the parishes of Newtown, Olehan, Aghern, and Moyallow; but the others were granted afterwards, by the earls of Def-

Paul granted an indulgence to such persons as contributed towards re-edifying the church of Yough al (5). In the charter of foundation, the patron is stilled earl of Desmond, lord of Decies, lord of Imokilly, lord of the regalities and liberties of the county of Kerry, and patron of this foundation (6).

This collegiate church enjoyed its revenues, and privileges, some time after the reformation; for, in the year 1587, Thomas Witherhead, D. D. was collated to the wardenship of this college, by the then bishop of Cork and Cloyne, William Lyon, and held it after in commendam with the united fees of Waterford and Lismore, to which he was promoted the 20th of July, 1589 (7). Upon the death of Dr. Witherhead, the priefts and fellows elected Nathaniel Baxter to fucceed him, and fignified their choice of him to the queen; which election the was pleased to confirm, by letters patent, dated the 25th of Feb. following; and on the 23d of May, 1592, he was inducted by the same bishop (8). He continued in the wardenship till the year 1597, without any interruption; when, about that time, the revenues of this house were threatened with the fate of most other monastic foundations. So that Baxter, on the 25th of August, this year, was obliged to pals a bond of 1000 marks, which was to be forfeited, in case he did not, in 40 days after demand, refign his office of warden into the queen's hands, and did not fuffer Thomas Southwell, of Brancaster, esq, in Norfolk, and John Fitz-Harris, of Ballycrenin, gent. to take possession of the same (9). Baxter, finding that his wardenship was now become precarious, on the 30th of June, 1598, privately passed a letter of attorney to Godfrey Armitage, Edmund Harris and William Parker, authorifing them to difpose of the college revenues, who accordingly set them, and the college-house, to sir Thomas Norris, then lord president of Munster. Dr. Meredith Hanmer succeeded Baxter in the wardenship; and on the 27th of October 1602, with the consent of the priests, renewed the lease that Dr. Witherhead had made to sir Thomas Norris, (who was then dead,) to William Jones, of Youghal, esq; in trust for sir Walter Raleigh; and demised to him the college house, with all the lands, tenements, tythes, and offerings belonging thereto, to hold the same during the remainder of the term of sir Thomas Norris's original lease, reserving to himself and the fellows, only the parsonage of Carigaline, and the rectory of Moyallow.

⁽⁵⁾ Preserved at Listnore. (6) Ibid. (7) Exemple of his Pat. at Listnore. (8) Ibid. (2) Ibid.

CHAP. III. HISTORY of CORK.

About the year 1602, fir George Carew, lord president of Munster, took the college, with an intention to reside in it, from Jones, and laid out 2201, in repairing the house; but on the queen's death, sir George returned into England, where, on the 9th of Jan. 1603, he obtained a patent from king James I. for the advowson and patronage of this wardenship, and all the spiritual promotions belonging thereto, with a grant of two houses in Youghal, &c. to hold the same in free and common soccage of his Majesty's castle of Dublin; which patronage he sold to sir Richard Boyle, who became afterwards earl of Cork, and who purchased Jones's interest in the college, together with sir Walter Raleigh's eftate.

But fir Walter being attainted before the deeds were perfected, fir Richard Boyle, in confideration of 1000 l. paid to the king, and for the better plantation of Munster, obtained a patent, ann. 1604, for all fir Walter's lands in Ireland, in which this college is particularly mentioned.

Sir James Fullerton also obtained a patent from king James I. Nov. 7, 1603, for several concealed church lands, by virtue of which patent he laid claim

he claim to this college; but fir Richard also gare him a fum of money for his title. After this, in Richard Boyle, by his interest with fir Geo. Carey. procured his kinfman, Dr. Richard Boyle (afterward bishop of Cork and Cloyne,) to be made warden of this house, in the room of Dr. Hanmer, who religi ed; and he was confirmed therein, by patent, dated 24th Feb. 1602 (10.) In 1605, fir Richard Boyle being in treaty with fir Jeffery Fenton, on a manage with his daughter, (who infifted, particularly, on the revenues of this house for her jointure) obtained a lease of them from the warden and fellows in fee farm for ever (11), paying the warden and his fuccessors the sum of 20 marks yearly. The reason fir Richard gives (12) for his procuring this deed was, that fir leffery's council were of opinion, that as his best title to the revenues was from the leafe granted by Baxter to fir Thomas Norris, and the renewal of it to Jones, the fettlement would not be to valuable, except he procured a new leafe of it for ever, and this he the readler gained, not only a his kinfman bishop Boyle was then warden, but a (10) Exempl. at Lismore.

⁽¹¹⁾ This indenture bears date April 8, 1605, between William, lord bishop of Cork, Cloyne and Ross the warden priests, and collegioners of the new college of Youghal of the one part, and Lawrence Parsons, gent. clerk of the crown is trust for fir R. Boyle,) of the other. Whereby the said bishop, &c. grants to the said Lawrence, the new college with all the edifices, &c. The lands of Ballymulcaske, one plowland near Youghal, the parsonages and rectories of Youghal, Inchiquin, Killeigh, Ichtermurragh, Ardeak, Aglishane, Beaver or Carigaline, Moyallow, Newtown, Olehane, and Aghearomoe, the parsonages of Miros, Skull, and Killemuck in Carbery, the vic. of Kilmacdonough, Garivoe and Killemuck in Carbery, the vic. of Kilmacdonough, Garivoe and Killemuck in Carbery, the vic. of Kilmacdonough, Garivoe and Killemuck in Carbery, the vic. of Kilmacdonough, Garivoe and Killemuck in Carbery, the vic. of Kilmacdonough, Garivoe and Killemuck in Carbery, the vic. of Kilmacdonough, Garivoe and Killemuck in Carbery, the vic. of Kilmacdonough, Garivoe and Killemuck in Carbery, the vic. of Kilmacdonough, Garivoe and Killemuck in Carbery, the vic. of Kilmacdonough, Garivoe and Killemuck in Carbery, the vic. of Kilmacdonough, Garivoe and Killemuck in Carbery, the vic. of Kilmacdonough, Garivoe and Killemuck in Carbery, the vic. of Kilmacdonough, Garivoe and Killemuck in Carbery, the vic. of Kilmacdonough, Garivoe and Killemuck in Carbery, the vic. of Kilmacdonough, Garivoe and Killemuck in Carbery, the vic. of Kilmacdonough, Garivoe and Killemuck in Carbery, the vic. of Kilmacdonough, Garivoe and Killemuck in Carbery, the vic. of Kilmacdonough, Garivoe and Killemuck in Carbery, the vic. of Kilmacdonough, Garivoe and Killemuck in Carbery, the vic. of Kilmacdonough, Garivoe and Killemuck in Carbery, the vic. of Kilmacdonough, Garivoe and Killemuck in Carbery, the vic. of Kilmacdonough, Garivoe and Killemuck in Carbery, the vic. of Kilmacdonough, Garivoe and Killemuck in Carbery, the vic. of Kilmacdonough, Garivoe and Killemuck in Car

CHAP. III. HISTORY of CORK.

he had 40 years of the old leafe granted to Jones unexpired, besides, both the church and college house, were almost in ruins, occasioned by Dismond's rebellion, these he engaged to repair, and actually expended above 2000 km rebuilding them (13). In this manner, fir Richard Boyle became possessed of this foundation, and enjoyed the revenues of it, till the year 1634, when the lord Wentworth, afterwards earl of Strafford, lord deputy of Ireland, summoned him (being them earl of Cork,) to appear in the high court of castle-chamber in Dublin, where six William Reeves, the attorney-general, exhibited a very severe bill against him (14), and

(13) Id. leafe, at Lifmore.

(14) The fubftance of the attorney general's charge was, that the earl had got possession of the college from one Jones, who held it for it Walter Raieigh for all. That the earl prevailed on his solution the bishop of Cork, to deliver up the feal, charter, and other records of the college to him, which he still detained, and procured a steed of conveyance from him of the college and its revenues. That not earing directly to take possession of them, he caused the bishop to continue wanden, and two or three pursons as fellows, allowing them, for fome time, a finall falory to support them, but did not allow than to live in the college, using it himself form dwelling house. He was charged with preventing every new election, when any vacancy happened, so that he became, in time, invested with the patronage, wardenship, and sole right of the sellows. That he discharged the secient collector of the college rents, and obtained an affignment from fir J. Fullerton of the revenues for a small consideration, who had only letters patent granted him to pesses consceled lands. That Michael, lord bishop of Waterford and Lismore, Robert Dawborne, dean of Lismore, and John Lianes Ser, clerky (who had been elected follows by the Constant and Sold and been elected follows, by the former warden and fellows, and by the engl's permittion,) had often folioited him to return the college feel and evidences, but being refuted, they together with the hishop of Cork then warden, obliged themselves, in April 1627, by an oath, not to make any composition with the earl of Cork, without the general confent of them all, to be obtained under their respective hands and seals. And after writing several letters, to the earl to persuade him to return the college feat; charter, and other records , he gave them a meeting,

HA

T

nfw

e at nd i

ent

ind

lete

nim

him

nigh

brist

ime

to 1

DCC

ega

by him

ffu

oy

upo

tron

aft

beft

by and you

hav for tim

to do the 11 fic

bo

and the bishops of Cork and Waterford, who were charged in affifting lord Cork to gain and keep an illegal possession of this college and its tevenues When the earl of Cork had notice of this charge, he was much furprifed; and not expecting any fuch attack, being then in Dublin, he was not ready for want of his papers, to make an immediate anfwer to the charge; therefore, it being parliament time, pleaded his privilege. Upon the the fint was put off till next term, at which time his lord. thip made a very fair answer to the attorney's bill (15), and supported it by several living witneffes, befides the original leafes, deeds, and patents, above mentioned, by virtue of which he enjoyed the revenues and patronages of this house.

unadeld it for fir Wall r Rabigh for abl. I me the call meeting, where the bishops of Cork and Waterford confented to make up matters with the earl, on confideration of his paying 40 marks to the warden, and 201, annually to the fellows; but this was without the confent of the other warden. And that foon after, the earl procured a grant of the college by a new patent. By all which methods, he fell continued in possession of its revenues, to the value of Book a year, befides the advowsons and oblations of the churches. The attorney general prayed, that the earl's patent might be cancelled by the king's prerogative, and that condign punishment be inflicted on the earl, and the bishops of Cork and Waterford. From the original, figued by the clerk of the council chamber,

(15) The earl of Cork, in his answer, fet forth his feveral titles to this house above mentioned. He denied the turning out the fellows, or refusing to admit new ones to be elected. Heatknowledged his having lived in the college, and that he used it as a dwelling house, fir Thomas Norris, fir G. Carew, and Mr. Jones having done the fame, several years before he had possession of it. That he never resused to restore the seal and writings except once, that three letters were delivered him from the warden and fellows; but he was then at a confiderable distance from them, nor did he chuse to felid them by a common messenger, without a proper receipt. That he soon after came to a new agreement with the warden and fellows, all of whom were present, and fully satisfied with it. That

HAP. III. HISTORY of CORK.

The lord Wentworth, finding by lord Cork's niwer, that he had more to fay in his defence than eat first imagined, delayed to pronounce fentence, nd adjourned the court; in the mean time, he ent feveral persons to him, some with persuasions, nd others to terrify, and induce him to leave the determination of the matter extra-judicially to im; protesting, that if he did not, he would fine im 30,000 l. deprive him of his office of lord high treasurer of Ireland, and commit him close prisoner to the castle of Dublin; but, at the same ime, promised, that if he would submit his cause to him, he would prove the best friend, on this occasion, he ever had. Lord Cork, perceiving no egal remedy to the contrary, submitted to abide by the lord deputy's arbitration; who awarded him to pay 15,000 l. fine to the king, for the flues and profits of this house, (which he had enoyed quietly for 36 years (16); he also seized the avcould, to them upon this occasion, he had doubted their stipends, and that he had procured new letters patent from his majesty for the patronage of the college, to him and his heirs for ever. And astly, that he had caused all the churches to be repaired, and bester supplied with pastors than they had ever been before.

From the original copy of the earl's answer.

(16) Archbishop Laud, on occasion of this suit, commenced by the lord deputy against the earl of Cork, seems to triumph,

and thus writes to lord Wentworth.

"My lord, I did not take you to be so good a physician as you are; for the truth is, a great many church cormorants have sed so full upon it, that they are fallen into a sever, and for that, no physick is better than a vomit, if it be given in time; and therefore you have taken a very judicious course to administer one so early to my lord Cork. I hope, it will do him good, though, perchance, he thinks not so; for; if the sever hang long about him, or the rest, it will certainly shake either them or their estates in pieces. Go on, my lord; I must needs say, this is thorough indeed, and so is your physick too; for a vomit never ends kindly, that does not work both ways, and that is thorough."

Vide lord Strafford's letters of Nov. 15, 1633.

gor

DOG!

in

r bi

na

ne nij

10 u

ng ro

ıc

pr

advowions and patronages of the churches, in the hands of the crown, and left the earl of Colonly the college house, and some demesses belowing to it near Youghal (17).

In 1640, the house of commons of English furnmoned the earl of Cork, to answer to seven interrogatories relating to lord Strafford's govern ment in Ireland. Upon which occasion, notwi standing the above-mentioned, and several obe great provocations given him by that unfortuna nobleman, by whose arbitrary proceedings, (as the earl fays, in his own hand-writing (18) he was pojudiced no less than 40,000 l. in his personal estar and in his inheritance 2000 marks a year the was generous as to put off his examination, after he we fworn, for fix weeks, hoping (as he fays) to avoid his being examined to any purpose; but being profed to do it, he went to the king, and ecquained him with it, who gave him liberty to proceed; but he was so reserved (he adds) in his answers, that me matter of treason could, by them, be fixed on the earl of Strafford; but the commons so blended his examination with the informations of others, the they attainted lord Strafford of high treason, by act particularly made for that purpose.

The substance of what lord Cork informed the house was, that lord Strafford had, by paper order, and without any due course of law, taken from him several impropriate rectories, in particular the of Mortel's town, in the county of Tipperay, which was given to one Arthur Gwyn, who was ⁽¹⁷⁾ Anno 1640, letters patent were passed, confirming the college and its appurtenances to the earl of Cork, and to the persons in trust for the jointure of the lady Elizabeth Chiffond wife to the lord viscount Dungarvan, his son and heir; which patent was also a full discharge to the earl of Cork and is tenants, for all issues and profits arising out of the college with appurtenances. In this patent the house, called the obcollege house, with its appurtenances, were reserved by the king for the use of the incumbent and his successors for even (18) Lord Cork's Diary.

AP. III. HISTORY of CORK.

achman: And when he had requested that his achman: And when he had requested that his the might be tried by law, lord Strafford overledit, and procured Gwyn to be inducted into the ing. The earl of Cork, upon this, took out a writ sue Gwyn; but the lord deputy sent him word to said, that he would not have his orders questioned by law or lawyers; and that, if he did not op the proceedings, he would commit him close isoner to the castle.

When this complaint was urged by the commons ainst lord Strafford, he evaded that part of the targe, and said, he remembered that there was an fair relating to some rectories and tythes, belongg to the college of Youghal, to a great value, which rd Cork had unlawfully acquired; that the matricame to a trial; but that the earl of Cork, searg the issue, petitioned that the bill might be taken the file, which was granted; and he obtained the ing's pardon, upon his paying 15,000 l.

This part of the earl of Strafford's answer, was r from being just; and so derogatory to the hoour of lord Cork, that, being very much irritated it, he immediately petitioned the house of rds (19); in which petition, after taking notice, at the charge against lord Stafford only mentioned e rectory of Mortel's-town, he intreats their lordips to observe the evasion, by introducing the afir of the college of Youghal, not fo much as menoned in the charge; and prays them so far to be nder of his reputation, that lord Strafford's unue imputations laid on him, might make no ill ppression in their most noble breasts, till the whole roceeding be re-examined before the house. olitively denies the fuing for, or receiving any ich pardon; and requests their lordships to order quiry to be made in the proper offices of Ireand, whether any fuch pardon had ever passed the

(19) From lord Coke's petition, in his own hand.

he

ha 40

Its

rbo

er,

eat

ren

e d

he

Wa

t

rth

d

utl

lle

14 rn

(1)

ngi e t les, le les ho rti roi sel ble

A

feals there; and also in the court of Castle-chan ber, whether the bill and answers did not still a main on the file; and whether the patronage an revenues of the college of Youghal, were not wre ed from him, together with a fine of 15,000 an arbitrary, unjust, and illegal manner, by thee of Strafford's direction. The earl of Cork prom the threatning meffages he received from lord Sind ford, by feveral witnesses, some of whom we members of the privy council of England. The finart rejoinder of his, turned out to be very prem dicial to the earl of Strafford's cause, who, soon a ter, was brought to the scaffold. On which occase on, I find the following note in one of lord Cork diaries, wrote by himself, " This day, the earl, " Strafford was beheaded; no man died more un " verfally hated, or less lamented by the people" Lord Cork had, indeed, no great cause to lamenth catastrophe; for, besides his other sufferings alread mentioned, lord Strafford, during the time of h government in Ireland, forced the earl to pay 1500 in subsidies; a larger sum (he says) than all the lords of the council of England paid together the same time. Yet after lord Strafford was a tainted, I find by lord Cork's papers, that he have tily strove to be reconciled to him, probably, feating that the king would have still protected him from the refentment of the commons,

CHAP. IV.

Of the Bounds, Extent, Length and Breadth of the County, with its Latitude and Longitude.

THIS county is bounded on the E. by that of Waterford, on the W. by Kerry, on the N by Limerick and a small part of Tipperary, and on the S. by the Ocean.

he Land's-end, of England, bears S. E. from harbour of Cork, at about 120 miles distance, 40 leagues. Its greatest length, from E. to W. is from the Extent. bour of Youghal to the mouth of Kilmair er, 110 English, or about 93 Irish miles. Its eatest breadth is, from the extremity of the old ad of Kinfale to Charleville, by an exact meaement, 56 English, or near 44 Irish miles. But e difference of latitude is but 46 miles English. he latitude of the north part of this county, as Latitude. was taken by feveral accurate observations, both the fun and fixed stars, is in 52 deg. 13 min. rth, and that of the old head of Kinsale is in deg. 27 min. The latitude of Cape Clear, the uthern extremity of all Ireland, taken by an exllent new reflecting quadrant on the island, in 47, is 51 deg. 12 min. At the same time, I dermined its longitude from London (1), by means Longitude

(1) The eclipses of the satellites of Jupiter, which happen nost every day, assord a very fair way for establishing the nigitude over all the earth. For, besides that these eclipses every frequent, the immersion and emersion of these sateles, especially in the shadow of Jupiter, is so momentary and sensible, that they may be observed with the greatest exaction, being exempt from those inconveniencies that accompany e eclipses of the sun and moon, which also are rare, and hose beginning and end are always doubtful, by reason of a rain ambiguous light. The longitude of places at sea, capes, remonteries and divers islands, being once exactly known by see means, would, doubtless, be a great help, and of considerble use to, navigation. Vide philos. trans. numb. 128 p. 691.

Mr. Flamstead says, "that these eclipses have been esteemed, and certainly are, a much better method for the discovery of the longitude, than any yet known, by reason that they happen frequently, and are easily observable with a telescope of 12 soot, and for need, with one of eight. He acknowledges the longitude may be obtained by observations of the moon, but the calculation is so perplexed and tedious, that it will be found much more difficult than the other of observations.

^{*} Philof. Trapf. numb. 151. p. 333.

rm!

iter

ope of t

llite

a n fh

at F

tho

fee

fea of

b

t le

the

. 1

out

efe

ma

Th

lat

En

de

deg

e o

elar

ed

rill

hd

top

nte

WA

fi

uſ

of an observation of an eclipse of the first fare of Jupiter. For the eclipses of this latellite and the best methods of determining the longitude places by land, where telescopes, of a good com nient length, may be used. The observer may readily calculate the true times of the immen and emersion of this satellite, with great exacting by following very fhort rules laid down by Pound, who has rectified the tables of M. Caffini. we find them in the philof, transact, numb. p. 1021. Having corrected my watch, by means of taking three feveral altitudes of the two in the morning and one in the afternoon; myself to observe an immersion of Jupiter's first tellite, which, by Mr. Pound's rectification of C fini's tables, happened at London on September 1747, 25 min. 17 fec. after 9 at night, and by watch I loft fight of the fame fatellite on the flat of Inishircan, where I made the observation near cape, 4 min. 15 fec. after 10, the same night, which gives the difference of time 39 minutes, and be converted into degrees and minutes of the equality gives 9 deg. 45 min! difference of longitude W from London; which is much less than the books navigation place this cape in their tables, they may ing it to deg. 30 min. W. longitude from London.

If persons skilled in these kind of observations which are extremely amusing and soon learns would be prevailed upon to make them in these veral extreme points of this island, its geograph would be, in a little time, much corrected. The royal academy of Paris; have long since ascertained the geographical site of all the principal ports of France by these methods: and the great Dr. Halley is [&]quot;ing the eclipses of Jupiter's satellites, which he prefers as is persuaded, that the eclipses of the first will scarce,

[&]quot;found above four minutes of time different from his cales" lation *."

⁽²⁾ Philof. Tranf. numb. 284. p. 237.

^{*} Philof. Tranf. numb. 154. p. 404. numb. 165. p. 750.

AP. IV. HISTORY of CORK.

rms us, that the eclipses of the first fatellite of iter are almost instantaneous, and, with good teopes, are discernable almost to the very oppositiof that planet with the fun. So that, could these ilites be observed with telescopes manageable at a ship there might be able to find the merin fhe was in, to a very great exactness, beyond at might be hoped to be done by the common thods, or by the moon, tho' (fays the doctor) feems to afford us the only means practicable feamen; and adds, that before they can make of these operations for finding the longitude, it be requifite that the coast of the whole ocean be t laid down truly, for which work this method the fatellites is most appointe. In my observati-I made use of a good (3) reflecting telescope out 18 inches long, which fufficiently ferves for ele observations, being very portable and readily maged.

This county is fituated under the fame parallel Situation. latitude as feveral of the most southern counties England. The city of Cork is in the latitude of deg. 46 min. and its longitude from London leg. 30 min. Yet most of the tables lay it down

e degree more westerly.

The county of Cork is, by much, the largest in land; nor is there any thire in England that exeds it in magnitude, except that of York. filliam Petty, in his political anatomy of Irend (4), fays, " this county feems, in respect of ople and parishes, to be one eighth part of the whole

(4) Page 15.

⁽³⁾ The reflecting telescope, which fir Isaac Newton inated about 70 years ago, lay long neglected, perhaps, by e vain attempts made by some in putting it in practice, till was undertaken by the ingenious Mr. Hadley; fince which, fome further improvements, the old dioptric telescope has a almost laid aside, and this catoptric one become chiefly use among practical astronomers; one of this last kind, of e feet in length, being able to manage celestial objects, equal a glass of 100 feet.

HAI

d c er, nen

rtic

is i dat

or v

g T

ind

lor

es

ear

ve

he on

ifc

ha

160 ou

cr

in

whole kingdom; there being other counties in land not above a twentieth part of the count Cork."

This county, upon the plantation of Muni about the end of queen Elizabeth's reign, was p posed to be divided into two parts (5). King James in a letter to fir Arthur Chichefter, dated Jan, 1613, propoles " that Cork should be divided in two counties." But the project was, at that time opposed by the first earl of Cork. It was against newed in the late queen Ann's time ; but the in rest of the earl of Burlington, who was likewife jo ed by the lord chancellor Brodrick on this occasion put a stop to the design.

There are in this county four large walled town viz. Cork, Youghal, Kinfale, and Bandon; fides eight others that fend members to parliame viz. Cloghnakilty, Baltimore, Mallow, Charlevi Castlemartyr, Middletown, Donneraile, and Rat cormuck; and feveral other market towns, as la kean, Skibbereen, Caftlelyons, Macroomp, Bantr Killworth, Kanturk, Newmarket, &c. Its extern along the fea-coast being very large, contains to excellent harbours, besides a great number creeks, which I shall describe in a particular chapter This fituation, gives the inhabitants of the fea-con a great advantage by fishing, which affords employ ment to a good number of hands, and enables the to hold the coarse ground near the sea at great rates especially in the W. of the county.

It is a general faying, that there is more good land and more bad, in this county, than in any other it Ireland. Of the latter, there are very great tracks not only hilly, but, in fome places, mountainous and barren; which, nevertheless, are abundantly sup plied with provisions by the neighbourhood of the feat and the industry of the inhabitants; for this country abounds in fish and flesh; fowl, wild and tame; com

Quality.

Towns.

and cattle; butter, wool, hides, tallow, frieze, leaer, woollen and linen yarn: And, of late, the nen manufacture begins to flourish in some places, articularly at Dunmanway, Inishonane, &c. where is in a very thriving way. It has been also plantlat Anagh, Timoleague, and other places; where, or want of proper management, it again lost foot-

Thus, this county is plentifully stored with all inds of game, for hawking, fishing and fowling: for is it defective in honey or fruit, great quantities of excellent cider being made in it of late ears. The firing is, generally, turf, cut in bogs, we or fix foot deep; but the sea-port towns, for he most part, use coal from England, although onsiderable quantities of this substance have been iscovered in many parts of the country.

This county is extremely well watered, not ony with some very considerable rivers, of which I hall give an account in a distinct chapter, but so with innumerable rivulets, brooks, springs and ountains. The whole county contains 1030581 cres.

It is divided into the following baronies, the Civil diviquality and value of each is estimated, by suppoing a sum of 3306 l. 6 s. 8½ d. was to be levied in the whole county; then the proportion of each district, would be as follows.

Baronies.	Proportional ta
	1.	s.	d.
Imokilly,	321	14	6
Youghal, liberties	74	10	4
Kilnatalloon,	68	. 0	0
Barrymore,	259	12	6
Muskery,	332	3	.11t
Barrets,	80	18	1

Vol. I.

H

Cork,

Beronies.	Proportional tax
	1. A	4.
Cork, city and liberties,	358 0	9
Kinalea,	158 12	4
Kerricurrihy,	86 4	4
Kinsale, tiberties,	117 1	6
Courcies,	46 14	6
Kinalmeaky,	95 16	4
The cantred of Kubritton	, 89 6	6
Ibawne and Barriroe.	110 13	6
West Carbery,	174 11	4
East Carbery,	215 0	6
Bear and Bantry,	85 B	4
Duhallow,	138 4	6
Orrery and Kilmore,	142 13	6
Mallow, liberties,	25 19	8
Fermoy,	205 8	6
Condons and Glangibbon,	125 0	0

THE

IL.

HE

ANCIENT and PRESENT

TATE

OF THE

COUNTY and CITY

OF

O R K

BOOK II.

ntaining the Topographical Description of this County, including the City of CORK.

CHAP. I.

Topographical Description of the Towns, Villages, Churches, Seats, &c. in the Baronies of Imokilly and Kilnatalloon, with the Town of Youghal.

describing this county, I shall begin with the castern extremity, the barony of Imokilly (1);

H 2 a plea-

the contains as parishes, viz. Killeigh, Clonprieft, Killedonough, Ardagh, part of Dungourny, Dungandonovan, mivee, Boghlane, Kilcredan, Ichtermurragh, Ballyoute-th, Mogeely, Ballynacorra, Inchenebaky, Inchy, Cork-Aghada, Garrane, Cloyne, Ballintemple, Kilmaghin, thin, Roftillian, and Chore-abbey. In it are 200 plow-h, and 49,479 Irish plantation acres.

a pleasant, fertile tract, neither encumbered with mountains, nor entirely a level; but, for the greet est part, consisting of two fair valleys; one, extend ing from Cork harbour to the fea; the other, me ning parallel to it, being a pleasant vale, extending from Middletown to Youghal. These valleys a divided by rifing grounds, no less fruitful than the plains below them; affording, in many places, & veral pleasing landscapes of the seats, improve ments, and plantations, in the lower grounds; an feveral vistas between the hills, terminated by the ocean, the harbours of Cork and Youghal, and h high mountains of Tipperary and Waterford. The valleys abound with lime-stone, useful to the his bandman for manure, and to the architect for building; not only making excellent lime, but is, in feveral places, of so close a texture, a stained with such an agreeable mixture of colour as grey, dove-colour, white, chocolate, &c. the when properly manufactured, few marbles more beautiful. This barony is terminated on the W. by Cork harbour, on the S. by the fea, havi its whole length embellished with creeks, by and fine strands; the eastern side is washed the Black-water and Youghal bay; and a range hills divide it, on the north, from the baronice Kilnatalloon and Barrymore. Thus, having a po per foil for tillage, and fuch an easy convenient of manures and water-carriage, it is properly granary of the city of Cork; for, befides supply ing its inhabitants with corn, it furnishes them w fish and flesh, and, in particular, with as fine fath veals as any in this kingdom.

I have already taken notice of its being anciedly inhabited by a people, called, by Ptolemy, Vodii; which fignifies persons inhabiting a wood territory; and is also the literal meaning of Irish word Imokilly. The town of Youghal, it merly Ochill, had also the same derivation. For when?

HAP. I. HISTORY of CORK.

OK I

with great

ctend

runndin

ys at

n the s, fe

and

y the Ta

huf for

and court that are the law in the

hence, one may more than conjecture, that this act, even down to the very sea, was anciently a rest.

Whoever the first persons were that visited this past, either the Phoenicians or ancient Britons; they em to have named it from the appearance it made sthey sailed by it; which was not very unlike the icture drawn by Virgil, in the 7th Æn. if we hay resemble the Tiber to our Black-water river:

Atque hic Æneas ingentem ex æquore lucum Prospicit: hunc inter fluvio Tiberinus amæno, Vorticibus rapidis, & multa flavus arena In mare prorumpit: variæ circumque supraque Assuez ripis volucres, & fluminis alveo, Æthera mulcebant cantu, lucoque volabant. Flectere iter sociis, terræque advertere proras Imperat; & lætus fluvio succedit opaco.

The Trojan, from the main beheld a wood, Which thick with shades, and a brown horror, stood:

Betwixt the trees, the Tiber took his course, With whirlpools dimpled, and with downward force

That drove the fand along, he took his way,
And roll'd his yellow billows to the fea.
About him, and above, and round the wood,
The birds that haunt the borders of his flood;
That bath'd within or bask'd upon his side,
To tuneful songs their narrow throats apply'd.
The captain gives command, the joyful train Glide through the gloomy shade, and leave the main.

DRYDEN.

The large extended strand of Youghal, as far as Youghal the lowest ebbs uncover it, and probably much far-strand. ther, is no other than a common turf bog, covered over with sand and pebbles; from whence not only good turf is dug every season, but also great quantities quantities of timber trees, as fir, hazel, &cc. are for (2). Some years ago, a skeleton, of a monstrous mi mal, was discovered in this strand , I saw one of the shoulder-bones in Youghal, it is 94 feet long, an weighs above 100 weight. The remainder of the skeleton, and (as I am informed) another of the fame kind, lie ftill buried in the ftrand; but I could hear of no body that knew the very spot they were When they were first discovered, it happened to be a very low ebb, but the fea for flowing over the place, covered it up with fand and gravel, to that it could not be again readily found These bones lay in a turfy foil, not far from the for face: They, undoubtedly, belonged to fome fin of the cetaceous kind; which feems the more probable from their being thick, fhort, and ponderous and not to an elephant or land animal, as was conjectured by those who discovered them. About 18 years ago, this ftrand was intirely divefted of its fand and gravel , and, being left quite bare by violent high winds, great quantities of roots of warious trees then lay exposed to view. The sea has greatly eneroached on this part of the coast, and is likely to gain more ground, as the land within the strand lies low and flat. At the entrance of the harbour of Youghal, may be feen the remains of the foundation of a mill standing on a rock, which thews that the ocean has greatly exceeded its limits on this shore. A considerable tract of ground was lately banked in, by a vast buttres, built of very large stones, at the charge of the earl of Burlington, whose estate it is; but the fea being very tempeftuous hereabouts, especially with S. W. winds in winter time, no mound that art can form, feems to be capable of refilting its fury.

⁽²⁾ Mr. Charles Merret, in the philof. trunf. N. 223-9-34fays, that in Eincolnshire, they dig great roots of trees out of the fands at low water, near a mile from the shore, which he takes to belong to fir; the bark smelling aromatic like that wood.

ond senior

the

Were

d, it

foon

and

for

pro-

IUS;

on-

out

710-

Va-

ms

is

the

the

ch

its of

S, he fea

lly

at ts

y.

3.

he,

es

ry. Near Ring-point, several large home were g up in this firand (which belonged to the sofe deer) by Mr. Hayman, near Youghal. This and, to the land, is terminated by a large extending, which was continued, before it was encounted upon by the ocean, a great way beyond a lowest ebb.

Clay-Cuffle, on this franch, is a very bold, fud-Clayn, rifing ground, or rather a fmall promontory, Cattle. mposed of a loose sandy clay, which has also en encroached upon by the fea, very confiderably, thin thefe few years. This hill stands about a He S. W. from the town of Youghal, and affords very entertaining scene to the curious naturalist: or the pieces of the bank, which break off and are ashed down by the sea, are, by degrees, petrified inavery hard firm grit, as folid as any stone. This it, which is a species of freestone, is composed a mixture of fine fand, and a yellow loam or ay, tempered by the sea water, which beats sainst the hill. I have taken up several pieces, ilf clay, half stone, and the fand adhering there-The hill feems perfectly dry, nor is there any ring in which this petrifying quality can relide; at whatever it be, it fooms to exist intirely in e clay (3). Wood.

(3) The fame kind of petrification has been observed at arwich, in England, where the washing of the cliffs discours a builth clay, which tumbling down, in a short time ms into stone: There some pieces may be seen that are we sallen, as soft as the clay in the cliff; others, hat have in longer, crasted over and hard, but if opened and broke, e clay still soft in the middle; others, that have lain there ager petrified to the heigt, and with those the wal s of the war were, for the most part, built, and the streets ge erally wed. Taylor's hist. and antiq. of Harwich, enlarged by ale, p. 101, 102.

Allen, in his nat. hift. of chaly beat and purging waters, p. of refers the production of those stones to a vitriolic juice conjunction with the least, because the common coppers ones are prentifully found on Harwiolr coast. Where the iff was gravelly, these stones lay very thick, as well as where was loamy.

Wood, and several other things davided with this clay, are also petrified on the formingenious gentleman sent me an account, the had a formed stone, resembling a petrified room, which was found on this strand. At a treme point of Ring, which terminates this to the S. W. is a most extensive point of from which may be seen a great part of to bay, and the coast as far as to Ardmore he the county of Waterford; as also Ballycone and island. The rocks which terminate the rony towards the sea, are partly simestone others are of a slaty kind, some of which very good slates.

Youghal.

Youghal is the most considerable town in barony, it is called, by foreigners, Jokile and Yolain, in Latin, Ochella. The liberties of this contained 6120 Irish plantation acres.

Taylor adds, p. 104. "That the water which diff "under this cliff, perrifies wood as well as clay; as "a large piece, fent from thence, is referved in the my of the royal fociety."

Upon the river Done, near Aberdeen, in Scotland, George Gordon informs us, that a listle below the bridge the river's mouth, there is a bank, the face of which is down, and it is full of stones, which one would this in seri, they are all rather round than oval, of different the faces of most of them are broken off, they are will easily rub down with the hand, they are of different and colours, and are made up of different sands and mingled together. The clay is soft, both to the hand as in some pieces white, and in others grey, though, in places, the sand and chy are hardened to the confidence colour of such oval stones as we usually see in the fell where they are at the softest, the bed that each stone is always hard, and of another grit and colour. Transact. N. 175, page 157.

Transact. N. 175. page 157.

The above petrification of Clay-Caftle, in many reagrees with that of Harwich cliff, except that there at ther copperas stones found on the strand, nor are the springs issuing out of the cliff, so that the cause of the trifications seems as yet to be quite in the dark.

Inow taxed in common with the barony of Imoly, It was incorporated (4) by king Edward Charters. It is I'ver, in the second year of his reign, by the terest of Thomas, the great earl of Desmond, no, the following year 1463, was made lord deputy Ireland. This family had, formerly, a great intest in this town, for they not only erected the llegiate church and college house, but also unded two religious houses adjoining to it. King Richard

(4) This town was then incorporated, and governed by a ovost and burgestes, who had a grant of the custom, called equet, for the reparation of their walls, &c. An account which custom was to be yearly rendered to the two burffes, and not to the king's exchequer. The provoft or frain (as he is also called in this charter) was to have cogsance of all pleas, fresh force, debts, &c. to any fum, powto punish regrators and fore-stallers, by fine and imprisonent, and all fines were to go to the corporation. No stranger as to expose goods to sale, without licence of the chief agistrate, on pain of forfeiting his goods. Assize of bread, gulation of weights and measures, and all other matters benging to the clerk of the market, to be in the chief magiate, who is also escheator, and admiral. He may hold pleas lands and cognizance of all affize; no sheriff or any other inister of the king to have any jurisdiction in the said town, cept the lord chief juffice, chancellor, or treasurer be elent. If the fuffrain, burgeffes and commonalty, be imended, the trial shall be by a jury of the townsmen. The orgesses are not to be distrained for not attending assize or fions in the county, unless when the king's lieutenant is refent, or a special mandate under the privy seal requiring The town was to be one of the petty limbs of the cinque ons of Ireland, and to enjoy all the liberties of any one of le king's cinque ports of Ireland. From the exemplification. In a parliament held at Wexford, on the friday before the alt of St. Martin, before Thomas earl of Defmond, lord deuty of Ireland, anno 3 Edward IV. 1463, an act passed to ra-fy and confirm all letters patents, grants, franchises and prileges, confirmations, &c. to the fuffrain, bailiff, portrieve, nd commons, or to the mayor, bailiff, portrieve and comnons, of this town of Youghal, by the king that now is, or my of his progenitors. Rot. Canc. N. 21.

do

y a ne ant

m ods ent

lle

th

n Int

s t

di

or al

11

c

t

Richard III.(5) in the fecond year of his reign, gunted feveral privileges to this corporation, as did to king Henry VII. (6) queen Elizabeth (7), and

(5) King Richard's charter grants a power to the major, bailiffs, burgeffes and commonalty, to elect their mayor yearly, on the friday next before the feast of St. Mathew, a also two burgeffes. To have power of all pleas, and attent of messuages, lands, rents, services, &c. to hold a count that purpose, on every friday, any one (being mayor or bailiff,) to act in the absence of the other; all fines, &c. to the use of the corporation: And if the mayor, bayliss, &c. be concerned, such trial to be removed to the king's count of common-pleas.

Freemen are exempted from all toll, murage, pontage, at tage, puage, keyage, ironage, ferryage, carriage, passage and anchorage, and all fuits, customs and usages in Iroland and England. The corporation to have custom and cocquet all things customable from Ardmore-head and Cable-illand, up to the island of Tooreen, to go to the repair of their walls an account of which was to be made before two burges, and not to the king's exchequer.

(6) Henry VII. by his charter, dated at Lewis, August 1, 12 regn. 1497. grants them a power to chuse their mys and bailiffs as aforesaid, on the tuesday next before the seast of saint Matthew. The corporation to implead and is impleaded, by the name of mayor, bailiffs, and commonly of the town of Youghal. To have cognizance of all plei, actions, &c. their courts to be held every friday. As all a court of pye-powder, &c. The customs, called cocque, were likewise confirmed by this charter, and all other matter related in the former charters.

(7) Queen Elizabeth's charter bears date at Westminster, July, anno regn. 1^{me}. 1559, and confirms all their former privileges, with a power to purchase lands to the value of siper annum. The same queen, by letters patent, dated at Dalin, July 18, ann. regn. 27, 1585, confirms the above charts, and grants to the corporation the office of gauger, provide it does not diminish her revenue. A mease of herrings to be paid the mayor, in the like manner as Waterford and Dugarvan receive the same, to be applied to the maintenanced the key and walls. The passage, or ferry-boat, is, by the charter, granted to the corporation, at the rent of 6s. Mease annum.

AP. I. HISTORY of CORK.

ng James (8), for the reparation of their walls (9)

The

(8) King James, by his charter, dated at Westminster, h. 20, an regn. 6, 1608, confirms all their privileges, suby and poundage excepted; and incorporates them by the
me of the mayor, bailiffs, and commonalty of Youghal, ants to the mayor the office of admiral, and its perquistes, and Ardmore-head, and Cable-island, up to Toorsen; as also custom of murage, cranage, keyage and anchorage of all ods imported and exported. The mayor, bailiffs, &c. to be empted from all juries held out of the town, except the suit neers the king. All causes to be tried by the townsmen.
I lands, &c. anciently belonging to the corporation confirm-

Two weekly markets, viz. on wednesday and faturday, th two annual fairs on St. Luke and Afcention-day, granted the corporation, with courts of pye-powder, &c. Power have a staple and a mayor, and constables of the same, as city of Dublin has. The mayor may appoint an aldern for his deputy. All waits, strays, goods of felons, &c. inted to the corporation. The mayor, recorder, and baito be justices of the peace, and to hold fessions of gaol ivery, &c. for the town. No freeman to be impleaded of the town. The mayor to be coroner, fay-mafter, and dary. All perquifites arising therefrom to be for the wie of corporation. The mayor and recorder to be justices of the rum. The mayor may appoint clerks of the market, a clerk affize, and a clerk of the affay, and no other person to inmeddle. He can appoint a fword bearer, and may have a ord carried before him. All ships to load and unload at key, and no where elfe, unless by the mayor's licence. court of record to be held every friday, by the mayor, order and bailiffs, or their deputy, as also every tuesday, take cognizance of all actions, real and personal. The corration has power to distinguish themselves into several guilds i fraternities, (of which there are several in this town) The king James also incorporated this place, by a new charter, ril 18,1688, which appoints Thomas Ronayne, eff; mayor, illiam Fitz-Gerald and Thomas Vaughan, jun. bailiffs, with aldermen, as burgeffes, a recorder and town-clerk. But scharter is of no force.

(9) In the year 1631, captain John Finsham, and captain mistopher Burghe, presented a petition to king Charles I. several abuses and neglects committed by the townsmen of ughal, concerning the repair of their walls and fortificati-

in. fria

ant cal

lut

wa

the fol

G

Th

(e

th

m

ir

W

n

0

C

1

Abbeys.

The religious houses founded in this town were two; one at the north, and the other at the south

ons; praying his majesty would be pleased to grant them the management of the said repairs, and collection of the petty customs; and refer the same to what committee he thought fit, with power to enquire what sums were received, and how expended; and that the petitioners might receive the remainder of the said customs, towards repairing the walls, and making a platform.

The petition represented, that these customs amounted to about 100 l. per ann. which the corporation received fince the wars; but that they had not expended so l. upon the walls in that time, which were become weak and ruinous That there was no place to mount ordnance to defend the harbour, which had encouraged men of war and pirate, feveral times, to enter the bay, and furprise and carry of ships riding in the same. The town and fortifications being so weak, that two ships might, with ease, batter down the walls, and furprise the town. That one enfign Steward obtained a grant for rectifying these abuses, and for building a fort to defend the town and harbour; upon which, letten were directed to the earl of Cork, and to the lord president, directing them to examine the defects, and to certify their knowledge of them. But the faid Steward fo demeaned himfelf in his demands (not pertinent to his grant) and so op-posed the said committees, that the said earl treated with the mayor and brethren, who undertook to build a platform at the key, for the defence of the town and harbour. But they did not perform their agreement, which was made five years fince: Neither is there one piece of ordnance mounted in the town, which is subject to great danger.

This petition was referred to the lords committee for Irish affairs, figned at Whitehall, April 3, 1631. Dorchester.

Upon which, an order of privy-feal was directed to the lords justices of Ireland, that they might enquire into the matter; and if they found the allegations of the petition to be true, that letters patent might be granted to the faid capt. Fin-sham, and Christopher Burghe, to receive the remainder of the said customs, and collect them for the suture, for the building of a new platform, and the repair of the walls. Dated at Westminster, 17 April, an. regn. 7°. By his majesty's command.

Dorchester. MS. at Lismore.

King Edward III. by letters patent, dated November 5, saregn. 44, confirmed a conveyance of the manors of Youghal and Inchiquin, and other lands in the counties of Cork, Water-

HISTORY of CORK. CHAP. I.

nd of the town. That on the N. was founded. n. 1628, by Thomas Fitz-Maurice Fitz-Gerald, for riars-preachers, who, according to friar Clin (in his annals) feated themselves here, on the 5th of the This house, upon the dissocal of August, 1271. lution, was granted, first, to William Welsh, afterwards to John Thickpenny, for a term of years; and then to fir Walter Raleigh (10) in fee farm, who fold it to the earl of Cork.

OK IL

fouth

end

m the petty oughe

and

e re-

and

d to fince

the

ous

the tes,

off.

ing the

eT)

ut, eir

n-ne ne

The fourth abbey was founded by Maurice Fitz-Gerald, in the year 1231; or, according to Hollinhead, in 1229; and was, in 1460, reformed to obfervant friars, being before that time conventuals of The occasion of its establishthe franciscan order. This Maurice was buildment is said to be thus. ing a castle in the town, and while they were at work about the foundation, the workmen, on the eve of some festival, came and begged a piece of money from him, to drink his health. ordered his eldest son to give it; but he, instead of obeying his father's direction, abused the workmen; which his father was fo concerned at, that, instead of carrying on the castle, he erected a house of grey friars, took upon himself the habit, and died here in ford and Limerick, to James II, commonly called the noble earl of Ormond, in confideration of his good fervices. Yet the conveyance was not good, because that Robert de Typort, then owner thereof, in virtue of whose feoffment the conveyance was made, had forfeited them by the act about absentees.

Carte's life of Ormond, p. 34. Ann. 5 Carol I. letters patent passed the great seal, for an exemption of this port from all duties.

(10) By patent, dated Dublin, 3d Feb. ann. Eliz 29th, with three feigniories and a half of land, forfeited by the earl of Defmond. This priory was granted at the rent of 12 l. 19 s. od. sterl. payable at easter and michaelmas, with a proviso, that the act passed at Limerick, anno 33 Fienry VIII. for lands given by the king, shall not be prejudicial to this patent,

Signed A. St. Leger. MS. at Lismore.

la n

 Θ

in the Both year of his age, ann. 1256 (11). The house, according to Ware, was the first franciscs friary in Ireland. Wadding fays, that feveral in ligious men were interred here (12).

The Church.

The church was rebuilt and beautified, by Thomas earl of Defmond, foon after the erection of the college. It is a large gothic structure; the nave being about 45 yards long, and 22 broad, adorned on each side, with six gothic arches. The chancel has been, for some years, uncovered; the east window of which was very sine, being in the ancient gothic taste. On the N. side of the church, stands a square tower, about 50 feet high. On the N. side of the chancel window, is a very old tomb, without date; there are two ruined chapels on each side of this chancel, and another W. of the church.

(11) Some place the death of this Maurice, a year before, and others later. He is said to be a very valiant knight, a pleasant man, and inferior to none in the kingdom, having lived all his life with commendation; but was suspected to have an hand in the death of the earl marshal Richard, with Robert de Burgo, and others.

Cambden's Ann.

(12) This fouth abbey was granted, by letters patent, to George Isham, dated June 16, ann. 39 of Eliz. with 10 acres of ground, together with St. Ann's chapel, and one acre seat the same, with the town and villages of Rathnolan.

I find another grant of this house, by letters patent, dated at Dublin. 13 Sept. primo Jacob. I. to fir James Fullerton, knt muster-master general, clerk of the cheque, and one of the privy-council, together with the chapel of St. Anne, and a park, called John Mahowny's park, at 12 l. sterl. He fold his title in this house, and the abbey of Molana, to fir Richard Boyle, knt. for the sum of 2101. 68. 8 d. Irish.

Anne 1630, this town contributed, quarterly, towards the maintenance of the army, the fum of 271 sterl. of which the earl of Cork's tenants paid only 31, 13 s. his being privileged lanes. The N. and S. abbeys, as well as the codlege lands being exempted from taxes, or quartering foldiers.

HAP. I. HISTORY of CORK.

K II

Thi

10

to

the

ave

ted.

rice

in.

ent

ada

N.

10,

00

of

On I

10,

a ng

4

On an ancient monument, in the N. chapel, is

D. Q. M. Domino Petro Miagh.

Civi Consuli Prætori Yocholensi Justitiæ cultori pietatis, amatori publicæ utilitatis zelatori. Marito suo unice dilecto uxor Philisia Nagle sesta posuit sumptibus viri, Petra tegit Petri cineres, nimam Retra Christi, sic tibi divisit utraque Petra Petrum.

ixit An. XLIII. vita functus VIII. Cal. August.

The fouth wing was, formerly, called the chauny of our Bleffed Savjour. It was purchased from e mayor and corporation of Youghal, by the earl Cork, March 29, 1606. By which deed, he was ot to molest the ancient burials in this place. He paired the chapel, and, in his life-time, erected an andsome monument for his family, according to te tafte of those times, in marble and alabafter. In this monument, are the effigies of this noblean, lying at full length, on his left fide, in armour, is head supported by his left hand, and below are gures of nine of his children, with the dates of their irths on the pedestals; thus, I Roger Boyle, natus August, 1606. 2. Richard Boyle, natus 20 Octoer, 1612. 3. Galfridius Boyle, natus 10 April, 1616. He was drowned in the college well in this town.] Lewis Boyle, natus 23 Martii, 1619. 5. Alicia oyle, nata 20 Martii, 1607. 6. Sarah Boyle, ata 29 Martii, 1609. 7. Letitia Boyle, nata 29 pril, 1610. 8. Joana Boyle, nata 14 Junii, 1611. Catherina Boyle, nata 22 Martii, 1614.

Over the effigies of the earl is this inscription,

"Richardus Boyle miles, dominus Boyle baro de oughal, vicecomes Dungarvan, comes Corcagientis, ominus fummus hujus regni Hiberniæ thefaurarius de privato confilio domini regis tam Angliæ quam Hiberniæ,

th

th

of

de

lo

B

m

th

k

F

0

66

66

66

44

61

61

6

(3)

Hiberniæ, ex antiquissimà Boylorum familià Herefordiensi oriundus, qui patrem habuit Rogerum
Boyle armigerum, matrem itidem generosam Joanam Nayleram e solo cantiano profectam, cum duas sibi invicem junxisset uxores, primam Joanam filiam à cohæredem Gulielmi Appesly armigeri, nulla super stite prole; alteram preclare fecundam Catherinam
natam domini Galfridi Fentoni equitis, regiæ majestati hoc regno a secretis, postquam varios pro republica cepisset labores, nec immeritos honores, conscendisset, ipse jam septuaginta septem annos natus, ac mortem indies imminentem expectans sibi à posteris suis, hoc posuit monumentum sacrum memoria.

Ipse de se, Sic posui tumultum, superest intendere votis, Parce animæ, carnem solvito, Christe veni."

Beneath this inscription are these following.

"Hic jacet corpus reverendi patris Johannis Boyle, sacræ theologiæ doctoris, episcopi Corcagiensis, Clonensis & Rossensis, ac fratris majoris natu Richardi comitis Corcagiæ, &c. qui obiit decimo die Julii, anno Dom. 1620. ætatis suæ 57.

Hic etiam jacent sepultæ Elizabetha & Maria Boyle, hæc Richardi Smith militis, illa Piercii Power armigeri uxor, ambæ sorores predicti Richardi domini Boyle Corcagiæ comitis.

Hic jacet prænobilis David dominus Barry, procomes Buttevant, primus comes Barrymore, commissione regia pro gubernatione Momoniæ, primo designat heros, principi & coronæ Anglicanæ sidelissimus, de republica durante Hibernicorum rebellione optime mærens, veræque christianæ religionis cultor præcipuus, qui obiit 29 die Septembris 1642 annoque ætatis suæ 38."

Around the above marbles, are feveral escutcheons of his children; near which, are the following inscriptions.

Towards the top,

Richard

HAP. I. HISTORY OF CORK.

"Richard earl of Cork married two wives, the int foan, one of the two daughters and coheireffes of William Apfly, efg. who died in travel of her first on, which did not survive her. The second wife was Katherine, the only daughter of fir Geoffry Fenton, knt. secretary of state in Ireland, by whom he had iffue seven sons and eight daughters."

"The lady Margaret Boyle, eighth daughter of the earl of Cork, died, and lieth here intombed."

On the right fide, issuing from the above inscription, in the manner of a genealogical table, are the following.

I

bi

&

1-

m

1-

6-

1-

"Sir Richard Boyle, knt. son and heir apparent of Richard earl of Cork, married Elizabeth, eldest of the two daughters and coheiresses of Henry lord Clifford, earl of Cumberland, and hath issue,

"Sir Lewis Boyle, knt. lord Boyle, baron of Bandon-bridge, and lord viscount Boyle, of Kinal-meaky, second son of Richard earl of Cork, married the lady Elizabeth, daughter of sir William Fielding, knt. lord baron of Newenham Padox, viscount Fielding and earl of Denbigh. Slain in the battle of Liscarrol, Sept. 3, 1642 (13)."

Vol. I. "Sir

(13) In a letter to M. Marcombes, his fons tutor, directed to Geneva, and dated 18 Jan. 1630, the earl of Cork fays, "On "St. Stephen's day, my fon Kinalmenky was married, in the king's chapel in court, to the lady Elizabeth Fielding, daughter to the counters of Denbigh. The king gave her in marriage unto him, and the queen presented her with a "jewel, valued at 1500! which the king, with his own hands, "put about her neck, and did the young couple all honour and grace, both with revelling, feathing, and bringing to their bed in court."

In the fame letter he says, "My daughter Dungarvan was speedily delivered of a boy; and on the rach of December, it pleased the king's majesty to christen the child, by the name of Charles, being affisted by the marquis Hamilton and the counters of Salisbury. Your friend Brogall is in a fair way of being married to Mrs. Hardon, one of the queen's maids of honour; about whom; yesterday, a difference happened, between Mrs. Thomas Steward, the earl

B

"Sir Roger Boyle, knt. lord Boyle, baron of Broghill, third fon (14) of Richard earl of Cork, married the lady Margaret, daughter of Theophilus, lord Howard of Walden, earl of Suffolk."

"Francis Boyle, esq; fourth son of Richard end of Cork, married Elizabeth, daughter of sir Robert Killigrew, knt. late vice-chamberlain to Many queen of England."

"Robert Boyle, lefq; fifth fon of Richard ear

of Cork."

"Roger Boyle, eldest fon of Richard earl of Cork, being a scholar at Deptford, in Kent, died there the 10th of October, 1615, and there lies intombed."

"Geoffry Boyle, third fon of Richard earl of Cork, died young, on the 20th of Jan. 1616, and lieth here intombed."

To each of these inscriptions are escutcheous (those who were married) impaled with the arms of their ladies, with proper differences for the several sons; and on the left hand, are the underneath inscriptions, with the several coats of arms of his daughters, impaled with the bearings of their husbands.

"David, lord Barry, lord viscount Buttevant, first earl of Barrymore, married the lady Alice Boyle, first daughter of Richard earl of Cork."

"Robert, lord Digby, baron of Geashil, married the lady Sarah Boyle, second daughter of Richard earl of Cork, being then the widow of fir Tho-

[&]quot; of Berkshire's fon and him, which drew them into the field; but thanks be to God, Broghill came home without any hurt, and the other gentleman not much harmed; and now

[&]quot;they have clashed their swords together, they are grown good friends. I think, in my next, I shall advise you, that my daughter Mary is nobly married, and that, at the spring

[&]quot;I shall send her husband to keep company with my fourth Geneva."

⁽¹⁴⁾ Third fon then living, when the monument was reflect. Geoffry, the third fon, being dead, was left out of the numbers and yet, under his effigy, he is called the third fon, as he really was.

CHAP. I. HISTORY of CORK.

mas Moore, knt. fon and heir to Garret lord

Moore, lord viscount of Drogheda."

"Colonel George Goring, fon and heir to fir George Goring, knt. lord baron Goring of Hurst-Pierpoint, married the lady Lettice Boyle, third daughter of Richard earl of Cork."

"George Fitz-Gerald, earl of Kildare, married the lady Joan Boyle, fourth daughter of Richard carl of Cork."

OR II

on of Cork.

heo-

k."

earl

Ro-

Mary

earl

ork.

the

of

ind

eir

"Arthur Jones, esq; son and heir of sir Roger Jones, knt. lord viscount Ranelagh, married the lady Katherine Boyle, the fifth daughter of Richard earl of Cork."

"Sir Arthur Loftus, knt. fon and heir of fir Adam Loftus, knt. vice-treasurer, and treasurer at wars in Ireland, married the lady Dorothy Boyle, the fixth daughter of Richard earl of Cork."

"Charles Rich, esq; second son of Robert lord Rich, of Leeze, earl of Warwick, married the lady Mary Boyle, the seventh daughter of Richard earl of Cork."

On the top of the monument are these lines.

Quam patre, quam prole, & gemino quam conjuge faultam Fecifti, o faultam fac faciendo tuam."

Under which is the effigy of the earl of Cork's mother, Joan Naylor, lying on her left fide, her arm leaning on a bible. She is habited in the dress of the times; on her head is a large straw-hat, and she has on a queen Elizabeth's rust and fardingale, all of alabaster painted over: And on each side of the earl are the effigies of his two wives, the one at his head, the other at his feet, in a praying posture, also in alabaster, placed in two niches, supported by pillars of a reddish marble.

On the fouth wall, is a cartouch of white Italian marble, to the memory of the first earl of Orrery, with this inscription.

Memoriæ facrum Rogeri Boyle, primo comitis De Orrery, et Baronis De Broghill; Qui dum vixit multis pariter et summis Honoribus et officiis fungebatur; Mortuus vero fummo cum viventium luctu Obiit decimo fexto Die Octobris anno Domini 1670.

Annoque tetatis fule 59. De quo non hic plura requirat lector, Quoniam omnia de ingenio et moribus, vel ex fama. Vel ex operibus, dignoscere posit.

In the fame chapel, there is an ancient tomb, on which are the effigies of a man and woman lying at full length. At the feet, is this infeription.

" Here lieth the bodies of Richard Bennet, and Ellis Barry, his wife, the first foundress of this chapel, which being demolished in the time of rebellion, and their torab defaced, was re-edified, by Richard, lord Boyle, baron of Youghal, who, for reviving the memory of them, repaired this torob, and had their effigies, cut in ftone, placed thereon, anno domini 1619."

On a stone in the same chapel, part of the inscription being covered by a wall, are these lines.

(15) -Lord president of Munster, an. dom. 16-

Munfter may curse the time that Villers came, To make us worfe, by leaving fuch a name:

(15) Sir Edward Villers, knt. was lord prefident of Mun-Rer, anno 1624. He died September 7, 1626.

CHAP. I. HISTORY of CORK.

Of noble parts, as none can imitate, But those whose hearts are married to the state. But, if they press to imitate his fame, Munster may bless the time that Villers came.

On a flag stone, near the rail of the communion

table, is this infeription.

"Here lieth the body of John Fitz-Gerald, of the Decies, who departed this life, the first of March, anno dom. 1664. Also here lieth, the body of Katherine, his wife, daughter of the lord John Power, baron of Curraghmore, who departed this life the 22d of August, anno dom. 1660. Who were removed by the earl Grandison, their grandson, to his vault in the chancel, anno 1736. And here also are interred, his two daughters, the adies Anne and Katherine Villers. Also his son, he right honourable William, lord Villers, who ied the 16th of December, 1739."

On a pillar, near the W. door, is this inscription. "Near this pillar, lieth interred the body of John Perry, esq, who departed this life October 29, anno dorn. 1712, in the 51st year of his age. He was a native of this town, and, by an early application to business, acquired a very considerable fortune in the island of Antigua, and other foreign plantations. By his last will, among several other charitable legacies, he bequeathed to the poor of Youghal, 3001, sterl, the interest thereof, or the produce by purchase, is to be yearly distributed, May 29, at the church door of the said parish, as the lord bishop of Cloyne shall then nominate and appoint. Be merciful after thy power, &c."

I cannot quit this church without taking notice, that it is as well filled on the fabbath day, as any parish church in Ireland. There are also in this town, one presbyterian and one quakers meeting-house. Not far from the church, is the college, which was repaired and beautified, for a dwelling house, by the first earl of Cork; but most of it, at present, is in Charities, ruinous condition. Near it, stand an alms house and free-school, founded by the same nobleman. The first, for fix poor widows, who have each of them lodging, firing, and 5 l. per annum. The schoolmafter has 30 l. a year falary. The earl of Cork procured letters patent, and licence of mortmain. for these endowments, as well as for his alms-house. and schools at Lismore and Bandon, which bear date 19 of Feb. 1613. Near this, is another alms-house, built by Mr. Maurice Ronayne, of Dlaughtane, in the county of Waterford, for the support of fix poor widows, who have a small flipend allowed Mr. Thomas Coker bequeathed 41. a year, to be distributed every St. Thomas's day; and Mr. John Spence also left 201, to be yearly distributed to the poor of this parish for ever, anno 16ço.

Situation.

This town, from fouth to north, is about an English mile long, confisting, mostly, of one street, intermixed with new and old houses; this street, towards the fouth end, is croffed by an high fquare tower, called the clock-gate, from one being underneath, and a clock placed thereon; fo that it is divided into upper and lower. upper, which is the greater part, extends north, and the base town (as Cambden calls it) to the south. The whole is fituated on the fide of a hill, on an arm of the fea, with a tolerable good harbour before The walls, on the west side, extend the entire length of the town, ranged along the hill; they are flanked with some old towers, which, with the wall, were weak and ruinous, till lately repaired; as were also the gates. On the side of the hill, beneath the town wall, are a range of pleasant gardens, that confiderably add to the beauty of the prospect, which the town makes from the opposite side of the river. Most of these gardens are well stored with various kinds of fruit, which, lying

K II.

ina

and

The

hem

001-ork

un,

ufe,

ate

ſe,

in

ed

4 lying open to a good exposure, ripen early, so that these lines of Mr. Thomson may be here justly applied,

Where autumn basks, with fruit empurpled deep,
My pleasing theme continual prompts my thought.
Presents the downy peach; the shining plumb;
The ruddy, fragrant nectarine; and dark,
Beneath his ample leas, the luscious fig.
The vine, too, here, her curling tendrils shoots;
Hangs out her clusters, glowing to the south,
And scarcely wishes for a warmer sky.

House rent is very low, and good provisions cheap ; so that people of a moderate forume may live here very comfortably.

The entrance into the bay, is dangerous to stran-Harbour. gers, there being a bar that cannot be passed till &c. half flood. Towards the sea, the town is defended by a fmall fort or block-house, mounted with cannon; near it, is a mole for shipping, and a key to load and discharge goods; adjacent to it, stand the exchange and custom house: Over the former, the town council meet to transact the affairs of the corporation. The revenue here is managed by a collector, and other proper officers; but, of late years, the trade of this port is very inconsiderable, being mostly confined to vessels trading to Bristol with woollen yarn. It is faid, this town formerly rivalled the city of Cork in trade, and confidering its fituation on a fine navigable river, and its commodious harbour, where ships are no sooner almost under fail than in the ocean, it is furprifing its commerce should be in so declining a state (16), ⁽¹⁶⁾ Anno 1698, according to capt. South's account, there were in this town, 40 feamen, 114 fishermen, and 46 boatmen; whereas Cork had but 183 in all. Among those in Youghal, were 135 papists. Phil. Trans. numb. 261. p. 591.

CHA

In

oot.

prot

te te

" fu

the h

There is, at present, a manufactory of earthen war here, which they begin to make tolerably good.

This town returns two members to parliament and gives title of baron to the right hon. Richard earl of Burlington. Sir Richard Boyle, the first en of Cork, being created baron Boyle, of Youghal by letters patent of king James I. dated Septemb 6. ann. reg. 14th of England, and 50th of Scotland 1616(17). It was in this town that the first potator were landed in Ireland, by fir Walter Raleigh. The person who planted them, imagining that the apple which grows on the stalk, was the part to be nied, gathered them; but not liking their tafte, neglected the roots, till the ground being dug afterwards to fow fome other grain, the potatoes were discovered therein; and, to the great surprise of the planter, vaftly increased; from those few, this country was furnished with feed (18).

It is faid fir Walter brought them, together with tobacco, into Ireland, from Virginia. He allo brought the celebrated Affane cherry, at the fame time, from the Canary islands (16).

(17) Original patent at Lifmore.

(18) Ben Johnson, in his play called "Bvery man out of his Humour, "mentions potatoes as a great rerity, when he wrote.

(19) August 6th, 1617, fir Walter Raleigh set sail from the harbour of Cork, on his last voyage to the West-Indies. In letter to Mr. Carew Raleigh, fir Walter's son, from the earl of Cork, (dated at Dublin, Jan. 16, 1631) the earl fays, " That fir Walter's last coming into Ireland, cost him above 1000 marks, whereof he had supplied him in ready money with 350 l. besides the oxen, biscuit, beer, iron, and other netellaries, he surnished him with. And adds, that the day he took shipping upon his last fatal voyage from Cosk, he dined with him at fir Bandal Claytook house, where at dined with him at fir Randal Clayton's house, where at the table, he let fall some speeches, as if he was not fully furnished for his voyage; which the earl observing, immediately procured him an hundred French crowns, which he knew would be current money in any place be should put in to water or victual. After dinner, he and the earl withrd, al,

6

do

he

d,

d

0

8

In this town, is a barrack for two companies of Barracks.

Oot. At the arrays, in 1746, there were 1000

protestants in this place fit to bear arms.

This

telling him, he feared from his discourse, that he was not fufficiently furnished with money for his voyage, and there-upon made him this offer; which he refused, protesting that all his defects were supplied by the earl beyond his hope or expectation: Adding, that if he was driven into any harbour, he had jewels that he would fell, rather than take any more money from him. Upon which, he called to him the lord Barry, the lord Roche, his fon Mr. Walter Raleigh, capt. Whitney, and feveral others, who dined there: And taking his son by the hand, told him and the other gen-tlemen, how that the earl had kept a continual open house for three weeks, to entertain him and all his company. That he had supplied his ships with several kinds of provisions, and with 350 l. in ready money; and had given money to most of the captains of his seet; and that the earl would now press 1001. more upon him, which he did not want : And addressing himself to his fon, said, Wat, you see how nobly my lord Boyle hath entertained me and my friends; and therefore I charge you, upon my bleffing, if it please God that you outlive me and return, that you never queltion the lord Boyle for any thing that I have fold him; for if he had not bought my Irish land, it would have fallen to the crown, and then one Scot or other would have begged it, from whom neither I nor mine should have any thing for it, nor fuch courtefies as now I have received. And thereupon the earl accompanied him to the boat, where, at taking leave, fir "Walter repeated all the earl's civilities. And this, fays lord Cork, was the last time I ever saw him."

In the beginning of this letter, the earl fays, that he paid "fir Walter the full of what he owed him for his estate, long before this event; which he purchased at a time when it "was utterly waste, and yielded him no profit." The earl paid him 1000 l. after his attainder; which debt being forseited to the crown, he generously made choice of paying to fir Walter, rather than to accept of a composition tendered him by sir John Ramsay, afterwards earl of Holderness, who, for 500 marks in ready money, effered to procure him a full discharge, under the broad seal, for that debt, which obliged the earl to stay two months after in London, to sue out a release for that money from the crown; and the expenses, he fays, stood him in soo l. more.

MSS, at Lifmore.

ge ilio

五五五日

Ba

ett d 8

dat

bu

an

ea

or or

y, ou oil

en early

ui

Ĵn

rd pe

er

h er y

This place suffered much in the wars of the en Defmond of Defmond; it was taken and facked by him, and 1579; and being regained by capt. White, it was the same year retaken, by the seneschal of Imokil ly (20). White, and most of his men, being flain, by this means Youghal was left quite desolate, not man staying in it, except one poor friar ; but the old inhabitants were invited to return, a garrifold of 300 men being left for their protection. The mayor, who had refused a garrison, and had per fidiously yielded the town to Desmond, was taken and hanged at his own door.

Afterwards, ann. 1582, the fenefchal of Imokilly affaulted Youghal, but was repulsed with the los of 50 of his men.

The earl of Cork shut himself up in this town in the rebellion of 1641, in which he fuffered very great hardships, and died in it during those troubles (21) The earl of Castlehaven besieged it about ten weeken and though the town was far from being from and the garrifon very weak and ill supplied, yet they had the courage to defend it bravely, with confiderable loss to the Irish army, who were, at last, forced to raise the siege, ann. 1645. For the further historical incidents which happened there, I refer the reader to the third book, which contains the civil hiftory of this county,

Within three miles of Youghal, the earl of Cork had a noble park in the parish of Ardagh, but it has been disparked several years. A little way up the river from the town, on a bold point of land, stands the ruined castle of Rincrew, once an house of the knights templars.

By the earl of Cork's purchases from fir Walter Raleigh, and his having the N. and S. abbeys, with other lands granted to the second earl, for 49 ar rears due to himself and others, whose debentura he purchased, the greatest part of this town be longed (20) MS. fir Richard Cox. (21) Ib. ib.

ged to this noble family. Not long fince, a sliderable part of it was purchased by the right the earl of Besborough and others.

Half a mile N. W. of the town, the folanum cinale grows in great plenty.

KIL

e earl

ann, wa okil-

n, by not s

the

rifod

The

perker

illy

ä

).

bj

The principal feats in this neighbourhood, are, Seats near Bally-Virgone, belonging to Bor Uniack, efq; a Youghal, etty plantation, where there is a liquorice tree, da large fir brought from Newfoundland, 2, Balfaniel, the feat of Henry Rug, esq; recorder of bughal, on the W. fide of the bay; from whence, an extensive prospect of the sea-coast and ocean : ear it, is a small subterraneous river, which runs out a mile under ground; but there is another ore confiderable one, near Castlemartyr, of the me kind. In Mr. Rug's fish-ponds, is the water y, a beautiful flower, transplanted hither from oughal bog, where they grow in plenty. 3. The bifonous quality of the yew tree has been expeenced, by cattle eating of the branches, some ears ago, in the garden of Ballymacoda (then held y Mr. Maurice Unjack) in this heighbourhood, fter which they suddenly died. This castle was uilt by Thomas Fitz-Gerald, ann. 1521. 4. Mount Iniack, in the parish of Killeigh, the seat of Richrd Uniack, efq, from whence is an extensive proect of a great part of this barony. In the garens, are orange trees which bear fruit, as also lantane trees and cypress.

The castle of Inchiquin stands about three miles Inchiquin.
W. of Youghal (22). This manor formerly belonged

(22) Pleas held at Adare, before Will, de Windsor, lieut. If the king in Ireland, on the quindene of St. Michael, in the 4th year of king Edward III.

The sheriff was commanded to seize into the king's hands, he fourth part of the manor of Inchecoigne, with its appurenances, the property of Thomas Roos, and the manor of Balyderawn, with the appurtenances, the property of Will. de

Book

er

ve

t

la

ip ie

E

re C

a longed to the house of Ormond, and was a diffe barony in itself. Sir Richard Boyle passed pur for this manor, caftle and barony, March 3d, 11th of James I. It was purchased from the pre earl of Burlington, by the earl of Berborough, T manor anciently belonged to the fee of Clo Near this place, are good plantations, particularly of witch elms, which bear feed:

Killeigh.

Killeigh is a small village, four miles from You al, in which is a decent church. At this place, an ancient nunnery of canonesses, founded by Abban, in the fixth century, where he placed Conchere as priorefs. The rivulet that runs by remarkable for its serpentine course, and for being accounted good for whitening cloth. It di charges itself into Youghal bay. Adjacent is well, visited by the Irish. Near it, is Aghada, it house and plantations of Mr. Richard Supple. his garden, are two trees of an uncommon kind the first, a bladder nut, or the nux vefficaris staphilodendron of Parkinson, being so called for a nut, enclosed in a hulk or skin resembling a blad The other, the arbor vitæ of Gerrard, the thuyæ theophraft. C. B. being 15 inches in di

Canton, of which lands they were differited, because they not in person, before the feast of easter, in the 43d year of king, come into Ireland, nor fend a fufficient number of in their stead to defend the same, and that he should, by tenant, &c. By virtue of which mandate, John Lombard, in riff of the faid county, on the wednesday next after the fal of St. Denis the martyr, in the 44th year of the reign of king Edward III. by the undernamed, via Richard Fitz-Peter Carew, &c. which jury fay upon their oaths, that the 4th par of the manor of Inchecoigne, with the appurtenances, which we the property of Thomas de Roos, on the feast of easter, in the 43d year of the king, was not worth above 31. 3. a 1 700. all its iffues ; and that Illeger, as attorney for the faid The mas de Roos, received the profits from thence, &c And the the manor of Ballyderawne was worth nothing by the year because it was in the hands of rebels to the king. &c.

12

FERSET TER TREATED TO THE PROPERTY

u, ter, and about 30 feet high. They give an handof the leaves boiled in ale, as a specific for the

vel. It appears, that the castle of Aghada was t by the Carews; for fir Thomas de Carew, the
of Maurice, granted several annuities out of lands of Aghsadda, to William Skiddy, of Cork,
p. Edward III. as appears from copies of three ient deeds, preserved in the Lambeth library England, (F. 99, 100.) To the W. of this, is ran-James, Mr. Barth. Purdon's.

Castlemartyr, formerly Ballymartyr, was the seat Castlea branch of the Fitz-Geralds, called seneschals martyr.

mokilly (23). In the year 1663, it was incorated by the interest of the first earl of Orrery, o erected it into a borough, with the nominatiof the chief magistrate, recorder, town-clerk, k of the market, and other proper officers, to earl and his heirs for ever, and with a privilege fending two members to parliament. It was ciently called Leper's town, as it is faid, from a er-house belonging to an adjacent place, called lyouteragh, which was a village of some note; there is a tradition, of its having been rerkable for a copper manufactory, Ballyouteh, literally fignifying a town of braziers; yet re is no copper ore near this place, but iron nes almost every where round it. The old church n ruins, and the scite thereof removed to Castlertyr, by act of parliament, where a new handhe church was erected, on ground given by his tellency Henry Boyle, esq. The high road from rk to Youghal, lay formerly more to the S. and by the caftles of Ichtermurragh, Ballytotas, &cc. which road there are still several traces. But it has

²³⁾ Ann. 1420, 9 Henry V. James earl of Defmond was fituted fenerchal of the baronies of Imokilly, Inchiquin, the town of Youghal, during life, by James earl of Orad, lord lieutenant of Ireland. From this earl of Defmond, branch of the Fitz Geralds and this title.

Book I

has undergone another alteration from the rid honourable Henry Boyle, late speaker of the house of commons, who, at great expence, h laid out a fine level road, and erected a handfor stone bridge to the S. W. of the town. Here an alms-house, founded by the first earl of Orren, for fix poor men and as many women, who have a weekly allowance, and clothing once a year the lady Mary Boyle, mother to Henry Boyle, of bequeathed 100 l. to be put to interest toward buying them clothes. His excellency conveyed to the incorporated fociety two English acre of land for ever, valued at 4 s. an acre, for the erection of a charter-school near this place; and gave a lease of three lives of ten English acre of land, at 40 s. per ann. which ten acres wer to pay no more than an acknowledgment of 51 year during his excellency's life. Also a leafe of ten English acres more, at 4 s. an acre. The school contains 20 boys, and 10 girls. There are feveral voluntary subscriptions for the support of this foundation (24). Over the door of the school is this inscription, on a black marble

Charter-School.

⁽²⁴⁾ Some have raised an objection against this happy institution of the charter working schools in Ireland, that, while the parents are neglected, there can be no great hopes of secess of an entire conversion of all the natives to the principle of the protestant religion. It should seem to be an easy method of facilitating such a conversion, if, in a very sew of our charter-schools catechists, in the Irish tongue, were procured it is well known, that the clergy of the church of Rome are of all ranks, from cardinals to mendicants, which last are post and numerous, but have great influence with the people Persons conversant in low life, speaking Irish, well instructed in the principles of religion and controversial points, thous on a level with parish clerks or school-masters of chants schools, may be sit instruments to mix with, and bring our our poor natives to the established church; and it were to be wished, that some parts of our liturgy and homilies were publically read in the Irish language, to which the Irish oughts.

HAP. I. HISTORY of CORK.

Book II

ne right

of th

ice, h

ndformer in

Orrery,

o have

year

Oward

acre

or the

; and

acre

Were

54.

ale of

re are ort a

a 1

py in while

f foo

y meof our poor copie ucted ough arity over to be "In the year of our Lord 1748, this charterchool was erected, at the charge of the incorpoated fociety, on ground given for that purpose, by the right hon. Henry Boyle, esq, speaker of the house of commons, and one of the lords justices of this kingdom."

Since the opening of this school, the children have proceeded in a very thriving way.

There is also a spining school here, for the encouragement of the linen manufacture. neat imall town, well watered and fituated for this manufacture. Its chief beauty confifts in the feat and improvements of his excellency Henry Boyle, esq; lord of the soil. Adjacent to his house is a castle, (first built by the Carews,) that belonged to the fenefchals of Imokilly, and afterwards to the earl of Orrery, but ruined in the late wars (25). Opposite the house, is a large beautiful canal, which forms a vista to that side of the country, through a venerable grove of lofty trees. To the fouth of the house, are the gardens, with fine plantations of elms, chefnut, and other forest trees of a large growth. The artificial river made by his excellency, which furrounds his domain, as well as the town of Caftlemartyr, is one of the greatest undertakings of this kind in Ireland. It is regularly banked, and be invited to come, rather by premiums, such as allowing them their hearth-money, or the like, than forced by penal laws, which fort of compulsion too much savours of popery. And with these views, may it not be right to breed up some of the better fort of children in these schools, and qualify them for missionaries, catechists, and readers?

(25) Capt. Henry Boyle, in the late wars, put his caftle under the protection of general Mac-Carty, as did also the lord Inchiquin, his of Rostilian, who promised to secure them and their houses, which he did not perform; for Castlemartyr, with all the improvements and furniture, to the value of some thousands of pounds, were destroyed.

its sides adorned with fine plantations, and wind in a serpentine manner, being broad and do enough for an handsome boat to row round it; a the east end of the town, it is broken into seven cascades, and is a great ornament to this part the country. On this river,

Gives out his snowy plumage to the gale,
And arching proud his neck, with oary feet
Bears forward fierce, and guards his ofter iffe, Protective of his young.

THOMSON

This river glides away, in a clear stream, wandering through the woods, on each side, in sevent windings, shining, here and there, at a great distance through the trees; the mazes may be traced a considerable way, till the eye is led through two ridges of hills, where it empties itself into another river, that discharges into Youghal bay, and a navigable for about three miles up the country. A small expence, added to what his excellency he already done, would make it navigable up to the town of Castlemartyr, for beats and lighters.

Towards the east end of the town, some large human bones were lately dug up, being buried under a large flag stone, in a small heap, in a confield, but not having seen them, I can say nothing particular about them.

About a mile fouth-east of Castlemartyr, a river, called the Dowr (26), breaks out from a limestone rock, after taking a subterraneous court near half a mile, having its rise near Mogeely. Where it breaks out, it forms a small lake, in some places 300 yards over in winter time, and about an English mile in circumference. At this ⁽a6) Dowr, in the British language, fignifies water, and Dowr, in the old Irith, has the fame fignification.

rason of the year, it is a receptacle for many kinds f wild fowl; and was in the great frost of 1730. nuch frequented by wild geefe and fwans, which re very rare in this part of the kingdom. The alcyon, or king's fifther, is an inhabitant of this ake. The Spaniards boaff much of the subteranean passage of the famous river Guadiana, in Murcia, over which, they pretend, is a bridge that may be passed by an army in battalia; and the ame, with as much justice, may be said of our rivulet (27).

art a 1304

nder-

veni

dif

acel

two ther

di

try,

hai

the

mo ng

rte

ly.

nd 116 00

ad

The castle of Ichtermurragh, about a mile E. of Ichter-Castlemartyr, is well built, and one of the most murtagh modern structures of this kind in the country, being erected by the Supples, in the beginning of the last century, who married into the family of the Fitz-Geralds, and is now inhabited by Mr. Smith. Here is a femarkable ravenry, where these birds build yearly. And at Clonprieft, about four miles more to the east, near the fat of Mr. John Haymond, there is a herony, where herons also build every year. In the parish church of Ichtermurtagh, are some tombs of the Supples and Pitmans. The former family removed into this country. the county of Limerick, in queen Elizabeth's time; Cambden mentions them among the inhabitants of that county, by the name of Saple.

Drumada, now Supple's Court, a small mile S. of Castlemartyr, is an handsome seat of Ed. Supple, efd, on a rifing ground, which takes in an agreeable prospect of a considerable tract of country, and all the improvements, and new river, of Cufflemartyr. Facing the house, is a pretty canal, good gardens and offices, and confiderable quantities of bog-timber have been found at Ballyquirk, the estate of this gentleman.

(27) In Yorkshire, is a river called Greatsh, recorded in the philosophical transactions as a great curiofity, for its run-hing under ground for about a mile. Vide Philos. Transact. humb. 163. p. 729.

church.

Kilcredan About three miles E. of Caftlemartyr, is the church of Kilcredan, in which are two old monu-That on the fouth fide of the altar has the ments.

following inscription,

" Hic jacet corpus Roberti Tynte militis aurati, hujus provinciæ regis conciliis, filii quinti Edmund Tynte de Wrexhall comitatu Somersetensi in Anglia armigeri, qui honorem suum gladio acquisivit. Hanc ecclesiam atq; monumentum fieri fecit, Dei omnipotentis providentia. An. dom. 1663."

On this monument, is placed the effigy of this fir Robert Tynte, lying on his back in coat armour, and at his head and feet, are two women, in a praying posture, all of painted alabaster.

On the other side, of the communion table, is another monument, with the following inscription, over which are the effigies of a man and woman,

in a praying posture.

" Conditur in hoc monumento Edwardus Harrifius miles & regis curiæ loci capitalis in Hybernià jufficiarius secundus, & cum illo Elizabetha uxoris ejus primæ cadaver est contumulatum. Ille Ato Aprilis 1626. Illa primo Januarii 1622 hanc vitam discessit."

At the west end, is a modern tomb, for the family of Wallis.

Ballycrenane caftle.

The castle of Ballycrenane, was built by the Carews, who also built that of Garivoe, now ruined: in the church of which, is an ancient tombstone of this family , but the inscription is not le gible. Ballycrenane, was an old feat of the Tynte family, it is now inhabited by William Wallis, efg, and is fituated near the east end of the strand of Ballycotton: the adjacent land lies very convenient for manuring with fea-fand, and produces large crops of wheat, and excellent barley, allo, all kinds of garden stuff are produced here very early.

Ballycot- The strand of Ballycotton is four miles long, smooth ton frand, and level, and very agreeable to take the air on. OK II

s the nont-

as the urati.

nund

An-

fivit.

Dei

this

our;

e, is ion,

nan,

ar-

er-

thæ Ille

anc

the

the

n-

b

0 ite

nd

ĝ.

Ĉŝ

11

The point of Ring, forms the east fide of this bay and Ballycotton point and illand, the western extremity of it. The shore, towards the west, rounds in a large femicircle, like the hollow of a fine amphitheatre. The island is an high small spot, which, in the proper feafon, is almost covered with nests of various lea fowls and puffins eggs, that breed here in great multitudes. In this bay and coaft, are taken leveral kinds of fish, particularly excellent flat fish, lobsters, and sea trouts. There are here a species of crabs, called man-crabs, from the refemblance of a human face on the back of them. As also the spider fish, being a kind of crab, with longer claws and fewer than the common crab, obfervable only on the shores of this bay From the island of Ballycotton, may be seen Kinsale-head, and the mouth of Cork-harbour.

Two miles west of this strand, is the castle of Ballyma-Ballymaloe, built by the Fitz-Geralds, and after the loe. rebellion of 1641, possessed by the first earl of Orrery, who resided in it. It is now the feat of Hugh Lumley, efq, who purchased it from col. Corker, and added some new buildings to the castle. In the castle hall, are two pair of horns of the moose deer, one of which measured, from tip to tip, ten feet, three inches, the breadth of the palm was 32 inches, from the vertex of the head to the note 10 inches. The other pair were, from tip to tip, fix feet, three inches, and the breadth of the palm in proportion; yet the skull of this smaller pair was larger than the other head, which hews, that this last had not come to its full growth, and also, that this species of deer cast their horns annually (28).

K 2

⁽a8) This species of deer, which we have no other traces of in this kingdom, but from their horns and bones dug up in bogs, are supposed, by fir Thomas Mollyneux, to be the same as the American moose deer, concerning which the baron Lahontan gives the following account. The original is a fort of elk, not much different from that we find in Muscovy. It

In the same hall, on the picture of a dwarf, named Chuff, who belonged to col. Corker, are these lines, said to be wrote extempore. He received an accidental shot in the shoulder, some time before this picture was drawn.

To please a good mistress, I'm drawn as you se, With my crutch, and my wounds, thus express'd; A brace of hard balls in my body still be,

That will ever disquiet my rest.

Man's life, and my length, are much of a fize,

Scarce either exceed a good span; Mankind perpetually do me despise,

And the maids won't allow I'm a man.

Tho' my inches are nine, besides a fair yard;

And my years, they are twenty and four;

Then pity my case, which you see is so hard, As I ne'er shall grow half an inch more.

Plain Richard Nomane they called my dad,

And, for him, a name good enough;
But as I am form'd a more dapper lad,
They call me but plain master Chuff.

Adjoin-

is as big as an Auvergne moyle, and much of the same shape, abating for its muzzle, its tail, and its great stat horns, which weigh sometimes 300, and sometimes 400 weight. This animal usually resorts to planted countries. Its hair is long and brown, and the skin is strong and hard, but not thick. The sless of the semale fort eats deliciously; and, it is said, that the far hind foot of the semale kind, is a cure for the salmost keep up with the running of an hart. The savages as fure us, that, in summer time, it will trot three days, and three nights, without intermission. These fort of animals commonly gather into a body towards the latter end of autumn; and the herds are largest about the beginning of the spring, at which time, the she ones are in rutting; but after theirhest is over, they all disperse themselves. The savages make comoes of the elks skins, which they sow together very easily.

"covering the seams with a fort of earth, instead of pitch."
Baron Lahontan's voyage, vol. 1. p. 57, 59

CHAP. I. HISTORY of CORK.

K II

Warf.

are cejy-

time

fee,

s'd;

ze,

in-pe,

ng

id,

rill

ai-

1;

at

Adjoining to this castle, are good gardens and other plantations. This gentleman has made an improvement to cider, by boiling it before it is fermented, which greatly adds to the strength of the liquor, one third being evaporated. He also takes particular care to have his cider well fermented before it be tunned, as also to sweat the fruit before it is ground. Mr. Philips, in his admirable poem on cider, observes, that even windfalls may be rippened by sweating, equal to those fruit, which have been meliorated in the natural way.

Collecting, cherish'd with the tepid wreaths
Of tedded grass, and the sun's mellowing beams,
Rival'd with artful heats, and thence procur'd,
A costly liquor, by improving time
Equal'd with what the happiest vintage bears.

Among other trees in this gentleman's gardens, are the arbutus or straw-berry tree; also a mond trees, that bear fruit; the arbor vitæ of Gerrard; and several kinds of myrtle, which thrive here, and flourish equal to those planted in a warmer and happier climate.

A mile more to the west, is Cloyne, (situated 12 Cloyne, reputed miles east of the city of Cork) an ancient bishoprick, founded by St. Coleman (29), in the fixth century, who was the first bishop of this see.

(29) The foundation of the cathedral is attributed to faint

Coleman, the fon of Lenin, a man of learning and piety, and the disciple of St. Pinbar, bishop of Cork.

The building of this church, is mentioned by the author of the life of St. Brendan, about of Clonfert, in these words.

"Erat hic Colemanus, filius Linini, vita atque doctrina inter fanctos practipuns, ipfe fundavit ecclefiam Clonenfem, que est hodie cathedralis, & famosa in partibus momonia: claruit in seculo sexto, sed placidetandem in domino obdormi-

"vit anno 604, Novemb, 4to. Upon which day the calendar

Cloyne was called Cluain Vamha, and, in the old Roman provincial, Cluain Vanian. Clone, or Cluain, fignifies a den or cave, also an enclosure or retirement. Lihyud fays, it is fometimes taken for a park; Vamha fignifies a dark place, or a place of horror. There is a deep and large cave in a park, near this town, part of the domain of the fee, which, probably, gave name to the place (30).

of Cashel, and martyrology of Talmac place his death. Colgan's Act. Sanct. p. 309, 310. fect. 14. One Coleman, the ion of Lenin, is faid to have wrote the life of St Senin in verse, he died, according to Colgan, on the 24th of Novem. 600; but whether he was the fame person with the founder of this cathedral, is uncertain.

Our faint was furnamed Mittine, and was coulin-germen to the celebrated faint Bridget of Ireland. In an ancient Inh martyrology, composed by Charles Macguire, the country of Impokilly, in which this cathedral is founded, is called Regio Huibliathain, being, probably, then a part of Olethan, mentioned in p. 41 of this work.

(90) Some writers mention another Cloyne, by the name of Cluain Vidhnech, which they translate latibulum haderofum, i. e. the ivy cave. This place was in the diocele of Leighlin.

Colgan's Thaimaturg. p. 354 There was also another bishoprick, in the country of Rol common, called Cluin-hemain, mentioned in the annals of Donegal, and faid to be deftroyed adno 1089. Vide Colgan's Act. Sanct.

None of the ancient records of this fee now remain. James Wate mentions a pipe toll, called Pipam Colmani, begun anno 1 364, when John de Swaff ham, a carnielite friar, was bishop, who was translated to Bangor, in Wales. But this roll is now loft. Ware's Antiq. cap. 29.

Doctor George Synge, who was bishop of Cloyne, mentions this roll, in a letter to the earl of Cork, and fays, that the manor of Inchiquin belonged to this see, and to the cart of Ormond; and that the part of the roll wherein this manor was mentioned, was detaced. This letter is dated April 3, 1541. This biling petitioned the court of callie-chamber against his tording, for detaining the lands of Coplemonagh, Killenlengh and Ballymeaghan, being part of the manor of Donaghmere, the The lands of Donaghmore, containing 8000 scres, were regovered to this fee, by Dr. Charles Crow, while he was bishop

CHAP. I. HISTORY of CORK.

K II.

old

ain,

tire-

ark.

TOT.

this ba-

his

Col-

the

the

rith

to ih

of

n-

of

n,

of

This cathedral (dedicated to its) founder) is built in the form of a cross, and is a decent gothic building; the choir, in which there is a good organ, is neatly finished. It is 70 feet long, and the nave about 120. On each lide, are lateral illes (belides the cross isles) divided by gothic arches, five on each fide. At the entrance of the chor, is an handsome portal of wood. The stalls, bishop's throne, pulpit, and other pews, are well executed, as is the altar piece. There is a canopy feat for the earl of Inchiquin in this choir. On the Natide of the chancel, is the bishop's confistory court, also uled for a veftry room; out of this a pair of Rairs leads to the pulpit. On the S. fide of the altar, is a flag stone, to the memory of the rev. Henry Rug. dean of this cathedral, who was interred here, in June 1671, On the east wall of the north cross-ille, is a monument, with this inscription.

Petri Wallis de Shanagary chiliarchae

Hospitis celebris de Parina clarus & Audria Baker de Carrigona SirbuA.
Omnipotens animan Sili Piat mileratur.

Piæ, pudicæ, literatæ, beneficæ, Edwardus Corker de Ballimalne armig, and he expended above 2000 l, on improvements at Cloyne, but infifts in his will, that only 1000 l, be paid to his wife, purfuant to the flatutes. He bequeathed the small burgary of Cloyae, which be purchased from the east of Inchiquin, and the lands of Boghemore, to his wife, to be employed in the following charitable uses. First, in lieu of 100 l, promised by him toward the maintenance of poor widows and orphans of clergymen of this diocese, he bequeathed 81 a year, for ever, to be paid out of the read of the faid burgary, and the lands of Boghemore, to inhertrusteer for the said burgary and lands, to be laid out in clothing, educating, and binding to trades, the poor boys of this diocese, as many as should seem proper to his wife, and the chantor and treasurer of Cloyne, whom he made perpetual trustees of this charity, but subject to account to the bishop. This bequest amounted to the sum of 45 l, per ann. He died in 1726. Wills in the Prerog, office, Dublin.

Chariffimæ conjugi bind only without

Pofuit: 10 10 h la man shi a

Obiit XVII die Julii A. D. MDCCXXI. Hic etiam jacent, Catherina Baker, matertera, a yethic anther, a

Mehetable Foulke, foror Margaritæ. Obiit Catharina XXVIII die Martii A. D. The lear one MDCCXIVers and us to the

Obiit Mehetable i die Julii A. D. MDCCIII. Arms, argent, a lion rampant azure, impaled with azure, two hearts in chief gules. Motto, " Sacrificium Deo cor contritum."

On the N. fide of the same iste, is another monument, of black marble, formewhat defac'd. On the top, were two images, in a praying posture, since defaced.

Epitaphium Johannis de Geraldinis milit

Morra A. D. 1617. W. Marian

Hic fitus est miles magni de stirpe Geraldi, Æterna cujus patria laude fonat.

Hospitis celebris, doctrina clarus & armis, Digna fuit virtus nobilitate viri.

Omnipotens animam, rapiat miseratus in altum Dura hace est animum marmora corpus habet, Illius & gefta in pace, & quamprarima bello, Te doceant vivi, amice lector, vale.

but fullde in his well garden fredict predict of Ciorne

Anno atatis 85 sures for of the Die vero menfis Januarii 15 ann dom: 1612 wolfer and in be Sub thoc etiam marmore and to same

Filius cum patre, qui immatura morte præripuit, re peid out of the rete ditais, ing any and the lands of

Die vero mensis Martin 10 fann dom. 1612 Vivimus heu fi tanguam omnes, mots hulla fequatur Et poenæ inferni fabula vana torent.

Ergo bas country and the said Mors tua, mors Christi, fraus mundi, gloria ecch Et dolor inferni funt meditanda tibi.

CHAP. I. HISTORY of CORK.

Before the arrival of the English, we have very few remains of the bishops of Cloyne. The folowing is a catalogue of the bishops of this see.

O Malvain, bishop of Cloyne, died in 1094. Nehemiah O Moriertarch, flourished ann. 1140, and died in 1149. When Laden and Shart box at at K H

BSM!

rith

CTI-

lu-

op,

ed.

Marthew, he fat in 1171, and died in 1192. Laurence O Sullivan, died in 1204.

Daniel, died in 1222.

Florence, succeeded in 1224.

Patrick, a ciftercian monk, succeeded in 1226.

David Mac-Kelley succeeded, and, in 1237, was translated to Cashel

Allan O Sullivan, succeeded 1240, and, in 1248, was translated to Lismore.

Daniel, a franciscan friar, succeeded in 1249, and died in 1264.

Reginald, bithop of Down, was translated to this see in 1265; he died in 1273.

Allan O Lonergan, fucceeded in 1274, and died in 1283.

Nicholas de Effingham, succeeded in 1284; he died in 1320.

Maurice O Sullehan, fucceeded 1320; he died

John, furnamed de Cumba, from Combe abbey, in Warwickshire, succeeded in 1335.

John Brid, how long he fat is uncertain. at both

John Whitlock, succeeded 1351; he died in 1361. John de Swaff ham, succeeded 1363, and, in 1376, was translated to Bangor, in Wales.

Richard Wye, succeeded 1376, and was deprived for mildemeanors in 13041 2011 18 A 201

Geraid Canton, or Condon, fucceeded ann. 1394.

Adam Pay, fat in 1420; he died in 1430.

Jordan; in his time, this fee was united to Cork, and fo continued for 200 years and upwards.

For a lift of the bishops after him, vide the see of Cork, down to Dr. Synge.

George

George Synge, was confecrated bishop in 1638,

he died in 1653.

After his death, the fee continued vacant, became of the rebellion, until the restoration of king Charles II. in 1660; when Dr. Michael Boyle was advanced to it, and held it, together with Cork and Ross, a did also

Edward Synge, from whose death, in 1678, the fees have been separated.

Patrick Sheridan, fucc. in 1679, and died in 1681. Edward Jones, fucc. in 1682, and was translated to St. Alaph, in Wales, in 1692.

William Pallifer, fucc. 1692, and, in 1694

was translated to Cashel.

Tobias Pullen, fucc. in 1694; and the following year, was translated to Dromore.

St. George Ash, D. D. succ. 1695, and, in 1691

was translated to Clogher.

John Pooley, fuce in 1697, and in 1701, was translated to Raphoe Charles Crow, D. D. fucc. in 1702, and died in 1726.

Henry Maule, LL. D. succ. and, in 1781, was

Edward Synge, fucc. in 1731, and, in 1733, was translated to Leighlin and Ferns.

George Berkley, D. D. fuce, ann. 1793 and died in 1753.

James Stopford, fucc. in 1753, and died in 1759 Robert Johnson, succesin 1759, and died in 1767. Hon, Frederick Hervey, fuoc. in 1767, and in 1768, was translated to Derry. Whistoil

Charles Agar, fucc. in 1768, and in the pre-

In this town, was anciently an abbey of angultinian nuns, founded in the fixth century, by St. Ite, who was the first abboss it stood a little well of the present see-house. But it has been long ince entirely demolished.

The

BOOK II

1638 because

Charles

vanced

As, as

8, the 1682.

flated

1694

Wing

697,

101,

in

THE

Vas

며

The episcopal house was rebuilt by bishop Crow, which he died; and the late Dr. George Berkley, en bishop of this fee, successfully transplanted the lite arts, which before flourished only in a warmer il, to this northern climare. Painting and mufick are longer strangers to Ireland, nor confined to italy. the episcopal palace of Cloyne, the eye was enterined with a great variety of good paintings, as well the ear with concerts of excellent mulick, There ere here fome pieces of the best masters; as a Magalen of fir Peter Paul Rubens, some heads by Van yke, and Kneller, befides feveral good paintings erformed in the house; an example so happy, that has diffused itself into the adjacent gentlemen's oules; and there is, at prefent, a pleasing emulaion raised in this country, to vie with each other in hele kind of performances. The great ofefulnels of belign, in the manufactures of stuffs, filks, diapers, damasks, tapestry, embroidery, earthen ware, sculpture, architecture, cabinet work, and an infinite number of other arts, is sufficiently evident.

In Cloyne, is a small castle, said to have been erected by the Fitz-Geralds. To the N. W. of the town, is a reputed holy well, dedicated to St. Coleman, who was the ancient patron of Imokilly; it is visited, by the Irish, on the 24th of November, being the patron day of that saint. Near the church, stands a round tower, 92 feet high, and 10 feet diameter. I'he door is about 13 feet from the ground, which saces the west entrance of the church, as all the doors of these kind of buildings do, that I have yet seen. Concerning the true use of these towers, I shall say something in another place. The soil, in this neighbourhood, is a lowny, grey earth, mixed with sand, affording plenty of wheat, small barley, and potatoes. The chief manure, is sea-sand and burnt clay, of which bereafter a most

A finall mile west of Cloyne, is Castlemary, the Castlemahouse and plantations of Robert Longfield, esq; 17situate fituate at no great distance from the eastern fide Cork harbour, of which there is an agreeable propect from the house and gardens, together with confiderable part of the great island. This place wa called, formerly, Cot's rock, from the remains of Druid's altar, still to be seen in an orchard, nor the house. This altar consists of a large stone, is feet long, and 8 in breadth, of a rough irregular figure, approaching to an oval form. The higher part of it, is 9 feet from the ground; it is support ed by three other great stones (31). Adjoining to it, is a large round flag-stone or table, which wa probably, used for cutting up the victims for the facrifice (32). This altar feems to have been ftuated in a very retired place, the old Druids performing most of their religious ceremonies in woods; from whence Lucan, lib. 1.

Remora alta remotis Incolitis lucis.

Ye haunt the lonely coverts of the groves

(31) This altar was named, in Irish, carig croith, i.e. the sun's rock, and corrupted to carig cot. The ancest Irish worshipped the sun, and swore by its head, i.e. by cean grioth, St. Patrick, in his confession, which he wrote by way of epiftle to the Irish, says, " The splendour of the " fun shall not always reign, nor have continuance for ever, " but all who adore him that unhappily fall into eternal " punishment. Abd I make no doubt, but thefe ftone, from the smilitude of the name, was an ancient Druit altar, dedicated to the fun. (32) Cæsar, who has furnished a long discourse on the customs of the Druids (who were the ancient priests of the heathen times,) observes, that they made use of human acrifices upon their altars. Sometimes they made images of monstrous size, whose limbs and parts being composed of offers, they filled with living men, which setting on size, they burned the enclosed victims to death +. Strabo says, the Gauls, (from whom, I doubt not, all the ancient, civil and religious customs of these islands had their origin) nero facrificed without the presence of their Druids; and add, that they used human sacrifices.

* Caf. Com. lib. 6. + Lib. 4. BOOK I fide

le prof

With

ace wa

ns of

d, new ne, is

CEULE

nghe

pport-

ng n

r the per

CS 14

And

i. e

Cient

by rrote the

ver,

rial

ne,

ids

the

the

fe

re,

ril

And Pliny observes (33), they chose groves f oak to retire into; nor do they (fays he) exerife any of their facred functions without that tree. On this gentleman's estate, there is a white halky fubstance, which does not ferment with cids; it is tinged with a yellow ochre, and lies 7 r 8 feet from the furface; it plasters exceeding vell, and, I believe, if tempered with proper liuids, would make a good material for stucco. It burns red, and will not make pipes; mixed with infeed oil, it ferves indifferently well for a white paint. It has been laid on land, as I was informed, but no corn came up where it was used. I take it to be the clay, called, by Mr. Hill, argilla alba tenax, N. 5. p. 19. of his hiftory of follils. On this land, is a fine grey marble, which may be raifed in large blocks; being near water carriage, it is eafily transported, and was wrought in Cork, by one Rostillian. Mr. Sinclair, who had, in his work-yard, various kinds of fine marble, the produce of this country.

Roftillian, two miles W. of Cloyne, formerly belonged to Robert Fitz-Stephen, to whom half of the kingdom of Cork was granted. But the castle, which some years ago stood here, was built by the Fitz-Geralds. It is, at present, the seat of the right hon. the earl of Inchiquin, whose ancestor Murrough, lord prefident of Munster, took this caftle, ann. 1645, which was the same year retaken by the earl of Castlehaven. It is a noble seat, pleasantly situated on an arm of the sea, at the S. E. fide of the harbour of Cork, where the tide gently flows to the garden wall, and boats come up to the tairs. The present house was built on the ruins of the ancient castle. On a terrace, near the water, are some small pieces of cannon mounted, which, upon firing, render feveral echos through the vanous hills that furround the harbour. In the house, are several good family pictures; on the stair-case, are two large pair of those fossil horns, known the name of moofe horns. From this plant fituation, one may fee,

(3)

6

The crouded ports, Where rifing masts an endless prospect yield, With labour burn, and echo to the shouts Of hurry'd failor, as he hearty waves His last adieu, and loosening every sheet, Refigns the spreading veffel to the wind. THOMSON, P. 121.

This prospect is terminated to the W. by the islands of Spike and Hawlbowlin, and to the N by the great island. White-well, near Roftillian, i frequented, on certain days of the year, by the Superstitious Irish devotees; it is a fine limpid, soft water, flowing from a lime-stone rock, and not far from it is a pleasant light chalibeat spaw. Adecent to the house, is a noble park. To the S. W. Cork-beg, near the harbour's mouth, is Cork-beg, now the feat of Robert Uniack Fitz-Gerald, elgs built in peninfula, to which is a narrow ifthmus from the main land; near it, are the ruins of an old caftle faid to have belonged to one of the Condons, for whom there is an old tomb in the decayed church of Cork-beg. Here is most excellent lime-stone efteemed the best in the barony: On the E. side of the harbour, are the remains of a large regular fortification, with platforms below, for gun-batteries, level with the water. This work was creeted to wards the end of queen Elizabeth's reigh, but suffered to go to ruin. Near this, is a leffer fortification, which, in the reign of the late king James, was made use of to annoy the landing of the earl of Marlborough; this battery was food taken by the feamen. The headlands, which form the entrance of this noble harbour, are little more than half an English mile asunder, so that vessels are no sooner in, than they are land-locked eld;

121.

the N

n, ii

the

not ie.

W.

he

11 hé

all fides, in a large, deep, smooth and still bason. The shore being very high on all fides, affords a noble shelter from almost every wind; but has this disadvantage, that there is scarce room to erect batteries to fortify the harbour. More to the S. on the sea-fide, is Trabolgan, an old seat of the Roches, a branch of the Fermoy family.

Poor-head is the most southern cape of this ba-Poor-head rony, from whence one has a prospect of Kin-sale head to the W. and a considerable tract of the sea coast to the east; this cape is bold and lofty, and well answers to Shakespear's description, that, ——It is a cliff, whose high and bending head Looks fearfully on the confined deep.

On the western side of Cork harbour, within the mouth, is an high, round land, called Corribiny-point; on its summit, is one of the ancient tumuli, raised to the memory of some Irish or Danish hero of former ages. These sepulchres were often placed on the sea-coasts; witness that of Æneas for his nurse Caseta, mentioned by the Mantuan bard.

Tu quoque littoribus nostris, Æneia nutrix, Æternam moriens famam , Caseta, dedisti : At pius exequiis Æneas rite solutis, Aggere composito tumuli, postquamalta quierunt Æquora, tendit iter velis. ÆNEID.VII.

And thou, O matron of immortal fame!
Here dying, to the shore hast left thy name:
Caïeta still the place is call'd from thee,
The nurse of great Æneas' infancy.
Now, when the prince her fun'ral rites had paid,
And o'er her bones a losty mound had made,
He plough'd the Tyrrhene seas with fails display'd.

And they were often, in after ages, used as land marks, for mariners to steer by.

Not

Book Not far from the ftrand of Ballycroneen, the stands, on a hill, a pillar stone, 8 feet high, the of which feems to be buried deep in the earl More to the W. at a place called Lifeally, is strong moated Danish intrenchment, with one the highest mounds I have seen, being 12 feet hig and feems to have been less impaired by time, the any other in this part of the country. Ballykendid

by bui

of bai

me

inc 16

ve

me

WE

bu

an of 18

in

re T

E

91

0 (

8

b

Cloyne, and formerly belonged to the Fitz-Gerald A little to the N. E. of Middletown, is a range of rocky hills, on which grow feveral aromate plants; and the fields hereabouts are covered win castle, is a good strong building, between this and great quantities of comfrey.

Middletown.

Middletown, fo called from its fituation, midway between Cork and Youghal, being 10 mile from each, is a borough and market town; well built, and pleasantly fittitted, a river running a each end of it, and the tide flowing up to it, being in the N. E. angle of Cork harbour. It confiled one long street, ranging from the north to the fouth bridges. Here is a good market, both of field and fifth. The Irift ftill call it Caftre-ni-chors, i.e. the castle of the ford , and from thence an adjacent abbey was called Chore abbey, in Irish Monastre-ni-Chora, and, in the records, called Monasterium de Choro Sancti Benedicti Beat. Mar. Virg. It was a daughter of the abbey of Neany, or Magy, in the county of Limerick, the monks being furnished out of that house, for occupying this abbey. It was founded about the year 1 180, according to Ware, by the Fitz Geralds; and according to Jungelin, by the Barrys. Gerald Fitz-Richard, bishop of Cloyne, appropriated the vicarage of Clonmult, Danigin, Donilbam, and Bally-fpells ny, to this house, ann. 1476. It was graffted, upon the dissolution, to fir John Fitz-Edmond Fitz-Gerald, of Cloyne, who forfeited it in the rebellion of 1641. This town was erected into a corporation, by the interest of fir St. John Brodrick, who rebuilt the church and steeple, and the greatest part of the town. It is governed by a fovereign, two bailiffs, and twelve burgeffes, who return two members to parliament. The late king James alfo incorporated this place by whose charter, in 1687, fir James Cotter, knt. was appointed fovereign, and Philip Roche and Dominick White. merchants, bailiffs thereof, but this charter foon went into difuse. Here is a fair market-house. built with hewn stone, and adorned with a clock; and besides an English school for the education of poor children in the protestant religion, there is a public free-school, which is an elegant building, composed of one main structure, and two returns, over which was lately an handsome dome. This school was founded, ann. 1709, by the lady Elizabeth Villiers, the was eldeft daughter of fir Edward Villiers, father of Edward earl of Jerfey. and maid of honour to queen Mary, when princels of Orange , and in 1695, was married to the lord George Hamilton, third fon of William duke of Hamilton, afterwards created earl of Orkney (34). She expended a confiderable fum of money in building this house, and settled a good estate on this endowment, for the support of a master, two ushers assistants, a writing-master, and sol, a year for scholars entered from this school into the univerfity of Dublin (35) a rigger 10 das and and a sed T ell

0-

ŕ.

10

of to be distributed in de Docons to fellolars (1 .1 o V

(34) Collins's Peerage of England, vol. 3. p. 533.
(35) She referred to herfell a power to make rules for the governing this school. The governors first appointed by the charter, were the earls of Orkney and Inchiquin, Thomas Brodrick, Alan Brodrick, and Samuel Maynard, esqrs lieur. Peter Bettesworth, and their respective heirs, together with the bishop of Cork, and the sovereign of Middletown. They nominate the master, who has root a year salary, an usher, who has 201. per ann.

Natural and Civil

The church is a neat structure, and well pewed and the steeple is capable of holding a ring of bells. On a white marble, on the golpel fided the altar, is this inscription.

> Elizabeth Atkin, alias Coningfby, Wife to Walter Atkin, Clerk, And Incumbent of this Parish. Of the Family of Hampton-Court, County of Hereford, England.

A fincere Friend. A prudent Mistres, A tender Mother, A dutiful Wife, A true Christian.

Died in fervent Faith and Devetion. November the 4th, 1713.

Arms, argent, three conies gules, a chief vairy or and azure.

William Hutcheson, first sovereign of this corporation, lies interred in the chancel, he died March oth, 1690, and was born ann. 1631.

Upon an handsome tomb, in the burial ground,

is this inscription.

D. O. M.

Elizabethæ Dawfon, piæ innocuæ. Matri amantissimæ, uxori charissimæ,

There is 10l. per ann. for repairs of the house, with the sum of sol. to be diffributed in exhibitions to scholars (of this house) in Dublin college, as the majority of the governors shall direct, provided no more than 151. be paid to one person. And if such scholars are not to be had, this mone is to go to fuch charitable uses as the governors shall direct. The estate bequeathed to this school, are the lands of Ballynehortig, Ballynereguine, Ballynemeuile, Ballynodagha, 64 acres of Tullaghloane, lying in the barony of Kinalea and Kerricuriby, and all the lands leafed by the late king James to fir Richard Mead, at the rent of tool. per ann. The lands of Ballysabeg and Kilgoban, in the barony of Carbery, containing 331 acres, and all other lands in the faid barony, formerly fet to William North, efq; by the late king James, at rool. per ann.

OK I

wed

ng of 10

1

ed

đ,

Quæ annos vixit 39, Febri correpta obiit, 46 Martii, 1748. Posiit mæstissimus conjux Robertus Berkley, D. D.

On the grave stones, are the names of Lewis, owning, Hill, Harold, Pritchard, Martin, &c. lan Brodrick, est, lord chancellor of Ireland, as created baron Brodrick of Middletown, Apr. 3th, 1st of Geo. I. 1718, and viscount of the same, ug. 3, 1717, in which year he was constituted ne of the lords justices of Ireland, as he was several times after.

Not far from the water fide, there is the renains of an ancient building, called the Spittle, appoind to have been a leper-house, of which and, there were many in this kingdom. Near this, the village of Ballinachora, and adjacent the evd. Dr. Berkley has a good house, with gardens and plantations. In the garden, is an high sepulchal mount, being one of the Danish tumuli.

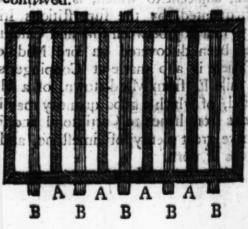

The lord viscount Middletown has two fine deer arks here, one on each fide of the town. In that learest Cork harbour, is his seat, called Ballyanan, Ballyanan. ery agreeably fituated. In Middletown park, is a mall river, that takes a fubterraneous courfe; near which, is a large romantick cave. b Near Middleown, is Rockfborough, a pleasant feat of Richard Rockfbohull, esq; adjacent to which, is a reputed holy rough. well, frequented, by the superstitious Irish, on ady-day. In a bog, between this and Castlemartyr, narle has been discovered on lord Middletown's thate. There is also marle at Coppinger's town, bout a mile E. from Middletown, of a blue and white kind, of which a good quantity may be had. The lands from hence to Carrigtohil and fo on to Cork, have great plenty of limestone, and afford arge crops of corn.

in

In several parts of this barony, iron ore may be found in plenty, particularly on land near Castle martyr, called Rathcallen, where the outwar statum of it, may be seen in the high-way and did sides, besides many stones tinctured with the mix An uncommon accident, which happened to so apple-trees on this land, may be worth mentioning, some were killed in a night's time, from a top to the root, and others, here and there, decayed, though in perfect health the day before. Light ning might have probably been the cause of the accident. Mr. Evelyn mentions the like to have besallen trees, even in a shorter time.

At Middletown, there are veins of feveral of louned marbles, particularly liver coloured, blad and grey; but that of Caftlemartyr, of the grands of the blocks. There are few woods in the barony, except those of Killeigh and Glanbows in the latter, are some good echoes, affording 7 of 3 repercusions from the same found. The hills the north, are but poor and very stony, the manus mostly insed is sea fand. Burning and graffing in been too much practised, to the great impovening ment of the soil. A new kind of manure used in this barony, and in some other parts of this count of late, is burnt clay. The kiln so this purpose is thus contrived.

Clay-Kilns.

This

BOOK

may b

Caftle

r An d dite

e min

to for ention

om #

decay

of the

al co

black

gre large

7 of

DW

h

di

unt

This kiln is 12 feet wide, and 24 long in the der, the walls are built of fresh fods, three feet hich, to batter inwards. A A are partition walls, at feet diffance, which are to burn more equally at fift. BB are small trenches, dug through each dirifion, about fix inches wide, and 10 deep, which to be covered with flat stones, in such a manner, as to hinder the trench from being chosked, and yet to give air to the fuel. Any clay may ferve to burn for manure a but the stiffest clay produces the most and best ashes. Before the kiln is built, 40 or 50 barrels of clay are to be spread on the ground, like turf, to dry; next 800 faggots of wize are to be provided. All things being ready, the walls are to be built of fresh fods, leaving the fide farthest from the wind open, until the fuel and clay are laid, and until each division is lighted up, and leaving that which is farthest from the wind to the last. Then, the wall of each apartment is to be built up as they are fired. The faggots must be well trodden, and some turf and billets laid over them; and lastly, the clay must be laid on about four inches thick, even with the walls. If you begin in March to dig your clay, the kiln may be kept burning all the fummer, railing the walls as it fires; but it must be well attended at first, to keep the fire from breaking out, by constantly covering it with dry clay. When it is well lighted up, wet clay may be laid on; if the clay be laid conveniently near the kiln, one man will be fufficient to attend it, morning and evening, for an hour at a time. Too much laid on at a time, or too close, may put out the fire, both which are carefully to be avoided. Thirty or forty barrels of these ashes, will suffice for an English acre, and is good both for corn and grafs (36): Kilna-

⁽³⁶⁾ Dr. Lifter, in the phil, trans. numb. 225. p. 415. says, there are some places in the north riding of Yorkshire, where

CH

par Mo

> call ed;

vel

mi wi

ea

grafo

T

th

II

g

P

Kilnata-

Kilnataloon (37) is the smallest barony in this county; it fignifies the church on the other fide the river (38), which was, probably, the church of Knockmourne, an ancient corporation. It is bound ed on the E, by Waterford, on the W, by the be rony of Barrymore, on the N. by Imokilly, and on the S. by the barony of Condons. It was formerly mortgaged, by the lord Barry (38), to Thomas, the eighth earl of Defmond, for the marriage portion of his daughter, Elizabeth counters of Delmond and was affigned by Gerald earl of Desmond, to his brother Thomas Roe, (as is mentioned in a note, p. 49.) This small barony is watered by the rive Bride, which runs N. of Tallow, and discharges itself into the Black-water. Sea fand may be brought for manure, by water, up to Tallow bridge; and near the western part of this barony, there is plenty of lime for the same purpose. On the banks of the Bride, are the ruins of feveral of Defmond's castles. Mogeely, two miles W. of Tallow, was a principal feat of the earl himself. It takes its name from the they manure their grounds, being a light fandy foll, with chy, which they dig in the declivity of an hill, after having bend away two yards deep of the fandy foll, they fink a pit, out of which they take the clay. This clay is of a bluish brown colour, not fandy, but close and fat, very ponderous, and burn well for bricks. They lay out 100 load of clay upon an acre of ground. They dig it, in dry weather, at midlummer. They observe, that, for three or four years, it continues, in clod, upon the fand; and that, for the first year, the land so minured, bears rank, ill-coloured, and broad-grained barley; but afterwards a plump, round corn, like wheat. This clay manuring lasts about forty years, and then the ground mult be clayed again. This sandy ground, unless clayed, bear nothing but rye, whatever manure or time be used. But once clayed, it will bear barley, oats, pease, &c.

⁽³⁷⁾ The barony of Kilnataloon, contains five parishes, viz Agherne, Ballynoe, Mograly, Coole, and Knockmourne, being 41 plowlands, and therein 15677 acres.

⁽³⁸⁾ Kil, a church, tal, over, oon, the river.

⁽³⁹⁾ MS. fir Richard Cox.

CHAP. I. HISTORY of CORK.

BOK I n thi

lide o

rch a ound

ie ba nd on nerly

, the

on of

and,

his

ote,

ver

elf

for

ar

of 1

parish church, which, in old Irish, was named Moidghealladh, i. e. the church of the vow. At this castle, Thomas, the great earl of Desmond, resided, who had a favourite steward, that often took very great liberties with his lord; and, by his permission, tyrannized over the earl's tenants, equally with his mafter. This steward, unknown to the earl, gave an invitation, in his lord's name, to a great number of the chiefs of Munster, with their followers, to come and spend a month at this castle. The invitation was accepted, and crowds of gentlemen flocked in, to the great surprise of Desmond, who began to be alarmed, left sufficient provision should not be found for such a number of guefts. They had not stayed many days, when provisions, in reality, began to fail, and, at last, the earl's domesticks informed him, that they could not possibly furnish out a dinner for the next day. The earl was in a great streight, and knew not what to do, for his pride could not brook to let his guests know any thing of the matter, besides, his favourite steward, who used to help him in such difficulties, was absent. At length, he thought of astratagem to save his credit, and inviting all his company to hunt next morning, ordered his fervants to let fire to the castle as soon as they were gone, and to pretend it was done by accident. The earl and his company hunted all the forenoon; and from the rifing grounds, he every moment expected, with an heavy heart, to fee Mogeely in a flame. At length, about dinner time, to his great furprife, his favourite fleward arrived, mounted upon a fresh horse, whom the earl threatened severely for being lo long ablent at fuch a juncture. The steward told him, he arrived just time enough at the castle to prevent his orders from being executed; and farther, that he had brought a large prey of corn and cattle, sufficient to sublist him and his conspany for some months; which news not a little rejoiced rejoiced the earl, who returned with his guests to the castle, where they found sufficient plenty of every thing they wanted. The ruins of this caffle shew it to have been a very large and stately build. ing.

Kilmacow.

The other castles, are Kilmscow, about a mile W. of Tallow, it was built by John Fitz-Gerald, descended from the house of Macollop. This castle, with one plowland adjoining to it, being demised to Richard Joke, the 1st of July, 1486, was, by him, assigned to Richard Christial, Jen. 30, 1593, and by him, to fir Richard Boyle, Jan. 7, 1604. Near it, is the dwelling house and office of the revd. Mr. Thomas Squire. This castle has very lately fallen down (40), Conpough.

A mile west of Mogeely, is Connough castle, which belonged to Thomas Fitz-Gerald Roe, It was demised to fir Richard Boyle, by fir James Fullerton, anno 1603. Near it, is a stone bridge over the river Bride. This caftle is an high fquare tower, built on a steep rock, and commands an extensive prospect over the adjacent country. More west, is the small parish church of Knockmourne in repair, the only remains of an ancient corporation, which was entirely burnt down, by the white knight, with many other churches and villages, in Defmond's rebellion. A mile west of this last, is Aghern, where was, formerly, another castle of the Fitz-Geralds, on this river, it is now a good house, with orchards, gardens and other plantations, of Mr. Giffard, pleasantly feated on the Bride: Near it, is the parish church in repair.

⁽⁴⁰⁾ At this place, the first earl of Cork had very large iron works. I find, by the accounts of iron in the castle of Lismore, there were made here, for his lotdship, in seven years, 21,000 tons of bar iron, which at 181, the ton, as it was then fold, was worth 378,000l. Sterl. Most of the mine was dug at Ballyregan. The bar-iron, I find, did not stand his lordihip in more than 3l. a ton, wood being then very plenty.

OR II

ts to

y of

aftle

uild-

mile ald,

This

ing 86,

811.

An.

164

lt

Ûŝ

m

1

ıt

In this small barony, are some good improve-Curryglass ments, particularly at Curryglass, a neat pleasant village, prettily planted, and well watered; in which (befides other gentlemen's houses) is an elegant feat, formerly possessed by William Maynard, elq; then collector of Cork, but, of late, gone much to decay, being in the hands of the On this land, is a white clay, with which the above-named gentleman covered the walls of wood, that, for its imoothness and whiteness, was much admired. At this place, is a large well grown cedar (not many years ago) raised from seed brought from the West-Indies, from which tree many others have been propagated by layers. At Curryglass, is an holly tree, perhaps, the largest of the species in Ireland. Here are also witch elm that bear feed.

At Ballynoe, two miles fouth of Knockmourne, near the decayed church, are fome large ruins, faid to have been a religious house, but of what order I cannot find, either from tradition or record; and near it, is a good chalybeat spaw.

There are feveral plantations of cider fruit in this barony, and in the neighbourhood towards the banks of the Bride and Black-water.

Mr. Philips, in his poem on that liquor, thus beautifully characterifes feveral kinds of this fruit,

The Pippin burnish'd o'er with gold, the moile Of sweetest honey'd taste, the fair Pearmain, Temper'd, like comliest nymph, with red and white; Nor does the Elliot least deserve thy care, Nor John Apple, whose withered rind, intrench'd With many a surrow, aptly represents Decrepid age; why should we fing the Thrist, Codling or Pomeroy, or of pimpled coat The Russet, or the Cat's-head, weighty orb Enormous in its growth.—

The

The Burlington crab, or earl of Cork's pippin, and an harsh austere apple, called the Kekagee, with a mixture of golden pippins, are most esteemed in this county for making the best and strongest cider (41).

CHAP. II.

Containing a Description of the Baronies of Barrymore, Barrets, and Muskery.

To the west of the foregoing small barony, the large one of Barrymore is situated, bounded by it and Imokilly on the east, by Barrets and the liberty of Cork on the west, on the north by Fermoy and Condons, and on the south by the harbour of Cork (1). This country gives title of east to the ancient and noble family of the Barrys. They were first called lords Barry, of Olethan, from

(41) Langly, in his Pomona, fol. London, p. 149. fays, to make this account of our ciders as compleat as I can, I must, in the last place, mention to you another fort, which hath not been heard of among us, more than fix or seven years: The name of it is, Cockagee or Cackagee, (for the word, as sar as I can learn, is Irish, in which I, as well as you, am no critick.) The fruit is originally from Ireland, and the cider is much valued in that country. About 16 or 18 years hence (if I am rightly informed) it was first brought over, and promoted about Minehead, in Somersetshire. Some gentlemen of that country have got enough of it to make 5, 6 or 8 hogsheads a year of the cider; and such as have to spare from their own tables, I am told, sell it from 4 to 81. an hogshead.

(1) It contains 30 parishes, viz. Clonmult, Dungorny, Inchenebacky, Ballyspillane, Ballynacurra, Garrankinseaky, Aghaddy, Titeskin, Templenicarigy, Ballycorney, Lisgoold, Mogeshy, Carrigtohil, Temple-Robbin, Clonmel, Kilgarvane, Little-Isla d, Cahirlag, Kilquane, Killervane, Temple-Usque, Dunbullogue, Ardnegehy, Kilshanaghan, Rathcormuck, Gortroe, Templebodane, Castle-Lyons, and Britway. There are in it 204 plowlands, containing 79,159 Irish plantation acres.

CHAP. II. HISTORY of CORK.

OOK

pippin,

cagee,

teem.

ongeft

arry-

the

ded

the

by

ar-

earl

ys.

an,

m

to

ff, ot

he

:.)

m

d

from this territory; and were summoned to parliament, as lord baron Barry, of Barry's-Court, ann. 1490, the 6th of Henry VII. They have also long enjoyed the title of viscount Buttevant, in this county; and were created earls of Barrymore, Feb. 23, 1627-8, the 3d of Charles I. On the 12th of Dec. 2d of Charles I. letters patent passed to David viscount Buttevant, of the manors of Barn's Court, Castle-Lyons, Buttevant, Timeleague, Rathbarry, Shandon, and divers other lands. King Charles II. in a warrant directed to the duke of Ormond, lord lieutenant of Ireland, takes notice of a petition of Richard earl of Barrymore, fetting forth, that the above manors were passed by letters metent to his father; to which there belonged feveral lands, known by distinct names, not mentioned in the patent, but specified in a schedule annexed to the petition; and praying directions. The king for new letters patent to be pailed. referred this petition to the confideration of his grace the lord lieutenant, who, with the privy council, upon examining the same, made out new letters patent, in which several other lands, not mentioned in the former ones, were included.

This barony is, for the greatest part, rough and hilly, towards the N. near the S. and E. it is indifferently fruitful, and has in it several good tracts of lime-stone, particularly near the river Bride; and also a large vein running through it from Cork. It has some considerable high mountains to the N. W. called Nagle's mountains, ranged along the south of the Black water; from their feet, the river Bride, which runs through this barony (there being also another of the same name in Muskery) takes its meandering course down to Tallow. Many of these mountainous tracts, which, in the winter season, are unfrequented by man and beast, are, in summer, no unelegant places of abode. The vast and extended prospect they afford over the well-cultivated

cultivated plains beneath them, at once fill the eye with delight, and the mind with fatisfaction. In dry weather, the air is far from being unwhole some, being then filled with aromatic perfume, from various plants; and the heath, from its ruffet brown, is then in flower, and cloathed in purple and scarlet.

Leaving the fmall barony of Kilnataloon, the first place on the banks of the Bride, is the castle of Robert's-Town, (being an high square tower) built by Robert de Barry, as a frontier to their territory, against the invasions and depredations of the Fitz-Geralds, of Coshbride, dangerous and powerful neighbours, when force gave a title to possessing possessing the possessing power of the power

Caftle-Lyons.

A mile W. is Castle-Lyons, called Castlelehan, from the O-Lehans, an ancient frish sept that posfeffed it, and who gave their name to a great part of this country (2). It is a well built market town, pleasantly fituated, and well watered, in a rich fruitful foil, a fhort way from the river Bride; and has fome fhare of trade. In this place, John de Barry founded a monastery of conventual francifcans, anno 1307. Upon the dissolution, it was granted to the earl of Cork, who affigned it to his fon-in-law David, the 1st earl of Barrymore, or rather to his daughter, for, in his will, he fays, " he bequeaths the rents and profits of this houle " to his daughter Barrymore, to buy her gloves and or pins (3). A confiderable part of this abbey ftill remains, particularly the choir, nave, and steeple of the church. This town lies well for the linen manufacture, and is diftant twelve re-The lord Barrymore has puted miles from Cork. here a ftrong and ftately house, built on the foundation of the O-Lehan castle. It is a large square building,

(3) Copy of his will, at Lismore.

⁽a) There is a town of this name on the river Dordons, near Bourdeaux, in France.

CHAP. II. HISTORY of CORK.

OK IL

ill the ction.

vhole

imes.

ruffet

urple

the

aftle wer)

heir

s of

and

e to 18.

an,

irt

et

n

-

building, with a court in the centre: On one fide of this square, is a spacious hall, hung found with muskets, swords, bayonets, pistols, and other weapons, ranged in feveral figures. The kitchen forms another fide of the building, which is watered by an aqueduct, contrived by a common Itish miller, at an inconfiderable expence; a celebrated undertaker from England, having failed in the attempt, to bring this water, by another course, after a good fum was expended thereon. On the N. fide of the house, is a noble gallery, 90 feet long, and 2 stories high, but it is yet unfinished. There are here several good apartments, furnished with family pictures, among others, two originals of Richard the first earl of Cork, and his second lady. The gardens, with a large canal, lie to the W. and near the house, is a charming deer-park, through which the river Bride runs. In throwing down some of the old walls of Castle-lehan, a chimney piece was discovered, with this infeription, LEHAN O-CULLANE HOCFECIT, MC IHI. Which flews that stone buildings were much earlier in Ireland, than our modern antiquarians allow them to have been (4). Places near Caftle-Lyons, fare Cool, Mr. Peard's, fo named from its being in a corner of Condon's barony, which runs into Bar-

(4) I fear, it has been too hastily afferted, that there were no structures of time and stone in this kingdom before the 12th century. The small round towers, built, according to Cambrensis*, more patrio, i. e. after the custom of the country, seem to imply an established method of building for a long time. The first stone buildings in Ireland, are said to have been the castle of Tuam, built anno 1161, by Roderic O-Connor, king of Conaught, which was a thing then said to be so new and uncommon, that it became samous among the Irish, by the name of the wenderful castle. Malachy O-Morgair, archbishop of Armagh, who died in 1148, was the first Irishman (or, at least, one of the first) who built a chapel of stone at Bangor, of which, his cotemporary St. Bernard, in his life, says, the natives were astonished at the novelty. Ware's Antiquities.

Topograp. Hibern. diftinct. z. cap. 9.

rymore; near it, stand the ruins of a church; here the Condons had formerly a castle. Toormore, a new house, and good improvements, of Mr. Barret; and Ballydorgan, Mr. Lear's feat. Ballinterry, between Castle-Lyons and Rathcormuck, belong to lord Barrymore; it is agreeably fituated, and well planted.

Rathcormuck, i. e. Charles-Fort, is a small neat

Rathcormuck.

market town and borough (111 measured Irish miles from Cork,) near the river Bride, adorned with a pretty parish church and steeple, and a seffion house, where the county sessions are held once a year; it returns two members to parliament. Lifnegar. Near it, is Lifnegar, a fine improvement, the feat of Redmund Barry, esq; with pleasant gardens, large plantations of cider fruit, and the nonpareil apple: There is a fine canal to the east of the house, stocked with fish. The town of Rathcormuck also belongs to this gentleman, who is descended from an ancient branch of the Barry family, commonly called Mac-Adam, who have been feated here 500 years, and formerly fat in parliament, particularly David de Barry, of Rathcormuck, who fat in the upper house, in a parliament held goth of Edward I. anno 1302. S. of Rathcormuck, is a fair stone bridge over the Bride, upon which is this inscription. "The foundation of this " bridge was laid June 22, 1734, col. Redmund " Barry, Jonas Devonshire, and James Barry, gent. " being overseers thereof." To the N. of Rathcormuck, is a range of mountains, the last of which, to the E. is named Cairn-Tierna, i. e. The Thane's Heap; on the top of which, is a large rude heap of stones, said to take its name from the thane of lord of this country, holding affemblies thereon in a judicial way. It also was faid to be the place where they elected their chiefs, as was the cuftom, when tanistry prevailed in this country; which shews a different use of these cairns or heaps, befides ides their being fet up as funeral monuments. This ill is very conspicuous from many parts of the country.

K II.

here

re, a Bar-

erry,

ong

and neat rish

ned fef-

nce nt.

cat

ns.

eil

he

1-

6-

in 1

-

t

.

1

From Rathcormuck W. this barony is coarfe and mountainous. Within three miles of Cork, is Sarsfield's town, or Sarsfield's court, (occupied by Sarsfield's Mr. Grey,) the estate of John Putland, of ublin, court. efg; from a terrace in the garden, is one of the fnest prospects in all this county. A mile to the S. s Rivers-town, a pleasant seat of the lord bishop Riversof Cork. The house is beautified with several cuious pieces of stucco, performed by the Franchinis. brothers. The river of Glanmire runs through his gardens, banked into ferpentine canals, which are locked with carp, tench, &c. the river being grated at both ends. A pleasant park, stocked with deer, comes close to the garden walls. The adjacent country is here finely improved, well laid out, and cultivated. Glanmire is a small village, prettily planted : Glanmire.

Here is a curious bolting mill, with another near Ballyrochine, both belonging to Mr. Samuel Pike, merchant of Cork: The water-wheel of this last mill is 24 feet diameter, being an over that wheel, the cog-wheel and axle-tree are very large, thefe were the first of the kind erected in this part of the kingdom, and stand very convenient for bringing wheat, and fending flour and meal by water, from and to the city of Cork. Mr. Pike informed me, that the best and largest grained wheat of this country grows near the city, the ground being manured with bran, from whence starch is extracted. At Ballyrochine, is a slitting mill, for making rod-iron; and also a paper-mill, all worked by the river of Glanmire, which discharges itself into Cork harbour, through a deep and romantie glin, pleafantly wooded on its fides.

Towards its exit, is Dunkettle, now the feat of Dunkettle Richard Tonson, esq; affording a fine prospect of a great part of Cork harbour, and the river Lee, is to the city; which from Black-Rock to the tom (except a narrow channel formed by the river) a quite dry at low water, with body banks on ea fide; fo that upon the ebb, veffels and boats at often fast in the mud, as Silius Italicus remarkso Ravenna in Italy,

Quaque gravi remo limolis legniter undis Lenta paludolæ perscindunt Ragna Ravenna.

Encumbered in the mud, their oars divide, With heavy strokes, the thick unwieldy tide.

At high water, the channel is sufficiently deep to vessels of 100 tons; but this shallowness of the upper part of the river, is amply recompensed by the depth, capaciousness, and security of the harbour lower down, in which several sleets may ride in different parts of it, without seeing each other. In the house of Dunkettle, there are some good paintings, in crayon and oil; the gardent slope to the water; and there is lately a new enclosed park.

Carrigtohil, &c. Carrigtohil, is a small village, eight miles E. of Cork (5), seated on an arm of the sea, which a high water, flows under a bridge of four arches, and overspreads a large tract of land, making an excellent marsh for fattening horses. In the parish church is a monument of Italian marble, erected to the memory of sir James Cotter, anno 1688. New ⁽⁵⁾ The first earl of Cork takes notice, in his will, that is order to prevent other great men from coming to purchase part of Carrigtohil, which might prove troublesome to the earl of Barrymore, and to make his manor and town entire, he purchased several lands of the Newtons, and Terrys, near this place and Barry's-court, and leaves his fordship the whole benefit thereof, provided his fon Dungarvan be made a saver thereby, and he joins his daughter the lady Barrymore in this purchase, to be enjoyed by her and their hem for ever.

HISTORY of CORK. CHAP. II.

OOK H

Lee, p

e tow

ver)

on cad

ats att

arksol næ.

L. 1.

ide.

ISON.

ep for

f the enled

f the may each forme

dens

en-

E. of i at

and cel-

rcb.

the

Vear

this

at in

Lafe

the

tire,

near ade

ту-

eirs

this place, to the N. E. is a large cavity, running under a rock, for a confiderable way in the earth. A mile to the W. is Killycloin, an agreeable feat of alderman Knap, of Cork. Anngrove, formerly called Ballinsperig, at no great distance from the other, is finely fituated, on a rifing hill, which commands an extensive prospect over Cork harbour, the great island, &c. It was sometime since a feat of the late earl of Barrymore, when lord Buttevant, and is now occupied by Mr. Grady: And half a mile to the S. is the ruin of the castle of Barry's-Court, which gave title of baron to the earls of Barrymore. Near this castle, is the passage into the great island (6), called, formerly, the island of Bar- Great rymore, from its belonging to that family. As a island. defence to this passage (7), the only one by which the island can be entered at low water, stands Bellvelly castle (8), built by one of the Hodnet family, formerly a very potent fept in this country. On an escutcheon, cut in stone on the castle wall, is a bend lozengee. This island forms one fide of Cork harbour, and is four miles long, and two broad. The chief place in it is Cove, a village seven miles Cove. VOL. I. from

(6) In the great-island, are three parishes, Clonmel, Templerobbin, and Kilgarvan; and 19 plowlands, every one of which are contiguous to the fea; so that each proprietor in the island has an equal benefit of water carriage.

(7) The first earl of Ornery, in a letter to the duke of Ormond, wrote in June, 1666, fays, " that if he were an " enemy, and to invade Ireland, he would land in the great-" illand, of all places; for it frands in Cork harbour, has "but one pass into it, is above six miles about, a fertile " place, and nothing to oppose their landing there; which " also is in the midst of the best quarters, almost equally dif-" tant from Cork, Youghal, and Kinfale." He fays, " he " intended to fend forces into it, and to repair the fort and "Bellvelly caftle, both which ftand on the pass."

Orrery's letters, vol. 2. p. 36. Of this fort there are not any remains at prefent. letter was wrote at the time of the French and Dutch war. (8) Bellvel'y, i. e. Beal a Vallah, the way to the ford.

from Cork, built under a high steep hill, the flore on all this fide of the island being bold, and the water of a great depth. Opposite to this village his majesty's ships of war ride, and the larget vessels trading to Cork, generally unchor at the place; upwards of 200 fail having been moved here often, during the late war; with fufficient room for twice as many in the bay. From Com. the harbour's mouth feems closed, by the island called Spike, lying opposite to the entrance; so the this harbour is not unlike the fine description given by Virgil, in his first Æneid, of a beautiful por Est in secessi longo locus; insula portum Efficit, objectu laterum, quibus omnis ab alto Frangitur, inque finus scindit sele unda reductu: Hinc atque hinc vafte rupes, geminique minantur In coelum scopuli; quorum sub vertice late Æquora tuta filent, tum filvis scena coruseis Defuper, horrentique atrum nemus imminet umbra.

Within a long recess, there lies a bay, An island shades it from the rolling sea, And forms a port, secure for ships to ride, Broke by the jutting land on either fide, In double streams the briny waters glide, Betwixt two rows of rocks: A fylvan icene Appears above, and groves for ever green

Hawlbow

The eastern channel of the island is the deepest, lin-iffand and all large thips fail through it. Belides Spike island, there is another, call Hawlbowlin, lying west of it, happily situated, serving as another mound to prevent the tide of ebb, and land floods, from damaging ships, riding before Cove. Thus, nature has formed a port, provided for against every accident, in as regular a manner, as the ableft engueers could possibly do, had they the power of removing

HISTORY of CORK. CHAP, II.

NOE I

e fhore

d the illage

arget

t this cored

ficient

Core

fland

that riven

STOCK.

lto

clas:

intur

pinet

N.

ft,

ke

er

IS,

ry

moving rocks and iflands at pleafure. In this ifland f Hawlbowlin, are the ruins of a small fort, built by the lord deputy Montjoy, in 1601 (9), fo fimated, that no thip of any confiderable burden could pass to or from Cork, but under the command of its cannon

Cove is inhabited by feamen and revenue officers, a mile from it, is the parish church of Clonmel, Clonmel with a decent parsonage house. In the church, is a church. handsome monument of marble, with an inscription, in gold letters, to the memory of George Rogers, esq; of Ashgrove, in this illand, who died May 11, A. D. 1710, in the 61st year of his age, with the names of several of his children. The arms, argent, a chevron betwixt three stags tripant, lable. Here is a grave-stone to the memory of Mr. Thomas Stowe, of Newark, in Nottinghamshire, an officer in general Frampton's regiment, who died in this harbour, after returning from the late Mg

(9) On the 14th of January, 1601, fir George Carew, lord prelident of Munster, with the lord deputy Montjoy, went, by boat, from Cork to Hawlbowlin, to view it, in order to have a fortified; whereupon, direction was given to Paul Ive, an engineer, to raife a fortification there, and another at Castle-

The fort built here was a fquare fortification, with four bulwarks and curtains; in the middle, flood a cattle, 22 feet iquare within the walls, ascended to by steps, and defended by a small draw-bridge. This castle still remains, with the runs of the bastions. To the S. was an handsome gateway, with a guard-house annexed. On the north of the island (level with the water) was a platform, mounted with ordnance. Adacent to this, was the gunner's houle; the ramparts were mounted with a deep ditch. Towards the east, a well of tresh water was funk, which still remains. Pacat, Hibern. p. 252. In this island, a party of gentlemen, some years ago, built a banqueting house, and called themselves the water club, having several sine pleasure-boats, most of which carried guns, colours, &c. They appointed their admiral and vice-admiral in this little fleet, which ran several races. The day generally concluded with firing of guns, feafting, &c.

expedition agaist Port L'Orient in France, with these lines.

Eximiæ spei adolescentem. Oftendunt terris hunc tantum fata, Neque ultra effe finunt.

This church is in good repair, and on the east is handsome gallery for seamen, &c.

grove.

Ropayne's Not far west from the castle of Bellvelly, is Ronayne's-grove, formerly called Hodnet's-wood 1 good house, and handsome improvements, of Philip Ronayne, efq. From the gardens, one has charming view of the river, and hipping, up to Cork; as also the town of Passage, on the opposite This gentleman has distinguished himself by feveral essays, in the most sublime parts of the mathematicks; among others, by a treatife of algebra, which has passed several editions, and is much read and esteemed, by all the philomaths of the present time. He has invented a cube, which is perforated in such a manner, that a second cube of the same dimensions exactly in all respects, may be passed through the same. The possibility of which he has demonstrated, both geometrically and algebraically, and which has been actually put in practice, by the ingenious Mr. Daniel Vorfter, of Cork, with whom I faw two fuch cubes.

East of the parish church, is Ballydelea, a well planted feat, of the late Richard Bettefworth, ele furrounded with maple, beech, filver fir, and other timber trees.

On the E. ferry, is Belgrove, a pleasant feat of Belgrove. John Harper, esq; of Cork. From a fine terrace over the gardens, is an agreeable prospect of the eaftern channel of the island, which is here broad and deep, forming a noble basin. This terrace is near a quarter of an English mile long, broad and high, adorned with vafes, urns, & and is the fireft Ballydelea.

OOK I

e, With

aft isa

is Ro-

od, 1

f Phihas a

up to polite.

mfelf

of the

of al-

nd is hs of chis

ube,

nay

of

and

in

of

of the kind in this county. Beneath the terrace, is a pretty bowling-green, with gardens, and pleafant walks. To the S, is a spreading grove, which covers an hilly country, down to the water's edge. Near the house, among other improvements, is an hop-yard which thrives well, as also a considerable plantation of hemp, a commodity as useful as it is profitable. In the W. passage, almost opposite to Mr. Harper's, they take an excellent oyster in dredges, called Kilvokery oysters. On the N. side of the island, is Ashgrove, a fine plantation, deer park, and good house, of John Rogers, esq. (10) And almost opposite on the main land, is Rossmore, belonging to John Coghlan, esq. agreeably situated, about a mile from Barry's court.

At Waterstown, near the E. passage, was a castle, the chief residence of the Barry samily in this island, but it has been long since demolished.

Near Cuskinny, is a new erected fortification, The new which commands the mouth of the harbour, a fort battery of 20 pieces of ordnance, 22 pounders, is now finished, and the guns mounted.

Near the E. point, called Battery point, is limeflone. Sea fand, for manure, may be had on every fide of the island; yet, notwithstanding its excellent situation, and the advantage of a short and safe water-carriage to Cork, tillage is but slowly prosecuted here. This place abounds with a great number of springs, and rivulets of fine wholesome, water, to the great convenience of the inhabitants, and the shipping in the harbour.

The western extremity of Barrymore, is bounded Muskery by a part of Muskery, viz. a portion of Whitchurch parish, which is coarse ground. In it, stands the ruined castle of Carricknavar (11), built on a small

(10) It was formerly named Ballymac hane-Roe, i. e. The town of the fon of red John; and here was also a castle of the Barrys'.

(11) This castle was built by Daniel Mac-Carty, second for of Cormac lord Muskery, who died, anno 1616.

R

brook that divides this parish into two parts: The other being in the barony of Fermoy, and is do tached a considerable way from the rest of that be rony.

The manor of Blarney, is separated from the rel of Muskery, it being surrounded by the barony of Barrets, and the liberties of Cork.

Blarney.

Blarney was a very strong castle, and noble sent of the earls of Clancarty, who forfeited a great estate in this county, for their adhering to king James (12). It lies within three miles of Cork, and

(12) The earl of Clancarty was first summoned to parlisment as baron of Blarney, by queen Efizabeth and created viscount of Muskery, and earl of Clancarty, in 1658, the

roth of Charles II.

Blarney castle was built by Cormac Mac-Carty, surnamed Laider, (he came into the lordship 1449.) He also built the castles of Kilerea and Caricknamuck, the abbey of Kilera, and the numbery of Ballyvacadane, with five churches. He was wounded at Caricknamuck, by Owen the fon of Tiege Mac-Carty, his cousin german, and died in Cark, being Mac-Carty, his cousin german, and died in Cark, being Mac-Carty, his collate was buried in Kilcrea abbey, anno dom. 1494. This estate was forseited in the wars of 1641, by Donough lord Muskery, but the greatest part of it was restored by the act of settlement. This lord was general of the Irish forces in Munster, and very active in that rebellion. Ludlow informs us, that he was charged with having put several of the English to death, on the road between his house of Macroomp and Cork, for which he was apprehended, and tried for his life. The trial lafted long, by reason of a clause which he urged in his defence, from a printed copy of the articles made against him, which, " although" (fays Ludlow, who was one of the commissioners appointed to try him) " it had been unjust for me to grant in the terms there mentioned, yet would have cleared him, and thrown the guilt and blame upon me; for articles given " ought to be made good. But this clause, upon fearth into

"the original, which I kept, appeared to have been inferted by themselves, in the print which they produced for evidence, under pretence of having lost the original articles. Notwithstanding which, it appearing, that though divers of [&]quot;the English were murdered by the convoy appointed to conduct them fafe to Cork; the lord Muskery had taken what fare he could for their fecurity, and had done what in him

CHAP. II. HISTORY of CORK.

BOOK !

s: The

d is de

the ref

barony

ole feat

greet

king k, and

cativ

parlis.

created

8, the named

ilt the lcres,

He Tiege

Was

, but

ient.

76-

WES

on

Red

ice,

ch,

ers

in

m, en

ed

greatly annoyed that city in the war of 1641, until

" lay to bring the person who was guilty of that blood to "justice. The court acquitted him, and he was permitted, according to his articles, to pass into Spain.

Ludlow's Memoirs, p. 442.

Colonel Mac-Carty Reagh, and feveral other persons, were also tried, at this time, for the same crimes; but the colonel was acquitted.

Ludlow, ib. p. 440.

This lord Mufkery being created earl of Clancarty, by king Charles II. died in London, August 5th, 1665. He had three ions, Charles, Callaghan, and Justin. Charles lord Muskery died before his father, being fain in a fea-fight against the Dutch, June 2, 1665. He was a great favourite of the duke of York, and was honourably interred at Westminster; his only fon Charles James succeeded him; but he dying a minor, his uncle Callaghan became earl of Clancarty, being brought out of a convent in France. He married Elizabeth, daughter to the earl of Kildare, by whom he had four daughters, and one fon, named Denough, who was the fourth earl. was educated by the archbishop of Canterbury, and bred up carefully at Oxford. His uncle Justin (without the knowledge of his friends) married him, when not fixteen years of age, to the earl of Sunderland's daughter, and fent him into this king dom, where he continued a protestant, till the coming in of king James, and then turned to mass. King James gave him a troop of horse, which he soon composed of the common lrish, and with them committed many ravages. One was a murder perpetrated upon a poor butcher at Mallow, who refuling his men an horse, they violently seized him by force, and would never return him to the owner, but the man making complaint to the judges of affize, they ordered the earl to make him restitution, which he promised to do ; but as soon as the judges quitted the country, he masched with a party of his troopers to the butcher's house, and told him he came to make him fatisfaction for his horfe; whereupon, ordering his troopers to make ready a blanket, they took the man and forcibly toffed him in it, and every now and then fuffered him to fall upon the payement, till he was so bruised, that he was left quite dead upon the spot. The family of this butcher had a confiderable tract of Chincarty's effate granted them by king William, worth now 5001. per ann. and they are now called the lands of the Butcher of Conscience.

it was taken by Roger earl of Orrery (13), then lord Broghill, in 1046. In queen Elizabeth's time, it was reckoned

A poor man, in Clonmel, happened to offend the earl, whom he first beat, and then hung up by the hair of the head; he was taken down alive, but what afterwards came of him he not known. Vid. Secret Confults and Negotiations of the remish party in Ireland, p. 97. Vid. alfo King's State, p. 33.

After the wars were, over, feveral persons in England, particularly the earl of Sunderland, endeavoured to represent lord Chancarty as a faultless person; to have him exchanged for a Dutch officer, who was taken the preceding year, by the French, at the battle of Fleury; and in a short time procure him to be restored to his estate. But the grand jury of this county, particularly encouraged by fir Rich. Cox, who was then second justice of the Common Pleas, drew up a true representation of his practices against the protestants, of his inveterate hatred to the English interest, and the little probability of ever seeing an English plantation in those parts, if he was This representation, in the form of a presentment, was laid before the lords justices, to be transmitted to king William. It was zealously supported by lord Sidney and the earl of Burlington, which had so good an effect, that all the schemes in favour of this earl were defeated, and Mr. justice Cox received the thanks of every protestant of figure in the country. (MS. fir Richard Cox.) King William granted him a pardon, with a pension of 3001. a year during his life, upon condition that he should quit the kingdom in a stated time, and promise never to take up arms against the protestant succession. This nobleman retired to Hamburgh on the Elbe, and purchased a little island in the mouth of that river, from the citizens of Altena, which went by his own name. There he erected a convenient dwelling house, with a range of storehouses, and formed a convenient plan of an useful garden. In this place, he made a confiderable profit by shipwrecks; but continued to give the diffressed all the affistance in his power, and faved the lives of many. His profit arose from the goods thrown on his island, which he placed in his store-houses, and, if demanded by the right owners within the year, he returned them, requiring only two per cent. for the store-room; if not, he made use of them as his own. He died here October 22d, 1734, aged 64; leaving behind him two fons; Robert, late a commodere in the English sleet, commonly called lord Mit fkery; and Justin Mac-Carty, efq. (13) MSS. Cox.

CHAP. II. HISTORY of CORK.

OK II.

n' lord

t Was oned

whom

1 he

im is

e 10-

3.

lord

for

the

this

hen

en-

te-

ity

nt,

he

ne

n

t

reckoned one of the strongest fortresses in Munster the author of Pacata Hibernia, p. 351, describes to be composed of four large piles joined in one which shews that it was formerly much larger than at prefent. It is feated upon a main rock, that fecured it from mining, the walls are eighteen feet thick, and it was likewife flanked with baftions, Anno 1602, Cormac Mac-Dermot Carty was accused of a treasonable correspondence with the Irish rebels, and obliged to deliver up this castle to captain Taafe for the queen's use: This Cormac was a very powerful person, being able to raise 1000 men at a call; he also possessed the castles of Kilcrea and Macroomp; the former he gave up to the lord president Carew, being then his prisoner, but escaped out of his hands soon after. caftle is feated upon an eminence, with a river running beneath it, and on the other fide is a fine lake of about 30 acres, abounding with great quantities of good leeches. In the castle, which is in very good repair, is an original painting, at full length, of Charles XII. king of Sweden, brought hither by the late James Jeffrys, efq; envoy to that monarch, whose father fir James Jeffrys purchased this estate from the crown. This monarch is drawn in the drefs M. Voltaire describes, and the painting feems to be very well executed. Adjoining to the castle, is a fine park, sweetly wooded, and well watered; also a fair bridge over Blarney niver. The gardens of the castle are well laid out, and kept in good order.

The lands about Blarney, are mostly under corn pasture; and dairies occupy the greater part of the adjacent country. The soil is a yellowish clay, which they manure mostly with lime. Plants growing near the lough, were water horehound, water cinquesoil, angelica sylvestris, periclimenum, pal-

ma

(10)

It

ma christi, iris lutea, pedicularis, &c. The wood to the N. side of the lough, consists of oak, ash, birch and alder, but was much greater than at prefent. In this wood, are quarries of limestone Plants observed in the wood were lingua cervins. circea, bugula, tutfan, tormentil, pimpernel with a yellow flower, arm, bear's garlick, eyebright, bulbocastanum; and on the rocks, adianthum, trichomanes, paronycha rutac, &c. This last in great plenty. On the B. fide of the lough, is bed of white clay, probably, a pipe clay. A few years ago, Robert, commonly called ford Muskery, laid claim to a confiderable part of this effate, being affifted, with large furns, by the late dutches of Marlborough: But it was divided into fo many hands, that the fuit feemed of too dangerous a nature to be suffered to go on; and therefore a pelition was laid before the parliament of England, and a stop put to any further proceedings.

At Blarney, is a vein of limettone, from whence there is none to the north, nearer than the Blackwater river. Daws-town, (two miles N. of Blarney) the eftate of John Putland, of Dublin, efq. is a good house, with a pretty plantation, occupied by Rowland Davis, esq. Here are, a very large flow-ring lime, good orchards, gardens and fish-ponds. About a mile to the S. is Ballygibbone, a good house and plantation, held by Mr. Edward Butler, as is Kilowen, all the estate of the same gentleman. The castles of Cloghroe, Cloghphilip and Carignavar, belonged to the Mac-Cartys, and were in the manor of Blarney.

Barrets.

As the small barony of Barrets runs through Muskery, I shall describe it, before I proceed to the remaining part of that barony (14).

(14) It contains 15 parishes, viz. part of Carrigrohan-beg. Ir iscarra, part of Matchy, part of Donaghmore, Kilcoleman, Aglish-Greenagh, part of Garricloyne, Mourne, Desart, part of the M MOK

WOOd

, afh,

an at ftone.

rvins,

With

hum,

aft in 18 4

few Muf-

tate,

chels

iany

na.

peti-

and

ek-

ar-

by by

W-ds.

box

er,

m.

he

It

of

It takes its name from the ancient English family called Barret, of whom, it is faid, that O-Neal earl of Tyrone, anno 1600, when marching by Caftlemore, near Mallow, on his progress to Kinfale, to assist the Spaniards, asked, who lived in that castle? And being told, one Barret, who was a good catholic, and his family possessed of that estate above 400 years; O-Neal swore, in Irish, "no matter, I hate the English churl, as if he came but yesterday."

In the fourthern point of this barony, (in the road Ballyvacaleading from Cork to Bandon, four miles from the dane-abformer,) is a ruined abbey, called Ballyvacadane, founded by Cormac Mac-Carty Mac-Tiege, furnamed Laider, for auftine nuns, about the year 1450. Part of the walls ftill remain.

Ballincolly, a large caftle, not far diffant, was Ballincolan ancient feat of the Barrets, four miles from Cork : ly. Anno 1600, William Barret, of Ballincolly, fubmitted to the queen's mercy, having been concerned in Defmond's rebellion. This castle was garifoned by Cromwell, and; in the late wars, for king James Il. It is built upon a rock, and flanked with towers at each angle. The other chief feat of the Barrets Cafflewas Castlemore, in the northern extremity of this more. barony. William Barret, of that place, efq; was created a baroner, June 4, 1665, now extinct. From the caftle of Carrigrohan, in the liberties of Cork, the river Lee runs through this barony about fix miles, dividing it from Mufkery. Upon this ri- Inifcarra. ver are feveral feats: On the north fide, is Inifcarra, a decent church, and neat built parfonage house. Sirmound Sirmount, the feat of Emanuel Moor, efq; lies a mile more to the W. on a rifing ground over the Lee; it is finely wooded on the east fide, and has a good fouth prospect of a great extent of country.

the Ovens, part of Kiinaglory, part of St. Finbar's, Carrigrohanmore, and Defart. The whole containing 86 plow-lands, and 26282 acres. Castle-Inchy.

Fergus.

Ardrum.

Ballyally.

Mourne preceptory.

Not far from, and opposite to this, are the remains of a castle, named Castle-Inchy, which gave title of Coronody, baron to Justin, lord viscount Mountcashel. Coronody, more to the west, is the seat and improvements of Mr. Crois; east of which, is Fergus, Mr. Farmer's a good plantation. A mile north of Iniscarra, on a rifing ground, is Ardrum, a pleasant seat of fir. John Colthurst, who was created a baronet, August 3, 1744; near which, is the village of Cloghroe. More west, stands Ballyally, an handsome house and park The river Dripof colonel Nicholas Colthurft. fey divides this barony, on the west, from Muskery, over which, is a fair bridge of eight arches; and not far from it, the castle of Carignamuck, now inhabited by Mr. Bear: This cattle belonged to the Mac-Cartys, being built by the founder of Blarney. In this place, which lies on the Mulkery fide of the river, Cromwell had a garrison for a considerable The northern part of this barony, is coarse and mountainous: The most noted place in it formerly, was Mourne, or Ballynamony; in which was a preceptory of knights hospitallers, or knights of St. John of Jerusalem (15), founded in the reign of king John, under the invocation of St. John Baptift, by an English gentleman, called Alexander de Sanc-The Irish call it Monaster na Mona: ta Helena. It had feveral great possessions, particularly a large domain on the spot, five plowlands in the parish of Temple-Michael in Muskery, besides a great number of parish tythes. The brook, which runs on the north of it, into the Clydah river, is, in old records, called Glame Ballycollen; and the land, on which it was crected, ⁽¹⁵⁾ This preceptory belonged first to the knights templars, who were suppressed in Ireland, by order of king Edward II. anno 1307, directed to fir John Wogan, lord deputy, who executed the same on the 3d of February that year. It was computed, that the king got 400l. value of their effects in Ireland, a great fum in those times. The templars lands and possessions were, foon after, given to the knights holpitallers.

CHAP. II. HISTORY of CORK.

OK !

mains

itle of

Coro-

nents

ner's,

on a

John

ılt 3,

More

park

rip-

cery,

not nha-

the

ney.

the

ble

arle

or-

was

of

of

ft,

C-

a:

of

er

d

18

erected, named Ballyknockane. The poffessions of this preceptory were granted to Tiege Mac-Carty, whose descendants forfeited them by the rebellion of 1641; yet they are still called by the name of masters of Mourne. By an inquisition taken at Cork, Nov. 4. anno 1584, Ballynamony was found to be an ancient corporation. It was destroyed foon after (16) the death of the duke of Clarence, lord lieutenant of Ireland, by Morogh O-Brien, who, in the reign of king Edward IV. rebelled in Thomond, ruined several walled towns in Munfter, and, in this county, Mourne and Buttevant. It is fituated on the high road, three miles S. of Mallow. The body of the ruined church still remains, which was 180 feet long. The foundation walls of the preceptory enclosed several acres of grounds: The fouth was defended by a strong castle, which was lately standing; and there were two towers to the W. but several parts of it have been of late demolifhed, and the stones used in repairing the turnpike road. In the church, are some grave stones of the Barrets, Quinlans, and other ancient Irish families.

A short way from this ruin, is a small well sinished church and steeple, adorned with a spire and weather-cock, called Ballynamona, rebuilt A.D. Ballyna 1717; at which time, in the ruins of the old church, monawas found a large spur, and the head of an antique spear, probably belonging to one of the knights buried here in his martial habiliments. They were given to the late sir Matthew Deane, who contributed to the building of the church. Over the W. door, on the steeple, is this inscription.

Gloria Deo in excelsis
Templum hoc Antiquum
De Temple-Michael alias Mourne-Abbey.
Jam diu dirutum
Reconditum suit

Anno

(16) Davis's Hift. Relat.

Anno Redemptionis MDCCXVII,

'Et ab inauguratione ferenillimi Georgii Domini Regis tertio.

Fear God, honour the King.

Adjacent to the church, is a charity-februal house, and over the door,

"This Charity School was erected for the Benefit of the poor Children of this parks."
Train up a Child, &co.

This is the neatest country church in this county, it was built, together with the parfonage house, during the incumbency of the late ford billion of Meath (doctor Henry Maule) then minister of this parish. The chancel is semicircular. The alux piece is composed of fix stated pilesters, of the corinchian order, with carved cherubims, neatly gilded, between them; on the pannels, are the Lord's prayer, creed, and commandments in gold letters. At the W. end, is an handsome gallery, erected at the charge of the late fir Matthew Deane, for the charity children. The pulpit, and founding board, are neatly carved and gilded; as is the cover of the font, the bason of which is marble. In the burial ground, grow great quantities of bonus henricus, or English mercury. The lands hereabouts are mostly under Rock for dairies, producing little corn , the foil being rocky, compoled of a kind of red state, with a yellow brittle clay, and fornetimes a cold white clay intermixed, and fo continues until within a mile or two of Cork, where the country begins to put on a more beautiful appearance, by the industry of the inhabitants.

Bottlehill.

Bottle-hill, midway between Cork and Mallow, is remarkable for a front Kirmish, fought there between the English and king James's forces, on the 20th of April, 1601, wherein the former got

K II

bule,

refle

i it

of

this tar

COld.

d's

TI.

at

he

d,

of he

ús

d

the victory; which will be more particularly related in the third book of this work.

The barony of Muskery (17) is bounded, on the Muskery. N by an uncultivated mountainous tract, upwards of ten miles long, and, in some parts, fix miles over, called the Boggra, which is a common to the The Begadjacent estates. In winter, it is, for the most part, gra. deep, marthy, and unpassable; but, in summer, hard and firm, producing grafs and heath, and is then grazed by vaft herde of cattle, which are removed to the lower lands when this feafon is over. This tract, though it stands high, is yet flat, and surrounded by higher grounds almost on every fide, particularly to the N. and W. The whole place is covered with black fogs, for the greatest part of the year. Several confiderable rivers, belides an infinite number of brooks, flow from this wild On the fouth, the most considerable are Blarney river, the Driply, the Lany, the Foheriff, &c. which empty themselves into the Lee. the north, the Clydagh, the Lyre, the Oovane, Racool river, and the Fin-Awn, which discharge themselves into the Black-water.

These lines of Mr. Thomson, make no ill drawn picture of the Boggra.

The brown burnt earth
Of fruits and flowers, and every verdure spoil'd,
Barren and bare, a joyless dreary waste
Thin cottag'd; and in time of trying need Abandon'd.
Those roving mists, that constant now begin

(17) It contains the following parishes, St. Owens, or the Ovens, a part of St. Finbar's, Ballynaboy, Desartmore, Knockavilly, Kilbonane, Moviddy, Aglish, Canaboy, Macloney, Kilmurry, Kilmihil, Inchegeelagh, Kilnamartery, Macroomp, Aghabologe, Aghinagh, Kilcoleman, Matehy, Iniscarra, Donaghmore, Dunbolloge, part of Whitehurch, part of Greenagh, Templemichael, being 160,072 Irish plantation acres, and 367 plewlands.

(T)

To smoak along the hilly country, these. The mountain eisterns fill, those grand reserves. Of water, scoop'd among the hollow rocks. Whence gush the streams, the ceases fountains play,

And their unfailing stores the rivers draw. To fend a thundring torrent to the main.

THOMSON'S Seafor

To the west of the Boggra, are the mountains of Mushry, as they are commonly called, but rather of Mushery; and are distinguished into Mushery more and beg, i. e. the larger and lesser mountains. These range partly north and south, high at both extremes, and hollow in the middle; and are exteemed the highest in this county. The upper part is covered with sedgy grass and bog, the took with london pride (18). The torrents have won several deep surrows into their sides, which display no other soil but slaty pebbles, of a red, white, and dark colour; but nothing of any metallic substance.

Donaghmore. The parish of Donaghmore, lies in the N. I. part of this barony, and bounds the Boggra. A considerable part of it belongs to the see of Cloyne together with a vast tract of the Boggra, which by degrees, might be reclaimed. The patron saint was named St. Lachteen, and some years ago the parish priest kept here a brazen hand, as an holy relick, by which the people swore upon all solemn occasions; but this hand was removed by one of the titular bishops of Cloyne. There are, of late, some very good improvements in this parish, as at Donaghmore, the revd. Horace Townshend's Derry, Mr. Daniel Giba's. The recorder of tork, Joseph Bennet, esq, has also a pretty lodge ere.

⁽¹⁸⁾ Other plants are, ladies mantle, tormentil, devil's-bit, greater-spurge, butter-wort, milk-wort, primula veris, ulmaria, germander, pedicularis, greater cardamine, mountais madder, golden rod, golden saxirage, &c.

The next parish, to the west, is Aghabolloge ; Aghabolear the old church, is a celebrated well, dedicated loge.

o'St. Olan. In the church-yard, is a frone, caled St. Olan's cap, by which the common people to fwear on all folemn occasions; and they preend, that if this frome was carried off, it would eturn of itself to its old place. At Magourney, a particle of this parish, is a new parish church, and decent glebe house.

K II

Yes

tains

on

S Of

ther

ery-

106,

oth of our class

om

dif

ne-

E.

ne ch

int

m

of

e,

h,

81 of

k,

Mount Rivers, in the same parish, the house and Mount. improvements of John Whiting, elq; commands Rivers. fair prospect to the south. Near it, a large human fkill, almost double the common fize, was some time ago dug up. Three miles E. of Macroomp. flands the castle of Carigadrohid, built on a steep rock, in the middle of the river Lee, by one of the Macarty family. It is faid, this romantic fituation was the choice of the lady O-Carrol, wife to Mac-Carty; yet others fay, it was built by the Learys. This bridge and castle, formed a noted pass, in the wars of 1641, and were often taken and recovered, by the contending forces, litis, in good repair, and inhabited by John Bowen, diquis The way from this to Macroomp, leads through a deep. gloomy, hollow way, called Glin-caum, i. e. the crooked Ghin soon either hand, is a perfect wall of fleep aragay rocks, anvered, in fome places, with oak, afh. and birch, at the roots of which grow polypody in plenty, also a good quantity of the adianthum nigrum and trichomanes. To the fouth of this hollow way, "francs the high tower of Ma- Mathana hangglass, built by the Mac-Swineys (19). The N. glass Voleto bot walk band

⁽¹⁹⁾ King James I on the 19th of April, 1612, directed a letter to fir Arthur Chicketer, lord deputy of Ireland, in behilf of Owen Mac Swiney, clien Owen Hogy; of Mailtaneglafi, to accept the furrender of his lands, and to grant a patent to reffere bank of the Sullane, being from hence, westerly, very rocky, is covered with heath and furze; the south side is not much better; yet, in some places, there are dairy houses, the land being generally meadow and pasture, and the soil a kind of brown brittle clay.

Places E. of Macroomp, are Omerg, Mr. Thom-hill's; and Dromy, Mr. Moore's. A mile E. of Macroomp, is a new erected bridge over the Sulane, being there joined by the Lany, a small distance from the bridge, whence, running a S. E. course, they enter the Lee. About three hundred yards N. W. of New-bridge, in a meadow near the bank of the river, are three large stones, set on an end edge-ways to each other, the middle one being 5 feet broad, 7 in height, and 2 thick, but the others much smaller; about 60 yards S. E. from the former, is another stone set up, less than the niddle one before-mentioned, but larger than the side ones. These stones (20) are said to be erected ftore them to him. This Owen was particularly recommended to that prince, by the lord Danvers, prefident of Munster, and fir Richard Morison, vice-prefident, for having performed many faithful services in that king's reign, and in queek Elizabeth's. He had also testimonials from fir Charles Cornwallia, who was ambassador in Spain, of his dutiful and loyal behaviour; and how much he suffered for it in his fortune and reputation during his abode there, by the malignity of his countymen. Owen Mac-Swiney, son to the above Owen, was attained, anno 1642, for being concerned in the Irish rebellion, and forscited his estate. (From original MSS.) Mashanaglas isfnifics a strong hold or fortress.

(20) According to an ancient Irish chronicle, which relates the actions of Brien Boruma, king of Munster, that prince (in the 2d year of his reign) sent an herald to challenge Miles More Broin, who was chief of the Mahonys, and king of Oneachach (a part of S. Carbery) to fight him in a pitched battle, in the plains of Beallagh Leachta, (i. e. the road of faint Leachta, the patron of Donoughmore,) which was near Macroomp, in order to seek revenge for the death of his brother Mahon, who was murdered by O-Donovan Mac-Cahill, chief of that sept, and a dependant on O-Mahony. The king of Carbery accepted

CHAP. II. HISTORY of CORK.

erected in memory of a celebrated battle, fought here by Brien Boruma, king of Munster, and the O.Mahonys of Carbery.

BOOK I

y, very

e foud

s, then

readou

e clay.

Chom-

E. of

e Sul-

[mall

S. E.

ndred

ar the

on an e bet the

from than

than

be

Red

ided

and

m1-

24-llis,

IVI-

00-

17-

nt-

nd

The town of Macroomp, or, as it is pronounced, MacMacroom, is fituated among hills, in a dry gravelly croomped flone foil (21). The adjacent country is well improved with lime, brought fix miles, from the S. fide of the river Lee. This place is faid to take its name from an old crooked oak, (so called in Irish) which formerly grew here, under the boughs of which travellers used to pass. The castle of Macroomp is very ancient, being first built in king John's time, soon after the English conquest, (according to fir Richard Cox) by the Carews, but others attribute it to the Daltons. It was repaired and beautified by the challenge; and besides his, and O-Donovan's forces, brought 1500 Danes to assist him. The battle was furiously fought on both sides; but Brien and his forces being superior in number, broke through the enemy, and made a great slaughter, most of the Danes being slain. Keating also mentions this battle; Book II. p. 81.

The like stones have often been erected, to perpetuate the memory of singular actions, in those early ages, both on a civil and religious account, and sometimes as trophies of a victory, as those mentioned by Plutarch; which were first of wood, that they might soon consume, and those it was prohibited to renew, lest the remembrance of ancient quarrels flould be perpetuated.

(21) Plants from Carigadrohid, to Macroomp, are london-pride, golden rod, calamint, comfry, soapwort, St. John's wort, polypody, maidenhair, celandine, foxglove, osmond royal, navelwort, ros-solis, daucus, butterwort, cotonaria, mountain sage, tormentil, elecampane, meadow sweet, pimpernel, with a yellow flower, mouse eas, germander, straw-berries, woodbine, woodroof, cup-mos, eye-bright, cow-wheat, hyacinths, tutsan, mountain madder, devil's-bit, sheep-scabious, ash coloured ground liverwort, stitchwort, jacea, of snapweed, billberries, inchanters night shade, or circea, dock cresses, herb robert, spleenwort, prunella, milkwort, codded loofe-strife, sujula, yellow rattle, red-rattle, speedwell, trichomanes, male satyrion, avens, ground-ivy, piercepier anglorum, golden maidenhair, and golden saxisrage, hawkweed, leaved succery, male satyrion royal, &c.

Tiege Mac-Carry, who died in it, anno 1565, was father to the celebrated fir Cormac Mac To ford Mulkery, mentioned by Cambden, and of writers, as an active person in queen Elizabet The late earls of Clancarty altered this tle into a more modern structure, it being burn down in the wars of 1641 (22). It now confi large modern building between them: It is fin ted on the east lide of the river Sullane, to fourth, are the gardens, and a fine plantation firs, on a pleafant terrace, over its banks. Abo 20 years ago, dean Swift, in his progress through this country, was much pleased with the fituation and ftate of this building. It is, at prefent, inhabit ted by Richard Hedges Eyre, esq, who keeps it good order. In this castle, is an handsome larged lery, with other good apartments, and fir Williams Pen, the famous fea admiral, was born in it. over the Sullane: Opposite to the britige, is mot, after a long siege, in the following manner. Cormac Ma Dermot Carty, she load thereof, having escaped from the long president, who, searing he might cut off ar Charler's retrest, a raise the siege, ordered him to quit the place, and return with his forces to Cork. This news vexed fir Charles, but forry to retreat without taking the castle. The night before his intended march, the besieged having killed a twine, as not having plenty of water to scald it, were forced to ling with straw and fern. The fire took hold of a cabin in the bawn, within the castle walls, and the thatch staming high, fire to some tallow through a window in the castle; which is make the bawn their last resuge, which being ready to be a saulted, they sallied out to the woods, in which attempt may of them were killed. The army entering the castle, existing withed the fire, and leaving a garrison in it, marched backs. Soon after, the lord Muskery being hard pressed, sumitted to the queen, and was taken into savour. Pacata his pressed to the queen, and was taken into savour.

HISTORY of CORK. HAP. H.

BOOK

565,

c-To

nd of rzabel

this o

bum Confi

with

is fim

to ation

Abo

hirou

tuati

nhah

os it

gog illia

orid

Sari

Ma e los estus de los estudios de los estu

wish church, dedicated to St. Coleman of Cloyne: nd on the fouth fide of the altar, is a monument black and grey marble, with this inferription.

"Here lieth the body of the revd. Mr. Richard hown, B. D. who was rector and vicar of this arish 45 years, during which time he was always sident. On the 27th day of January, A. D. 112, he chearfully religned his fpirit to God who ave it, in fure hope of a refurrection to eternal ife, being 69 years of age. He was married to Mary, daughter of colonel Edward Alleyn, 43 years, by whom he had it fons and g daughters.

The romanists have a splendid mass-house, erected on an eminence at the entrance into the town : with an handsome altar, a pulpit, and confessional Upon the plantation of Munster, in the beginning of king James Ist's reign, the lord Muskery brought over several English families of this religion, viz. the Hardings, Fields, Terrys, Goulds, Kents, &c. and planted them in Macroomp. Here is a barrack for a foot company, and a market house. In this town, a considerable number are employed in combing wool, and spinning wool-There are here four falt pans constantly at work; they have the rock falt from England, by the way of Cork, whence it is brought by land carriage. The falt is taken by carriers from this. place into the country, where it is used in salting butter for exportation. In this town, are some whilky distillers; a liquor and manufacture to per-nicious to the poor, that it renders every other employment useless to them.

The houses are built of a reddish slaty rock, and there are good blue flates for covering in the neighbouthood. This place is firthated on the frontier of a very wild country, being all rocky and barren to the west, and mountainous to the Olacis Womins favorbeir courts of judicature ow The environced with givent flones having one in ... dinon see the best reserved of money Montered Day life !

nd the places also Gyned for the decion of the Carickafouky. Two miles west, stands the high castle of Carickasouky, (i. e. Fairy Rock castle) built by the Mac-Cartys of Drishane, in a wild and romante situation. The entrance into it, is by an high craggy rock, of dangerous and slippery sooting where no more than one person, at a time, can climb, and he must be very active that will trust entirely to his seet. This rock is quite inaccessible on every other side, and hangs frightfully over the Sullane, which runs soaming at the foot of it through a craggy channel. To the east of the castle, is a large stone, placed upon an high rock, secured by wedges of other stones; and near it, the remains of a Druid altar, encompassed with a circle of stones (23) pitched endways.

Dundarerk.

The castle of Dundarerk (which fignishes Mount prospect) is feated on a hill, about a mile south of the former; and commands a vast extended view to the west, as far as the bounds of Kerry, to the east, almost to Cork; and a great tract to the fouth. It was built by the Mac-Cartys. Dermot Mac-Carty forfeited this castle in the rebellion of 1641. an high square building, having 70 stone steps to the battlements; Adjoining to it, flood some modern buildings, now in ruin; here were large gardens and orchards, also destroyed. A little to the north, is the ruined church of Kilnamartery. The country, to the north and west, as far as the eye can fee, is intermixed with large white rocks, and green spots; at first sight, a stranger, at a diffance, might take them for the ruins of a

(23) Saxo Grammaticus informs us, that the places where the Danes fought their duels, were fometimes furrounded with pitched stones, and fometimes in pits, as Ubbo who fought with the Sclavonian. Sax. Grammat. Hist. Dan. lib. 3.

Olaus Wormius fays, their courts of judicature were plots of ground environed with great stones, having one in the midst: And the places also assigned for the election of their chiefs, were such circles of stones. Monument. Dan. lib. 1. cap. 19

HAP. II. HISTORY of CORK. aft city, the white crags resembling so many lofty owers, ruined churches, and palaces. In a more evel country, the eye is, perhaps, pleased with little fills and gentle afcents; but in this rough fituation, the imagination is aftonished with a grandeur n nature, which nothing but the scene itself can afpire a just idea of. If the forests, which formerly overed these tracts, are now no more, yet the taked rocks in some places, remains of woods in others, and parcels of cultivated grounds intermixed, afford a greater variety, and more delightful andicape. A little to the west of Macroomp, is Co- Codrum. drum; the feat of Emanuel Hutchinson, esq; who has improved a confiderable tract hereabouts, by clearing the foil of stones and rocks, and manuring it with lime. On an old stone mearing, made by the earl of Clancarty, there is this inscription on a large rock. D. E. O. C. 1686. F Fecit. i. e. Donough earl of Clancarty, fieri fecit. Which shews how imperfectly improvements were carried on in this country, towards the end of the last century, when the raising a great boundary of loofe flones, was thought worthy of an inscription. In Mr. Hutchinson's garden, are the remains of a Danish intrenchment, being vaulted under ground. There are also several large ones near the old church of Clondrohid, some of which have triple intrenchments. On the top of an hill, called Liffecrefig (three miles N. W. of Macroomp) being the same gentleman's estate, are the remains of a pagan altar (24), composed of three stones pitched close together, and a broad flag-stone lying near them.

OOK IL

f Ca

by the nantie

high

oting,

, CE

truft

ceffa-

Over

of it

fthe

ock,

r it,

ith 2

ount

h of

V to

aft,

It.

rty '

t is

to 10:

ar-

he

ry.

25

te

T,

A

h

Near

⁽²⁴⁾ These are thekind of rude altars, called, both in the Irish and old British language, Crom-liagh and Crom-leche, which agnify, in both, a crooked stone, not from any crookedness, but from their inclining posture. Mr. Rowland, in his Mona An-

Near this, is a large circular intrenchment of flone, made in the same manner as those of earth, these raised of stone, the Itish call Calleras.

Cahirkegan.

Cahirkegan, in the parish of Clondtohid, the house of Horace Townshend; esq. The soil is cold mountainous, rocky and boggy, throughout thisprish, and not fitted for tillage, without the greatest induffry, not only in manuring the land, but alloin clearing it of stones, otherways it is impossible to When the flones are removed, the following plough it. is fufficiently deep, but this requires great labour. Upon the larger rocks, they kindle turf fires, and keep them burning till the rock grows hot; after which, it eafily splits; and the readier, if cold water This labour is not be poured on before it cools. unlike Hannibal's in passing the Alps, which Na. Lee makes that hero relate in these ranting lines;

What after ages will with pain believe,
Through burning quarries did our paffage cleave.
Hurld dreadful fire, and vinegar infus'd,
Whose horrid force the nerves of flint unloos'd,
Made nature start, to see us root up rocks,
And open all her adamantine locks;
Shake off her massy bars, o'er mountains go, &c.

After the ffones are loofened, they use them in forming enclosures and ditches, which they seldom fail tiqua, conjectures, that the word is derived from the Hebrew, Carum luach, i. e. a devoted table or altar. Noah, after be left the ark, was to build an altar, and offer up facrifice on it to the Lord. Gen. viii. 20. And, its to be supposed, he built it of such coarse and rude stones, as the mountains (where the ark rested) afforded. In Exod. xx. 25. they had a precept Not to build them of hewn stone, which seems to shew, that the British Crom-leche, and the Irish Crom-liagh, are only the remaining effects of that ancient law and cultom of not striking a tool upon the stones of their altars. These rude altars are sustained, in some places, by rows of pillars, as that above-mentioned; and sometimes, on other large stones of the same kind.

CHAP. H. HISTORY OF CORK.

fail to make sufficiently thick, having no want of materials, and no other way to dispose of them.

Ballyvourney, (i. e. the town of the beloved) Bally-6 miles W. of Macroomp, is a finall village and vourney. mined church, feated on a hill, to the fouth of the over Sullane, which runs due east from this to-Macroomp, having its rife a little more to the west. The church is dedicated to St. Gobnate, who, in the-6th century, was made abbets of a mannery of regular canonesses here, by St. Abhan: It was also called Hufreagh, Borneagh, and Burneagh. She is faid to be the daughter of O-Connor Sligo! This church is 104 feet long; by 24 broad; the fleeple is ready to fall with age. On the north fide of the altar, is a tomb of the O-Hierlys, who were the ancient proprietors of this rugged country. North of the river, it cod an old cattle of theirs, which is now an heap of Rones. The triff vifit this place on whitfon-mondays, and on the r4th of February, which last is the patron day of this faint. About 30 yards from the west end of the church, there is a final frome crofs, where her rood or image (25) is fet up on those days. Here the devotees

(25) In the archbishop of Tuam's defence to his chapitable, address. p. 74, he says, "I could never hear of any authentic or credible history of St. Gobnate.: And yet I know that in the county of Cork, great devotion is paid to her and her image, in which I never could find that the poor people were reftrained, but rather encouraged by their clergy." And adds, "if the worship of true real saints, and their images, could be defended, (as it never can) yet the worship which is given to such actitious saints, and their images, ought certainly to be suppressed. But it looks (says he) as if you were assaid to begin such a reformation, less the eyes of the people should thereby be opened, and they should discover how they have hitherto been deluded."

I have been informed, that the devotion used to this image has been, of late, prehibited by the ritular bishop of the diocese; but so strong are the ignorant Irish prejudiced in its favour, that they still persevere in their superstition, which is not a little kept up by the gain it brings to the proprietor of this image, who, as I hear, farms it at a considerable rent to the person who exposes it to view.

ent of

d, the s cold, his paeft in-

ble to

bour, and after

water is not

Nat.

cave.

os'd,

&c.

in tom

rew,

a it

the the

the 1e-

ing are en-

1.

(which are only the more simple and ruder lrish) go round it on their knees, and repeat a certain number of prayers. They also tye their handkerchiefs, &c. about its neck, which they imagine will preserve them from several diseases. Near this cross, is a stone fixed in the ground, and worn by the knees of those who come here in pilgrimage: and adjacent, is a well, dedicated to this faint: the water is pure, foft and light. 'A little to the north of this well, is a circle of stones, about 2 feet high, and about o feet in diameter, which feems to be the foundation of one of the small round towers placed in church-yards : round this, and the well, there are paths worn by the knees of the de-The image is kept in a cheft very private, votees. and never exposed but upon festival days, and when it is carried to fick people. When I was there, the person who had charge of it told me, it was carried into Ivelary, an adjacent wild tract, to be fworn upon.

This church (26) is feated on a small green spot, on the side of an hill, from whence is a fine view

to

(26) The following indulgence was granted by pope Clement VIII. to fuch as go in devotion to this church. "Universus Christi tidelibus præsentes literas inspecturis fa-" lutem & apostolicam benedictionem, ad augendum sidelium " religionem & animarum falutem caleftibus ecclefia the-" fauris pin charitate intenti, omnibus utriusque fexus, Chrif-" ti fidelibus vere penitentibus & confessis ac facra commu-" nione reflectis qui ecclefiam parochialem fancta Gobonata " loci Ballyvorni Cluncufi diofc. die festo ejustem fancta Go-" bonatæ a primis vesperis usque ad occasum folis prædicti felli " fingulis annis devote visitaverint, & ibi pro Christianorum " principum concordia, hærefum extirpatione, ac fancta Ma-" tris ecclesiz exaltatione pias ad Deum preces effuderint, " decem annos & totidem quadragenas de injunctis eis seu " aliis quomodo libet debitis pænitentiis in forma ecclefia " confueta relaxamus. Præfentibus ad decimam duntaxat va-" lituris, volumus autem, quod fi alias Christi fidelibus dictam " ecclefiam vifitantibus aliam inculgentiam perpetuo, vel ad " certum tempus nondum elapfum duraturam concefferimus, " pralentes

HISTORY of CORK. CHAP. II. of the Kerry mountains, which, like an immense wall, are ranged feveral miles from north to fouth, and divide both counties. They are mostly rude, naked rocks, of a prodigious height, being worn-into numberless furrows, by the torrents, which, for fo many ages, have been flowing down their fides.

OK II

Irifh)

ertain

dker-

agine

ir this rn by

age;

unt; the.

feet

ems

und

the

de-

ate,

and vas

ne,

ct,

01,

W

of

e-

Di

Sola jugis habitat diris, sedesq; tuetur Perpetuas deformis hyems: Illa undique nubes Huc atras agit et mixtos cum grandine nimbos. Nam cuncti flatus ventique furentia regna Alpina posuere domo, caligat in altis Obtutus faxis, abeuntg; in nubila montes. SILIUS ITAL. lib. 3.

Here hoary winter, unadorn'd and bare, Dwells in the dire retreat, and freezes there There the affembles all her blackeft ftorms, And the rude hail in rattling tempests forms; Thither the loud tumultuous winds refort, And on the mountain keep their boift rous court. That in thick show'rs her rocky summet shrouds, And darkens all the broken view with clouds. ADDISON.

West of the church, is a good echo, which is thrice repeated; there was formerly a ring of small bells in the steeple. By the situation, the found must have been variously reverberated from the adfacent hills. This is the effate of Nicholas Colthurst, esq; and the only improvement for some miles

In the parish of Kilshanick, in a mountainy tract, there is another well, dedicated to this faint Gobnate, which is also vilited on the 14th of February.

[&]quot; præsentes nullæ sint. Datum Rome, apud sand. Marcum " lub anulo piscatoris die 12 Julii 1601, & pontificat. nostr-" anno decimo." From the Lambeth library, lib. N. N. numb. 77.

miles round is at Killeen, a good farm-house of Mr. James Colthurst, lying about a mile to the About 4 miles N. W. of Macroomp are N. E. the remains of a Danish intrenchment of an oral form, the greatest diameter is 60 yards, and the finaller 40, furrounded by a broad deep dirch, whose sides are almost perpendicular. It has one narrow path into it, facing the east. At a small distance from it, near the road side, are 5 very large stones, pitched endways, forming an equilateral triangle, whose inside area may contain a dozen persons.

Caum-Carig.

The north west part of the barony (from Macroomp to the Black-water) is rough and uncultivate ed. About fix miles from Macroomp, is Caum-Carig, (i. e. the crooked rocks) a rugged hill, which muft be passed over before one arrives at Mill-street. On the left, the eye is entertained with various profpects of the Kerry mountains above-mentioned: The last of the range, to the north, is a lofty cone, called Clara-hill; at the foot of it, is Mount-Leader, a good house and plantations of Mr. Edward Lead-On the left, is Kilmeedy, a small castle of the O-Donaghoes, new in ruin; near which, was a redoubt for half a foot company. As one descends the hills, the country opens all green and charming Mill-freet towards the Black-water. Mill-freet, is the laft village of any confequence in this part of the barony; the new turnpike road, from Cork to Kerry, runs through it, being carried over the Boggra mountain; a new barrack, and some manufactures in the linen trade intended to be fet up here, will foon make it a place of some note. About a mile to the east, is Drishane, an high castle, built by Dermot Mac-Carty, fon to Tiege, lord Mufkery, who died in 1448. In 1641, Donogh Mac-Carty joined the Irish, and forfeited this estate; near the castle, is a new handsome house of the late William Wallis, esq. who had confiderably improved this part of the couno might and the etry,

by

CHAP. II. HISTORY of CORK.

BOOK II.

pule of

to the

ap are an oval

nd the ditch.

as one

a fmall

very equi-tam a

a Ma-tivat-

Carig,

must treet.

prof-

ned:

cone,

ider,

cad-

the

re-

ends

ning

vil-

ny; uns

in; nen

ta

15

ar-8.

br

10

my, by manuring with lime, enclosing, planting, ac. Having mentioned every thing considerable in this barony, on the north side of the river Lee, I shall return south to Macroomp, and finish an account of that part of it lying on the south side of the river (27).

In returning to Macroomp, the Mulhery mountains and Boggra lie to the east. On the S. W. foot of Mushery, there are three flat stones set up edgeways; the middle one is nine feet high, and three broad; there are also several circles of them, with single pillar stones, standing at a small distance, being works of the Danes or ancient Irish.

Two miles S. W. of Macroomp, there is a stone Lead orebridge over the river Toon; near which, on the W. side of the Lee, there was discovered, a few years ago (on the estate of Dr. Edward Barry, of Dublin) a vein of metallic substance in a limestone rock. An assay was made of it, and it proved to hold some lead ore.

Between this and Inshigeelagh, stand the castles Several castles of Drumcaragh, Carigneneelagh, and Carignacurragh; in this last, Cromwell placed a garrison. The O-Leary's were the ancient proprietors of these castles, and all the adjacent country, which is called from them Ivelary. Carignacurragh was forfeited

(27) The Lee runs through the centre of the barony of Mulkery, dividing it into two parts, north and fouth. The north part (above described) is bounded, on the West, by the lands of Glanerought and Glanslesk, in Kerry; and towards the north west, it extends to the Black-water, which divides it from Duhallow. A part of which being on the south of that river, bounds it, till it meets with the barony of Barrets, which divides and separates it on the east end; this separated part, is bounded, on the east, by Permoy and Barrymore, as the map shews. The south part of this Barony, is bounded, on the east, by the liberties of Cork, and the barony of Barrets; on the south, by Kinalea, Kinalmeaky, Carbery, and the lofty mountains of Dauce and Duhil, which divide it from Bantry. It is on the south side, 26 miles long; on the north, more than 30; and about 16 miles broad.

BOOK II.

of 1641. It is a lofty pile, being above 100 feet high, standing on the S. bank of the river Lee. This river has its course here, and for a confiderable way below, interrupted with iflands and a deep boggy tract, until it runs to the bridge of Ballynaclassen. These islands are covered; mostly, with oak, ash, hazel, and birch; at the feet of which grow fern, pollypodium, and water dropworth (28). Here are great quantities of feveral kinds of water fowl in their feasons, as bitterns, cranes, duck and mallard, teal, &c. These bogs have been attempted to be drained, but it was found impracticable. In one, called Anaghaly, is about three acres of ground, on which is excellent limestone, that supplies the town of Macroomp. the western inhabitants of this barony and Carbery, with lime for manure and building.

Inshigeelagh.

Inshigeelagh, fix miles S. W. of Macroomp, has a good barrack for one foot company, built in a stone fort of four bastions, erected on the N. end of a bridge over the Lee. Near this place, many pieces of a metallic substance have been found in the form of cubes, as hard as iron, and glittering with sparks, intermixed, of a pale yellow, shining like gold. These cubes are washed out of the rocks on the banks of the river, by winter floods. See more of them, Book IV. Chap. VIII.

Many of these mountains have been formerly tilled; for when the heath that covers them is pulled up and burned, the ridges and furrows of the plough are visible. About 100 years ago, this country was all a forest. The woods confisted of large oak, birch, alder, fome ash, and many yews of as great a bulk as the largest oak: Great quantities of fir are still taken out of the turf bogs. This ⁽²⁸⁾ Other plants here, are ranunculus aquaticus foliis diversis, ofmund royal, water angelica, nymphea alba & lutea, tanicula, cenanth. aquat. agrimony, flamula, millefol. aquat. potemogeiton. plantago aquatica, caltha paluttris, &c.

CHAP. II. HISTORY of CORK.

forest was then stored with red and fallow deer: and abounded with great ayries of excellent hawks; which, with the timber, belonged to the earl of Cork.

BOOK II.

ebellion

00 feet

er Lee.

onfide-

and a dge of noftly.

cet of dropevera

terns,

bogs

was

ly, is ellent

omp,

bery,

has

in a

end

any

in ing ing

the

ds.

rly

11-

he

iis

of'

13

8

A small mile west of Inshigeelagh, the river Lee opens into a fine lake, called Lough Allua, three Lough English miles long, and half a mile broad, stretching Allua. out into several bays; it is deep, and not fordable Salmon trouts, almost as large from end to end. as falmon, small river trout of various kinds, and tels abound in it; also the charr (29) or Alpine The trout. The river here is of a still flow motion, till Charr. emptying itself at Inshigeelagh, it is contracted, and runs with a rapid and violent course. On the fouth fide of this lake, are a range of lofty rocks, in some places, covered with yew and birch; and on the north fide, is a fine green plain, extending the length of the lake.

The upper end is replenished with several mountain rills; the chief is a rapid little brook, descending from another lake, called Gougane-Barra. Before one arrives at this last, both man and horse

(29) Having the opportunity of feeing those fish when I was at Macroomp, I took down the following description of them.

The charr is in length, from the extremity of the nofe to the tip of the tail, 10; inches breadth, from the back fin to that on the belly, 2; inches where it is thickest. Its eye resembles that of an herring; the mouth, from the tip of the muzzle to the joint of the jaw, somewhat more than an inch; both jaws are furnished with a row of fine small teeth; the back fin is pretty large, placed almost near the center, like a pilchard's. It has a fin to each gill, a pair of belly fins, one near the tail, and a finall one on the back near the tail. The under jaw, head and back, are of a dark mud colour, the belly is of a bright red, like vermilion, shaded off with yellow and white; there is a remarkable finall line running from the middle of the tail to the angle of the eye on both fides; they differ little from the common trout, as to shape, they boil red like a falmon, as do feveral of the trout kind, they will not rife-at a fly, being always taken with bait, or in a net. are never found in running water, nor can be transported alive to any distance.

1192

must perform penance for two miles, over t rudest high-way that was ever passed. A we spirited beast trembles at every step, some par of the road lie shelving from one side to the other which often trips up an horse; other places a pointed rocks, Itanding like to many fugar-loave

Barra.

from one to three feet high, between which a how must take time to place and fix his feet. It we with great difficulty that I passed two miles of the Gougane-causeway in two hours. Gougane-Barra, fignific the hermitage of St. Finbar; he having (as traditional on fays) lived here a recluse before he founded th cathedral of Cork. This retreat is effected on of the greatest curiofities in these parts, it lies in the remotest solitude imaginable, and is, in reality a most elegant and romantic spot; its very aspect and lituation betraying a place feemingly deligned by nature for a recluse. It lies in the bowels of val high mountains, making fo many enclosures round St. Finbar's hermitage is a small ffland, for rounded by a fine deep and capacious lake, o about 200 acres, almost circular. This lake in environed by a stupendous amphitheatre of losty hills, composed of perpendicular bleached rocks, in former places, boldly hauging over the bain. In "forme crevices of the rocks, grow yews and evergreens. In fair weather, there are feveral rills, that gently glide down, with a murmuring neile, into the lake : But on heavy rains, the whole propert feeme a perfect chaos, the water then, from the top of the mountain, tumbling down all around, in fe veral cataracts, with a roaring noise like thunders which makes a most awful and majestic scene. On the top of these precipices, eagles, hawks, and other birds of prey, breed and live in great scarity. This place, fince the time of St. Finbar, has been frequented by many devotees, as a place of pigrimage frand to get to it, ois little lefs than to perform one. In the iffand, are the suins of a dispel, HAP. II. HISTORY of CORK.

BOOK

ver t

A wel

ne par

e othe

ecs at

-loave

a hon

It wa

of the

Brifie

traditi

ed th

d one

lies in afped

igned

f val

ound

fur-

e, of

ke is lofty

ocks,

. In

ever-

that into

pect

top

1 fee

erı

On

and

een Zri-

er.

el,

th

with fome finall cells, a facrifty, chamber, kitchen and other conveniencies, erected by a late recluse father O-Mahony) who lived an hermit, in this dreary spot, 28 years. When one is in this island, the chalm in the mountain, by which the lake is entered, is not feen, occasioned by the jutting out of part of the hill; so that if a person was carried into it blindfold, it would feem almost impossible, without the wings of an eagle, to get out, the mountains making, as it were, a wall of rocks ome hundred yards high. Round part of the ake, is a pleafant green bank, with a narrow cauleway from it to the illand. That part of the illand unbuilt upon, father Mahony converted into s garden, planted several fruit trees in it with his own hands, and made it a luxurious spot for an Opposite to this island, on the continent, hermit. is his tomb, placed in a low little house, on which is this inscription.

"Hoc fibi et successoribus suis in eadem vocatione, monumentum imposuit dominus doctor Dyonisius O Mahony, presbyter licet indignus.

An. dom. 1700"

He was not buried in it till the year 1728.

This folitude would, at first fight, naturally dispose a man to be serious, for as Milton says,

Musing meditation most affects
The pensive secrecy of desart cell,
Far from the cheerful haunt of man and herds,
And sits as safe as in a senate house,
For who wou'd rob an hermit of his weeds,
His few books, or his beads, or maple dish,
Or do his grey hairs any violence. ?

Masque of Comus.

The head of the river Lee, being the Luvius of Ptolomy, rifes in this romantic foot.

Vol. 1. O The

The description given us, by fir John Denham, of the source of the Thames, exactly agrees with the rise of this river.

But his proud head the airy mountain hides Among the clouds, his shoulders and his sides A shady mantle clothes, his curled brows Frown on the gentle stream, which calmly flows. Low at his feet, a spacious plain is placed, Between the mountain and the stream embraced, Which shade and shelter from the hill derives, While the kind river wealth and beauty gives. This scene had some bold Greek or British Bard, Beheld of old, what stories had been heard Of fairies, satyrs, and the nymphs their dames, Their feasts, their revels, and their am'rous flames.

'Tis still the same, although their airy shape, All but a quick poetic sight escape.

Cooper's Hill.

Gougane lake affords a very good tront, of a broader and flatter kind than other trouts. mountains produce a long coarfe grafs, called, by the country people, fonane, here wholly employed in grazing young flock and dry cattle from May to November. The riches of these mountains are not on the furface, probably, a diligent fearch into their bowels might discover some very valuable minerals. At Gougane Barra, lived one Mr. Murphy, who had been an officer in queen Anne's fervice, was a very intelligent person, well skilled in the ancient Irish manners and customs, and read and wrote the language extremely well. From Iveleaty, proceeding eastwards to Cork, there are several good feats and improvements in this barony. computed, that fince the earl of Clancarty's forfelture, more than 200 good flate houses have been built in it, also seven new churches, and several ham.

OK IL

With

les

OWS.

iced,

/es,

ard,

es,

euo:

ill.

fa

he

by

ed

ay.

ire

to ole

y,

1

1=

d ıl

is

from bridges. I shall mention these seats as they lye in my way from Macroomp to Cork.

Kilbarry, three miles S. by W. from Macroomp, Kilbarry. is an handsome house of Robert Warren, esq; the door, window frames, and belting, are of hewn stone. Here are good orchards, gardens, and a deer park. This land is in the parish of Maclony, though in the midft of Kilmurry parish. In which last, fland the ruins of Clodagh caftle, faid to have been built by the Mac-Swineys, who were anciently famous for Irish hospitality. On the W. side of the high road, near Dunusky, there was a stone set up, with an Irish inscription, signifying to all passengers, to repair to the house of Mr. Edmund Mac-Swiney for entertainment. This stone still lies in a ditch , and the Irish say, that the person of this family who overthrew it never throve after. In a fand hill, called Knocan-ni-croich, in this parish, feveral shells are found, refembling those on the sea-coast. From Clodagh, to the confluence of the river Bride with the Lee, (above fix miles) there is a fine valley, bounded by hills to the N. and S. which afford feveral limestone quarries. In the midst of this valley, is the bog of Kilcres, called, in Irifh, Geary, Kilcresformerly very incommodious and unprofitable, bog. the middle of it being woody, buffy, and very deep, quite inaccefible, and edged on the E. and W. with red bogs, and till about go years ago, frequented by wolves, to the great annoyance of the adjacent inhabitants. This description of it was returned by an inquest of jurors, on a commission of survey, ann. 1656, and so it continued in the same condition till about the year 1705. It was the domain estate of the earl of Clancarty, and when he fet the adjacent lands by leafe, he always inferted a clause of reservation of the whole bog to himself, whenever he should go about to drain it, giving them, in the mean time, liberty of 0 2 1 3250019 pasturage,

BOOK II. pasturage, plowboor, &c. But it might have remained long undrained, if the last earl had not forfeited it. When the trustees fold the adjacent lands, parcels of the bog were fold with them, having hatural bounds of rivulets, &c. to diftinguish them. It was a very bold attempt to begin to drain it by any private gentleman; yet John Bailey, (90) efg, of Caftlemore, having the west end

(10) The following account of this great work is given us by George Rye, efc, of Rye-court (in his confiderations on agriculture, p. 81. &c.) as follows.

" The river Bride, at the W. end, entered into the middle of it, where, by the falling of large onks, its course was fe obstructed, that it formed many new channels, which, in time, being likewise obstructed, it was difficult to determine where the river was. This part of the bog, of about 300 plantation acres, was the remains of a very ancient wood. Each fide of the box, was bounded by ranges of high mountains, which dicharged many rivulets, besides the land soods into this great receptacle of water, where, meeting no passages, they toaked into the earth, and swelled it like a siled spunge; but particularly at the S. W. end, there was a brook that would increase into a river upon great rains , which, meeting with a good fort of mould, did not form a turf bog, but fuch a flaking morals, that wholoever entered on it, would be immedia-tely up to his middle, though the fain did not break, and it worked like great waves, riling before and behind him. This was the outfide of the great red bog ; fo that here were to be feen collected into one place, all the forts of bogs mentioned by archbishop King. On the W. and S. W. where Mr. Baily was to begin, he was obliged, first to run a great double ditch, of about 250 perch in length, under the hills, to take of the land floods. 2dly, To carry a cut strain, through the great fwell, where a brook used so discharge itself. But here was the difficulty! for the workmen were obliged to cut faggots of bushes to stand on, and yet were above their knees under water. Amidst these hardships, armed with infruments, whose blades were hay knives, put to firait handles, of his feet long, they cut the surface by a range of poles; and others, with crooks, fastened to handles, of about 12 feet long, pulled up the great fods of matted fedge and earth, to form a fort of bank; whilst the gentleman, the undertaker, defended with a pair of Dutch fisher boots, and deal boards to walk upon, (scarce sufficient to protect him from the water,) was obliged

CHAP. II. HISTORY of CORK.

OK II

d not

hem,

egin

Tohn

end

en ur

no on

ditte as fo ime,

here

tion

of hich

this hey but

tild

he

ak-

h

MA

be

ed by

he

at

of

of it, confifting of about 200 acres, in the fum-

to flay all day in the morale, to encourage his men, and to defign and mark out his work: But behold! that part which was cut out in the morning, would be closed in the afternoon : Yet this was all tolerable, till they came to a fhrubby part, but then they were forced to lay afide their knives, and betake themselves to axes, hatchets, mattocks, and a new-inrented instrument, in form of the hay-knife blade, to the long handles, but very firong and thick in the back, whereby a great tuffock of fedge would be cut through, and all the roots of trees in it, in three or four Arokes. For here, in the fhrubby part, the deal boards and faggots were laid afide, the great tuffocks giving them affiftance of passage from one to another, as squirrels jump from tree to tree. That summer season, the land floods were kept off, and after repeated cuts for feven or eight times, the inland waters were vented down upon the next land, belonging to Stephen Sweet, efq, the waters being partly dicharged, the bog fubfided, and by the marks on the tuffocks, it was to be perceived, that the depth of water on that part of the bog, over the superficies of earth, was about three feet, but what the fall of the fkin of the moras was (Mr. Rye) did not remember. Here was a great haunt of wild fowl destroyed, that betook themselves to the inner recesses of the woody bog. The next year, he was able to make a large double ditch , afterwards Mr. Rye cut cross drains, and now all that part is fo firm, that it is to be rid upon in winter. As to the other part, Mr. Sweet was forced to cut drains, to difcharge the waters thrown on him, and agreed with alderman French, of Cork, who had the fouth fide, to give and take, and to range one strait channel through the whole, to receive the river Bride. Mr. Sweet first formed a grand bank, on the north fide, under the hills, to receive the rivulets descending from them; and then, the following summer, began the grand capal, in one ftrait line, for about one mile in length; cutting a 40 feet channel, and allowing, on each fide, 10 feet feating, outfide of each bank: The river had a 60 feet channel to receive its waters on a flood: alderman French died in the beginning, but his fon, with Mr. Sweet, brought it to a conclusion. Mr. Sweet's land extending west of Mr. French's, continued the canal till he arrived at the united ftream of the river; where he discharged it, into its beautiful new course : Then, to prevent the overflow of the river upon the great floods, (and they are sometimes very terrible from the mountains) he run a bank of 16 feet in thickness, having dikes of 10 feet, on each fide, in breadth, from the grand canal across that part of the vale, to his bank under the hills, and thereby mer of 1705, first began the work, which was continued by Mr. Sweet and Mr. French, with great labour and affiduity, till they completed the defign. Forrest, 4 miles E. by W. from Macroomp, in the parish of Canaboy, is a pleasant seas of William Spread, efq; where is an handsome house. good gardens, large orchards, fish ponds, and a great number of trees planted. In the same parish. is Shandangan, a mile S. W. of the former, a pretty feat of Christopher Earbury, esq, the gardens lye to the W. of the house, and are formed out of a drained bog, which is now cut into pleasant ponds; here are good orchards, and a deer park, Mahallagh.

At Mahallagh, five miles from Macroomp, is a pleasant seat of Mr. Nettle's, on the south bank of the Lee.

Strawhall

Strawhall, formerly Kilbrenin, was an abbey of regular canons, founded by St. Ædus, in the 8th century, according to archbishop Usher (31) and Colgan; it is not mentioned by fir James Ware (32); a part of the ruins are still remaining on a rifing ground.

The

kept off the waters from about 170 acres. Afterwards (at proper distances) he divided the whole, by double banks and ditches, and particularly he doubled the bank of the grand canal, where one might ride above a mile, on a strait bank, of a most beautiful canal, having woods on each side. But death put a period to his defigns; yet this harbour for wolves and tories so formidable in the year 1649, is now free of both, and so drained and civilized, that there is neither shelter for the one or the other. In the same manner, in half an age, most of the fastnesses of Ireland, will probably be destroyed; and the most barbarous parts rendered pleasant, profitable and habitable."

(31) Antiq. Brit. p. 448, 449. (32) This faint Ædus was born in Meath, and from this monastery was made bishop of Meath. He died on the 10th of Nov. 789. His life (which I have feen) begins thus, " Sanctus episcopus Aldus filius Brichil de nepotibus Neil ori-" undus fuit, &c." This place is called, by old writers, Enach

CHAP. II. HISTORY of CORK.

OK II

h was

with ed the

omp,

Wil.

nd a arifh,

retty s lye

of a nds;

15 2

k of

y of 8th

and

2); ing

at

nd

of

th

The parish of Aglish lies on both sides the river Aglish. Lee; the south part of it is in the diocese of Cork, and the north in that of Cloyne. Aglish is on the south side of the river, where there is a good house, and plantations of Mr. Hingston. In the rebellion of 1641, Tiege Mac-Cormac Mac-Carty forseited this estate.

Castlemore, in the parish of Moviddy, was former- Castlely built by the Mac-Swineys, but afterwards belong- more. ed to the Mac-Cartys; for Phelim Mac-Owen Carty was the forfeiting person in the rebellion of It is in repair, and inhabited by Mr. Travers. It formerly belonged to John Bailey, esq; and is now the estate of Mr. Rye, whose father, col. Rye, married the daughter and heiress of Mr. Bailey. Half a mile east is Ryecourt, an handsome Rye-court house and improvement of the late ingenious col. George Rye afore-mentioned, and now inhabited by his fon. Befides good gardens and orchards, col. Rye raised and planted many thousands of oaks, and other forest trees, within a few years, and was a great improver in feveral branches of agriculture. In the gardens, are some arbutus trees, which bear fruit. A mile west of Rye-court, is Inshirahill, alias Crook's-town, an old improvement, good gardens, Crooksand large orchards of cider fruit, with a good town. house, and all convenient out-offices. To the westward of the house, are fine groves of fir. place was never recovered, by the earl of Clancarty, fince the rebellion of 1641. It is now the estate of Mr. Crook. The foil in this neighbourhood, is a light grey earth, with a limestone bottom, producing fertile crops to the industrious farmer. church of Moviddy was lately rebuilt. In the church-yard, is an handsome monument, to the me-mid Brenin, or Brevin. At a place anciently called Cluain Finglass (not now known) was an abbey of regular canons, founded by St. Abban, in the 7th century, in this barony of Muskery.

mory

barbicans,

mory of the late captain Bailey, of Castlemore, with this inscription.

This monument was erected by Mrs. Anne Bailey, widow of John Bailey, of Castlemore, esq. who died the 15th of June, 1719. He was a gentleman who always had the true interest of his country at heart. At the revolution, he served in person in the wars of Ireland, till the kingdom was reduced to peace and quietness; then quitting the wars, he returned to his wife and children, and shewed himself as good an husband, as indulgent a father, as he was a true subject. Being honoured with the commission of the peace, he always administered justice so uprightly, that he never blemissed his commission, and died lamented by all good men who knew him."

In the burial ground grow vast quantities of gromwell.

About a quarter of a mile N, of the church, is a quarry of excellent white freestone; and on the W. near Killmurry, is a well, dedicated to the virgin Mary, and much frequented, on her festivals, by the common Irish; near it, is a stone, in which they pretend is the miraculous impression of a man's knee. On the W. side of the road from Crookstown to Bandon, is a large stone monument, of a great length and breadth. Tradition says, it was erected to the memory of one Nial, who was said to be slain in battle, near this place.

Rath.

Rath, is a feat built by alderman James French, of Cork, with a paddock and other improvements.

Aghar-

Agharlow, in the parish of Kibonane, is well improved and planted, also the estate of Mr. French: the parish church is in ruins. About a mile E. by N. from Agharlow, is the castle of Kilcrea, formerly a seat of the earls of Clancarty. It is a strong building, having an excellent staircase, of a dark marble, from bottom to top, about 70 seet high. It stands a little south of the river Bride. The Kilcrea.

AP. II. HISTORY of CORK.

OK I

, with

Anne

gencrion

duc-

wed

ther,

the

ered

om-

vho

of

s a V.

yy's L

bicans, platforms, and ditch still remain. On east fide, is a large field, called the bawn, the vappendage, formerly, to great men's castles, hich places were used for dancing, goaling, and ch diversions; pleasure gardens, and other imovements, being then unknown in this country. these bawns, they also kept their cattle by night, prevent their being carried off by wolves, or er more rapacious neighbours. Kilcrea (33) was manor belonging to the lords Clancarty. is caftle, are forme quarries of a fine clouded grey arble, which takes a good polish. About two eds east of this castle, are the ruins of the abbey Kilcrea, founded by Cormac, furnamed Laider, ord Muskery, for franciscans: he also built the bove-mentioned castle, and was buried in this abbey,

(33) Almost the whole of this barony, before the commenceent of the rebellion of 1641, belonged to Donough lord Muskey, who held it in domain as of fee, and the rest in service, person and remainder. His ancestors, for their fidelity and gest services performed to the crown of England, obtained everal letters patent, containing large and ample privileges, oncessions, and royalties inherent in the crown. As the creating the castles of Blarney, Kilcrea and Macroomp, into three several free manors , the whole bardny of Mulkery (being rejuted to have belonged to one or other of those three,) yield-They had the liberty to erect a free park, confifting of 200 ares, at Blarney, with privileges of free chafe, free warren, and all others appertaining to the masters of the royal game. To appoint seneschals, and clerks of their markets. They had the disposal of goods of felons and fugitives, and of all the ayries of hawks in their territory. They presented to seveal parish churches, founded by the lords of the family in this barony. They had also power to hold several fairs and martets. The referved rent to the crown, in the first patents, was only 161. per ann. but, in the last patent of king James I. it was raised to root. This patent was granted to Charles Oge. They were also, by this patent, to pay 3s. 4d. out of every plowland yearly, as a composition royal, throughout the barony, except some domain lands adjoining to the above manors that were free.

bey, an. dom. 1494, being wounded at Carignamuck. The foundation of this abbey was began, according to Ware, in 1465; but the Ulster annals place it in 1478 (34).

An. 1614, fir Arthur Chichester, lord deputy, committed the care of this abbey to Charles Mac-Dermot Mac Carty, lord of Muskery, who was a protestant, upon condition that he should not permit the friars to live in it, and that none but English protestants should be admitted as tenants to the lands. This lord (35), was buried here, ann. 1616. A great part of the building still remains; among which, is the nave, and choir of the church. On the S. side of the former, is a handsome arcade, of three gothic arches, supported by marble columns, thicker than those of the tuscan order. This arcade continues to form one fide of a chapel, being a cross isle. In the choir, are some old tombs, feveral of the lords Clancarty being here interred (36), as were the Barrets, and other principal perfons of the country, who always opposed the entire demolishing of this pile. The steeple is a light building, about 80 feet high, placed between the nave and choir; it is still entire, and supported by gothic arches. There is fomething very awful and folemn when one enters these reverend piles, once erected for the uses of religion. Long sounding isles, intermingled with graves and human bones.

(34) MSS. in Marsh's Library.

(35) From him descended Tiege, ancestor to the Cartys, of Aglish; and Daniel; ancestor to the Cartys, of Carignavare.
(36) Viz. Cormac Mac Tiege Carty, called Laider, who founded it, as above. Cormac Oge Laider, his son, buried here, ann. 1536. He fought the celebrated battle of Mourne abbey, where he vanquished the earl of Desmond. Tiege, his fon, lord Muskery buried here, ann. 1565; he was father to fir Cormac Mac Tiege. Dermot, his son, buried here, ann. 1570, ancestor of the Mac-Cartys, of Inshirahill. Cormac, his fon, buried here, ann. 1616, who was the last lord of this family that was here interred.

CHAP. II. HISTORY of CORK.

OK II.

rigna-

egan,

nnals

puty,

Macwas a

per-Eng-

616.

nong

On

e, of mns,

s ar-

benbs.

rred per-

ntire

ight

the

by vful

les,

nd-

nan

nes,

, of

are.

who

ried

irne

his

r to

nn.

his

bones, the twilight vaults, the caverns piled with kulls, and the gloomy darkness, occasioned by the height of the walls, over-grown with shrubs and ivy, so sadden all the scene, that he must be a perfor who never reflects at all, if he thinks not of suturity, on entering (as Mr. Pope says)

In those deep solitudes and awful cells, Where heav'nly pensive contemplation dwells, And ever musing melancholy reigns.

From the gateway of this abbey to the road, there are high banks on either fide, formed entirely of human bones and skulls, cemented together with moss; and besides great numbers strown about, there are several thousands piled up in the arches, windows, &c. which shew this place, formerly, to have been a very great cemetery (37). At the end

(37) This abbey was dedicated to faint Bridget, according to Wadding. Father Mac Carty, who wrote the transactions of Ireland for many ages, and was a reputable author, lived in this house; as did friar Philip O-Sullivan, who wrote Historia Catholica Hibernia Compendium; printed in 1621,

Ato. with other works.

Kilcrea fignifies the cell of St. Cera, whose festivals are celebrated on the 16th of October, and 5th of January, being the days of her birth and death. According to Colgan, her father's name was Dubh, who was of the race of Cornarius, and monarch of Ireland, about the year 157; from whom descended Carbery Riada, Carbery Bascoin, and Carbery Musc. The first, was the founder of the Daileriadan family, in Ulster and Scotland; from the 2d, the sept of the country of Corca Bascoin was derived; and from the youngest, the family of Muskery.

Colgan places an abbey of austin nuns at Kilcrea, and says, it was founded in the 6th century, by St. Cera. But in the records, it is said, to be at a place called Grany, now Grange, which is a mile E. of the abbey of Kilcrea, in the parish of St. Owens, called the Ovens. Kilcrea is in Desart parish. Colgan places another abbey of canonesses at Kilcuana, in Muskery, where St. Conere was abbess. This last place is not now known.

end of a lane leading to this ruin, stands a larg wooden cross since the time of the demolition of the abbey; and this entrance is, by an avenue of vene rable oak. The river Bride winds sweetly away through the vale below this ruin, and, turning north falls into the Lee. The lord Muskery, at the time of the dissolution, had the lands of this abbey granted to him; but after the wars of 1641, Oliver Cromwell gave them to lord Broghill. It was in these wars that the greatest part of the building was destroyed; but part of it was afterwards rebuilt by captain William Baily, who placed a garrison therein.

Kilcrea was purchased by captain Hedges, from the trustees of the hollow-blade company, (who bought it after lord Clancarty's forfeiture.) He built here an handsome seat, and adorned it with fine plantations; it is now called Snugborough, and inhabited by Mr. French. A mile north of Kilcrea, is Garyhasty, a pleasant country house of Mr. Riggs Faulkner, of Cork, on the S. side of the Bride. And a mile S. E. is Ballygromane, belonging to Mr. Haddock. The lands are dry and fertile, and proper for tillage. To the S. is the parish of Knockavilly, where the soil is, for the most part, cold and bleak; yet being manured with lime, affords good crops of corn.

Ovens.

Snugbo-

Garyhafty, &c.

rough.

The Ovens, or St. Owens parish, is washed, on the S. and E. sides, by the Bride, and on the N. by the Lee. In it is a most remarkable cave, beneath a stupendous limestone arch, 12 feet high at the entrance, but declines to less than six. In some places it is higher, and in others so low, that one is obliged to creep in advancing through it. The passage is on the W. side, but in about 20 yards the cave winds towards the S. and S. E. Another way leads on due S. to a well about fourscore yards from its entrance. There are many other branches, some running in a serpentine manner, others

MAP. II. HISTORY of CORK.

OOK I

a large

of the

away

north ime o ranted From-troy-

ptain

from

who

He

igh,

of of

e of

e of

be-

04-oft

th

n

e

hers like so many alleys, crossing each other, mostso broad that six or eight persons may walk heast, the whole forming a perfect labyrinth unle-ground. In order to visit these passages, it would be necessary to take the same precaution as so sight the Minotaur in the Cretan labyrinth, which Virgil thus elegantly describes.

Ut quondam creta fertur labyrinthus in alta Parietibus textum cæcis iter, ancipitemque Mille viis habuiffe dolum, qua figna fequendi Falleret indeprenfus & irremeabilis error.

Æn. lib. v. v. 585, &c.

And as the Cretan labyrinth of old, With wandring wave and many a winding fold, Involv'd the weary feet without redress; In a round error which deny'd reces.

DRYDEN.

This grotto is all lined with a natural gypfum or falactical matter, which pervades through the mcks, and is a stronger cement than human industry has yet invented. By my computation, I went a quarter of an English mile under ground in this place; and the country people fay, that it runs to Gill-abbey, near Cork; there is also another entrance near the church to this cave. Grange, near Grange the Ovens, is the house of Mr. Onesiphorus Phaire, whose ancestor, col. Phaire, was governor of Cork, ann. 1651, being fo appointed by Oliver Cromwell. He was one of the persons, to whom the warrant for the execution of king Charles I. was directed. On the 18th of May, 1660, he was carried prisoner, with a guard of 50 troopers, to Dublin from Cork, and was fent to London; where, by the interest of lord Clancarty, (whose life he is said to have saved, as he was going to be executed, by a party, who made him prisoner, and did not know him) he obtained his pardon, and returned to Cork. He was again concerned in the fanatic plot, ann, 1666, for feizing the castle of Dublin, and the other garrisons of Ireland, which was discovered by the if earl of Orrery, and captain Oliver, to the duke of Ormond; the management of that business in this county being committed to col. Phaire, However, there being a peace foon after between Eng. land, Holland, and France, the plot was dropt, and the projectors of it suffered to go unmolested by the government. He died peaceably near Cork, and was buried in the anabaptist burying yard of that city.

Cooleroe.

Cooleroe, the house of Mr. Wetheral, on the S. bank of the Lee, with good plantations, and an handsome avenue leading to the house. Near it, is the bridge of Iniscarra, of six stone arches. The river is here contracted, having a fall, and runs with great rapidity. Cooleroe is in the barony of Barrets.

Limekilns.

There is no part of Ireland, where so much lime is burned as in this S. fide of the barony of Muskery. From the head of the vale of Castlemore, down below Kilcrea, on all the adjacent hills, there are great numbers of lime kilns. It is not uncommon to see several on one farm, and some hundreds of them are constantly kept burning all the summer season: being mostly turf kilns, besides some of furze, which are here feldom used. The common labourers, in this part of the country, will fet down their kilns, and burn them, without the allistance of a mason; in one of them, they commonly burn 200 barrels of roch lime, which will make 500 barrels of flack; when it is burned, they take out the lime before it flacks, otherways it would burst the kiln. They also use sea sand for CHAP. III. HISTORY of CORK.

OK IL

faved,

, Who

ne ob-

e was 1 666,

r garate of ke of n this low-

Eng-

ropt,

efted

ork,

he S.

d an

1t, 19

The

runs

y of

ime

Juf-

ore,

nere

reds.

ım-

me.

fet

21-

m-

will

ney

s it

ind

for or manuring, particularly in the S. E. of this baony, it lying within two miles of the Bandon river, where it is navigable up to Inishannon. Several of the cottagers, in this tract, pay their rents by imeburning, and will often sell roch lime, 10 or 15 miles from the kiln, at a shilling the barrel.

CHAP. III.

A Description of the Barony of Kinalea and Kerrycurihy, the Towns of Kinsale and Bandon, with the adjacent Baronies of Courcies, Ibawne, and Barriroe, and the Cantred of Kilbritton.

The latter called, formerly, Muskery Millane, was possessed by Richard Cogan, and came from him to the earls of Desmond; it was given by James, the 15th earl, to his brother Maurice, as I have mentioned in the 32d and 50th pages of this volume. This country, lying on the S. W. of the channel of Cork, has the convenience of that harbour, and another channel that runs up a lime-stone vale to Carigaline: besides, it has the sea-coast and Oysterhaven to the south, and on the S. W. the bay and harbour of Kinsale; it hath lime-stone for manure, and is sufficiently provided with several kinds of it, drawn from the sea, by means of the river Bandon being navigable up to Inishannon.

Monks-

⁽¹⁾ Kerrycurihy contains 10 parishes, viz. Templebreedy, the impropriation of Monk's town, Kilmurry, Lisnadeary, part of Carigaline, Killanully, Ballyneboy, Kilpatrick, Barnehelly, and Riniskiddy, containing 53 plow-lands, and 12,994 Irish plantation acres. Kinalea is divided into 19 parishes, viz. Dunderrow, Leosine, Inishannan, Templemichael, Taxaxon, Briny, Knockavilly, Ballymartle, Ballynaboy, Knocknamanaghan, Cullen, Bealfoyle, Nohavel, Kilmahonoge, Kilpatrick, part of Carigaline, Kinure, Ballyfeard, and Tracton. It contains 310 plow-lands, in which are 40,058 Irish plantation acres.

Francis

6

Monk'stown.

Monks-town is the nearest parish, in Kerrycuring to Cork. The castle was built by the family of Archdeacon, ann. 1638. It is large, and in ruins and is flanked by four fquare turrets. To this family ton.

Ballybrit- also belonged the castle of Barnahely. Ballybrit ton is a pretty feat, in this parish, the gardens h to the water; it is, at present, occupied by Mr. Connor. Beyond it, is Coolemore, the feat of Tho-

ven-

Cross-ha- mas Newenham, efq. More to the fouth, is Crosshaven, a fafe creek, lying on the W. fide, after you enter Cork harbour. Sir Francis Drake, in 1589, having a small squadron of five ships of war. was chased into this harbour, by a superior fleet of Spaniards; he ran into Cross-haven, and moored his thips behind the thelter of Corribiny hill, in fafe balin: The Spaniards failed up the harbour of Cork, and were furprifed not to fee the thips they had just before chased into it; thus, having missed their prey, they came out again, without doing fir Francis the least harm.

Carigaline.

The caftle of Carigaline, is fituated on the upper end of this haven, on the N. fide of the river Oonbouy, built on a limestone rock, by the Cogans, but was, many years after, poffeffed by the Defmond family: In queen Elizabeth's time, it was called the impregnable caftle of Carigaline (a), but it is now entirely demolifhed. The punit church is in decent order, and ftands a little way to the S. and near it, is an handlome house and improvement of alderman Atkins, of Cork. Shannon park, alias Ballinrea, was formerly the feat of Shannon park.

⁽a) The lands of Carigaline, alias Beaver, containing four plow-lands, Ballingay, alias Ballinga, containing fix plow-lands, and Crofshaven 80 acres, were demilied, by fir Warnam St, Leger, (to whom they were granted by queen Elizabeth) to Stephen Golding, Thomas Petty, and others, who furresdered them to king James I. March 31, 1612. And new let ters patent were passed for the fame, by fir Richard Boyle, knt. who purchased them from the faid Golding. MSS at Lilmore

OR I

urihy

ily o

ruins

amily

ybni

is lye

Mr.

Tho-

rofe

after

e, in

War.

et of ored

in a

r of

they ffed

oing

up-

ver

Co-

the

it

2),

to

nnc

of 15

10

Francis lord viscount Shannon, who had here a neat oule, and fine park, both entirely gone to ruin ; notwithstanding, this seat, in its time, was justly reckoned one of the most pleasant in Munster. The first earl of Cork designed to build a town at Carigaline; and as it lay nearer the harbour's mouth than the city of Cork, and also had the advantage of a deep and navigable channel, he intended it should rival that city in trade: He was induced to purfue this scheme out of a pique to the citizens of Cork, who entered a by-law in their council books, that no citizen should sell any lands or estate, in the city, to that nobleman; but the rebellion of 1641 mined the delign. From Shannot park, a rivulet empties itself into a creek, a little to the S. of Monks-town, on the lands of Barnahealy, which works a large bolting mill, erected by the late Mr. Carre, merchant in Cork; and this water is conveyed to it by an aqueduct near a quarter of a mile.

A mile S. W. of Carigaline, is Kilowen, a new Kilowen. house, and pretty seat, of Mr. Nash: And more W. is Meades-town, where stood a castle, built by the Meades. Hodders-field, called, formerly, Ringa- Hoddersbroe, a mile W, of Cros-haven, is the feat of Mr. field. Hodder; on a riling ground near the house, is a gazebo, which commands a prospect of the harbour of Cork, the ocean, and a valt tract of lea coaft. The castle of Ballea, is a large ruin, a mile W. of Carigaline; it was formerly possessed by the Mac-Cartys, of Cloghroe; and opposite to Coolemore, are the ruins of another castle, built by one of the Defmond family. Rinabelly, about three miles S. Rinabelly. of Carigaline, is a good house of Mr. Hodder; there is here a dangerous fandy bay, sometimes fatally mistaken, by mariners, for the mouth of Cork harbour; an hard fand obstructs the entrance: The mouth of this bay opens due W. whereas that of Cork harbour lies in N. More to the S. W. in the parish of Bealfoyl, is Barry's castle, built on a Barry's VOL. I. rock, caftle.

BOOK II

Mountlong.

rock hanging over the coast. At Britfield's town, it this parish, the sea eagle, or ospery, breeds in the cliffs. On the E. fide of Oysterhaven, is Mount long, an handsome castle of the Longs; not far from it, is Bellgooly, where the Irish had their camp, for the first years of the wars of 1641; and this castle is now inhabited by Mr. Bustead. Oysterhaven is still remarkable for excellent oysters. That part of this barony, called Kinalea, lies between Kerrycurihy and Bandon river. This track was named Infovenagh, and was formerly granted to Robert Fitz-Martin; but it belonged to Barry-Oge, until the rebellion of 1641. The abbey of Tracton stood two miles S. of Carigaline; it was founded, ann. 1224, for ciffertian monks, by the Mac-Cartys. This foundation was confirmed by king Edward III. The abbots of it formerly fat in parliament. The monks pretended to have a piece of the cross, which, they said, Barry-Oge, at a great price, obtained, and gave them; this was fo firmly believed, that, on every holy thursday, vast multitudes reforted to pay their devotions to this supposed relick. This abbey was granted by queen Elizabeth, to Henry Guilford, gent. and fir James Craig, March 20, 1568, on their paying, beforehand, the fum of 71. 15s. fterl. Sir James Craig assigned to the earl of Cork, who passed a patent for this abbey, March 23d, 7th of James I. and was by him given to his fon Francis lord Shannon. The monks came from Alba Lauda, in Wales; and this house was called De Alba Tractu; it is now quite demolished; and near it, is the feat of Samuel Daunt, esq;

Kinalea.

Rigg's Dale.

On the S. fide of the river Oonbouy is Rigg's Dale, a pretty feat of the Riggs's, with good plantations, five miles from Cork; this land was famous for producing excellent cheefe: And on the other fide, is Ballynahassick, a small village. Mr. Bennet has here an agreeable country house, well wooded, Ballynalaffick.

K II

m, is

n th

unt

fu

their

and

ler-

beact

red

ry-

of vas

he

by

in ce

at

-

ft s

1

the S. fide, with large orchards and gardens, he river Oonbouy runs near it, under a stone like of three arches, being confined by a narrow hamel; but it is deep, and stocked with good sut, pike, tench, and large eels.

The village of Brinny is in the western extremity Brinny.

buch, and a handforne feat of Mr. Nath.

The castle of Dundaneere, stands near the con- Dundas hence of the Brinny and Bandon rivers. It was neere. with by Barry-Oge. About the year 1612 (3), the Alindia company of England, had a fettlement bis; for which uses, they purchased the adjacent mis, and lands, for 7000l. The following year, wo new thips, of 500 tuns, were launched, and a tok was erected for building more; they kept a amion in the castle, and built three adjacent vilgs; but they were much disturbed in their untemkings, by Walter Coppinger and others, gainst whom they petitioned the government; and ich was the implacable spirit of the Irish against them, that, by continually doing them feveral miftherous ill offices, they forced them, at length, to uit the country. The great woods on the Bandon were, from that time, much demolished, and egan to forfeit Spenser's description of it, who amed it, 'The pleasant Bandon, crowned with many a wood.' But there are still some large planations remaining W. of Inishantion. The earth breabouts is a rich loamy foil, producing excellent wheat, barley, and potatoes. They manure with and, lime, and dung.

Inishannon is pleasantly situated, on the river inishanlandon, six miles from Kinsale. The river is na-non.

Vigable to Colliers-quay, half a mile below the place.

On the W. side of the town, is a fair stone bridge:

It was formerly walled, and a place of some note,

as appears by the foundations of several castles, and

(3) MS. Sir Richard Count ary log to Natural and Civil BOOK large buildings, discovered in it; but notwithstand ing its excellent fituation on a navigable river, an very fruitful country, it continued to be a po decayed village, until within these three years, the it began to be rebuilt, by Thomas Adderly, ef who has erected a range of decent flate houses for linen manufacturers, with a bleach yard, and other conveniences; and so well has the design flourish ed, by the indulgence and encouragement of the worthy gentleman, that, although this business is bu in its infancy, there were manufactured and bleach ed, at Inishannon, from the 1st of Feb. 1748, toth 1 ft of Nov. 1749, 422 pieces of fundry kinds of li nen, theetings, diapers, &c. containing 13886 yards belides 240 pieces that came to be bleached from the neighbourhood, the water being found to b most excellent for that purpose; and from the 15th of Aug. 1749, to the 23d of Dec. 1749, there wer 318 pieces more manufactured here; containing 12229 yards, besides 59 pieces then in the looms, of which there are erected for linen and theeting 59 also two broad diaper looms, and one narrow, belied four for weaving canvals, being 66 in all, belonging to the factory, and kept employed by Mr. Adderly he cansed all the cloth that was made in this town to be carefully viewed, by feveral gentlemen and dealers in linen, who have certified, that, for goodness, breadth, ftrength and colour, the linen made here equals any other manufactured in Ireland.

Charterichool.

What will also much contribute to the establishment of this factory, is a charter-school, which has been lately erected, by the encouragement of Mr. Adderly, who has bestowed two acres of land on it for ever, fet 40 acres more at half value for 21 years, and promises to renew the lease when required, without any confideration. He gave 2001. towards the building, also liberty to raise stones and flates on his land, with turf for the use of the school; and obtained an annual subscription of 30l. per annum, towards its support; by all which hitand

BOOK

ver, an

a po

rs, th

y, eld

uses fo

d other

ourif

of the s is bu

leach

to th

of vards

fron

to b

15th

wen

ming

ns, of 59 fide

ging

rly

OWn

and

od-

nade

ifh-

has

Mr.

n it

21

re-

ol.

ies

of on all th

which encouragements, this school proceeds in a appy thriving way. The Bandon river not only fords the inhabitants excellent water for bleaching, but it gives them the advantage of carrying great munities of turf down to Kinsale, which firing hey have near Inishannon in great plenty: These bus return laden with fea-fand for manure, which sarried into the barony of Murkery, and the adment country, upon horses backs; the country people give about 16s. for 120 bags of this fand. which hold about a barrel each. They have lime here, from the parish of Moviddy, in Muskery, which place supplies Bandon, and a great part of Carbery, with it for manure and building, at a very rasonable price. In digging a canal, to draw water to the bleach-yard of Inishannon, there was some hew of coal, from the deep, black, tinged, flaty fiones there dug up. On the bank of this canal, there is a good appearance of potters clay, very aly to come at; and near the town is an excellent To the west of this place, Thomas late quarry. Corker, elq; has a pretty leat.

From Inishannon to Kinsale, the river Bandon is curemely pleasant, having several Houses, castles, and woods on its banks, which are high and beautiful. As one rows down this river, it winds, in an greeable manner; and at the end of each turn, the light is pleasingly entertained with the prospect of some neat seat, or romantic building, which open upon the eye one after another.

Next below Inishannon, is Coolemoreen, lately improved by Mr. Hodder, of Cork, who has built a good house, drained the land, and imbanked a part of it, formerly overflown by the river. Below this, is Golden-Bush, a good house of Mr. Hay's, pleasantly seated on the river. A mile lower, is the castle of Poulne-long, i. e. Ship-pool, built by the Roches, as appears from their arms over a chimney-piece. This castle was taken by the Bandoni-ans, in 1642, whereby they gained a correspondence to and from Kinsale. It is now a please feat of Edward Herrick, esq; with good gards and other improvements; he has also made a whandsome dining-room in this castle, which are a very beautiful prospect of the river. On the posite side, but lower down, is Cariganasical ruined castle, of Mac-Carty-Reagh, in the two of Courceys; and on the same side, are several for flate quarries.

Holly-hill. Holly-hill, the feat of Francis Roche, eld, in on this river, two miles from Kenfale; the h has four regular fronts; the gardens are well a and laid out in an elegant manner, the owner ing travelled through France and Italy. The a fine avenue leading to the house, above an I which, is beautified with fine holly hedges (in is ral diamonds) the avenues croffing each other tween, in order to take off the fteepnels of hill, and render it more easy. He has, at a g expence, cut through an high rock, to open a to the Bandon river, by which forme marcalites copper were discovered. To the N. is a neat vill regularly built, of decent cottages, for the acc modation of his tenants and labourers.

Dunder-

Dunderrow, is a small village, two miles for Kinsale, with a parish church in repair. It is longed to the Roches, who had a castle near the banks of the Bandon river. In the church-yard, a monument, with an inscription to the memory Edward Roche, esq. of Trabolgan, and his winders. Mary Archdeacon, of Monkstown, who be died in the same hour, on the 23d of January 1711. Arms, gules three roaches naint, impals with gules, a sels between three lions rampant, or the 1st for Roche, the 2d for Archdeacon; and with in the church, is a monument for the lady of Francis Roche, of Holly-hill, esq, who died the

HAP. III. HISTORY of CORK.

ith of June, 1731. The other being for his pa-

Near Dunderrow, is a large Danish intrenchent, from whence it has its name; dun fignifying fortified place.

Ballintobber, near Kinsale, is a seat belonging to Ballintobir John Meade (4), a minor, whose grandsather ber. res created a baronet by queen Anne, May 29,

Having mentioned every thing remarkable in his barony, I proceed to a description of Kinsale, Kinsale, which was called, in Irish, Cean Taile, i. e. the had of the sea, alluding to the promontory, called he Old head; others derive it from the Irish cune hile, or cune saille, which imports a smooth sea or him. It is, in some old Irish MSS, called Fan-na submed, i. e. the sall of the springs. This is an accent corporation. King Edward III. granted it charter, anno 1333; and the same was renewed Charter, whing Edward IVth's charter (5) of the 22d year confirmation to strend at effice on ... by a manufact

(4) Created vifcount Clanwilliam, in 1766.

(s) This charter recites an act made at Limerick, at a parament held there on the friday before ash-wednesday, before itald earl of Kildare, deputy to Richard of Shrewsbury, duke (York, 2d son to king Edward IV. lord lieutenant of Ireland, lat at the supplication of John Gallway, William Gallway, homas and William Martell, Edward and John Roche, &c. togeses, who produced several letters patent of divers other sats, of many of the king's royal progenitors to them, and air successors, by the name of the sovereign and commons Kinfale. And, among others, the charter of king Edgard III. which recites, "That the town was surrounded by the enemies and English rebels, and that the burgesses have mys obeyed the king's orders in repelling the same, who are often, by see and land, assaulted the town, and that the alls were ruinous, and the burgesses not able to repair them. herefore, power was granted, by this charter, to the wassen, to elect their sovereign, who may have a mace, with the king's arms engraved thereon, borne before him. The suporation to have the custom of all customable goods, as the post of Cork had, (those called the great customs excepted) year of his reign, anno 1482. I do not find that this charter was again renewed, until queen Elizabeth confirmed their privileges, anno 1588, the year of the famous invalion, by the Spanish armada

₿

m te

30

1

0

1 ò

8

to go to the repair of their walls. A proper account thereof to be tendered yearly before two burgeffes, or before the earl of Defmond, and not into the exchequer. All forestalking and regrators punishable, with fine and imprisonment, by the fovereign, who is to license wine-taverns, and all persons selling goods in the town, also to regulate the affixe of bread and weights, and to be escheator, admiral and clerk of the marke. The merchants of this town were exempted from paying that custom, called the perty customs, through all Ireland. The fovereign and burgeffes have power to take cognizance of all pleas (as well of fresh force, viz. within 40 days) as also of trespasses, covenants, debts, &c. to the amount of any sem, any flavote to the contrary not withflanding. Also commune of all pleas of lands within the town and liberales, no therif having power to take cognizance of any matter therein, unless the lieutenant general, chief justice, chancellor or treasurer, be prefent. In matters relating to the corporation, the jury to confift of townsmen. The fovereign and burgestes not to be constrained to attend at affixes, unless by a mandate under the privy feal. Liberty for them to treat with Irish enemies, and to reform them, fo that fuch correspondence be not prejudical to the crown, also to make war upon them. The corporation not to be forced to levy more foldiers than they can been, me be imposed upon by subsidies, talings, coin, hernes, been, at to have a yearly power of making as many freemen as the shall think proper, and to make by laws, ac, and to enjoy of freedoms and stoeries granted to the city of Cork. Their laws to extend freedoms and stoeries granted to the city of Cork. berties to extend from a rock, called the Bulman, up to in-mannon. None of the Frish, unless made free, to be admitted into the franchifes. Witness our beloved Thomas earl of Demond, deputy to our most dear fon. George duke of Clarent, our lieutenant general of our land of Ireland. Dated a Dublin, the 7th of January, in the 7th year of our rep.

These letters patent being read in the above-mentioned pullament, an act passed "for confirming the fame, and that we burgestes, one to be chosen by the town, and the other by the lord Courcey, should be overseers of the fevenues and custom, which were to be expended upon the reparation of the walls and fortresses thereof." Witness our aforesaid deputy as Limerick, the 15th of February, whn. tegn. 22d.

II

hat

zathe

arada

ete-

the

llen

the

feland ket. that

The all

of men,

5 0 5

and はのなるとの上のなるは、

mada (6). The corporation forfeited this charter upon the Spaniards landing in this town, anno 1600, together with all their privileges. For

(6) The above charter, queen Elizabeth (by the advice of fr William Fitz-William, lord deputy) ratified by letters patent, dated at Greenwich, 18th of January, in the 30th year of her reign: She grants them power to purchase land, to the value of 301. per ann. Their liberties to extend, by fea, one mile further than in king Edward's charter, and 14 round the walls, in from the town, to the north part of the territory of Coolhaven and Glanknucknegool, to the north, into the old court of Glawntanellie and Court a Terteen, beyond the water and passage of Kinsale, to the south, from Beligooly and Prehane, on the east part, to the church of Dunderrow, and the part of Glassheen, towards the west, all the faid lands, and persons on the same, to be under the jurisdiction of the sovereign of Kinfale, who, with the burgefles, may perambulate these bounds as often as they please. The sovereign to be escheator, clerk of the market, examiner, gauger, &c. within the liberties, one half of the profits to go to the queen, and the other to the corporation. Power to collect the cultums, and appoint a cultumer from Kinfale, in all the ports west to the Dorsey Islands, to continue but one year in his office, and the profits to be acof all the faid creeks and bays. The fovereign, recorder, and two burgeffes, to be justices of the peace and of goal deward III. excepted,) and to have a goal in the faid town, and no other justice to make goal delivery, treasons excepted. The series at mace attending the fovereign and recorder, to make proper return of pannels, inquisitions, &c. as is practically tifed by any sheriff. A market to be held on wednesday and faturday, and a fair on the feast of St. Bartholomew, and two days after. The fovereign to be clerk of the same, with power to hold a court of pye-powder, &c. The custom, called the cocquet of hides, granted to the town. Alfo 31. 6s. 8d. rent issuing out of Courcey's country, which came to the crown, by the attainder of Gerald, late earl of Defmond. To hold the fame, for 31 years, from the date of those patents. Earolled at Dublin, May 10th, ann. Eliz. 31.

In the town and liberties, are 6 parishes, 33 plowlands, and therein 6846 acres.

CH

wh

fair

wa

fris

Ro

of tov

ai

15

Fr

lor

fid

arc

for (20

cu

efo

ne

lo

So

fo

tir

an

hi

ft

in

th

on October 14 (7), 1601, the burgesses came to sin George Carew, and requested him to restore their charter, seal, mace, and royal standard; which, up on the arrival of the Spaniards, they had delivered him to keep. The president said, he could not return them, without directions from England, so the conceived that they were forfeited; but promised to write to the queen in their savour, which he did; and soon after, had an order to restore them, on condition, that they should, at their own charges, repair their walls, and assist, with labourers, towards sinishing the new fortification of Castle-Park; all which they promised to perform.

Among other enfigns of royalty restored, at this time, to the burgesses, there was a fair large standard, embroidered with the arms of England, given them by king Henry VIII. who fent it by fir George Carew, the lord prefident's coulin german; when he arrived at Kinfale, (not long before the fiege of Bologne) being then admiral of the king's ships. After the restoration of their charter, king James I. gave them (8) 201, per ann, out of the cantreds of Kinsale and Courcey's, to enable them to rebuild their walls. And king Charles I. by letters patent, dated March 13, ann. reg. 14 granted them 61, per ann. out of the lands of Drumdarig, and 121 10s. od. + out of the Spittle land. The late king James also gave them a new charter, dated at Dublin, 25th of February 4th regn, before his abdication, and enrolled May 4th, 1688. This town is now governed by a fovereign, with an unlimited number of burgeffes, who form a common council; these, together with the freemen, elect the fovereign, the city officers, and return two members to parliament : Besides an handfome falary, the fovereign has an allowance for entertainments, &c.

⁽⁷⁾ Pacata Hibern,

⁽⁸⁾ Ex Rot. in officio audit.

fi iei

n.

1

S.

1-

e

In this town, was an abbey of regular canons, Abbeys, where (Colgan says) faint Gobban, a disciple of saint Ailbe, was abbot in the 7th century. There was also an abbey here of carmelites, or white riars, dedicated to the virgin Mary, founded by Robert Fitz-Richard Balrain, anno 1334. Part of the ruins still remain, on the N. end of the town.

The parish church is dedicated to a female Church, saint, called Multosia, or St. Multos, by whom, it is said, to have been erected, in the 14th century. From the W. door, to the E. end, it is 123 feet long, and proportionably broad. On the north side, is an arcade of seven gothic arches, the middle arch leads into a cross isle, in which are two hand-some monuments of Italian marble. On the first, (adorned with an urn, and other embellishments, curiously wrought) is this inscription.

Dum Tempus Habemus, Operimur Bonum, Vigilate & Orate, quia nescitis Horam.

"Here lieth the body of ROBERT SOUTHWELL, eq; eldest son of Anthony Southwell, esq; and nephew to captain sir Thomas Southwell, of Polylong, knt. He was descended from sir Richard Southwell, of Woodrising, in the county of Norfolk, in England, knt. whose family were, in ancient time, of the town of Southwell, in the county of Nottingham. He deceased on the 3d day of April, anno 1673, and in the 70th year of his age."

"Here also lieth the body of Helena Southwell, his wife, daughter of major Roger Gore, of Sher-ston, in the county of Wilts, in England, who, having lived with him 40 years, in the inviolate bands of wedlock, she died on the 1st of July, 1679, in the 66th year of her age. They had issue, Robert, Catherine, and Thomas. Here lieth also the body of the said Thomas Southwell, born the 24th of November,

0

(

November, 1639, who died the 1st day of October, 1641. Here also lieth Catherine Gore, mother to the said Helena, and sister to fir Arthur Hyde, of Castle-Hyde, knt. who died upon the 7th day of July, 1638."

If the memory of the dead gives example to the living, let this marble testify, that the faid Robert Southwell was, in the course of a long life, and various changes of time, loyal to the crown, zealous for the church, and, towards mankind, perfectly just. He was one of the privy-council of Munster, and vice-admiral of the same province; in the discharging of which trust, as well as all others, whether publick or private, for his friends or country, the abilities and vigour of his mind, his industry and zeal for justice, were always exemplary. He was a lover of peace, liberal, and a friend to the poor. That comeliness of aspect, which had always shined in his countenance, he preserved to the last; but growing weary of this world, amidst all the comforts of it, and coveting to be dissolved, he did, with a manly christian and unshaken constancy, refign his breath."

"Helena Southwell, beloved of all, and of all lamented in her death; she who never turned her face from the poor, but was a mother to the afflicted. Let her memory be ever fresh. She had great endowments of mind, and constant piety towards God. Prudence, humility, and a passion for doing good, crowned all her works."

Let her example flourish.

Sir Robert Southwell, one of the clerks attending his majesty king Charles II. in his most honourable privy council of England, dedicated this to the memory of his indulgent parents, whose own virtues have dedicated them to eternity."

Arms, or, 3 bull's-heads fable, in the fefs point a crescent gules. Impaled with argent 3 roles gules.

Adjoining

CHAP. III. HISTORY of CORK.

Adjoining to this monument, stands another, of stalian marble, beautifully wrought, and adorned with carvings of foliages, roses, fruit in a cornucopia, &c. and with the following arms, viz. argent, on a chief gules, three crosses pattee, with the difinction of a baronet. Impaled with argent, 3 cinque-foils gules, each leaf charged with an anulet or, the first for Perceval, the second for Southwell. Over which, in a cartouch of white marble, are these lines.

"Here lieth the body of dame Catherine, relict of fir John Perceval, of Burton, baronet, and only daughter of fir Robert Southwell, of Kinfale, and of Helena Southwell, his wife. She was born at Kinfale, the 1st of September, 1637; she was there married, on the 14th of February, 1655; and died near unto it, on the 17th day of August, 1679. Her husband, fir John Perceval, died in Dublin, on the 1st of November, 1665, in the 37th year of his age, and lieth buried there in the church of St. Audeon."

II.

r to

of

of

to aid

fe,

vn.

er-

of

e:

all

ds

d,

B.

2

he

is ng id

Ill

er

f-

d

1

"Their children were, 1st. Philip, born at Kinfale, the 12th of January, 1656. 2d. Robert, there born, the 8th of February, 1657. He departed this life, and was buried in Lincoln's-Inn, in London, the 5th of June, 1671. 3d. John, was born at Egmont, alias Ballymacow, near unto Burton, the 22d of August, 1660. 4th. Charles, born in London, the 4th of November,—he died at Kinfale, in July, 1672; and lieth here also interred. 5th. Catherine, born at Dublin, the 19th of March, 1662. 6th. Helena, born at Kinsale, the 17th of February, 1665, after her father's death."

"This lady having passed her youth in all the exercises of virtue and good instruction, and being remarkable for the beauties of both body and mind, she became the more worthy of that excellent man, that was her husband. She was not only endeared to him, by bringing a numerous off-

fpring,

 Θ

mo

(9

810 1.

crof.

o Je

died

with

Fran

rence

IV to be

gules befar

N

to th

neral and, of the Keck

V.

tutc t, is Hoor

He h

VI

ules mric lade

VI

aled

and y o lied

o H

VI a ber

o th

Augu

fpring, who did partake of his virtues; but, by the charms of her conversation during his health and her care and veneration for him in his fickness, she augmented her love, when he could be no longer a witness of it. For, after his death, she lived but as his monument; and paid unto his memory, the residue of her life in tears. His children's advantage did thenceforth become her principal worldly care, unless it seemed she had equal regard of others, by her boundless compasfion to all that were in diffress. The great endowments of her mind, were veiled over with meekness and humility. The observance she paid her parents, and her devotion to God, were unwearied, and of example to all. So that, having lived 18 years a virgin, 10 years a wife, and 14 years a widow, and manifesting, in every condition of life, the virtues that were most pleasing to heaven and earth; who can forbid the remembrance of these divine words.

Many daughters have done virtuously, but thou excellest them all." Prov. ch. xxxi. v. 29.

" Sir John Perceval, baronet, heir to his brother fir Philip Perceval (who died at Burton, the 11th of September, 1680) hath, to the memory of fo pious a mother, caused this monument to be erected, in the year of our redemption, 1680."

On a flag stone, in the chancel, is this inscription Memoriæ nunquam morituræ Hugonis Perly-Viri egregii pii ac prudentis, a summo magistratu, non sine publico patriæ detrimento, morte prærepti 25° die Jan. 1652. Ac etiam Gulielmi filii primogeniti ipsius Hugonis, & Dionysiæ quondam uxoris ejus. Pueri mira indole, & virtute ætatem superantis, qui obiit 23 August. 1655. No non Elizabethæ, & Johanæ Glanville sororum ejuldem Dionysiæ, quorum omnium corpora hic ja cent sepulta.

Non virtus, pietas, ætas, prudentia, fexus,

Vindicet a certà conditione necis."

MAP. III. HISTORY of CORK.

Near the north lateral ifle, is an handsome (a) monument, of white marble, adorned, on each fide,

(9) In this church, are feveral hatchments, hung up in may places.

I. Argent, a lion rampant gules, impaled with gules, a ools lozengee argent. Creft, a greyhound passant argent. This to the memory of the wife of Mr. John Keef, daughter b Jonas Stawell, of Kilbritton, esq;

II. Vert, a faltier engrailed argent. This to the memory of ol. Henry Hawley, lieutenant governor of Kinfale fort, who

III. Azure, a chevron between three martlets or, impaled with argent, three bars gemels gules. This to the memory of francis Gash, esq; husband to the right hon. Catherine, ountess dowager of Barrymore, relieft to the right hon. Lawnoce, earl of Barrymore, and eldest daughter to the right lon. Richard, lord baron of Santry.

IV. An hatchment, without a name, but the arms shew it be for the family of Stawell. Quarterly. The 1st and 4th ples, a cross lozengee argent, the 2d and 3d azure, three ıİ.

ne 2

er ıd

f-

7= 19

1-8

d

e u

4 e f

e

14

.

í

C

Near it, on the N. side of the altar, is a painted monument, to the memory of lieut. col. John Hedlam, of the hon. general Tidcomb's reg of foot, who ferved the crown of England, honourably and faithfully, for above 30 years, and was of the ancient family of the Hedlams of the barony of kecksby, near York. He died here, Jan. 4, 1711.

V. On the S. side of the communion table, is a carved eltatcheon in wood, with this bearing. Sable, fretty or. Near his a stone in the wall, to the memory of captain Thomas hoper, of col. Churchill's reg. who died, April 12, 1714. he having faithfully ferved the crown of England 22 years.

VI. Argent, a crofs azure, in the dexter chief a fleur de lis ules. Impaling azure, a martlet between three annulets or, miched with rubies. This to the memory of captain John laddock, who died here, August 15, 1746.

VII. Argent, a phoon betwixt three boars heads fable, imaled with gules, on a fels argent two torteauxes, in chief an and between two castles of the second. This to the memoy of major John Reading, of Saintoff, in Yorkshire, who led here, April 19, 1725. He married Elizabeth, daughter o Henry Tonson, esq; of Spanish Island, in this county.

VIII. Sable, two hands argent, a chief or, impaled with fable, bend dexter, and in the finister chief a tower argent. This o the memory of the hon. col. George Bate, lieut. governor if the town and fort of Kinsale, who died the 31st of lugust, 1735.

with fluted corinthian pillars of black marble, and on the top, with coats of arms, carved, gilded and painted, with this inscription :

" This monument was erected, by Thomas Lawrence, efq; a captain of the royal navy of England to the memory of Elizabeth, his late dearly beloved wife, who had an high fense of her duty to all re lations of life, and may, for ever, be an example to posterity, of filial obedience, conjugal affection, parental care, charity to the diffressed, and piety to God. Which last quality was eminently conforcuous, in a patient submission to the will of God through the course of a tedious and painful diftemper; and, at last, made a chearful refignation of her foul to her redeemer, by whose merits alone the trufted when living, to partake of a bleffed immortality after death. She was daughter to Mr. Gabriel Soalden, merchant of this town, where the died, on the 18th day of September, 1724, aged 45 years, and lieth interred near this place.

Behind the altar, is an old stone, placed in the wall, which has an inscription, in the Saxon character, and begins thus, Orate pro animabus, &c. and is not legible because of the wainfoot.

The steeple of this church is low, old, and but indifferently built. There were in it, about twenty years ago, three bells; at present, there is but one. This church lying low, is not very conspicuous in the prospect of the town.

This town is well filled with protestants, several English families having settled in it at different times. Upon the arrays in 1740, there were, besides a regiment of foot, a troop of 100 horse, in complete uniform; being blue, turned up with a buff coloured cloth, with waistcoats of the same; who performed their evolutions, and manual exercise, as well as any regular forces could do; which troop was commanded by the right hon. Gerald, lord Kinsale.

225

In this town, is an hospital, called the Gift-Charity boufe; an handsome nest building, erected for 8 foundatipor men, who have each 2s, a week and cloth-ons. ng. It was endowed by the right hon. Edward buthwell, principal secretary of state, whose father and grandfather also supported it; the latter of whom first founded it, in king Charles IId's time, though it had not, as I have been informed, a fixed fipend till of late. The fame gentleman gave an Charterhouse, newly erected, for the reception of 20 boys, school. with 2 acres of ground, who are to be bred to the To this foundation, the corporation subfribes 10 l. per ann. besides several private subfriptions. It is deligned to be a charter-school, under the fame rules and establishment as the rest of that kind in this kingdom.

There is also an handsome session house, where the courts are held, and the other affairs of the corporation are transacted; likewise a good market-house. Provisions are here very reasonable during a peace; but, in war time, they receive great supplies of beef, beer, and biscuit, from Cork, for witualling the king's ships, and feeding the prisoners taken from the enemy; of whom, great numbers are brought into this port during the war, this being the most convenient place, in Ireland, for securing them.

c III

and aw.

and

oved

1 re

le to ion.

iety

ıfpi-

od.

dif

n of lone

fled

Mr.

fhe ged

the rac-

and

but

enty

one.

lous

reral

rent

be-

, m

th a

ne;

ker-

nich

ald,

h

In the parish of Ringroan, near this town, is an alms-house, near the old dock, sounded by Dr. Edward Worth, incumbent of that parish, who was afterwards dean of Cork, and bishop of Killaloe. It contains five poor people, who have 40 s. per ann. and lodging. The same prelate has left a more noble charity than this small foundation, viz. that called the blue coat hospital, in the city of Cork; an account of which will be given in the description of that city. He was the author of a mact against the anabaptists, one of the first works that was ever printed in Cork, in 1654, 4to. He also published several sermons.

Vol. I. Q

This

BOOK II

This town is built under an hill, called Compais hill, and extends above an English mile from the barrack, at the north east end (which is an handfome building for a regiment of men, pleasantly fituated) to the World's-end, a place fo called on the fouth west; a good number of houses are built on the fide of this hill, and feveral also rife near its top, which, from the bay, and the opposite shore make it look much better than it really is. This hill being of a circular form, the place, in a great measure, takes its figure from it. The principal street. for want of room, is, in many places, narrow and Over this, are other streets, but incommodious. the communication is by steep slippery lanes, which, to strangers, are far from being agreeable. The houses are mostly built in the Spanish fashion, with large balcony windows, that of the right hon. Edward Southwell, is the largest. the middle of the hill, is a pleasant bowling-green; and higher up, a road, planted with trees, called the mall, where the ladies and gentlemen recreate themselves. There is another walk above this, called the rampart; and a pleasant way quite round Compais-hill, from whence there is a delightful prospect of the harbour, opening into several fine basins, besides the old and new forts, Bandon river, and, on the opposite shore, two well-built This prospect, in villages, called Cove and Scilly. time of war, is generally embellished with armed vel-Harbour fels, and large fleets of merchant ships. The harbour is very commodious, being rendered deep and navigable, by the river Bandon, which empties itself here, and with the advantage of its strong fort, makes it much frequented in war time. There are here, a dock and yard, for the building and repairing his majefty's veffels; also a crane, and gun-wharf, for landing and shipping heavy artillery, all built during the last war. In war time, there is also an hulk, for laying down and careening great ships, besides a ftore-bre-house, clerk of the cheque, store-keeper, masr hipwright, and other proper officers; besides a number of seamen, usually kept in such places in ingland; and this is the only port in Ireland, where is majesty's ships of war can be refitted.

The trade of this town is not over great, the Trade. on of Cork lying to very near, ingroffes all the ommerce of those parts. Yet there is here a aftom-house, with a collector, surveyors, and other officers (10) for the management of the cul-

oms, with barges, &c.

K II

país-

n the

and-

antly

d on build

ar its

ore,

This

Treat

reet.

and

but

nes.

ble. ion,

ight

ards

en;

lled

ate his,

aite ht-

eral

don

ailt

in

ef-

our

VI-

re,

es

re,

nis 10

ng

10

1

.

In war time, feveral rich merchant ships, bound m England, often put into this port, and wait for onvoy; and it has been known, that very large kets, worth fome millions, have harboured here upm this occasion, as will more particularly appear in the annals of this county, Book III.

The houses set, in war time, for double rent, and their leafes are drawn up accordingly (11).

This town gives title of baron to the right hon. ohn de Courcey, who is lineally descended from Milo de Courcey, fon to John (12) earl of Ulfter, whole

(10) The officers of the revenue for this port and diffrict, ut as follows

A collector, at 100 l. per annum. A port furveyor, at sol. per annum.

A tide furveyor, 451.

four tide waiters, 301. each. Four coast officers, 351. each.

Three supernumerary tide-waiters, at 51. each.

Ten boatmen, at 201. each.

Surveyor of excise, 65 l. per annum.

A landwaiter and a gauger, each 401. Three other gaugers in the diffrict, at 401. each.

And one supernumerary gauger, at 301.
(11) According to capt. South's account, in the Phil. Tranad. n. 261, p. 251. there were in Kinfale, ann. 1698, 104 eamen, and but 58 in Cork, 76 fishermen, and 45 boatmen, in all 223, whereof 106 were papifts.

(12) Notwithstanding what Giraldus Cambrensis afferts, in the 2d book of his history, chap. 2. that John de Cources.

earF

Book I whose ancestors were summoned to the first parlia ments of Ireland. The privilege of being covered in the royal presence, is enjoyed, to this day, by hi lordship, being granted to his great (14) ancestor earl of Ulfter, had no iffue, there is a record extant in the tower of London (Rot. Pat. 6. Johan. M. Darf.) that Milod Courcey, son of John de Courcey, was an hostage for his father, upon his enlargement from the tower, to fight the French champion.

(13) John de Courcey was created earl of Ulfter, by king Henry II. but, by the contrivances of Hugh de Lacy, loft the king's favour; being a prisoner in the tower of London, he was fent for by king John, who then had a dispute with king Philip, about a town in Normandy, which, as was the custom of those times, they intended should be decided by single combat. The earl of Ulfter, when the king's meffage was delivered to him, answered, "That not for the king, but for the honourof his country, he was willing to undertake the matter." Hanmer, p. 184. (whose old English will best describe this combat) gives it in the following words. "The day came, the place and lifts were appointed, and " the scaffolds were set up. The princes, with their nobility on both fides, waited the iffue of the battle. The French " champion first fallyed forth, gave a turn, and rested himself in his tent. De Courcey was fent for, who was truffing of himself up with strong points, and answered the messengers, that if any of their company were to go to fuch a banque, he would make no great hafte. He foon after came forth, gave a turn, and went into his tent. When the trumpets founded the charge, the champions issued out, and viewed each other. De Courcey eyed his adverfary with a wonderful ftern countenance, and paffed by. The Frenchman, not he ing his grim look, and the strong proportion of his person, stalked still along, and when the trumpets sounded to battle a fecond time, de Courcey drew his fword; upon which the Frenchman clapp'd spurs to his horse, broke through the bar-" rier, and fled into Spain: whereupon they founded victory, the people threw up their caps, and clapp'd their hands. King Philip defired king John, that de Courcey might be called be-" fore him, to shew some proof of his strength. A stake was set in the ground, and a shirt of mail, and an helmes placed " thereon; de Courcey drew his fword, looked wonderfully " ftern upon the princes, and cleft the helmet, fhirt of mail, and

" stake to far, that none could pull out the weapon but him-

CHAP. III. HISTORY of CORK.

rlia

d i

hi

the n the lo de s fa

ench

king

t the

Phi-

m of

bat.

prof

lanbat)

and ility

ench

nfelf

g of

ers,

net, rth,

pets

red eful

ikefon, ttle

the 11

五年四六五

red

ad

he earl of Ulfter, by king John. On the 13th of lune, 1720, the late lord Gerald de Courcey, was, by is grace the duke of Grafton, presented to his maify king George I. when he had the honour to kiss is hand, and to affert this ancient privilege: And on the 22d of June, 1727, he was presented, by the lord Carteret, to his late majesty, king George II. by whom he was graciously received, had the honour of biling his hand, and of being also covered in his pre-In May, 1627, fir Dominick Sarsfield was created lord viscount Kinsale, to the great prejudice of this ancient and noble family, and fet up his arms in the town. But, upon a fair hearing before the earl marshal of England, he was obliged to renounce the title of Kinfale, and take that of Kilmallock (14). The lords Kinfale were formerly the first barons

" felf. The princes then asked him, why he looked fo four "upon them? He faid, if he had missed his blow, he would " have cut off both their heads; but all was taken in good part. "King John gave him great gifts, and restored him to his for-" mer poffessions. After this, he sailed for Ireland, and was se-"veral times, by contrary winds, put back to West-Chester, in " hisattempt to pass into that kingdom; upon which, he altered " his course, went into France, and there died." This earl had an estate of 25,000 marks sterl. per ann. a vast income in The king, besides restoring him to it, bid him those days. at for any thing in his gift that he had a mind to, and it should be granted. Upon which, he answered, that he had titles and effate enough; but defired that he and his fuccessors, the heirs male of his family, might have the privilege (after their first obeysance) to be covered in the royal presence of him and his successors, kings of England; which the king granted. This phyllege was also granted to Henry Ratcliffe, earl of Suffex, (a family long fince extinct) who was general to queen Mary, of being covered, as the grandees of Spain are in the royal presence, by patent, dated Oct. 2, 1553. Vide Heylin's Ecclef. Hift. p. 190. (14) On the ad of April, 1627, John lord Courcey, baron of Kinsale, and Gerald his son, petitioned the king and lords of the council in England, against fir Dominick Sarsfield, who had taken this title; the lords referred the petition to the judges, who advised them to direct the earl marshal of England to determine the matter, who accordingly made the following " Accordreport.

barons of Ireland, but are said to have lost their precedency, ann. 1489. James lord Kinsale, having missed being at a solemn procession at Greenwich, king Henry VII, gave the title of premier baron of Ireland to the lords Athunry, who have ever since enjoyed the same; but this fact is disputed.

The Spa- The Spaniards were defeated in this place (15) in rish de- Richard II's time, anno 1380. And in queen feat, &c. Elizabeth's, by the lord Mountjoy, who, between

" According to your majesty's pleasure, &c. upon a full " hearing of the council learned on both fides, we find it appa-" rently proved, by ancient records, entries in parliament, &c. " that the lord Courcey and his ancestors, have, time out of " mind, been stiled barons of Kinsale and Ringroan. As to what " is alledged against him, That, in some records, he is only cal-" led lord Courcey, and baron of Courcey, which argument be-" ing only grounded upon omission, we hold to be of little force, " as it is usual where divers baronies are in the same person, for " the baron to name himfelf by the chief barony only, and to forbear naming the rest; yet we find the same person, cal-" led lord Kinfale and baron of Courcey, long before this question was stirred. Then the lord viscount endeavourd " to carry the barony into another line, and to shew the title was extinct by attainder; but both these allegations were " clearly answered, so that we are fully satisfied the barony of Kinfale anciently belonged to the lord Courcey. Then it " was alledged to have both titles stand, the one to be vif-" count, and the other to be baron of Kinsale. Which, " we conceive, would be confounding titles of honour, and " be of ill consequence; therefore, we cannot advise your " majesty to suffer it; but, we are of opinion, that fir Do-" minick Sarsfield may retain the degree that he now hath, " taking his title from some other place in Ireland, or else to be called viscount Sarsfield. For that your majefty was " not informed, that the title of Kinfale was given to any " other baron, which the patent may recite; and that, for ". the future, he shall be stiled by the new title, and not by " that of Kinfale; all which, we humbly present, and leave to " your Majesty's good pleasure. Dated 19th of April, 1647." Marlborough, Manchester, Pembroke, Totness, Grandesone. MSS. Penes Bar. de Kinfale.

(15) This attempt of the Spaniards, is related by Thomas

" France,

" the earl of Buckingham was passing through the realm of Walfingham, and thus translated by Hollinshead.

K III

their hav-

een-

mier

have

ited.

5) in leen

reen

the full

ppa-

at of vhat

cai-

be-

for d to cal-

this red

itle

ere of

it

the village of Taxaxon and this town, beat Tyrone, O-Donnel, and the Irish, on the 24th of December, 1601, and, at the same time, besieged don John de Aquilla in the town; after which battle, he was obliged to surrender the place to the queen's forces. For the particulars of which action, I refer to the historical part of this work.

Scilly is a small village, near Kinsale, well built, Scilly. and inhabited by fishermen, who have, both here and in that town, a considerable number of fishing vesfels, and yearly take good quantities of fish, which they falt for foreign markets, and home confumption. Those fishermen were an English colony, who fettled here, after the defeat of the Spaniards, in queen Elizabeth's time. They never marry out of the village, fo that they are all related to each I saw an halibut at Kinsale, which weighed, after being cleanfed, and the entrails taken out. one hundred, a quarter, and five pounds: It was in length fix feet and a half, and five feet broad. They are rare on this coast, but are excellent food. Mr. Pope gives an exact picture of one of these fmall fishing towns, in this stanza.

And on the broken pavement, here and there,
Doth many a stinking sprat and herring lie;
A brandy and tobacco shop is near,
And hens, and dogs, and hogs are feeding by,
And here a sailor's jacket hangs to dry;

At

[&]quot;France, the French and Spanish gallies did much mischief upon the coast of England; but, about the latter end of June, by a sleet of Englishmen from the W. countries, part of them were forced to retire, and take harbour in a haven in Ireland, called Kinsale, where, being assayled by the Englishmen and Irishmen, they were vanquished; so that to the number of 400 were slain, and their chief captains taken, as Gonzales de Vorza, and his brother Martin de Montrigo, Turgo lord of Morrans; also the lord of Reath, Pieces Marten of Varmen, and divers others; sive of their ships were taken, and 21 English vessels were recovered; and but four of their captains escaped."

₿

AHJ

mer (

F

Cou

the !

hou fron

Kin

the hea

u I

old

WO

the

ím

An

of the

lor die

At ev'ry door, are fun-burnt matrons feen Mending old nets, to catch the scaly fry, Now finging shrill, and scolding oft between. Scolds answer foul-mouth'd scolds, bad neighbour hood I ween.

Pope's Alley, in imitation of Spenfer

Charlesfort.

Lower down the bay, is the royal fortification of Charles-fort, fo called (in honour of king Charles II.) by the duke of Ormond, anno 1681, who then came to review it. It was begun in the year 1670. the first stone being laid by the earl of Orrery, and was finished at the expence of 73,000l. On the works to the sea, are 100 pieces of brass cannon mounted, carrying from 24 to 42 pound ball, The embrazures are all bomb proof. It is a regular fortification, with a strong citadel to the land This fort is so situated, that all ships coming into the harbour, must fail within pistol that of the royal battery. It stands one mile east of Kinfale, and hath a regiment of foot always quartered in it, besides another in the town, who may be thrown in at a minute's warning.

Before this fortification was built, there was one, on the opposite side, called the Old-fort. blockhouse still remains, and is capable, if there was occasion to have cannon mounted on its rampart. Both these forts were taken by the earl of Marlborough, ann. 1691. Sir Richard Booth was the last governor of the Old-fort.

When the Spaniards took Kinfale, it is hard to conceive, how they maintained themselves in the place, which (except a rampart on the fide of the hill,) had very little, besides an old wall, to defend it; there was, to the S. of the town, a small round fort, called the Queen's-fort, which shews what weak fortifications they had in those days; but the army ur

er

0 la

0,

nd

he

OII

11.

117

br

ps

ol

A.

ys

10

e,

1-

of

IS

0 Ĉ

e

t

my under lord Montjoy, were scarce more nuprous than the Spaniards in the town.

Four miles fouth of Kinfale, in the Barony of Courceys (16), is a promontory, runing far into the sea, called the Old-head; on which is a light-Old-head. buse, for the conveniency of shipping. A mile from its extremity, is an ancient castle of the lords Kinfale, built from one fide of the ifthmus to the other, which defended all the land towards the and. This place was formerly called Duncearma, ul have already mentioned, p. 46, and was an de feat of the Irish kings. The ifthmus, by the forking of the fea, is quite penetrated through; fo that there is a stupendous arch, under which a small boat may pass, from one bay to the other, Among the rocks of this coast, there are ayries of good hawks; also the sea eagle, or ofprey, build their nests and breed in them. Two miles from the Old-head, is the feat of the lord Kinsale; but his ordship intends shortly to build a more commodious house on the banks of the Bandon river, where there is a most delightful situation.

Ringroan (17) is an ancient cattle, and small Ringroan. sillage; it gives also title of baron to the right hon.

(16) This barony contains the parishes of Ringroan and Templetrine, being 3571 acres, and 37½ plow-lands,

(17) By an inquifition, taken at Kinfale, on the tuefday next for the feast of St. John Baptist, ann. 1372, and 46 of Edw.
III. before Roger Hawkensew, the king's escheator; Milo de fourcey died seized of the manor of Ringroan, who held the ame of the king in chief as of his fee, being one entire ba-ony, to which there belonged the service of William de Barry, the held the cantred of Kmalea and Kinalbeg, and Flanlow, y the service of 10h of the royal service when on foot, be-des other lands mentioned in the inquisition; he had the wice of three knights fees of John Firz-Gerat-Core, at Garkmaught, in the said manor, and of 30 of the royal service ad suit of the court when scutage was on foot; also the holarge and fervice of 11 knights fees at Burrin from Bernard lereford in the same manor; and 30 of the royal service

the lord Kinsale. This manor had anciently 30 knights sees, and was of a much greater extent than at present. In the Lambeth library X. X. fol. 4. there is an ancient inquisition, which is an account of the division and particulars of Courceys land in this county.

Garretstown.

Garrets-town, in this barony, is the feat of Francis Kearny, esq fituated on a rising ground, commanding a prospect of the ocean, on both fides the ifthmus of the Old-head of Kinsale, and a good part of the neighbouring country, which is here diversified into agreeable hills, and pleasant vales, The house, with the contiguous well cultivated. offices, form an handsome area; the pediments, coignes, doors and window-frames, are well built, of ruftic work, and hewn stone; a considerable part of the ground on which they stand, was levelled at a great expence, being hewn out of a deep folid rock. Towards the fouth, is a good orchard, with kitchen and pleasure gardens; in which last, is an handsome amphitheatre, the ground being naturally formed for that purpose. Under an high terrace walk, that, to the east, affords a good profpect, is a deep glin, the fides covered with wood, and along the bottom a rivulet falls in feveral pleafant cascades; beyond this, are rising grounds, sheltering the plantation from S. and S. W. winds. On the W. is a large park, well walled; and the whole feat, is environed with good plantations of timber trees; among which, the French elm, and filver fir, when scutage is on foot. This from a copy of the original in Bermingham tower, ann. 18 of James 1 John lord Courcey, and his son Gerald, passed patent for the castle and manor of Ringroan, and several other lands, advowsons of churches, accept the liberty of a park, free chase, and free warren, goods of fugitives, wrecks of the sea, a court leet, and court baron, with fairs, markets, and several other privileges in the town of Ballinespittle, in the said manor.

The churches mentioned in this patent were, Ringroan,

Kilroan, Garinoe, and Kilowen.

II.

30

ol.

cm-

the

od

ere

es,

ous

its,

ilt,

art

at lid

ith

an

ral-

of-

od,

ea-

rel-

On

ole

ber

fir,

are

l in cey,

r of

Ac.

ron,

n of

iñac

are observed to stand the severity of the nipping fea-winds better than any others. On the east, is a fine level tract, now converted into meadows and pasture grounds, which, a few years ago, was a deep, red, shaking morals, much frequented, in winter, by wild-fowl, but impassable for man or beaft. On the west of the house, there were lately made a fine basin and decoy; wild duck being very numetous in this part of the country. The fea shore, south of the house, is a fine strand, and is, in the fummer feafon, a very agreeable ride; it is called Garrets-town strand, which, with the adjacent lands, were so named from the family of the Cores, many of whom were fuccessively named Garret, who were, before the rebellion of 1641, proprietors of this place. When I was at Liscarol, in the barony of Orrery, where the celebrated battle was fought, ann. 1642, the country people shewed me a Danish fort, called Lis-Garret, which was defended by 18 of these Cores, who were slain and buried there. The present family of the Kearneys have been fettled here fince the beginning of the reign of king James I. being forced from the county of Limerick, by the oppression of the earl of Desmond, in queen Elizabeth's time.

Kinalmeaky (18) was formerly a part of Carbery, Kinaland being forfeited by O-Mahony, in the earl of meaky. Defmond's rebellion, it was, by queen Elizabeth, granted to Greenville and Beecher, English undertakers, by whom it was first planted with English, and then got the name of a barony. It afterwards gave title to the noble Lewis Boyle, lord viscount Kinalmeaky, and baron of Bandon-bridge, who was unfortunately slain at the fight of Liscarol. It was formerly a meer fastness, being all wood and bog, so that ann. 1602, the army could not

⁽¹⁸⁾ This barony contains the parishes of Maragh, Kilbrogan, Briny, Templemartin, and Kilmodane, being 19273 Irish plantation acres, and 62 plow-lands.

BOOK II

not pass it, being obliged to go round by Kinsale in their march from Cork to the flege of Dunboy, in Bearhaven; but it is now as well improved as any part of the county.

Bandon.

The most considerable place in this barony is Bandon, built by the first earl of Cork (19), who purchased Beecher's grants, it was incorporated by the interest of the same nobleman (20); and is di-

(19) In a letter from the first earl of Cork, to Mr. secretary Cook, dated April 13, 1632, he fays, " Upon confer-" ence with the commissioners, I have been destrous to satisfy myself, whether the works done, by the Londoners, at " Derry, or mine, at Bandon-bridge, exceed each other: " All that are judicial, and have carefully viewed them both, and compared every part of them together, do confidently affirm that the circuit of my new town of Bandon-bridge is more in compass than that of Londonderry: That my walls are ftronger, thicker, and higher than theirs, only they have a strong rampier within, that Bandon-bridge wanteth; that there is no comparison between their ports 44 and mine; there being in my town three, each of them containing 26 rooms , the caftles, with the turrets and flanters, being all plat-form'd with lead, and prepared with ordnence, and the buildings of my town, both for the number of the houses and goodness of building; far beyond theirs. In my town, there is built a frong bridge over the river, two large session houses, two market-houses, with two fair churches 41 which churches, are so filled every sabbath day, with seat, .. orderly and religious people, as it wou'd comfort any good heart to fee the change, and behold fuch affemblies , no popish recusant, or unconforming novelist, being admitted .. to live in all the town. The place where Bandon-bridge is 41 fituated, is upon a great district of the country, and was within this laft sa years, a meer wafte bog and wood, ferr-ing for a retreat and harbour to wood-kernes, rebell, . thieves, and wolves , and yet now (God be ever praised) is as civil a plantation as most in England, being for five mile round, all, in effect, planted with English protestants I write not this out of any vain glory; yet as I, who am but a fingle man, have erected such works, why should not the rich and magnificent city of London rather exceed, than fall short, of such performances ?"

(40) This town is governed by a provoft, 13 burgeffes, and 14 common-council-men , their charter bears date the afth fale.

oy.

d as

y is

who

by di

ded

creifer-

tisfy

, at

er: oth,

ent-

dge my

inly ege orts

ôn-

ers, ice ,

the

my rge

189 ent,

bod no ted 0 10

1881 fY=

ela.) la les

but

the

âñ

nd

fA

ided into two parishes (21) by the Bandon river. There are two churches, and two market-houses, me on either fide; and beside the churches, there Churches. is diffenting and a quaker's meeting-house. The north church is called Christ-church, and was built, mn. 1625, in the form of a cross; it is well pewed, and strongly roofed, with fine oak; the timber being as strait, and as found, as the day it was fet up. Where this church stands, there was formerly an old Danish intrenchment. The glebe belonging to the incumbent, lies farther north, on the fite of the old parish church. The oldest grave-stone in this church, is dated ann. 1629, over one Mr. Crofts, one of the first burgesses of this corporaion. On the left hand of the altar, beneath an ecutcheon, is this epitaph.

from the rude world's campaigns, the much ad-

legard! to this dark garrifon's retired.

Legard!

of Sept. 10th Jac. I, which incorporates it, on both fides the iver, by the name of the free borough of Bandon-bridge, to he body politick, confifting of the above mentioned members, who have power to return two members to parliament, fir William Nuce to be the 1st provost, Edward Beecher, John Whaley, Richard Richmond, alias Skipard, Thomas Adderly, Nicholas Blacknell, Richard Crofts, Christopher Lewis, Stephen Skipwith, Thomas Taylor, William Whaley, and William Cecili, to be the first as burgesses, the provost to be liced at midfummer, and begin his office at michaelmas, to sechofen out of the 12 burgeffes. He can hold a court of second for debt, trespais, &c. every thursday, appoint a clerk of the market, and make bee-laws with the burgeffes, have common feal, with proper officers, as a ferjeant of mace, he. He may make guilds, as of merchants, and other companies. I do not find that they had any extent of liberties beyond their walls. King James II. granted a new charter Bandon, dated Feb. 14, 1687, which conflicted Thady Mac-Carty, efg. provoit, with a4 burgeffus, a recorder and town clerk, which foon went into distife.

(at) On the fouth, the parish of Ballymodan, and on the with, the parish of Kilbrogan.

R

Legard! the darling foldier, whose loud name Shall ever flourish in the book of fame. Whose fair example might alone depaint, What 'tis to be a military saint. True to his God, his prince, his friend, his word, Rare ornaments, but fit t' adorn the sword,

Beneath lyeth the body of Edward Legard, lieutenant to captain Robert Hyllard, who died, the 6th of January, 1678.

On a tomb, in the church-yard, I find that Mr. Thomas Harifon, who died, anno 1674, bequeathed tol. per ann. to the poor of this parith, for ever. They here shew the graves of three of Clancarty's men, John Barry a serjeant and two others, who were killed by the inhabitants, in the late king James's time, on what they here call the black monday insurrection; which I shall give a farther account of in its place.

In the other church, is a fine monument, to the memory of Francis Bernard, esq; one of the justices of the court of common-pleas. On the right, is a Minerva, reclining on her ægis; and on the lest, is justice, leaning on her arm, her sword in her hand. Over an obelisk of fine Egyptian marble, is a coat of arms, viz-three escalop shells, on a bend. On the table, is this inscription, in gilt letters of raised brass.

Francis Bernard, esq;
Obiit Jun XXIX, MDCCXXXI.
Ætatis suæ, LXVIII.

Between the west door, and the south cross isle, beneath an escutcheon, is this inscription.

Below this pride of ancestors there lies Mouldered in dust, death's lovely sacrifice.
Her parents darling, and her husband's pride,
Whence she was once, a daughter and a bride.
Lovely

CHAP. III. HISTORY of CORK.

II.

d.

Ma.

He

fr.

H= Of

H:

8,

te

er

18

ÊS

18

d.

ıt

Lovely without, but fairer much within, Her virtues daily triumph'd over fin. Thus, ripe for nobler joys, the swiftly fled To the immortal living, from the dead.

Beneath lies interred the body of Mrs. Mary synge, wife of Mr. George Synge, rector of Kilbogan, the third fon of George, late lord bishop of Cork, and daughter of Mr. Thomas Hewit, of Clancoole, gent, who descased the and day of November, 1684.

If grief cou'd speak my loss, or tears retrieve, Thy weeping monument, I'd ever live."

The market-houses, are neat, decent buildings; Marketthat, on the fouth side of the river, forms a houses.
piazza, and is called saturday's market-house; and the other, on the north side, is called wednesday's market-house.

In this town, there is not a popish inhabitant (22); Inhabinor will the townsmen suffer one to dwell in it; tants.
nor a piper to play in the place, that being the muse used formerly, by the Irish, in their wars. They can raise 1000 men, fit to bear arms, in this town;
and on the last array, they had a considerable number in uniform regimentals, being red, faced with black. This place is very populous, and industri-Trade.
ous; most of the inhabitants, are employed in the woollen

⁽²²⁾ This was a bye-law of the corporation, made soon after the town was incorporated, and was contrived, by a deeper policy, than is generally imagined: It was not the effect of whim or spleen, but was a necessary support for the infant colony; the members of which foresaw, that as they were all strangers and protestants, if a papist took up his quarters amongst them, he only wou'd be encouraged by the neighbours of his own religion, (and they were generally of it) and would gradually introduce tradesmen, of all sorts, of the same; which would overset the scheme of this foundation.

Scasonable Advice, p. 15. &c.

woollen manufacture, which, if properly encourage ed, would, undoubtedly, make it the bulwark of the protestant interest in this part of the country, The linen manufacture may be faid to be here only in its infancy. There are two of the four quarter fessions for the county held here, the two others being at Rathcormuck, and Mallow. In the year 1623, the August affizes, for the county at large, were held in it, by the interest of the earl of Cork Here is a public school, founded by that nobleman the mafter has 30l per ann. Besides the Bandon river, over which there is a bridge of fix arches there is a small one which runs through the town. and separates it from a part of it, called Bridewell. The streets were so placed, that almost every house had a garden to it, which being planted with trees fome years ago (23); made it feem as if it was built in a wood. This town, within the walls, is esteemed to be 27 acres in its area.

Caftle-Bernard.

About a quarter of a mile west of Bandon, is Caftle-Bernard, formerly Caftle-Mahon, once the refidence of O-Mahony. It is now a beautiful and pleafant feat of the Bernards, being rebuilt, anno 1715, by judge Bernard. This house has two regular fronts; the walls are of brick, with corinthian pilatters, coigns and beltings, of Portland There are fine gardens on three fides of the house, adorned with fountains, statues, and other decorations. That on the north, is a most delightful spot, called the water garden, with cascades, jets d'eau, &c. The apartments are well disposed. Adjoining, is a very noble park, which is about four miles in circumference, the Bandon river runs through it, being divided by feveral islands, sweetly wooded, as are most of the upper grounds.

Here

⁽²³⁾ Description of Bandon, by judge Con, MSS.

CHAP. III. HISTORY of CORK.

Here hills and vales, the woodland and the plain. Here earth and water, feem to ftrive again, Here waving groves a chequer'd fcene difplay, And part admit, and part exclude the day. Here, in full light, the ruffet plains extend, There, wrapt in clouds, the bluish hills ascend. Pope's Windfor Forest.

But this park may be truly faid, to be pleasant beyond any poetical description.

ag

0 try nly

rter

be-

ear ge,

in :

ri

es :

vn.

ell. uíc

ees

748

18

he nd

no

WO

0-

nd

of

nd tk

th

re

k,

he

by

of

re

There are few other places of any consequence in this barony : On the fide of the river, is Sinagh and Carow, good farm-houses , besides some scattered villages, as Kilpatrick and Nucestown, first planted by fir William Nuce, who had a confiderable interest in Bandon, which he sold to the earl of Cork.

Kilbritton, is now a diffinet cantred, which anci- Kilbritton ently belonged to the barony of Courceys. The castle was formerly a seat of the lords Courcey and afterwards of Mac-Carty Reagh. The old Irish have a story, that the lord Courcey pawned this castle and lands to Mac-Carty, to secure the restitution of a white wealel he borrowed from him: and it unluckily happening that the weafel died. this accident gave title, or, which was equivalent in those days, a fair pretence to the more potent Mac-Carty to keep poffession. When this castle was up, it was a stately building, environed with a large bawn, fortified with fix turrets on the walls. These buildings were taken down, by the present proprietor, Jonas Stawell, esq, who has erected a large modern house where the castle stood. It is pleasantly situated on a mount, between greater hills; the sea flows almost up to it, through the harbour of Court Mac-Sherry. To this caftle belongs a privilege of fairs and markets, granted by several patents. Not far from it, on the sea coast, lies Coolmain, another castle of Mac-Carty Reagh; Coolmain. Vot. I.

both

both these castles were taken by the Bandonians, in May 1642, and kept in English hands ever since. The castle of Kilgobban, on the river Bandon, as also that of Cariganass, both belonged to Mac-Carty; as did that of Dundaniel, which being on his estate, was reckoned a part of Carbery, though on the other side of the river. That part of Bandon called Bridewell, belonged to this cantred, and another part of it, called Irishtown. The lands are well laid out in this neighbourhood, under pasture and tillage. The foil is mostly a light grey clay, with a slaty bottom.

Ibawne and Barryroe. Ibawne and Barryroe, compose one barony (24); the first, fignifies the fair territory, as indeed it is in respect of the adjoining rough country of Carbery; the other, has its name from the Barrys. In those two half baronies, are many navigable creeks, with several sandy strands for manure; but especially that of Red Sand bay, which is mostly composed of broken cockle-shells, and is accounted to bring several crops of wheat and barley more than any other sand, being carried, on horses backs, 12 miles up the country.

Timoleague.

bay.

Red Sand

The feigniory of this barony belongs mostly to the earl of Barrymore. Places of most pote in it are Timoleague, i. e. Tee mologa, the residence of saint Molaga. This village is situate on an arm of the ocean, which slows in between the hills, whose feet it washes. From Court Mac Sherry (the harbour's mouth) to Timoleague, it is two miles. This harbour was formerly navigable, but is now quite obstructed with sand; so that only small sloops and boats can come to Timoleague, and smaller sand vessels about a mile above it. A small ⁽²⁴⁾ This barony contains 11 parishes, viz. a part of Timoleague, Temple-Omalus, Abbey-Mahon, Donaghmore, part of Temple-Macquinlan, Lidee, Rathbarry, Kilkeranmore, Ardfield, Castroventry, Kilmean, being 20374 plantation acres, and 146 plow-lands.

CHAP. HI. HISTORY of CORK.

H.

in ce,

28

trhis

on

n.

nď

ire

re

y,

);

is 1-

In

S.

f-

d

re

3,

to

it of

m

10

Ш

2

iver discharges itself here, called the Arigideen, e the little filver ftream; it runs at the foot of in hill, covered with an oak wood, for a mile before it reaches this town, in a serpentine form. At is entrance into the town, it washes the walls of an incient castle (built by an Irish sept, called O-Shamaffy) now belonging to the earl of Barrymore, who is also proprietor of the whole town and paish, which consists of seven plow-lands; a few years ago, the caftle was fitted up, and fome looms sected in it, for linen weavers. This river, in its ourse, next washes the verge of the church-yard, Church. which commands a prospect down to the harbour's mouth; and the other fide is bounded by a citcular meadow, reclaimed by colonel Moore. It next glides by the walls of an ancient abbey of franciscans, founded in the reign of king Edward Il in the beginning of the 14th century, by the Mac-Cartys. Some records mention a castle belonging to the Morils to have stood here; and that Mac-Carty Reagh took it from them, and placed franciscans in it. In this abbey, Edmund de Cour-(25), bishop of Ross, was buried in March, 1518,

R 2

(25) He had been a friar in this convent; was advanced to the see of Clogher, by pope Sixtus IV. June 18, 1484, and smallated to Ross, the 26th of Sept. 1404, where he died mavery advanced age: He was brother to Nicholas de Courcey, bron of Kinsale, who died in Feb. 1474, he was affisted in new founding this abbey, by his nephew James, lord Kinsale, so to the said Nicholas. This bishop was a great favourite of ling Henry VII. whose title and interest he constantly defended painst the attempts of Lambert Simnel, and Perkin Warbeck. Upon sir Richard Edgecomb's arrival at Dublin, to take the saths of the chief persons of Ireland, after the rabellion, he sath for him to advise him in his proceedings; and such an opinion was conceived of his loyalty, that it was thought unnecessary to oblige him to take any cath. After the kingdom was sattled, he assisted in July, 1489, at a provincial synod, considered by Octavian, archbishop of Armagh, and was made an utbitrator between two contending bishops of Kilmore. He was the first of English descent that ever sat in the see of Clogher.

he being a franciscan. He new built the steeple dormitory, infirmary and library; and was other ways a great benefactor to it, both in his life-time and at his death, as the obitual book of this The building (though no convent testifies (26). roofed) is entire, confifting of a large choir, wit an isle formed by arcades on the fouth, which lead to a lateral wing. There is an handsom square gothic tower, about 70 feet high, between the choir and isle; and one side of the same isle, is fquare cloifter arcaded, with a platform in the middle this leads to feveral large rooms; one whereof, i faid to have been a chapel, another the chapte room, a third the refectory, besides a spacious a partment for the guardian of the house; there was also an hall, dormitory, kitchen, cellars, &c. alto gether composing a large pile of building. Here are several tombs of the Irish families, viz. Mac Carty Reagh's in the midft of the choir; west of it is an old broken monument of the O-Cullanes; and on the right, a ruined tomb of the lords Courcey, The O-Donovans, O-Hea, &c. were also buried There were but 4 acres t of land found to belong to this house at the time of the dissolution, which was then possessed by the lord Inchiquing and now by the lord Barrymore. A confiderable part of the tythes were also granted to the college Timoleague, was formerly a place of fome note, being much reforted to by the Spaniards, who imported large quantities of wine here; and, it is faid, there were formerly no less than 14 taverns that fold fack in the town: It is fituated between the castle and abbey, under an hill, which shelters it from west and northerly winds. Here is a regular street, one side of it being new built for the accommodation of linen weavers, by the late lord Barrymore; but the defign, by the milmanagement of his lordship's undertaker, failed. In it, are fome

⁽²⁶⁾ King's collect. in Marsh's library, p. 310.

eple

he

th

no

wit

hie

om

reer

is dle

, i

ote

1

Wal

lto

ere

ac-

it

nd

ey

to

on.

in,

old

ot

d,

e-

h

10

me good flate-houses, a market-house and bleached; it has also four fairs in the year, but no relar market. Near it, is a well, dedicated to the igin Mary, much frequented on the 8th of Sepmber, by numbers of the Irish, who imagine it to are several maladies. The festival day of saint bolaga (27), according to Colgan, is on the 20th of lanuary, who was the ancient patron of this place. To the S. W. of the town, on a rising ground, he estate of the late lord Barrymore; it has a prosthe estate of the late lord Barrymore; it has a prosthe estate of the arm of the sea, which comes up to the foot of the hill on which it stands, forming in handsome basin, interspersed with small islands. On the opposite side of the river, is Maryborough, Maryboin handsome house, built by captain Jervais, on rough. Ansing hill, commanding a view of the bay and over; beyond it, on the same side, is Burren, where Mac-Carty Reagh had formerly a castle, but it is now the estate of Mr. John Bowrn; on this side, is the church of Rathclarin; and near it, Mr. Scot has a good house. All this eastern side of Timolegue harbour lies in Carbery.

On the west side, as you go down the bay of Court Mac-Sherry, is a good house, in a grove of trees, inhabited by Mr. Arundel; and about half way down, close to the shore, stand the ruins of Abbey-Mahon (28); it was sounded by the Bernardine Abbey-monks, at their own expence, who were a very rich Mahon. order. The lord Barry gave them 18 plow-lands, which

(27) His life may be feen in the same author, taken from mancient history: He was born in the territory of Fermoy, in this county, and was of the tribe of Dimma, which tribe, with those of the Deagadii and Luchtæ, possessed that part of the country, as the author of his life relates.

Colgan, Act. Sanct. p. 148.

(28) This house has been mistaken for the celebrated abby, called Sancto Mauro, alias De Fonte Vivo, which stood in the parish of Miros, in W. Carbery.

6

0

which constitute the parish of Abbey-Mahon; but this estate was only given them till the building was finished, which never happened; for soon after, the dissolution of monasteries took place, and these lands were seized into the hands of the crown. The walls of the church are standing, and an house is built on part of the ruins, round which is a grove. In this parish, is a good quantity of fine arable land. The next improvement on the river, is the seat of Boyle Travers, esq; encompassed with good plantations.

Gourt-Mac-Sherry.

Close to the harbour's mouth, is Court-Mac-Sherry, built originally by Hodnet, an Englithman, who came from Shropshire; but the family degenerating into the Irish customs, assumed the name of Mac-Sherry, It is a pleasant seat of Robert Gookin, esq; whose ancestor, captain Robert Gookin, had a lease of it, for 99 years, from the earl of Orrery (29), and is mentioned by that nobleman, as a man of parts and interest in his country; he raised a troop of horse, ann. 1666, when the kingdom was threatened to be invaded. This feat lies under an hill, planted with trees, that shelter it from the fea winds, and has the prospect of the harbour up to Timoleague. The coast, for half a mile inwards from this place, forms a femi-circle, where are some good houses, and trees planted on a natural terrace above the water, which, with Court-Mac-Sherry, being encompassed with walls and turrets, makes an handsome appearance at a distance.

The bay affords plenty of various kinds of sea fish; formerly pilchards were taken in it; and on the shore, are several buildings, called, in this country, fish palaces, for curing that fish. Place are so good here, that, when in season, many prefer them to turbot, and some are near as large. Considerable draughts of salmon have been also taken in this bay. On both sides, are prodigious

high

II

but

was ter.

hefe

Che

e is

ve.

nd.

of 10-

er-

m,

ene

rt

rt

10

1-

t

high cliffs towards the entrance of this bay, where High agles, hawks and herons, build their nefts. The cliffs. Old head of Kinsale forms the east side; those on the west, in the parish of Lislee, are called Coolum, being of a vast height; these are on the lands of the present bishop of Elphin. In order to take lawks, they let down a man from a shelving precisice, where the persons who hold him have scarce socing; the hawks having built under a hanging rock, the man, by the assistance of an hook, fixt to a pole, which he carries for the purpose, lays hold of the cliff, and draws himself in; having pillaged the ayry, he quits the concave of the rock, swings off, and is pulled up by his companions.

Lord Barrymore is proprietor of the greatest part of the parish of Lislee, and claims the royalties from Court-Mac-Sherry bay to Glandore harbour; those more westerly, are sir John Freke's, in virtue of a patent granted to the Coppingers, by king James I.

This country abounds with potatoes; the inha-Tillage. bitants prepare their lay ground, by graffing and burning; a vile practice, where manure is so plenty. Some lay on sea-wreck (30), which, they say, makes potatoes wet, if laid out too late in the year; and this afterwards produces a good crop of barley. In Dunworthis parish is a peninfula, of about five acres, to ly. which is a very narrow passage; and on this peninfula, are the ruins of an old castle, defended by square bastions, to prevent people from landing. The island is a rock, thinly covered with earth; but is constantly mowed every year, though never known to be manured. This was a place where the

(30) Sir George Mac-Kenzy says, nothing makes their lands so fertile in Scotland, or gives a better increase to barley, than sawreck; but lands often used to this manure, yield but bad sats, and in a small quantity; and the husks, both of barley and oats, that grow on such lands, are thicker than those which grow on other lands, and have also a greater mixture of darnel.

Phil. Transact. n. 117. p. 390.

Irish formerly secured their cattle by night; then are many fuch on the coast, particularly one to the west, defended by a wall, a castle, and two turrets under the castle, are several subterraneous caves running into the middle of the island, the ground of which is very fertile. Near Dunworly strand, is fpring, called St Anne's well, vifited by the fuper stitious Irish on her festival. To the west, the coast is all a bold high shore, abounding with stupendou cliffs, which aftonish while they please us. vast expanse of the ocean, adds to the grandeur of the scene; there is no object affects the mind so much; for one cannot fee the heavings of it, even in a calm, without a pleasing astonishment; but when it is worked up by a tempest, so that the horizon feems to be nothing but foaming billows, and floating mountains, it is impossible to describe the agreeable horror that arises on such a prospect, On most of this coast, are great variety of caves worked by the sea; these caves are generally the habitation of wild pigeons, gulls, and other seafowls, who live in the upper crevices; while porpoises, seals, and other monsters of the deep, have their abode below. In the bay of Cloghnakilty, which divides Ibawne from Barryroe, is the pleasant island of Inchydony. This island, by an inquisition held at Cork, Nov. 4, 1584, was found to be escheated for want of heirs to queen Elizabeth; and that the bishop of Ross had but seven marks, half faced money, out of the same. In it is a pleasant seat of Mr. Hungersord. Not far from Cloghnakilty, is Dunamore, belonging to fir Charles Moore, bart.

Rath-

Rathbarry, an ancient castle of the Barrys, now called Castle-Freke, in the west of this barony, near Ross-Carbery, is a pleasant seat of sir John Freke, bart. it commands an extensive view of the ocean, and coast, to the west. Adjacent to it, is a large park, and also a fine fresh water lake, stored with pike; over which is an agreeable terrace. To the Inchydony. MAP. III. HESTORY of CORK.

here

the

ets

ives

und

is

per

oaf

dou

The

ro

d fo

ver

ho

and

the

ves.

the lea-

or-

lty,

ant

ion

el

nd

alf

eat

is t.

WO

ıy,

hn

he

sa

ed

l'o he 249

reaft of it, is Kilkerin, the house of Mr. O-Hea; Kilkerin. here is also another fresh-water lake, of 52 acres, bred with fish. Almost on every head-land of this arony, were castles erected by the Irish, seven of Sevenhich belonged to the lept of O-Cowig, as Dun- castles, kedy, Dun-owen, Dun-ore, Duneene, Dun-oowig, Dun-worley, and Don-gorley. Dun-deedy Dundeenow belongs to the right hon, the earl of Egmont; dy. is a castle on a very small island, to which there is narrow passage from the main, being equally the work of nature and art. It belongs to the manor fLiscarol, in Orrery. It is commonly, by seamen, alled the Galley-head; and is sometimes fatally milaken by them for the Old head of Kinfale, when the light of the latter is not feen. This promontom, like that of Kinfale, stretches itself a good way nto the ocean, and is also of a considerable height; there are feveral caverns formed at its base, by the working of the waves. Lucan's description of a ape, near Salone, on the Dalmatian coast, very much refembles ours.

Impendent cava faxa mari, ruituraq; femper
Sat (mirum) moles, & fylvis æquor inumbrat.
Huc fractas aquilone rates, fubmerfaq; pontus
Corpora fæpe tulit, cæfifq; abscondit in antris,
Restituit raptus tectum mare, cumq; cavernæ
Evomuere fretum, contorti vorticis undæ Taurominitanam vincunt fervore Carybdim, Lucan, lib. IV.

For ages past, an ancient cliff there stood,
Whose bending brow hung threat'ning o'er the flood:

A verdant grove was on the fummit plac'd, And o'er the waves a gloomy shadow cast; While near the base, wide hollows sink below, There roll huge seas, and bell'wing tempests blow; Thither Thither what-e'er the greedy waters drown,
The shipwreck, and the driving corpse, are thrown Anon, the gaping gulph the spoil restores,
And from his lowest depths loud spouting pours.
Not rude Charybdis roars in sounds like these,
When thund'ring, with a burst, she spews the foamy seas.

About a mile fouth west of Cloghnakilty, is the ruined castle of Ahimilla, built by O-Hea.

C H A P. IV.

A Description of the Barony of Carbery.

HIS was the largest barony in Ireland, but it is now divided into two parts, viz. east and west Carbery (1), by a line northwards, from a place called the Leap, near Glandore harbour, to the bounds of Muskery; and has two high constables, one for each division. It is, from Kilbritton to Mizen Head, upwards of 40 Irish miles in length; and was, in former times, of greater extent, as is shewn in the first book. A part of this barony divides Ibawne and Barryroe, and forms the bottom of Cloghnakilty bay.

Clogh-

⁽¹⁾ The barony of Carbery anciently extended from Kirfale to the bay of Bantry, or, as an old Irish verse has it, from Carig O-Glavin to Cork. E. and W. Carbery contain 39 parishes, viz. Ballindeghie, a part of Inishannone, Templetowa, Ringroan, Kilbritton, Ballymodan, Rathclarin, Kilmolday, part of Timoleague, Disert, Kineigh, Fanlobbus, Kilmihi, Drinagh, Ballymony, Kilmine, Killgariss, Inchydony, Castroventry, Temple-Quinlane, Temple-Omalus, Kilnagross, Roscarbery, Kilmac-Abea, Miros, Castlebaven, Creagh, Cape Clear, Affadown, Abbey-Shrowry, Caragh, Drumaleague, Durrus, Kilcrohane, Kilcoe, Scull, Kilfaghnabeg, Kilmore, Tullagh, alias Baltimore, the whole being 196321 Irish plantation acres, making 766 plow-lands, viz. 366 in E. Carbery, and 400 in W. Carbery.

OW

urs.

th

OWI

th

but

and n a to

Ita-

ton

th;

s is

di-

om

zh-

in

MO

pa-

中司官

15 Mg 40

Cloghnakilty, (anciently Clowncallow) is a town Cloghnanated near the fea, which affords it more pleafure kilty. in profit; the mouth of the harbour being choakwith fand, prevents veffels of burden from comgup to the town. It is built in the form of a of, and here is a decent new church, fituated on a ing ground; this is a noted market, on fridays, which they bring in from west Carmy in confiderable quantities; 30l. has been of-misid out for yarn in one market day, and 20l. is general computation: Here is also a remarkable infor all kinds of poultry, on the 29th of Sepmber; which supplies Cork, Kinsale, the neighouring gentlemen, and the shipping in both harours, with great quantities of turkeys, geefe, &c. This place was incorporated by the interest of the iftearl of Cork, ann. 2 Jac. I. and is governed ya fovereign and burgesses. The heirs of the resovereign and recorder, who hold sessions of the ace for the town and liberties, which are extendda mile and half round the centre. They may are a court of record, and therein implead for ly fum not exceeding 201. Irish. The sovereign feedary, coroner, clerk of the market, mafter the fay, &c. The method of chusing him is thus; ree candidates are returned to the lord of the rough, who, on St. James's day, makes choice one; and on the St. Luke's day following, he fworn into his office. The late king James, by new charter, dated July 12, 1688, incorporated is place, and appointed Daniel Mac-Carty, esq; rereign thereof, with 24 burgeffes; but this arter foon became void.

At the breaking out of the Irish rebellion, ann. 41, the charter and other records of this borough, the saved by Mr. Walter Bird (2), who, at the pard of his life, escaped with them to Bandon. In the streets of this (3) place, two full companies of lord Forbes's regiment were flain by the Irifh, i 1642; and the third company being Bandonians made good their retreat a full mile to an old for in the high-way to Ross, which they also maintain ed, till the rest of the regiment, then at Rathbarry came to their relief; and then they all fell upon the Irish, and killed above 600 of them. This town flourished greatly before the wars of 1641; but be ing then entirely burned down, it has fince but flow ly recovered. At prefent, it belongs to the right hon Henry Boyle, and begins again to thrive, by mean of the linen trade. About a mile to the northeaf of this place, on the lands of Temple-Brien, areth remains of an ancient heathen temple, which I shall give a particular description of in another place.

the

BOOK I

Inifkeen.

Six miles north from Cloghnakilty, is Iniskeen, village, confifting of about 38 houses. It takes in name, according to tradition, from Kean Mac Moile-More, ancestor of the Mahonys; it has good weekly market on thursdays. This manor belonged to the earl of Cork; it is very large, containing no less than fourscore plowlands, and lies on both fides the Bandon river. In this village, they carry on the pernicious trade of distilling whilky spirits; about three miles west, there is a manufacture of earthen ware, the clay for which is brought from the county of Kerry: the lands here are mostly under meadow and pasture; there is likewise some corn, and no inconfiderable quantity of flax; but from Iniskeen to the village of Nuce's-town, the country is, for the most part, mountainy and rocky, being covered over with heath, furze, and fern. To the north of Iniskeen, is the ruined church of Kineigh, with a remarkable round tower, above 70 feet high, and 124 feet from the west end of the church; contrary to all others of the kind, the first story is in the form of an hexagon, but the other five stories above K II

es o

h, i ians

for

tain

arry

th

OW

t be low

hon

ean

cal the hall

e.

n, t s its fac

as a mai

on-

on ar-

pi-

ure

om

un-

me

out

the

ry, Fo

th,

h,

n-

in

es

ve

hove it are round. I shall mention more of this over in another place.

Six miles west of Bandon, a little east of Iniskeen, Palace-Palace-Anne, an handsome large well built house Anne. Roger Bernard, esq; with kitchen and pleare gardens, good orchards, and other large planmions. On the fouth fide of the Bandon river, is Warren's-brook, a good house with improvements of Warren's-Mr. Warren. Two miles more west, on the north Brook. he of the river, is Connorsville, the house and seat Connors-William Connor, esq; the improvements are but ville. their infancy. On the other fide of the river, is heal, a good house of Mr. Wade: and on the Pheal. ime side, is the castle of Ballincarrigy, built by Randle-Oge Hurley, or, as some say, by his wife. Ballincarhthe wars of 1641, this castle (4) was a noted pass, rigy. being then esteemed indifferent strong, and was, at that time, garrisoned by the English. To the south of it, is the small castle of Ballinward, also built by the Hurleys.

Some years ago, fir Richard Cox, by the fix days about only, had a fine level road made to the east of Dunmanway, which was carried two miles thro a morass, and is now a pleasant coach road; the old road being hilly, rocky, and a great way about.

Dunmanway is now a pleasant, thriving little Dunmantown, 12 miles west from Bandon, and the seat way. of the late sir Richard Cox, bart. whose grandfather, towards the end of the last century, undertook to plant an English colony here, directly on the great road leading from Cork to Bantry. King William, to encourage his design, granted him a patent for fairs and markets; and by an act of parliament, in the beginning of queen Anne's reign, the site of the parish church was removed two miles to the projected town of Dunmanway; for the convenience of passengers, an hand-some stone bridge was built over the Bandon river.

Of late years, Dunmanway is become a very thri ing place, where the linen manufacture is in a mo prosperous and flourishing state, by the patronas and industry of fir Richard Cox. The house when in fir Richard refided, is in the midft of the town and is pleasantly adorned with handsome avenue and good plantations of fir, elm, lime, chefnut, an The town is feated in the centre of fome beech. fmall valley, furrounded with hills to the W. N and S. Those to the north, are rough and rocky but from hence to Bandon, along the river of the name, is a fine well improved vale, confifting of light gravelly foil. Here are a confiderable num ber of looms at work for linen, as well chequered a white, diapers, fustians, handkerchiefs, girtweb, &c and the manufacturers were, by feveral pramium given by their landlord, according to their respective merits, kept conftantly employed. A good house, rent-free, was given to a master, who, that year, made up the best and greatest quantity of linen; and this inscription, in gold letters, was placed over the door of fuch as deserved this reward.

"DATUR DIGNIORI.
THIS HOUSE IS RENT FREE FOR THE SUPERIOR INDUSTRY OF THE POSSESSOR."

Which beard was annually removed, with great pomp and folemnity, being called, The Table of Honour.

Sir Richard also gave præmiums to the apprentices and journeymen, and to the girls of the spinning-school, according to their merits. Those who bought and sold the greatest quantity of linen cloth manufactured in this county, at the fair of this place, had præmiums also: And so greatly has this manufacture increased, since its first settlement in this country but a very sew years ago, that, in 1748, there were, by a moderate computation, 400 hogsheads

XX

thri

onag

vhen

town

e of

cky

tha

of num ed a

&c um pec-

good

that

f li-

HE

ES-

eat

of

n-

in-

ho

th

715

in 8,

eds of flax-feed fown on this fide of the coun-But its effects will still appear in a stronger the from the increase of the number of houses d inhabitants in Dunmanway. In 1735, there tere not more than 50 very indifferent houses; 12 tinhabited, or by beggars only; and 30 by peowant of employment. In May 1747, there ere 87 houses, which contained 250 protestants, ad 307 papifts, in all 557; there were reckoned, the town, 87 flax-wheels, and 51 woollen-wheels. May 1749, the houses were increased to 117, maining 405 protestants, and 402 papists, in all on. In all the houses, there were 226 flax-wheels, nd 28 woollen-wheels, befides those of the spining-school. On the first of May, fir Richard anually appointed a review of all the wheels, on a tty green near the town, which makes no uneleantentertainment, to fee fo many young creatures ficued from want, idleness and milery, decked out adecent apparel, earned by their industry; and to buntenance this review, the young ladies of the el distinction in the neighbourhood, exhibited heir skill in spinning in this public affembly.

Here are two very good and convenient bleachards, that never want full employment. That to be south, is supplied with water from an adjacent are, which is very soft, and is found excellent for thitening linen-cloth.

The parish church is exceedingly well filled on he sabbath day, with a well looking, industrious, hiving people, who increase so fast, that, besides a age gallery erected in it, fir Richard Cox had houghts of enlarging it further.

In this church is an handsome monument, with his inscription.

In hopes of a joyful refurrection,
Is deposited the body

Of Mary, Lady Cox, the beloved wife Of fir Richard Cox, knight and baronet, Who was fuccessively Lord Justice of both bench Lord High Chancellor of Ireland,

And three times, one of the lords justices General, and General Governors of this kingdo Obiit imo. Jun. 1715.

Happy would it be for many parts of this coutry, if, instead of that spirit of devastation whi dairies produce, our villages were thus filled wimanufacturers, who ought to be supported and couraged, in this manner, by an indulgent landlord; which would, in the end, produce hono and wealth to him and his dependants.

Sir Richard Cox gave two acres of land, refree, for building a charter-school; and set more, at half rent, for 990 years; the whole wenclosed. He provided slate and stones for the builing, as also labourers; and bestowed 201. per an to it. This school is designed for 40 children.

The country, to the north of Dunmanway, prodigious rocky; within a mile of the town, the is a perfect wall, or mound, of rocks, running confiderable way; a yew tree grows out of t crevices of these rocks, the body of which is feet in circumference, and grows in a reclinit manner.

Mohanagh. Mohanagh, a mile fouth of Dunmanway, is the feat of Roger Fenwick, esq; with two loughs on the fouth, and a wood to the north. It is offervable, that in those loughs are a large kind trout that feed on the spawn of eels.

⁽⁵⁾ Mr. Fenwick affured me, that one of these lakes, whis called Lough a Drippel, did not freeze in the great from 1739. The famous lake Ness, in Scotland, according fir George Mackenzy, never freezes; but, on the contrain the most violent frosts, great clouds and steams arise from the adds, that rosemary growing in gardens rough.

OK

t, nch

es

gdo

cou

d w

nd d

lan

iono

re

let

e W

buil

r an

en.

ay,

the

ing

of the clinic

is t hs (

is o

ind

Sou

whi

at fre

e fre

Ton

South of this place, in the parish of Kilroan, are three plowlands, belonging to the see of Dublin, granted by king Charles II. in augmentation to that see.

Ross, or Ross-Carbery, was formerly called Ross-Ross-Car-Alithri, i. e. the field of pilgrimage. It was grant- bery: ed by Fitz-Stephen and Cogan to Adam Roche, except the bishop's lands. Hanmer, in his chronicle, p. 53, fays, this town was walled about, by a lady of that country; but by the wars of the Irish septs, particularly the Cartys, Drifcols, &c. the foundations could scarce be traced. He adds, " that there was in it anciently a famous university, whereto reforted all the S. W. part of Ireland, for learning fake." In this school, St. Brendan was reader. It may not be amis to observe, that it was an Irish profelfor, who first opened the public schools at Oxford; which shews how famous this island hath been, in ancient times, for learning; and, at this day, it does not feem to have a better chance for being confiderable. Cambden observes, that the Saxons flocked to Ireland, as to a great mart of learning; which is the reason, says he, why we so often find this in our writers, fuch a one has fent his fon over of of a und form, to which the priefts freque, I . 10V that lake, stood the severest frosts; whereas a far less intemperate winter, had killed all the rolemary that grew in gardens, situated in warmer places, and near the sea side.

tars, they had a language of their

Mr. James Frazier confirms this account of this lake's continuing unfrozen, which is owing to the many springs and fountains in it. It discharges from a river of the same name, fix miles in length, which runs slowly, but never freezes, and fill smoaks with frost. On the top of a vast high mountain, in Scotland, called Meal-fourvouny, four miles W. of Lough Ness, is a lake of cold fresh water, about 30 fathoms in length, and six broad, and could not be sounded with 100 fathom of line, this water is also said never to freeze.

Phil. Tranfact. n. 354. p. 330.

(B)

to Ireland to be educated (6). It is now a small market town, and bishop's see. The cathedral is supposed to have been founded by saint Fachnan, who

(6) Bede, in his ecclefiaftical history (lib. 3. c. 7. and 27.) often mentions particular persons, who were sent over into Ireland, to be educated; and Cambden relates this passage in the life of Sulgenius, who sourished 600 years before his time

Exemplo patrum commotus amore legendi Juvit ad Hibernos, fophia mirabile claros.

With love of learning, and examples fir'd To Ireland, fam'd for wildom, he retir'd.

And perhaps, fays the fame author, our forefathers, the Saxons, took the draught and form of their letters from them; their character being the fame with that at this day used in Ireland.

Camb. in Hibem.

Diodorus Siculus * has preserved an account, out of Heateus, a very ancient author, " of a northern fland, little less than Sicily, fituated over-against the Celta, and inhabited by those whom the Greeks called Hyperboreans. It is, says he, fruitful, pleasant, and dedicated to Apolto; that God, for the space of 19 years, used to come and converse with them, and, which is more remarkable, they could (as if they had the use of telescopes) shew the moon very near them, and discover therein mountains, &c. They had a large grove, and temple of a round form, to which the priests frequently resorted with their harps, to chaunt the praises of Apollo, their great deity. He fays, they had a language of their own, and that fome Greeks had been in it, and presented valuable gifts to this temple, with Greek infcriptions on them, and that one Abaris, who became afterwards a disciple of Pythagorus, went hence into Greece, and contracted an intimacy with the Delians." The fituation of this island opposite to the Celta, who were the inhabitants of Britain and Gallia, its being compared with Sicily in fize, its being dedicated to Apollo, i. the fun, which planet the Irish certainly worshipped, as may be feen in a note, p. 140 of this vol. The description of their temples, which were always round, and the mention of their harps, are all fo many concurring circumstances, which seem more than probable that this could be no other than Ireland. For the Mona or Anglely of Rowland, is too inconsiderable a spot to be meant here ? And ^{*} Lib. 3. † Vide Rowland's Mona Antiqua. p. 76.

CHAP. IV. HISTORY of CORK.

K II.

mall

ral is man,

Who

27.)

o Ire-

n the

ne

the

em ;

d in

ern.

eca-

lefs by

he,

for

m,

00-

m-ted

eat

ce i."

1

who flourished in the beginning of the 6th century. The writer of the life of faint Mocoemoge (who founded the church of Kineigh, an ancient bishopnck, but united to this diocese before the arrival of the English) calls him a man of wisdom and probity. He was named Fachnan Mongach, or the hairy, being born with hair; he was abbot of the abbey of Molana, an island in the Black-water, near The fame ancient writer relates the following passage of St. Fachnan, his abbey, and " Saint Fachnan lived in a monastery of "his own foundation; there is a city grown up, "in which always continued a large feminary for "scholars, which is called Ross-Alithri." This faint is, in an ancient martyrology (7), called bishop, and his festival is observed on the 16th of August, on which day the episcopal visitation is usually held. He is still greatly revered by the papists, as the patron and tutelar faint of the diocete; they have a legendary tradition, that he used to pray daily on the fide of a hill, half a mile eastward of Ross; that, one day, he left his official or prayer book there, the night following hap pened to be very rainy, nevertheless the book was not wet; for the angels, as the legend fays, built a small chapel over it to preserve it. This chapel was, about 50 years ago, repaired by a person, who, in a fit of sickness, vowed, if he recovered.

And if the learned of this island, who were then the ancient Druids of it, could, as with telescopes, shew the moon nearer, it may be supposed, that they had made a greater progress in those sciences than is generally imagined. The 19 years converse with Apollo, which is the cycle of the sun, the notion of the moon's opacity, and of its mountains, rocks, &c. argue them to have been no bad astronomers. I have seen schemes of the Ptolemaic system, in some Irish MSS. of very great antiquity; it is also very remarkable, that they have a tradition at Lismore, (where was formerly a celebrated school) of several Greeks, having studied there in former times, and that said school was sounded by two Greek princes.

(7) Martyr. of Cashel.

covered, to build a church; and the old foundation of this oratory, being but 12 feet long, and eight broad, he fixed on this spot to fulfil his vow.

Abbey.

Church.

Saint Fachnan also founded an abbey here, of regular canons, the ruins of which remain (8). The cathedral is a small near gothic structure; the choir feems to be modern. On the south side of the

(8) The following is a catalogue of the succeeding bishops, whose names have been preserved.

St. Finchad fucceeded St. Fachnan, being a disciple of faint Finbar, of Cork.

There is no account of any of the successors of this saint, till the arrival of the English, except one Dongal Mac Folact, whom Flaherty mentions in his Ogygia, and makes the 27th bishop from Pachnan, all of the same family, and, for hisauthority, quotes an Irish distich, out of the book of Lechan, which he thus translates.

Dongalus a Fachtna ter nonus episcopus, extet Lugadia de gente, dedit cui Rossa mitram.

Which distich has been thus paraphrased.

Hail happy Ross! that cou'd produce thrice nine, All mitred sages of Lugadia's line; From Fachnan, crown'd with everlasting praise, Down to the date of Dungal's pious days.

Benedict was bishop in 1172, and sat about 18 years. Maurice, who succeeded, died in 1196.

Daniel; concerning the indirect means he used to intrude into this see, Vid. the Hist. of the bishops of Ireland, p. 584.

Florence fat in 1210, and died in 1222.

Robert, alias Richard, was bishop, ann. 1225. Florence, or Fineen O-Clogheena, refigned in 1252.

Maurice, chanter of Cloyne, was made bishop in 1253, and died in 1260.

Walter O-Micthain succeeded in 1269, and died in 1274-Peter O-Hullecan succeeded in 1275, and died in 1290.

Laurence succeeded in 1290, and died in 1309.

Matthew O-Fin succeeded in 1310. He recovered by default, and restored to this see several of its possessions, which had been unjustly usurped, by Thomas Barret and Philip de Carew.

K II

dati

ight

f re-

The

hoir

the

ltar,

ops,

e of

aint,

lact,

au-

de 4 altar, is a small monument, to the memory of sir William Moore, of Ross-Carbery, who died the 18th of August, 1693, aged 31. The stalls being newly erected, are neat and well disposed. In the 5 wing, is an handsome chapter room. Here is a small square steeple, battlemented on the top. The church-yard is washed by an arm of the sea, that slows up to the town, and is prettily planted with trees.

The harbour, according to Cambden, was for-Harbour. merly navigable for ships, but in his time it was quite choaked up with sand; and it is now so shallow, that no vessel can come up to the town; so that one may justly apply those lines of Spenser to this place.

There also where the winged ships were seen, In liquid waves to cut their foamy way, And thousand fishers numbered to have been In that wide lake looking for plenteous prey Of fish, which they with bait used to betray;

T.

The crown thought this recovery was by collusion, to avoid the penalties of the stat. of mortmain; therefore, an inquest was held to try the collusion. But the jury found in favour of the bishop. He died in 1330.

Laurence O-Holdecan succeeded in 1331, and died in 1335.

Dennis succeeded in 1336; he died in 1377.

Bernard O-Connor succeeded in 1378. Stephen Browne succeeded in 1402.

Matthew died in 1418.

Walter Formay fucceeded in 1418, and died in 1424.
Cornelius Mac-Elchade fucceeded in 1426.

Thady fat in 1488.

Edmund de Courcey succeeded in 1494, and died in 1518. John Imurily succeeded in 1519, and died the same year. Bonaventure sat ann. 1523.

Dermot Mac-Domnuil fat in 1544; he died ann. 1552. Thomas O-Herlihy fat in 1563, and refigned in 1570. He was a member of the council of Trent.

William Lyon succeeded in 1582, and died ann. 1617.

From his time, this see was united to that of Cork, under which the successors of Ross are given.

called

Is now no lake, nor any fishers store,
Nor ever ship shall sail there any more.
Spenser's Ruines of Time.

In this town, is a good foot barrack, and a small market house, with some other good houses.

Caves.

Near the cathedral, about three years fince, there were discovered several subterraneous chambers, of which I intend to give a more particular account, in another part of this work. About a mile west of Ross, are two remarkable great holes in the ground, 80 yards deep, and each about 300 yards from the cliffs, into both which the sea flows by subterraneous passages; these holes are called E. and W. Pouladuff; one is on the lands of Downeen, and the other on Tralong.

Banduff-Caftle. A mile N. W. of Ross, stands Banduff, now Castle-Salem, built by the Donovans; it is possessed by Mr. Morris, and is a strong romantic building. About a mile west of Ross, runs the river Rory; near it, at Ballyvenine, stands the ruins of the largest house in Carbery, erected by sir Walter Coppinger, who also designed to build a market-town here; but was hindered by the rebellion of 1641, in which wars this house was destroyed. The soil between this and Ross, is a light grey clay, mixed with sand; their manure is sea sand, which affords them plenty of corn, potatoes, and some stax.

Glandore.

Three miles W. of Ross, is Glandore harbour, which, though small, is an exceeding good one; and near it, is a castle of the same name. At the upper end of this harbour, is a deep and dangerous glin, called the Lean, on both sides of which is the high

TheLeap, called the Leap; on both sides of which, is the high road from Ross to the other parts of W. Carbery. The road crosses this glin, which is here as steep as a slight of stairs, so that few horses, but those who are well used to it, attempt it with courage. To the west of this precipice, is an handsome seat,

CHAP. IV. HISTORY of CORK.

11,

me,

nall

ere

, of

nt, rest

the

rds by

ind

nd

ow led

ld-

rer

of ter

of

he

X-

f-

X.

Ir.

ıd

er n,

e,

called Brede, with large plantations of Samuel Jervais, esq. At Keamore, above the Leap, is a very extensive prospect of a great part of the sea coast, with the harbours of Glandore and Castlehaven.

On the west end of Glandore bay, not far from the Leap, by the working of the sea, a large part of the hill fell down, on which grew several trees; this piece formed an island of about 20 yards in circumference, and the trees continued to grow;

but it is now almost quite washed away.

On the west side of Glandore harbour, is the pa-Miros. ish of Miros, called, in Irish, Garry, i. e. the garden, from its being much better land than the rest of W. Carbery. In this parish, was anciently an abbey, called de Sancto Mauro, also de fonte vivo, founded anno 1172, by Dermot Mac-Cormac Carty, of Kilbawne, who was king of Cork, for differtian monks, which he brought from the abbey of Baltinglass. At a place called Carigiliky, in this parish, the foundation of extensive ruins were discovered, together with a large cemetery, with great quantities of human bones; it was, probably, the fite of the abbey de Sancto Mauro, which some fally place at Abbey-Mahon, near Timoleague. The house of abbey Shrowry, was a cell to this; the parish church stands in ruins, on the coast; and opposite to it, in a small island, called Arahas, is a ruined chappel.

Near Glandore harbour, is another island, called Squincethe Squince, which produces a wonderful fort of Island. herbage, that recovers and fattens diseased horses to admiration.

In this parish, is Banlaghan, the seat of O-Dono-Banlaghvan, chief of that ancient family, a worthy cour-an.

teous gentleman.

The west side of this parish, is bounded by the Castlebay of Castlehaven, formerly called Glanbarahane, haven. and, by the Spaniards, Porto Castello, famous for a notable sea-sight, between sir Richard Levison and Don Don Pedro de Zuibar, the Spanish admiral, ann 1602. Near the entrance, is an old castle to command the harbour; but the hills adjoining comman the castle. The place formerly belonged to O-Dri col; and afterwards to the Audley samily (9). Georg lord Audley, who was governor of Utrecht, and was fore wounded at the battle of Kinsale, anno 1602, was, for his eminent services, created earl of Castlehaven, and baron of Orier, in the county of Armagh, by letters patent, September 6, 1617, 12 Jac. 1. The parish church of Castlehaven is dedicated to saint Barahane; and near it, is a deep rocky glin, called Glanbarahane. There was, some years ago, a linen manusacture at Killehanghill near this place; but it is now ceased.

Galleon-

Rahine-Castle.

Horse-Island.

Castletown. The eastern point of this harbour, is called Galleon Point, on which, are the remains of an intrenchment cast up by the Spaniards, and the ovens used by them are also still to be seen. On this side, are the ruins of Rahine castle, which belonged to the O-Donovans. In the walls, are several cannon-ball, which were shot at it from some vessels in the harbour. On the western side of Castlehaven, is Horse-Island, being of the same nature of the Squince island, abovementioned, for curing horses. On the banks of the river, stands Castletown, now Castle-Townsend, and formerly Sleughleig, where there is a new erected castle of some strength, being situated on the side of an hill. This is the seat of — Townshend, ⁽⁹⁾ On the 12th of Feb. 1601-2, the garrison of Castlehaven surrendered to captain Harvey, who took possession of it for queen Elizabeth. The same day that the Spaniards quitted it, the O-Driscols, who had the inheritance of it, by slight; got into the castle, and made themselves masters of it. The Spaniards assaulted it, and were undermining the same, when captain Harvey came into the haven; but upon sight of his ships, the lrith, by composition to depart in safety, rendered it to the Spaniards, who had lost two of their soldiers in the attempt; and the Spaniards delivered it up to the captain.

Pacat. Hibern.

K I

nn

om

nan Dril

org an

nn

rlo

y o

, I

edi leep

ome

hill

Gal. ich-

ised

the 0+

nich

On

be-

ve-

the

and

ted

ide

nd,

fq;

ven

for lit, in-

rds

ain

the

the pt;

where boats may land at the door. y, is a good fifthery, and in it, are excellent oyfn, the water being eight fathom deep in most aces. Castletown is a small, but well-looking, vilge. An high promontory, called the Toe-head, Toe-head ands a little to the westward of Castlehaven, due buth of which, in the ocean, are the high steep aks, called the Stags, which being always to be m, are easily avoided; but I shall refer the hydroaphical description of the coast to a particular hapter.

Some years ago, the revd. dean Swift spent a sumer at a clergyman's house (fince also dead) in the mih of Miros; he often diverted himself in makglittle voyages on the coast, from Glandore har-ur towards Baltimore; and these excursions ocassocied his latin poem, called Carberiæ Rupes, hich he wrote in June, anno 1723. Having made tame voyage more than once, I had the pleawe of observing, that the dean's descriptions were just as his numbers were beautiful; which I hall beg leave to infert in this place.

Ecce! ingens fragmen fcopuli quod vertice fummo kluper impendet, nullo fundamine nixum kidit in fluctus: maria undiq; & undiq; faxa forrisono stridore tonant, & ad æthera murmur ngitur; trepidatq; suis Neptunus in undis. am longà venti rabie, atq; aspergine crebrà Equorei laticis, specus imà rupe cavatur : m fultura ruit, jam fumma cacumina nutant; m cadit in præceps moles, & verberat undas. monitus credas, hinc dejecisse tonantem Contibus impositos montes, & Pelion altum a capita anguipedum cœlo jaculasse gigantum. Sæpe etiam spelunca immani apperitur hiatu rela è scopulis, & utrinq; foramina pandit, finc atq; (10) hinc a ponto ad pontum pervia Phæbo, (10) This alludes to a stupendous arch, through which a boat by row. It is in the parish of Miros, and not far from the place

Cautibus enormè junctis laquearia tecti Formantur; moles olim ruitura fupernè. Fornice fublimi nidos posuere palumbes, Inq; imo stagni posuere cubilia Phocæ.

Sed, cum sævit hyems, & venti carcere rupto Immensos volvunt sluctus ad culmina montis; Non obsessa arces, non fulmina vindice dextra Missa Jovis, quoties inimicas sævit in urbes, Exæquant sonitum undarum, veniente procella: Littora littoribus reboant; vicinia latè, Gens assueta mari, & pedibus percurrere rupes, Terretur tamen, & longè fugit, arva relinquens.

Gramina dum carpunt, pendentes rupe capella Vi falientis aquæ de fummo precipitantur, Et dulces animas imo fub gurgite linquunt.

Piscator terrà non audet vellere funem; Sed latet in portu tremebundus, & aëra sudum Haud sperans, nereum precibus votisq; fatigat (11)

where the dean usually embarked. Near the W. head of Castlehaven, are deep caves, which are low at the entrance, but grow higher within. The swell of the sea raises a best up but grow higher within: The swell of the sea raises a boat up to the roof almost when one is in; which also, by turns, closes up the entrance, and makes them very dark and gloomy.

(11) For the sake of the English reader, I shall subjoin the following translation, by the rev. Dr. Dunkin.

Lo! from the top of yonder cliff, that shrouds Its airy head amidst the azure clouds, Hangs a huge fragment, destitute of props, Prone on the waves the rocky ruin drops. With hoarse rebust the swelling seas rebound From shore to shore, the rocks return the sound; The dreadful murmur heav'ns high concave cleaves, And Neptune shrinks beneath his subject waves; For long the whirling winds and beating tides Had scoop'd a vault into its nether sides; Now yields the base, the summits nod, now urge Their headlong course, and lash the sounding surge. Not louder noise cou'd shake the guilty world, When Jove heap'd mountains upon mountains hurl'd, Retorting Pelion from his dread abode,

To crush earth's rebel sons beneath the load-

oto

à:

ns.

11)

out

d of

nce,

t up

ofes

the

About four miles west of Castlehaven, the sea en-Loughers a narrow creek, and forms a fine salt-water lake, alled Lough-hyne. This lake being surrounded with high hills, has a most romantic appearance; it sabout two miles in circumference; and in the midst of it, is a small island, on which stands the ruins of an old castle, built by the O-Driscols. This lake abounds with various kinds of sea-fish, as also saltomon and white trout. Here are excellent lobsters, stabs, escalops, and small deep oysters, which, I was assured, instead of having a milky juice in the summer season, as all others have, their squor seems bloody. At half ebb, this water empties

Oft too, with hideous yawn, the cavern wide Presents an orifice on either fide; A dismal orifice, from sea to sea Extended, pervious to the god of day: Uncouthly join'd, the rocks stupendous form An arch, the ruin of a future storm: High on the cliff their nests wild pigeons make, And sea calves stable in the ouzy lake.

But when bleak winter with her fullen train,
Awakes the winds, to vex the watry plain;
When o'er the craggy fteep, without controul,
Big with the blaft, the raging billows rowl;
Not towns beleagur'd, not the flaming brand
Darted from heav'n by Jove's avenging hand,
Oft as on impious men his wrath he pours,
Humbles their pride, and blafts their gilded tow'rs,
Equal the tumult of this wild uproar;
Waves rush o'er waves, rebellows shore to shore.
The neighbouring race, tho' wont to brave the shocks,
Of angry seas and run along the rocks,
Now pale with terror, while the ocean foams,
Fly far and wide, nor trust their native homes.

The goats, while pendent from the mountain top, The wither'd herb improvident they crop, Wash'd down the precipice with sudden sweep, Leave their sweet lives beneath th' unsathom'd deep.

The frighted fisher, with desponding eyes, Tho' fase, yet trembling, in the harbour lies, Nor hoping to behold the sky serene, Wearies with yows the monarch of the main. empties itself into the bay of Barloge, in a kind of water-fall, like the river Thames at London-bridge: Seals also breed in this lake. It is the property of sir John Freke, bart, who has the opportunity of having excellent sea-fish from it in the most stormy weather. On one side of this lough, is an hill, called Knockowne, remarkable for a very sine echo; and a little to the west, is the castle of Ardagh, built by the O-Driscols, now also the estate of sir John Freke.

Baltimore.

Three miles more to the west, is Baltimore, formerly called Dunashad, an ancient corporation, and an excellent harbour; the S. W. fide of which is formed by the island Sherkin. The first English plantation made here, was by fir Thomas Crook (12), who took a lease of it for 21 years, from fir Fineen O-Driscol. He settled a colony of English protestants in the place, and procured a new charter of incorporation from king James I. The members confitted of a fovereign and free burgeffes, He divided the town into feveral tenements, with lots for gardens; and gave to each inhabitant, convenient land for building and grazing, eftating them in leases for his own time; and to encourage them to build and plant, he procured a patent for the town, to him and his heirs for ever; and promifed to make over to each of the tenants an estate in fee-farm of the proportion he held; but death prevented his undertaking.

After his decease, and before the lease to him was expired, fir Walter Coppinger, a native of the country, and a recusant, prosecuted a title; and without any of the English inhabitants being called to answer, got, by reference, an order out of the chancery, against the heirs of fir Fineen O-Driscol; whereby the possession that had continued, for 300 years, in him and his predecessors, was ordered to be recovered; and thereby the patent of the heir of ⁽¹²⁾ MSS. in Lismore castle.

CHAP. IV. HISTORY of CORK.

II

nd

n

0-

1-

f

an ne

1-

td

1

nd

ſh

), i

0-rs

le

ots

11-

in

to

n,

of

iis

ne.

d

b

ne

0

0

of

fr Thomas Crook was suspended. Upon this, the overeign of Baltimore, in behalf of himself, the burgeffes and inhabitants, with the heir of fir Fineen O.Driscol, applied to the government for relef (13). They proved, that they had made a civil plantation of English protestants there; that his maely had incorporated them; that fir Thomas Crook had shewed them a patent, whereby the town vas granted to him and his heirs; and that he had promised to estate them and their heirs; in considention of which, they had expended 2000l. in buildngs and other improvements: But that fir Walter Coppinger had got poffession of the castle of Baltimore, intended to bring Irish into the place, and remove all the English inhabitants. The lords justices fummoned fir Walter to answer this complaint; and all he endeavoured to shew was, that the inbitants had not laid out the fum mentioned in their remonstrance. Upon which, the lords justices iffued a commission to fir William Hull, Mr. Henry leecher, and Mr. Barham, to examine what expences the townsmen had been at, and to return them an exact account of the fame; and fir Walter was dismissed, upon his promise to reinstate all the inglish, at fuch rents (upon a return of the valuation) as the council board should think proper. The substance of this return was, that the English had trected 60 new houses on the place, and that they had bestowed, in building and enclosing, 16421. 158. d. which account was no fooner given, than fir Walter Coppinger, contrary to his promise at the ouncil board, contracted with the above-named Mr. Beecher, and granted him a lease of the whole, without any referve to the inhabitants, who had laid out their money; which occasioned another complaint to the government from the fovereign; and fir ⁽¹³⁾ From the original petition to the earl of Cork and lerd chancellor Ely, lords justices, at Lismore.

rines.

g

fr

P

re

fic

ear 88

fir Walter was again fummoned to appear, which for some time, he postponed, and, for his contemp was confined in the castle of Dublin. Mr. Beecher being one of the commissioners, was judged as cu pable as Coppinger, and was sent for to answer be fore the board. He made his addresses, privately, t the earl of Cork, then one of the lords justices, wh advised him, either to furrender his leafe to Coppin ger, so as he might be able to perform his promise or to estate the tenants during his own term; which last Beecher complied with; but would not give u any part of the fishery, a point the townsmen insiste upon; fo that the matter was brought, a third time before the council, where many voices were give for Beecher's being committed to the caftle. Bu the earl of Cork (who was his friend) moved, that fince the place was come into the hands of an Eng lish gentleman, who had been a favourer of civi plantations, and that the feafon for fifthing was come they might be all licenced home, where they migh amicably make up matters among themselves which the lord chancellor, whose turn was to speal next, affented to, and so the affair ended: The corporation offered (provided their estate were confirmed to them) to build a pier, and ered a fort, at their own expence, if his majesty would Taken by give them some ordnance (14). On the 20th of the Alge- June, 1631, a most terrible disaster happened thi colony. In the dead of the night, two Algerine to vers landed their men; and having plundered th place, they made a great number of the inhabitant prisoners, with above 100 English, and carried then all to Algiers. Among others, William Gunter, person of some credit, had his wife and seven son carried away, as I find by his petition to the lord justices for their relief. Those Algerines were pilot ed into Baltimore, by a Dungarvan fisherman, on Hacket, whom they took at fea for the purpole

(14) Original information in the Council Books.

d who, for this fact, was afterwards condemned dexecuted. Two ships of war, called the Lyons Thelps, stationed at Kinsale, received timely noit (as it appeared from one Mr. James Salmon, (Castlehaven) of this intended descent; but they anot flir to intercept them (15). The yearfollowg (16), fir Vincent Gooking informed the lords suffices.

(15) The lord president St. Leger, in a letter to the lords tices, dated the 27th of March, 1632, gives them the folwing account of the precautions he took to fecure the coaft

inft the Turkish pyrates.

c

p iei

u bd

, 0

1

in ile

iic

u

te

me

ve

Bu

ha ng

ivi me gh

es

eal

ato

red

oule

thi

ro

th

ant

nen

er,

fon

ord ilot

OD

ole

and

"I have ordered beacons to be fet up on the following head lands and eminences: one at Dundeedy and at Dunworley. to alarm the inhabitants of Ibawne, who, upon the firing of the beacons, are to affemble under arms at Cloghnakilty; fo that, if either Ross or Timoleague are attempted, they may readily relieve them. Castle-haven has not many inhabitants, and the harbour was fecured by Mr. Salmon, who nifed a fort, and mounted ordnance on it. I have ordered beacons to be erected on the promontory over Baltimore, on the illand of Cape Clear, at Miffen-head, and one at Sheep's-head point. Mr. Daniel O-Sullivan has an house of reasonable strength at Bear-haven, and takes upon him to defend it and Ballygobbin; he promises to erect five beacons, one upon the Dorfeys, and four upon the great island. I have directed O-Sullivan More (who lives in the river of kinmair) to take warning from the beacon erected on the promontory over the Dorleys; and by one of his own, to assemble his tenants and servants, at his strong and defenceable caftle. But, I think, this caution needless, as the inhabitants, on both fides that river, are but few, till as far up as Glanerought, where the pyrates dare not venture. At Dingle, there are great numbers of honest and well affected people, and a company may be placed there to fecure them. Tralee is in the fame fituation as Glanerought, but freer from danger, by the residence of fir Edward Denny and fir Thomas Harris, who are well provided with will, Judgment, and arms, to defend themselves. The fort of Castle-Park, near Kinsale, is in a ruinous condition, and the ordnance dismounted; and I humbly pray, the same may be repaired, as the inhabitants are more in dread of the invaion than those of any other place in this country, &c." Capt. South, in the Phil. Transact. informs us , that, in the ar 1698, there were in Baltimore and about it, nine feamen,

88 fishermen, 84 boatmen, in all 281, whereof only two ere papifts.

(16) Council Books.

justices, that the Turks intended another attemp which they advertised the English government of and they observe in their letter, that if proper me fures were not taken to guard those coasts, the pi chard fishery would be entirely ruined, to the gre prejudice of his majefty's cuftoms, adding, the pilchards then brought into the kingdom, one ve with another, 20,000l. Baltimore never recovere itself fince this accident, it is now a poor decaye fishing town, with not one tolerable house in it here are the ruins of an ancient caftle of the O-Dri cols; and it has ftill the privilege of fending tw members to parliament, though it confifts but of few poor cabins. King James II. granted a ner charter to Baltimore, anno 1687; and Danie O-Donovan, esq; was appointed portrieve thereof The late right hon. John Calvert, baron of Baltimore who was proprietor of the province of Marylan and Avalon, in America, took his title from Balti more in the county of Longford, and not from this place, as has been miftaken. The church is small and fituated low, at a small distance from the town

Skibbereen. From Baltimore, about five miles up the rive Ilen, is Skibbereen, anciently called Stapletown; i was formerly a part of the domain of the castle of Gortnaclough, which belonged to Mac-Carry Reagh; this castle has been sometime entirely demolithed; as is also Littertinlis, another of Mac Carty's castles, E. of this place. Skibbereen is small market town, where the collector, surveyor and other officers (17) of the port of Baltimore reside. On the W. side of the river, is a new erected church

(17) The following officers of the revenue belong to the port and district.

A collector, at tool per ann.

A port furveyor, at 40l

A coast officer and gauger, at Glandore, 401.

Thre

OK

emp

nt of ne pi

gra

, th

vere

ayo

n it Dri

tw

net

reol

lan

alti

nall wn

ive

0 ut)

ac

or

durch, and, in the town, a decent market-house. The river llen runs through the place, over which here is a stone bridge, but so low as to be someimes overflown by floods; boats, at high water, nw down to Baltimore. The clothing trade is followed in this place; they have also some share of the linen manufactory, particularly for strip'd mens and handkerchiefs, and a good weekly marlet: Near the town, the lands are well cultivated. affording good quantities of corn and flax. manure with sea sand, the soil being a grey clay, and, in some places, red, with a slaty bottom. They have no limestone nearer than Muskery: West of Skibbereen, is Abbey Shrowry, formerly a religious house, but now the ruins of a parish church. In it are several old tombs, and, in particular, a large one of the Roches.

Affadown, the feat of col. Beecher, three miles Affadown. W. from Skibbereen, is adorned with good gardens and plantations. The jaw-bone of a whale, forms the fide posts and arch of a gateway, large enough for a coach to drive through, although ome part is buried in the earth. Near it, on a nsing ground, is a round tower; on its top, is a landown, from whence is a prospect of the adjacent coast and islands, with the ruins of several old castles.

About a mile S. is White-hall, called formerly White Rincolifky, a good house of Samuel Townshend, hall eq, pleasantly fituated on an arm of the sea. The castle of Rincolisky belonged to the Coppingers, but it was originally built by the O-Driscols. To the W. of Rincolisky, is a broad deep bay, called Vol. I. Roaring.

Three coast officers, at 35 l. each.
A surveyor, at Crook-haven, 40 l.
A surveyor, at Castlehaven, 40 l.
Three tide waiters, at 30 l. each.
Six supernumerary tide-waiters, at 5 l. each.
Four boatmen, at Baltimore, at 13 l. each.
And, four at

A foot post, 61.
Four gaugers, at 401. each.

water.

Kilcoe, Cloghan, and Rofbrin caftles.

Roafing- Roaring-water bay, and, in Irish, Lough Trasnagh: at the head of this bay, are the ruins of the caftle of Kilcoe, built by the Mac-Cartys, a branch who stiled themselves lords of Clan-Dermot. had also the castle of Cloghan. More to the west, opposite Horse-island, is the ruin of the castle of > Rolbrin, which belonged to O-Mahony, being boldly erected on a rock, which hangs over the ocean. The proprietor of this caftle, in queen Elizabeth's time, turned pirate; which caused the > lord president, sir George Carew, to demolish it, and the W. fide is battered to the ground. There > is an ancient Irish MS, called, from this place, the pfalter of Rosbrin, and contains little else than a genealogical account of this family of the O-Ma-

honys. Two miles more W. are the ruins of Ardintenant castle, the chief residence of O-Mahony, of W. Carbery, feated near the eaftern point of Skull harbour. Skull is but a small, infignificant village, having few buildings besides the church and parlonage house. To the N. of it, stands an high conical hill, called Mount-Gabriel; on the top of it, is a remarkable lough, which is but a few yards broad; it has been founded from the N. E. with 100 fathom of line; although the lead ftopped, yet the hole was deeper, it being choaked up with a long coarse grass, which the Irish call fenanc. The water oozes out of the mountain to the N. W. and this cone is above 300 yards higher than the level of the sea; from it, is a noble prospect, of a vast extent, of a rude uncultivated country, from the mizen head to Ross, with an infinite number, as Milton fays,

Of fea-girt illes, That, like to rich and various gems, inlay The unadorned bosom of the deep.

As also, several bays, creeks and harbours, which I shall particularly describe in another place. The

of gangers, at 40. colds.

Ardintenant.

Skull.

Mount-Gabriel. CHAP. IV. HISTORY of CORK.

KI

agh:

caftle

who They

west.

le of eing

the

neen

the

it,

here

the

na

Via-

in-

of

gc,

it,

ds

th

d,

th

T.

e

n

mountains are here thrown together, with fuch irremarity and confusion, as to form a great variety of hollow bottoms, that often represent the figures of many artificial basins, where, if any springs dance to rife, they produce feveral lakes, before they can find iffue for the waters; or otherways constitute so many impassable turf-bogs. the Leap and Skibbereen, are many loughs, stored with trout and eels, which the Irish call aghills; and some have small floating islands (18), which him from one fide to the other: I have feen of mem above ten yards broad; they are usually omposed, at first, of the abovementioned long grass, which gathering together, by degrees, being blown of the adjacent grounds in September, form a tind of a tuffock; and increase every year, he addition of flime and other matter, that they allect in floating about the fides and edges of the akes. In the parish of Kilmacabea, is a lake, called loughdrine, which the country people hold to be Loughminculous, and fay, that, on a certain day of the drine. year, all the islands in it change places, and shift from one fide to the other; at which time, vaft numbers of these ignorant people assemble at this hugh, where they erect booths, and feaft, every one bringing bits of bread, meal, &c. to feed the fish in the lake.

In the same parish, is another, called Ballinlough, Ballinfored with a fine large red trout; on an hill, to lough.

⁽¹⁸⁾ Dr. Edmund Halley, in the Phil. Transact, n. 229, p. 56, mentions the same kind of lakes in Carnaryonshire, in Wales; and adds, that he was on board a stoating island in one of them: The lake being scarce half a mile about, environed with a boggy turfy soil, a piece of which, about fix yards long and four broad, stoated on the water, being five or fix inches raised above it, but above is inches deep within the water, having broad spreading sungous roots on its sides, the lightness of which buoys it up. It was driven on the lee-shore; but the doctor launched it off, and swam it, to be satisfied that it loated.

276

8

the E. fide of it, is an ancient Danish intrenchment. faid to have a subterraneous passage down to the lake. In this, and other loughs, are feveral fresh water wrinkles, exactly refembling those on the fea shore; and as muscles and other kinds of sea shell fish are often found in fresh water, I do not wonder, that we often discover varieties of shells in places remote from the ocean.

But, to return from Mount-Gabriel, juftly reckoned the steepest mountain of its length in Ireland. towards the coaft, paffing by Skull, I proceed well Leamcon. to Leamcon, a pretty feat of Mr. Hull, near a good harbour, between Long Island and the continent. Here are two castles of the Mahonys in ruins; the larger, is called Black-castle, built on an island, to which is a very narrow passage easily defenceable;

and more west, is the castle of Bally-Desmond, now Ballydivilin, another old feat of the Mahonys, boldly erected on a rock hanging over the ocean.

More westerly, in a peninsula, formerly called the Aldern-head, flands Crook-haven; once a place of fome note, but now a fmall inconfiderable fishing town, near an excellent harbour, and one of the best out-lets in Europe, for vessels to sail to any place what foever. The lands about it, are exceeding rocky and barren, a great part of which belong to the fee of Cork. Near it, are the ruins of an old caftle, called Caftle-Meghan, faid to be built by the Meghans, or, according to others, by the O-Heas. The extreme point of this tract, is called Bally-vogy-head, between which and the opposite cape, called Missen-head, anciently the Notium Promontorium of Ptolemy, is a great bay, and another between that and Three castle-head, so called, from three square towers, built on it, by the Mahonys; then comes the larger bay of Dummanus, which has its name from Dunmanus caltle, erected on the east banks thereof by that sept; and was fortified with walls and flankers. Near it, is a good house

Dunmanus.

Blackcaftle.

Ballydivilin.

Crookhaven.

Castle-Meghan. Ballyvogy head. Miffenhead.

ent.

the

resh

fea hell

on-

in ck-

nd.

veft

ood

ent.

the

, to

ole;

old-

the

of

ing

the

iny

ing

to

old

the

eas.

ly-

pe,

on-

be-

m

7S;

ch

he

ed

fe:

of

of Mr. Donovan, with adjacent fish palaces; it is the estate of fir Charles Moore, bart. Towards the bottom of the bay, is Dunbeacon, another castle of Dunbeathe Mahonys; it was purchased from Mr. Michael con. Apfley, by fir Richard Boyle, Dec. 9, 1602. Near it, is a good house of Mr. Driscol; it is now the efnte of Mr. Townshend. This whole peninfula, from Ballydehab village to the bay of Dunmanus, is called Ivaugh, and belonged to O-Mahown-fune, whose castles I have already enumerated. Croffing the bay of Dunmanus, we come to another peninfula, called Minterbarry, a most barbarous country, washed on the E. by Dunmanus bay, and by Bantry bay on the W. Towards the N. part the Mac-Cartys, who were known by the name of Mucklagh, had a good feat, at a place alled Cool-long. All this country is mountainous, ncky and boggy, beyond description.

Here moss-grown trees expand the smallest leaf,
Here half an acre's corn is half a sheaf,
Here hills, with naked heads, the tempest meet,
Rocks at their sides, and torrents at their feet,
Or lazy lakes, unconscious of a flood,
Whose dull brown naiads ever sleep in mud.
Yet here content can dwell.

PARNEL

A small river, named Four mile water, so called from its distance from Bantry, falls into the bay of Dunmanus; and near it, is a good house of Mr. Blair. The N. W. part of this barony, was anciently named Clancahill, and belonged to O-Donovan, as I have already mentioned, p. 24. Here are few places of any note, except Barnahelly, now Tonson's-town, and Butler's-gift; two new built farm-houses, with some improvements.

Dromaleague, is a small inconsiderable village; an Dromaaccident happened here, a few years ago, caused by league. lightning, which shattered a slate-house; for entering at the east, it passed through the west end, and lest both walls pierced through in many places.

without

Donovan

278

no other damage, although there were many people then in the house. Not far from this place, is Castle-Donovan, seated among the mountains, formerly the seat of O-Donovan. More easterly, is Togher castle; it belonged to the Mac-Cartys, of Glawnacrime; which is still a wild, desolate tract, except a little tolerable land near the castle, where the soil is brown and deep, and produces corn and fruit. To the S. runs a branch of the river Bandon, down to Dunmanway.

Moun-

A stupendous chain of losty mountains terminate this barony on the N. W. which run through the northern parts of Bantry into Glanerought, in Kerry. The principal of these mountains, in this county, are those of Daunce and Shehy, either of which are little inferior to the mountain of Knockmeledown, in the county of Waterford, whose perpendicular height is 900 yards. At the foot of Shehy, is a lake, stored with a species of red trout, which never rise at a sty; and I have heard of the same being in the lough near Blarney castle.

Having mentioned every thing remarkable in this barony, I shall proceed to describe the islands on the coast, some of which are pretty large.

Capeclear illand. The island of Cape Clear, is the most southern land in Ireland; but it has been misplaced in all our maps and sea-charts, as will appear by comparing my map of this county with all the former ones of Ireland. It is a parish of itself, containing 12 plowlands; in the ecclesiastical books, it is called Insula Sancta Clara; and, in the old Irish MSS. Inish Damhly. The north side bears potatoes, barley, and a little wheat; and the south is mostly a craggy, rock. On the N. W. point, stand the ruins of a castle, built on a rock in the sea, called Dunanore, i. e. the Golden-fort. There is a very narrow passage, about a yard broad and 10 yards in length, to this castle; this path is high and steep, on both sides,

CHAP. IV. HISTORY of CORK.

K II

Oing

peo-

e, i

for-

act,

hère

and

Ban-

nate

the

ry.

ty,

ich

een-

ıy,

ch

ne

in ds

m

m

g

2

fides, the sea, on either hand, being very deep, so that sew but persons well used to it will venture to walk it over; when I got up to the top of this castle, and saw the ocean roaring on all sides of the rock, I wished heartily to be again on the main land. This castle and island formerly belonged to O-Driscol, and were taken, on the 22d of March, 1601, by capt. Harvey, who, soon after, obliged fir Fineen

0-Driscol to submit to queen Elizabeth.

In this island, there are about 400 families, who have a good quantity of sheep and cows, some swine and horses, but all their cattle are very small. The island is scarce able to support its inhabitants, who are often obliged to have provilions from the shore; and in the most plentiful years, they never fend any to market. Towards the middle of the illand, is their chapel, a large building, but as deftitute of any ornament as a barn. Here most of the inhabitants meet on fundays and holydays; and near it, is the priest's house, who is temporal, as well as spiritual, judge in his parish, and is absolute governor of the illand; but, perhaps, as poor a one as any in christendom. A little to the east of the castle, is a cove, called Tra Kieran; i. e. St. Kieran's strand, on which is a pillar stone, with a cross, rudely cut, towards the top, that, they fay, was the workmanhip of St. Kieran (19); and near it, stand the walls of a ruined church, dedicated to the same saint. This stone they hold in great veneration, and assemble round it every 5th of March, on which day they celebrate the festival of their patron. On the S. W. fide of the island, is a creek, in which a large veffel may be faved upon occasion; and there is a smaller one, on the north side, opposite to it, only fit for boats. Between these creeks, is a narrow isthmus, about a quarter of a mile broad with hills to the east and west, which, from the se makes the island seem to be divided. In the sout cove, there are from seven fathom to 18 feet water where a very rich vessel, about twenty six years ago was saved, being in the greatest distress, having se veral feet water in her hold; she came in, by the light of a candle from a cabin in the island, and when day appeared, the crew found themselves in a snug basin; but in what part of the world the did not know, being directly come from the West Indies.

⁽¹⁹⁾ This faint Kieran was the first bishop of Saiger, now a part of Offory. Archbishop Usher says, he was born in this illand. Primordium, p. 785.

280

Towards the west end of the island, is a fresh water lough, abounding with a black kind of worm about two inches long, shaped like a leech, foft, and eafily breaking to the touch. The water of this lake, is of a most saponaceous abstersive quality it very readily dissolves soap, and the inhabitant affirm, that if a cask in which train oil had been kept, was to be laid, for a few days, in this lough it would be taken out sweet and clean. A quantity of this water was twice transmitted to Dublin, where it was examined by Dr. Rutty, who affirms, he obtained a small quantity of natron from it, to which he imputes the above faponaceous quality. The inhabitants here are generally a very simple honest people, thieving being a vice little known among them. If a person be found guilty of a crime, he is directly banished to the continent, which is the greatest punishment they can inflict on the criminal, who endeavours all he can to remain on the Mand. They have no liquor for their ordinary drink, except water or milk; yet very few houses are without a bottle of rum or brandy, which they will generously The houses are built of stone, offer to a stranger. mostly thatched with potatoe stalks; and these artfully kept down by nets, which cover the whole These nets are made of ropes of straw, the meshes not quite a soot square; to the ends of these, flones are tied, which hanging down round the MAP. IV. HISTORY of CORK.

K

roa

e fe

out

ate

age

g f

y th

an es i

the

esh orm

thi

ity

anti

igh

tity

nere

ob-

ineo-

aly

teft

ho

vaot-

fly

ne,

rt-

ole

he

le,

he

8,

res, form no disagreeable sight. There are seve-

a villages and hamlets upon the island.

They have 30 or 40 boats belonging to the place. nth which they take confiderable quantities of fifh: nd by this means, they are enabled to pay their mt: When a bad feafon comes, they generally run narrear; but they very honestly clear it off when the fish returns. The principal fish taken here, are od, hake, ling, mackerel, &c. hake is their staple fih, which they falt and dry. The Kinfale fishermen illo come hither, and build huts, where they cure their fish, and for this they pay a smart rent. Most of the inhabitants are strong and healthy, and are feldom invaded with diforders, dying generally of old age, chiefly owing to their temperate living, hard labour, and clearness of the air. Brandy-drinking is their only debauch. They are kind to each other, courteous to strangers, who very rarely are fen on the island, and are excellent pilots, being fishermen. But what is most pleasing, the linen manufacture has got fome footing in this island, for I have feen tolerable crops of flax, most of the women spin, and, it is said, they purge and whiten their yarn to a degree of perfection, by means of the foft water of the lake before-mentioned.

Many of the rocks of this island are composed of an excellent white freestone, resembling Portland stone, they have also a black kind, proper for stags and hearth-stones, which they carry, by sea, to Cork, and round the island, are plenty of crabs and lobsters.

Adjoining to Cape Clear, between it and the main Inishiresa, land, is the island of Inishirean, which I take to be lnis-kieran, or the island of St. Kieran, rather than the former. In this island stood the castle of Dunelong, over-against that of Dunashad, which castles were possessed by the O-Driscols, and defended the mouth of Baltimore harbour. They were surrendered to capt. Harvey, on the 23d of Feb.

Feb. 1601-2, after the defeat of the Spaniards, by O-Drifcol. There was afterwards a regular fortific cation erected in this part of the island, which was garrifoned in queen Anne's time, but it has been for feveral years, difmantled : Near it, are the remains of a barrack, and there are some old pieces of iron ordnance still lying among the rocks. Within the walls of the fort, capt. Lionel Beecher has a good house. About a mile to the S. are the remains of an ancient abbey, founded anno 1460, for fran cifcana, by Florence O-Drifcol, built after the model of that of Kilcrea, but this is much smaller. The steeple is a low square tower, from whence runs the nave of the church, with an arcaded wing to the fouth. Some parts of the building are flated, having been used for fish-houses, when the pilchards frequented this coaft. This island has very good land it it, and its foil is vaftly preferable to that of Cape Clear.

Other-islands.

In the bay of Baltimore, are several islands, as Spanish-island, also the island of Dunegal, a large fruitful spot, and higher up is another, called Clare-island. Midway N. W. between Cape Clear and the main, are three islands, called the Calves, the west Calf contains 44 acres. These are falsely laid down in all the sea-charts. Carty's-island, not mentioned in former maps, lies between these and the shore, and is larger than any of the Calves.

To the N. W. of Inishircan, lies Hare-island, a large fruitful spot; and near it, are four small islands, called the Schemes, not expressed in any former chart; also along the coast, in the following order, from east to west, are Horse-island, containing 100 acres; Castle-island, containing 119 acres; Long-island, containing 316 acres; and west of all these, is a small spot, called Goat-island, never before put into a map.

All these islands together, with the adjacent coast, produce large crops of fine English barley, by means

CHAP. V. HISTORY of CORK.

means of fea-fand, which is the manure mostly ufed. This barony gave title of earl to the noble family of Vaughan. John Vaughan, who was knighted for fervices in this kingdom, by the earl of Effex, nqueen Elizabeth's time, was, the 18th of James I. created lord Vaughan, of Mullingar, and by king Charles I, earl of Carbery. His fon Richard, was created lord Vaughan, of Emlyn, English honour, 10th of Charles I, thefe titles are now extinct. The laft earl, whose name was John, died January 16th, 1712, in the 74th year of his age (20). His daughter and fole heiress, the lady Anne Vaughan, was marred to his grace the duke of Bolton. It at prefent gives title of baron to the right hon. George Evans, whole father was created baron of Carbery, May 9th, 1715, the first of George I.

There is a barony of Carbery, in the county of Sigo, and also another in the county of Kildare, but they are small inconsiderable tracts in respect of this barony.

tifi

Wa

een

e re

ecer ith

68 6

Rina

an 110-

er.

nce

ing

ed,

oil

ery

to ge ed

ar si

ot

y

1-

Q

(10) Collins's Peerage of England, Vol. I. p. 90, &c.

CHAP. V.

A Description of the Barony of Bear and Bantry.

BEAR and Bantry compose but one barony (1); Bear and it is very large, but barren and desolate, Bantry, there being but two or three resident clergy in the whole barony; but what it wants in the goodness of the land, is amply made up by the noblest bays in the world, that of Bantry being capable of containing all the shipping in Europe: This bay is also called Bear-haven, and has given title of v count to the family of Berkley, who were viscount Fitz-Harding, of Bear-haven. It at present give title of viscount to the right hon. Walter Chewynd, created viscount Chetwynd, of Bear-have and baron of Rathdown, in the county of Wiclow, anno 1717, the 3d of George I.

⁽¹⁾ In this barony, are the parishes of Kilmacomoge, Kilcuskin, Killaghaninagh, Kilkaterin, Kilmanagh, and Durrus; it contains 195 plowlands, and 84,132 acres, of which 15911 are very justly esteemed unprofitable.

Bantry.

The town of Bantry is seated at the bottom this extensive bay, on the E. side. It was former called Ballygobbin; as also the Old town, to disti guish it from another settlement, more to the h called the New Town, where Ireton had a fortif cation erected, with four regular baftions, which caused the inhabitants to build near it; but who this fort went to decay, they returned, by degree to the Old Town, called Bantry, from its bein the chief fettlement of this half barony. A fe years ago, when the pilchards (2) frequented th bay, it was a very thriving town; but for want employment, is again fallen into decay. Near i stood a franciscan abbey, founded anno 1460, b Dermot O-Sullivan, now entirely demolished. I many creeks round this bay, are feveral fish palace as they are called, built for faving, preserving and falting of pilchards, of which commodity for veral thousand pounds worth have been fent from hence to Spain, Portugal, and Italy; but of lat years

⁽²⁾ On the 3d of June, 1749, Mr. Richard Mead, of th town, to entitle him to a præmium given by the rev. doctor Madden, fully proved to the Dublin Society, that he had within the year, catched and cured 380,800 fifth of different kinds, fix score to the hundred; a prodigious taking for one man And that this was no casual thing, is evident, from Mr. Jame Young of the same place, his having catched and cure 482,500 herrings, and 231 barrels of sprats the preceding year If private adventurers, with small funds, are able to do much, what may we not reasonably expect, if a sufficient flock was raised to establish a general fishery on our coasts?

MAP. V. HISTORY of CORK.

K

of v

our

giv Che

ave

Vic

m ner

ifti

e N

ortif

vhid

whe

ree

ein

fe

th

nt d

ar i), b

N

aces

ring fe

fron

lat

ears

fth

octo had

eren

man

ame

ure

rear lo f

cien

10 !

an, there has not a fingle pilchard appeared on coaft. The Sullivans had formerly feveral good is round this bay; that of Rinedizart, was deplished by a ship of war, in Oliver Cromwell's me: They had another at Black-rock, where tre is a good house of Samuel Hutchinson, in Three rivers fall into this bay from the N. in Moyallah river, being the most eastern, next Bantry, which empties itself down a steep rock no the bay; neither falmon nor trout can go up nto it, so that it is quite destitute of either; the hwane, i. e. the middle river; and the western iver, called Curloom. In the town of Bantry, is barrack for a foot company, and a decent parish durch; it formerly gave title of baron to Roper nicount Baltinglais. The bay of Bantry is 26 Bantrymiles long, and, in most places, above a league bay. mad; in the midst of it, are 40 fathom water: There are few strands round it, the coasts being all igh stupendous rocks. The entrance of this bay, sformed by the mountains of Bear-haven to the N. W. and Sheep's-head point to the S. E. On the larboard hand, lies the island of Bear-haven; all the W. fide is one continued chain of lofty mountains, running far up the country to the N. and dividing the counties of Cork and Kerry; they were anciently called Vallis Juncofa, and were the atteat of the ancient Irish, soon after the arrival of the English, from whence they scarce stirred till the divisions of the houses of York and Lancaster obliged many of the latter to quit the country; pon which, the Irish came, once more, into the lower grounds, to the great annoyance of the remaining English. The island of Whiddy, anciently Whiddyfucida Infula, lies opposite to the town of Bantry , illand. it is a pleasant spot, of a triangular form, and the foil is excellent : In it, Richard White, efq, whofe property it is, has a deer park, where are both rocky,

a fresh and salt water lake, at no great distance from each other. The deer are very fat, and the island produces as large mutton as any in the county of Limerick, where the largest in Ireland is faid to be; it is not unpleasant to see the small Bantry mutton, which is exceeding fat and good in its kind, compared to this of Whiddy island and bears no proportion to it as to bigness. In this island, are good orchards, and also a profita ble hop-yard; it abounds with hares, as the owner fuffers none to be killed. Near Whiddy-ifland are fome small ones, viz. Horse-island, Hog-island Chapel-island, and Coney-island, and all their fatten lean horses, in the spring season, to admiration.

Other illands.

Coral fand.

From Bantry to Bear-haven, by land, there i nothing remarkable, except the iron furnaces; s Comolin. Comolin, which have been in a thriving condition for some years past, but wood begins to grow very fcarce. In the bay of Glangariff, and towards the N. W. part of Bantry bay, they dredge up large quantities of a coral fand, found to be a most excellent manure, and lasts in the ground above 20 years. At Rofs Mac-Owen, midway between Bear-haven and Bantry, lives Mr. Murtough O-Sullivan, a person well known in those parts, he and his elder brother, who is commonly called Mac-Fineen Duff, who lives near the river of Kinmair, are the chief remains of the O-Sullivan family in this country. There is in Spain a descendant of O-Sullivan Bear, who is enpobled, and called there count of Bear-haven; and is also said to be hereditary governor of the Groyne.

Not far from Ross-Mac-Owen, is one of the largest and highest water-falls in this kingdom, This cataract is very visible from the town of Bantry, at least 14 miles distant from it : The water is collected from various small rivulets and springs, forming a large lake, on the top of a vast high, Waterfall.

MAP. V. HISTORY of CORK.

K

th

th

ma

000 ind

la Sita

ine ind ind

nes

mi

e i

8 ion

ery to rgq

ex-

20 een

O-he

in-

fa-

en-

ıll-

to

the

m,

m-

15

gs, gh,

cky, and almost perpendicular mountain, called ingry-hill, which is, at least, 700 yards above the rel of the bay of Bantry. The water cascades on the top of this mountain, in a beautiful fheet, least ten yards broad, which expands as it falls: but half the height of the mountain, it dashes perndicular on a prominent rock, from whence a if arises almost a third part of the hill, which, in me particular stations, the sun's rays playing on and meeting with the eye of a spectator, must fuch politions, generally reflecting the colours of k Iris; hence it falls, from rock to rock, till it spaffed the rugged declivity of Hungry-hill; ad before it gains the ocean, it has another fall, skading, in an arch, over a lower hill; all which ake a fine fight as one fails up and down the bay. at those who are curious, will not murmur at the bour they may have in vifiting every part of this oble cataract; nor will, I hope, the poetical rearat the following description of one, from Mr. homson, which very literally agrees with ours.

hus up the mount, in visionary muse, fray, regardless whither; till the stun in a near fall of water ev'ry sense water from the charms of thought: Swift farinking back,

find aghaft, and view the broken fcene.

mooth to the shaggy brink, a spreading flood

olls fair and placid, till collected all,

one bright glut, as sinks the shelving ground,

h' impetuous torrent tumbling down the steep,

hunders and shakes th' astonish'd country round.

low a blue watry sheet; anon dispers'd,

hoary mist then gathered in again,

darted stream along the hollow rock

his way and that tormented, dashing thick

om steep to steep with wild infracted course,

And

And restless roaring to the humble vale.
With the rough prospect tired, I turn my gaze
Where in long visto, the soft murmuring main Darts a green lustre.

THOMSON'S Seafor

Castle-

Castle-town, alias Castle-dermot, is a small vilage, of little note, opposite to the island of Bea haven, which is about six miles long, is very coar mountainous, and rugged, yet is of great use defending this noble bay from the sury of the W. winds; so as vessels within the island may refecure, according to those lines of the poet.

Nec tamen hoc arctis immissum faucibus æquor Portus erat, si non violentos insula coros Exciperet saxis, laxasq; refunderet undas. Hinc illinc montes, scopulosæ rupis aperto Opposuit natura mari, slatusq; removit, Ut tremulo starent contentæ sune carinæ.

LUCAN, lib.

Nor yet the bending shores cou'd form a bay, Did not a barrier isle the winds delay, And break the seas tempestuous in their way. Huge mounds of rocks are plac'd by nature's hand To guard around the hospitable strand, To turn the storm, repulse the rushing tide, And bid the anch'ring bark securely ride.

Dunboy.

S. E. from Castle-dermot, stood the celebrate castle of Dunboy, which, in the year 1602, was take by fir George Carew, after a most obstinate an vigorous defence. Crossing a rude uncultivate country to the W. the river of Kinmare, as it called, though really a large bay of the ocean, as pears. The E. side of the mouth of this river, is

K

e

n

lo

V

Bea

ari

e

10 rid 71

and

W

ate

an atd

t ap

th

- Datta's

al ace

is county; and farther up, both fides belong to

from hence, one has a prospect of the Durseys, Dursey sciently called Bea Infulation This island is very island. long by nature, because of the difficulty of landog, which its convenient but by one narrow ennnce, that might be defended by a few hands. ad was formerly fortified with a caltle, by fome mitaken for the ruins of an inbbey thefides, it is mooffible to arrive at this por but in a dead calm he least gale of wind railing fuch billows, as it is my dangerous for any boat to come mear the here: This feemingly impregriable place, was wien by the Irifh; after the defeat of the Spapards, for their last refuge, of Dunboy should be then by the English They committed the culto h of it to Conner O Dricell for and heir to fir fincen O-Drifcol who probated three pieces of panish ordinance to be conveyed into this island inh flores, animanision and 66 men, which fortifed it, as they imagined against the most potent memy; but they were foon obliged to furrender it o captain Rostockto who demolished the forts, and brought of the gurrison prisoners to the camp at Dunboy, where they were all executed. This iffand exceedingly rough and coarle, and is about three diffolving readily in the air; the faiolessim did

From the Sypart of Bantry bay to the Nothers are but two pallages by which one can go into Kerry; that on the Note and it is most rugged, danger one one, called the Priest's leap, and well known The in this country; from whence the road leads over Priest's the mountain of Mangerton, justly esteemed one leap of the highest in Preland. Among these wild tracts, are, here and there, some yew trees remaining, of a very large like, they were formerly in greater plenty, as was also the arbutus or strawberry tree, which is celebrated to flourist in finish foils.

Vot. I li sa moilifings symbol smal Surgit scounty, and further my both hide belong to Surgit & in folis formologina authorized by single Burger, Drees I. I. dil authoroper line a project of the Durfeys, Drees

Arbutus faireft in wild tracts affe dies vinnen

-has he were plenty of red deer in this country; but they are, of date, become exceeding dare

Cariga-

The castle of Cariganais, which belonged to the O-Sullivans, is built on the siver Ouvene, four miles from Bantry. It was an high Grueture with a fquare court, and flanked with four round towers In it. Daniel O Sullivany furnamed Caumboire. crooked, kept garrifon in queen Elizabeth's time. But upon Tirrel's flying the country after the conquest of Dunbay Tthis castle, and their of Arden, were furnendered to the gireen's forces of Near this, is a fine oak wood still growing; one Dennis Hurley, aged of, who died about thirty years lince, remembered the cutting down of this wood three different times, and speach outting the trees were fit for beams, boat timber, and most other wies. Richard White, elg; of Bentry, whole land itd is had fome time ago pecalion to dig out alarge piece of oak funk in a morals band found the foil about it, for feven feet perpendicular, to be a fat grazy clay, of the colour of rosten cheefe, free from grit, and diffolving readily in the air; the foil products 2 very large quantity of renk (warthy geals ... This wood is lituated between two mountain rivers, which bring down great quantities of earth and mud, that with the ipray and leaves of the trees, compole this kind of foil an This earth, upon trial, did not ferment with acide, but it might, probably, be an excellent manure for coarse gravelly grounds

In returning from Bantry to Carbery, the road is extremely rocky: three miles E, of Bantry, there is a valley, called Murdering glint, in it, are a vall quantity of large ftones and rocks, thrown together in the same sportive confusion, as if they were shot

II.

COUR

ioiff

гу;

the

iles

ha

ES.

10/

ne.

)n-)

2,

IS,

ITTO

e

Sh

60

انوا

d of

t,

ď

2

1 í

mough.

fquare buddings.

hot out of the mouth of a prodigious large volono; and the adjacent hill, on the top, being hol-low, with a rugged trony edge around it, looks not mlike the mouth of one. About the town of Banmy, on the adjacent hills, are some well cultivated grounds; and I have feen a meadow belonging to Richard White, elq; which he reclaimed from a bog, that afforded near double as much hay as I ever faw mowed off the fame quantity of land; where the ditches were made to enclose this field. there was a white coarse clay thrown up, that lay at the bottom of the turfy foil and where this clay was laid, the grafs grew very luxurious, which feems to be no bad hint for the improvement of fuch drained lands ! This clay adds a firmness and folidity to the bog, and yet would, probably, burt any other kind of foil, as it is, in its own nature. In queen Elizabeth's un nithiravoquii bas blos

Having described all the baronies S. of the Blackwater, I proceed now to describe those on the N. feet in length by 80 in breadth, fiant rayir tant to coignes, belting and bandentanters were flone; and the whole made a most gran-

This firecture was

The Topography of the Barony of Duliallow, with that of Orrery and Kilmore, Ild noonp portance to belong

THE west of this barony (1) is rough and mountainous, but the reft of it, towards the Black-water, is very fine land, and abounds with lime-stone quarries. This country seems to have its name from the river Allo, which Spenier celebrates, by whole charming flights one would imagine, that aidyn; and very far from deng capan any use of, to as to annoy the governmen

(a) Donogh Mac-Carry, of Kanturk, was killed by

⁽¹⁾ This barony has 13 parishes, vist Ballyclough, Kilshanick, Clonmeene, Drumtariff, Kilmeene, Cullin, Drifhane, No havel, Clonfert, Knocktemple, Ballintemple, Kilbrin, and Caftlemagner, containing 253 plowlands, and 105748 acres.

291 292

Natural and Civil Book elarge volthis giver rather washed the mountains of Helico than those of this country. It auns through this be rony from the borders of the county of Limenc and falls into the Black-water below Kantur where it is joined by a fecond river, called to Dalus, it entire double stream the Alio fignifying the echoing river. Over each of them are two fa frone bridges and battle ments being composed of ruftick work, of hew flone, that over the Allo confuts of fix arches.

Kanturk, Vs Kanturk densignthy Keanturk of Le a boar head, probably, from, one of those animals having been flain heres by some trith shief, in former times Hu commerly belonged to a branch of the Mac-Car type called Mact Ponough, who forfeited this efter

for aiding the tebels in 1641 to bri

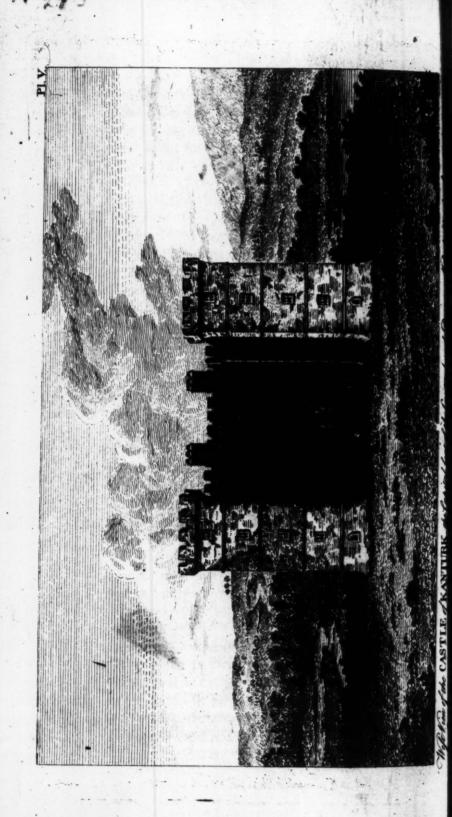

Caftle

In queen Elizabeth's time, they erected a mod Mac-Do- magnificent pile near this place; the wells of which nough.

idragin entired; It was a parallelogram, being 120 feet in length by 80 in breadth, flanked with four fquare buildings. This structure was four stone high, and the flankers five; all the window frames coignes, beltings and battlements, were of hew ftone; and the whole made a most grand and re gular apprarange to This eaftle was represented queen Elizabeth as a place of very dangerous importance to belong to a private subject, and was faid to have been no less than a strong and regular fortress, upon which, the lords of the council of England, transmitted an order hither, to have the building was prevented; which was one of the finely fren; and very far from being capable to be made any use of, so as to annoy the government. Thus it ir mains still sinithe fame , condition, the walls having braved all the injuries of time (2). This Alles miert, Knocktemple, Balintemple, Callen goer, containing 253 plowlands, and 105748 acres.

(a) Donogh Mac-Carty, of Kanturk, was killed by Tyrone,

CALLES SELECTION OF THE WAR AND THE WAR AN

the, with the town and manor-of Kanturk, beg at prefent, to the right hon, the earl of Egwho has also the title of viscount from this manor, in the 85th page of this volume. The won of Kanturk is in a thriving condition, leve-well built houses, having been eracted in its he is a neat market house, but no church nearer in New-market: It is tolerably well peopled, by fions mostly employed in the worlted manufact me. At Curragh, a little to the north of Kanturk, rs a castle of the Mac-Cartys; and near it, is a most excellent chalybeate water. The soil, in this aghbourhood, is a whitish clay; in some places, its yellow, brown, and very deep; producing mis in plenty, but very little tillage, except forme urley, oats, and potatoes

Five measured English miles W. of Kanturk, Newmarket, the last place of any note in the N. Newmar-W. part of the county. It is adorned with a state-ket. house of Boyle Aldworth, elg; composed of two igular fronts of hewn stone, which stands on the E. fide of the town. Newmarket confifts of me regular street, and is a considerable thoroughare into the county of Kerry. In it, are forme well looking houses, and a decent parish church. To the W. of this place, on the left hand of the load to Black-water-bridge, stands Castle Mac-Awiff, formerly the chief feat of that fept; and there s also another of their castles at Carigacushin, a mile N. E. of Newmarket.

The castle of Dromagh stands about three miles Dromagh. S. W. of Kanturk; it was built by the O-Kiefs, and the Black-water. Clostmene is a good in that rebellion, and all his lands, in Duhallow, were feized by his kinfman Dermod Mac-Owen Carty, who was concern'd maiding Tyrone; Cormac Mac-Carty, the right heir, being then an infant. But Jan. 24, 1611, he petitioned king James I. who restored him to his estate, the lord deputy Chichester aftery of Auftin friats, is being made judge of the affair. MSS. fir Richard Cox, in an old council book.

WEEKING of the CASTLE of KANTURK

Diamibicane.

Lains.

Clon-

Jan I

was their chief, feat, it is well walled, flanker with four turrets, and inhabited by Mr. Philpol Near this place, a vein of coal has been difco vered, and confiderable quantities have been miled they are not altogether as bright as the Kilkenn coal, but make a lafting fire, with little or no fmoak. They have very good culm, which covers the large coal, uteful in forges, and burning The lands, hereabouts, are coarse, and aflime. ford little tillage, Callen.

W. of Dromagh, is the pariff of Cullen; and near the church, are some ruins, faid to have been an accient numbery, not mentioned in any record This, and the adjacent parishes, are in the dioces of Aghadoe. In this parish, are symptoms of the same coal vein; and in it, is the ruined castle of Du Aragil, built by the O Kiefs. A confiderable tract of the county of Kerry, galled the East Fractions, is in the centre of this parish. Near the church of Nohavel, which stands on the Black-water, on the verge of this county, is the ftump of a round tower, which, with the church, are dedicated to St. Finian, whose festival is here celebrated on the 13th of December.

Drumshicane.

Near the Black-water, at Drumshicane, is a good house of Nicholas Chinnery, esq. Drumshicane was a fortified castle of the O-Kiefs, with turrets, and an high square rower in the centre, all lately demolished. The walls were built of flat stones or flags, exceedingly well cemented.

On the fouth fide of the Black-water, in the parish

St. Hillary's moun- of Clonmene, are a range of mountains, called St. tains.

Clon-

mene.

Hillary's, from whence feveral rapid rivulets fall into the Black-water. Clonmene is a good house of Cornelius O-Callaghan, efq; near it, is the parish church; and more east, are the remains of the castle of Clonmene, ruined in the wars of 1641. At Clonmene, was anciently, according to Colgan, a monaftery of Austin friars, founded by the O-Callaghans.

CHAP. VI. HISTORY OF CORK.

R I

nke

ilpo

ilco

ifed

enn

r no

CO

min

af

and

been

ord.

cefe the able ctiirch on

and

to the

od

125

nd

10gs,

th St. all of the

After the wars, for Richard Kyrle (3) fertiled at this pace; he erected iron works near it, cut down a aft tract of wood in this neighbourhood, and confiderably improved the country. When the French aratened to invade the kingdom, in 1666, this is Richard Kyrle offered lord Orrery (4) to raise a mop of 60 horse, of which his lordship informed the duke of Ormond, and says, the world had no better men than for Richard had, and that he knew him to be an excellent officer (5): This after the Richard Kyrle sold to Richard Newman etc. (6). The mountains here, that were formerly covered with wood, are now generally reclaimed; but where the land was bare of trees, it is, for the most

(1) Anno 19th of Charles III fir Richard Kyrle passed patent for Clonmene, Drumanene, and other lands, in Duhallow and femoy, which were forfeited, by the rebellion of 1641, to add the same in free and common soccage of the castle of Duben, yielding for the whole 431, ros into the exchequer. Saving to Donough O-Callaghan and his heirs, all such right, title, and interest, as the commissioners appointed for executing the six made for the settlement of Ireland shall adjudge to him, as one of the 54 persons appointed to be restored in the explanatory act, p. 101, and commonly called nominees. The hid fir Richard Kyrle, to be repriled out of other forfeited lads of equal value, according to the said act.

(4) Orrery's Let. v. A. p. itsured o

(c) Ib. v. 1. p. 207.

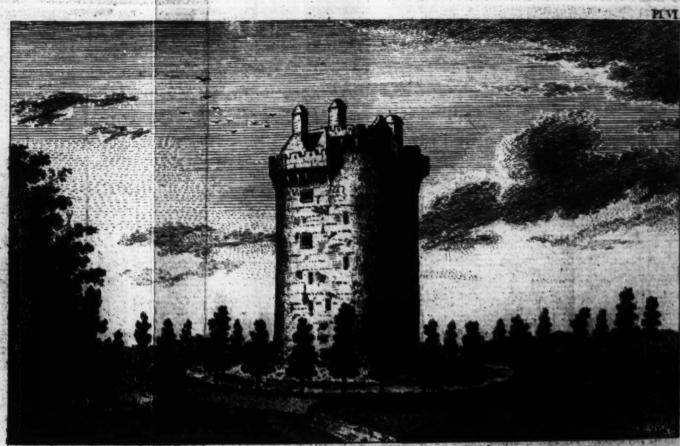

(d) Ann. 3d. Jacob. II. Aug. 28th, Richard Newman, etg. affed a patent for the caftle and lands of Drumanene, and feveral other lands and houses, in the county of Cork, and in the city of Cork, viz. four messages in Christ-church-lane, extending from the street to the old buildings called the college, paying, for the whole, the sum of 541-32. 8d. into the exchanger. The faid lands, &c. to be erected into a manor, called the manor of Newburry; with power to erect a court leet and court baron, with view of frank pledge, to determine causes for debt not exceeding 405. to appoint manor builists, senefchal, and other officers; power to erect a prison for the use of the said manor at Newburry, and a gaoler; with the profits of all waits, strays, goods of selons, decodands, &c. Also power to impark 500 acres of land, with free chase and free warren; and to make estates of the said premises to any person whatsoever, without let or hindrance. Signed Domville.

part, become boggy and unprofitable. Benefiturfy fod, is a bluish, hard, cold gravel, tes be penetrated without much labour. Not for Glonmene, is the hill called Knockniciathy, brated for a defeat given to Donough, the Muskery who, with 4000 Irish, was march raise the siege of Limerick, by the lord in Caftle-Magner.

ner, agent for the Irish inhabitants of Orre Kilmore. When Cromwell was at Clonnel, h to pay his court to him; but being represent very troublesome person, and one who have very active in the rebellion, Cromwell sent his a letter to col. Phaire, then governor of Co which was an order to execute the bearer. M who suspected foul play, had scarce left C who inspected foul play, had scarce left to when he opened the letter, read the content sealing it up, instead of proceeding towards turned off to Mallow, and delivered it to the who commanded there, telling him. Ground ordered him to carry it to col. Phaire. Thus had often preyed upon Magner's lands, for he was resolved to be revenged. The office pecting no deceit, went with the letter, which ly amazed the governor of Cork, who kneed to be an honest man, and immediately sent press to Grounwell for surther directions. press to Cromwell for further directions. Cro being extremely chagrined to be to ferved, te ders to let the officer, have his liberty, and prehend Magner, who took care to get out reach. This castle and lands were granted family of Bretridge for 49 arrears; it is no estate of hir Standish Hartstonge, Not far Rooci ni- Caltlemagner, is Knockninois, where, on the nois. of November, 1647, a battle was fought, bet

theever, without let or hindrance.' Signed Domvine

The CASTLE of LOGHORT in the Country of Cork in Freland belonging to John Lorcard EARL of EGMONT. fromgly Fortified in the Rebellion of 1641, Surprised by the Infh in 1645, retaken by Cromwelli Army in 1650.

he half-starved English, under the lord Inchiquin, and a numerous army of the Irish, under the lord saf, whereon depended the fate of this province, and where the English obtained a complete victory.

About a mile more east, is the castle of Loghort, Loghort. Centurk, and belongs to the right hon the earl of Igmont, whose ancestor, fir Philip Perceval, placed garrison in it, in the rebellion of 1641: But the ish gained it by treachery, and held it towards he end of the war, when fir Hardress Waller, with hettery of cannon, reduced it in May 1650 (7) and gives it the character of a place of great strength, his letter to the parliament. This caltie remined, for many years, a melancholy proof of the evaftation of those times; but it has been, of late, maired by the earl of Egmont. It is 80 feet high, he walls are ten feet thick, and mosted fround ith a deep trench, which is palled by a drawsidge. In one of the upper chambers, is an handome armory for 100 horfe well furnished with word-fwords, bayoners, piftols, carbines, &c. Here my the top of this tower, is a noble prospect of A mile E of Loghort, is Ballyclough, in the bat Ballycony of Orreny, (a confiderable part of the parish cloughting also in Duhallow) a pretty village, being improved by the late coll Purdon. On an thandome monument in the church-yard of this place, is this inscription

Hic juxta proavorum patrifiqueineres, und Ubi fuos, hac vita finita, conquiefcere optat, Eorum memoriæ facrum, Marmor hoc fepulchrale pofuit, Nepos & filius gratifimus,

.Tohan-

3012

⁽⁷⁾ Whitlock's Memoirs.

Johannes Lyfaght de Mountnorth armiger.

Nuper uxor prædicti Johannis,

Quæ obiit quinto die Junii,

Anno Domini 1743.

Arms, three spears in pale, on a chief a lion regardant. Motto, Bella, horida bella.

The above inscription is wrote on a table of white marble, between two corinthian pillars of black marble, adorned with an urn, placed on the top, over a pediment, &c.

On the fouth fide of the church, at the back of a neat canopy feat, on a monumental table, between four corinthian pillars of black marble, is this inscription.

"Here lies the body of Mrs. Catherine Boyle, wife to Henry Boyle, efq, and daughter of Chidley Coote, of Killester, esq, who departed this life, the 5th of May, 1725; whom it were unpardonable to lay down in silence; and of whom it is difficult to speak with justice; for her just character will look like flattery; and the least abatement of it, be an injury to her memory. In every condition of her life, she was a pattern to her sex; and appeared mistress of those peculiar qualities, that were requisite to conduct her through it with honour; and never failed to exert them in their proper seasons, with the utmost advantage."

" She was modest without affectation,

Eafy without levity, and referved without pride. Knew how to stoop without finking, and to gain people's affections without lessening their regards.

She was careful without anxiety, and frugal

without parfimony.

She was a faithful member of the protestant church.

Her piety was exemplary, her charity universal.

She was truly wife, truly virtuous, and truly good. More can fcarce be faid; yet nothing is faid that veracity or modefty should suppress."

Arms at the top, impaled with the Boyles, argent, a chevron betwixt three coots fable.

Under the communion table, is a flag-stone, with this infcription.

91,

re-

of

of

the

of

œ-

18

got le,

he

to

to

ok. an èr.

ed

br

8,

in

al

nt

" To the memory of my dearly beloved hufband, col. Bartholomew Purdon, efq; who departed this life, the 19th of July, 1737, I have inscribed this stone. He was justice of the peace, member of parliament, and lieutenant of the county 39 years; during which time, he strictly observed justice, faithfully ferved his king, and was a patriot to his country. Let gracify che se's is the red of Arms, a chevron and in chief a leopard's head.

Motto, Pro aris & focis. vd . nomem a orai before

The caftle of Ballyclough was built by a family of the Barrys, that went by the name of Mac-Robifon; a few years ago, there was a chaly beate fpaw, near this place, in good repute; but it is now neglected, being overflown by an adjacent brook.

Castlecorith, now Castlecor, two miles N. of Log- Castlecor. hort, the feat of William Freeman, elg; is an handsome house, fronted with hewn stone, and flanked, at each angle, with turrets; and near it, is a pleasant park, where are the remains of an ancient fortification, in the midst of which stood a castle of the Barrys; and to the W. are the ruins of the parish church of Kilbrin. Other feats in this neighbourhood, are Affolas, one mile E. of Kan-Affolas. turk, now inhabited by Philip Oliver, esq; with good improvements, and convenient out-offices, built by the late revd. Mr. Gore. To the S. of this, is Ballyheen, alias Rockfield, a good improvement, belonging to Mrs. Thornhill. Towards the Black-water, are Gurteen-bagh, Ballyrastin; and to the east of Loghort, is Blossom-fort, all good houses and improvements of the Wrixones

Dromore.

loffom-fort, all

As is also Drumrastill, lower down the river; above which, stands Pallice, a good house and plan-Pallice.

Longfield, down, near the river, is Longfield, the feat of John Longfield, efq; a pleasant fituation, commanding a prospect of the N, side of the Black-water, and a confiderable way up and down that river; also Somerville, a neat lodge lower down, built by the Kilfhanick The parish of Kilfhanick lies on the S. fide of the parist. Black-water, and in the S. E. part of Duhallow.

Lombard's parish, is Lombard's town an house lately built by James I ombard, efq; with young improvements.

Newburry More E. near the parish church, is Newburry, the feat of Richard Newman, efg. this place was erected into a manor, by king James IL as is before mentioned. The church of Kilfhanick stands near this; it is kept in good repair, and is well filled on the fabbath-day, by feveral families of good fortune, who reside in this parish. The castle of Drumaneen stands boldly on the Black-water, it Druma. neen-cast. was the chief feat of the O-Callaghans. About the reign of king James I. they erected a very stately house on the foundation of the castle, which was ruined in the late wars. The castle bawn is large, and well enclosed with an high stone wall, flanked with round towers; and the whole, though in ruins, from the opposite side of the river, by its lofty fituation, has still an august appearance. In king William's wars, the English kept a garrison in this castle for a considerable time, under the command of lieut. col. Culliford.

More E. is Dromore, a well built house, with young plantations, of Adam Newman, efg. on a rifing ground, affording a spacious view of the oppolite country, up and down the Black-water.

good houses and improvements of the Wissones

at thousand he the Woodfort, is

II.

er;

an-wer hn

ing

ind

lo

the

the w.

the

by

its.

he ras

)eds

ell

od

of

it

ut

ry

le

10

)-

.

A

Ĉ

t

Woodfort is an handsome house, with elegant Woodfort plantations, and confiderable large orchards, inhabited by Simeon Marshal, esq; surveyor-gene-To the S. of the house, is a circural of Munster. lar hill, covered over with trees, except fome viftas that are cut through them. On the top of this mount, is a turret, whence the eye may be feafted with a luxurious prospect of a great tract of country, with the adjacent down of Mallow, and the high mountains of Waterford, Limerick, and Kerry. Near the foot of this mount, runs the river Clydagh, in delightful meanders, through groves of ever-greens, and foon lofes itself in the Black-water, near Kilbolady, Mr. Foot's, where are considerable plantations of cider fruit, firs, and other forest trees. Dromore, feated in the eaftern extremity of the Dromore.

parish two miles from Mallow, on the W. of the river Clydagh, is a pleasant leat of fir Matthew Deane, bart. The house was lately rebuilt, with an elegant front of hewn stone, stucco'd between, and a Venetian door and window in the S. front. The improvements are lituated on the W. fide of a fweet romantic glin, formed by the abovementioned river, whose sides are embroidered with delightful groves of timber trees and ever greens. On the W. fide of the river, which is here confined to as to form a noble canal, is an high terrace walk. To the N. and S. of the house, are beautiful plantations, and all the valley is shaded with full grown woods, through which three viftes are cut; the first, terminates on the N. in a view of the pleasant mount of Woodfort above mentioned, the fecond with a Roman temple; and the middle, one, commands a prospect of a water-fall, calcading over a rude rock. Another water-fall is also deligned on the E. fide; the vistas to the S. guide the eye to the near church and steeple of Temple-Michael; and another to the ruins of Castlemore, already mentioned, in p. 171

and 172. These improvements have been all made originally in a rude country, which to the S. and S. W. remains still coarse and mountainous; but, in some places, is indifferently well cultivated. Yet, Here the wild heath displays her purple dyes, And 'midft the defart fruitful fields arise. That crown'd with tufted trees and fpringing corn, Like verdant iffes the fable wafte adorn. POPE's Windfor Forest.

&c.

and

Kilpadder Other places in this parish are Kilpadder, the revd. Mr Hingston's; and Betsborough, Cornelius Townshend's, esq. Some of the Danish intrenchments in this neighbourhood, are planted with fir, in clumps, which confiderably adorn the country. The northern part of this barony, though far from being barren, is yet thinly inhabited, and the farmers are the only confirmers of what corn grows upon the premiles. The roads, in winter time, are, for the most part, deep, and very bad; and there being no navigable river, it is very hard to get off the tenant's corn, but at fuch a price of carriage, as must greatly increase the value when it is sent to Cork market. There is here plenty of turf and coal; but for want of water carriage, if quantities of this last material were dug, it would be of little value. There feems to be no other remedy for those evils, as there are but little hopes of making the Black-water navigable to far from its exit, but by finding out means of bringing markets to the goods. Artists and manufacturers have, and may be, with care and some expence, encouraged and brought together; people thus living close, must cause a confumption, and small market towns may be eafily, especially by persons of extensive fortunes, founded, by degrees, at an inconfiderable expence. Those people will cultivate and improve the adjacent places, add foil to the land, increase the value of an eftate where they fettle, and bring riches in-the country by their labour.

II.

ade

ind

in

t,

m,

ft.

he

us

h-ir,

y.

m

1-

WS

e,

re

off

as

br

es

le fe

ne by ls.

th

ht

2

4-

S,

1-

of

Orrery and Kilmore (8) constitute but one baro- Orrery ny, formerly named Orriria Barria, the Barrys hav- and Kiling had possession of the greatest part of this coun-more. my. The principal place in this barony is Charle- Charlerille, before called Rathgogan, a corporation, erect-ville. at the expence and encouragement of Roger, the fift earl of Orrery, lord prefident of Munster; who here kept his prefidential court, and adorned this town with a magnificent house (9), built in 1661; to which he added, noble gardens, and a fine park. This house was burnt down, in the year 1690, by a party of king James's foldiers, with the duke of Berwick at their head, who, after he had dined nit, left it in a flame, which had this farther aggavating circumstance, that, at the time of its beng demolished, it belonged to Lionel, the grandon of the nobleman who built it, who was then a minor, and upon his travels into foreign kingdoms; yet, as he was educated a protestant, and descended from ancestors who had been firm and faithful in that perfusion, his house, his library, his papers, and all his goods were piously devoted to the flames agio Tantum religio potuit! Charle-

(8) Orrery and Kilmore contain 11 parishes, viz. Rathgopan, now Charleville, Ballyhea, Cloyne and Aglishdradew, Church-Town, past of Templebredy, Ballyclough, part of Castlemagner, Lifearoll, Kilbolane, Shandrum, and Kilbrowny; in this barony are 173 plow-lands, and 40033 Frish plantation acres.

(9) The foundation of this house was said on the 29th of May, 1661. His lordship, in a letter to the duke of Ormond, dated the 11th of Dec. 1662) says. That he hopes, by his grace's sayour, to get it made a borough, and have it bear the name of Charleville; it being now called by the heathenish name of Rathgogan. His lordship adds, I admit neither presyster, papist, independent, nor, as our proclamation says, any other fort of samtick to plant there, but all good problemants; and am setting up manufactures of linen and woothen cloths, and all other good trades."

ville (10) is governed by a fovereign, two bailiffs. and 12 burgeffes. In this town, the first earl of Orrery endowed a celebrated free-school, who although he had great offices and a plentiful effate, yet his foul feemed much larger than his fortune: The mafter has an house and 40l. per ann falary.

school.

The late earl of Orrery gavel to lacres of danti, worth It. per ann. for the encouragement of a charter working-school hear this town, erected for the reception of 40 childrenia The building flootown with a meerificent house

to which be added, noble gardens, and a

(10) The charter bears date June the 19th, and Car. Il. it recites, that this town was incorporated at the request of Roger earl of Orrery. The castle, town, and lands of Broghill and Killedonner, three plow-lands of Rathgogan, and other lands in the counties of Cork and Limstick, to be exceeded into a manor, to be called the manor of Charleville, with liberty to let apart Scoacres for a domain, and power to alle-nate any part of the fame manor; to erect a court leet, and a court baron, in which pleas may be held for 40s also a court of record; all fines, are to go to the earl of Orrey, who nominates proper officers, may erect a good, is to have all walfs, strays, and goods of felons, with liberty of free park and free warren; the town of Charleville, to be erected into a borough, to be governed by a fovereign; two balliss, and is burgefles, who are to be a body corporate, to the and be feed, with power to make freemen. The fovereign to appoint a deputy, and the corporation to make by-laws, to have the deputy, and the corporation to make by-laws; to have the fame authority as the corporations of Banagher, in the King's county, and Hillsborough, in the county of Down have. The recorder and town clerk, to be appointed by the earl of Orsery. The fovereign, deputy fovereign, and recorder, to be justices of the peace in the faid liberty: The fovereign may have two maces borne before him, by two ferjeants of mace; he is to be chosen annually, on the monday next after St. John Baptist, and sworn on the monday next after St. John Baptist, and sworn on the monday after michaelmas day! The sovereign to be coroner in the said liberty, may take and receive statute staple. The majority of the members of the corporation to elect two members of parliament; every freeman to pay 5s. on his being sworn. Liberty to the corporation to purchase lands, to the value of 20l. per annum. This charter also granted a licence to the earl of Orresto erect a fortification, and mount ordnance round his house. The sovereign can arrest for any sum under 2001. sterless.

inhs, and all other good trade."

ffs.

Or-

BI-

yet he

d, fiz

led ing

oft

H

t of

og-and ted

三季 空景 后

ark

to a

the

She Or de and

he

re-

to ur-

ter

CI-

ign

oft 350l. it was opened on the 18th of April, 1748, and 20 children, 10 of each fex, admitted, being ompletely clothed. On the following funday, a frmon was preached on the occasion, by the rev. dean Bruce, who gave the children bibles, and other useful books, and a subscription to the school. The house is properly provided with necessaries; he kitchen and potatoe gardens are well planted, the land enclosed with quick-fet ditches, and ornamented with trees.

In this town, is a decent parish-church, erected by the first lord Orrery, and a good horse-barrack, which part of the town stands in the county of Limerick; it is a confiderable thorough-fare from Cork to Limerick, and is very well watered; but here being no turf-bogs near the place firing is dear.

The lands round Charleville, are mostly under fock for butter and beef, with very little corn, the porer fort living on potatoes and milk. They manure mostly with lime, the foil being a light brown earth, lying deep, on a limestone bottom.

Near this town, were great plantations of all kind of fruit and forest trees, fold here at easy rates, by Mr. Bowles, and fent into other parts of the kingdom, fit for cider plantations. Broghill (11), which Broghill.

(11) The following is an extract of the king's letter, for trating Roger Boyle, efq; baron of Broghill, from the oripinal in Lismore castle.

" Having taken into our gracious confideration, the many eminent virtues, and abilities of our right well-beloved conin Richard earl of Cork, and his fingular good deferving, as well in planting these remote parts of our dominions, with several English colonies, in settling true religion, and introducing civility and government there, where he found parbarism and superstition; and in the erecting of several churches, castles, towns, and other buildings, at his own charges, for the perpetual focurity of thefe countries, and our good subjects inhabiting in them; as also in zealously purluing all good courses, tending to the advancement of our most important services there; and understanding that he Kilbolane.

gives title of baron to the right hon, the earl of Caftleifhin.

Caftledod.

Ringfort.

Milltown.

Orrery, is a castle and manor that formerly belonged to the Fitz-Geralds; it stands a little to the W. of Charleville. The castle of Kilbolane, about four miles S. W. of the latter, belonged to the earls of Desmond; but, it is said, to have been built soon after the coming over of Strongbow, by the Cogans, from whom the Desmond family had this estate. It is now a good house and improvement of Mr. Bowen; and not far from it, is the parish church of Kilbolane, in repair. Castle-ishin, a mile S. W. of the former, was another feat of the Fitz-Geralds, and Castle-dod, two miles S. of Charleville, also belonged to that family; it is now only a modern built house, and is the estate of the Harrisons. mile S. by W. from Charleville, is Ringfort, a good house and plantation of Mr. Vowell. A mile more to the S. is Mill-town, a well planted improvement, with an handsome canal of col. Evans. On this place stood, formerly, a castle of the Fitz-Gibbons; in the reign of queen Elizabeth, Maurice Fitz-Gibbon, of Mill-town, flew John Mac-John Fitz-Gerald, of Kilbolane, and 14 of his followers, being affifted by four of his fons; Fitz-Gerald having instigated the earl of Desmond to hang one of the Fitz-Gibbon family a little before. This castle was, in the rebellion of 1641, bravely defended against the rebels, by one Mountain, who obliged them to raise the siege. The Irish having no cannon, attacked the gate, with an high machine, made of hurdles,

[&]quot; hath many younger fons, whom he breeds in true religion " and virtuous discipline, thereby making them worthy and " profitable members of that state, &c. we do, by these our

[&]quot; letters, confer upon his third fon Roger Boyle, the honour " dignity, stile and title of a baron of that our kingdom; " . nd constitute and ordain him lord Boyle, baron of Broghill, [&]quot; in that our realm, &c. " Dated at Westminster, the 30th of Nov. " Anno 3°. Carol. prim."

II.

rl of

w.

four

s of

af-

ans,

e. It

Mr.

h of

. of

Ilds,

alfo

dern

t, a mile

im-

ans.

itz-

rice

ohn

rers,

nav-

e of

aftle

ded ged

non,

e of

lles,

gion

our nour

om ;

ghill,

Nov.

A

hurdles, carried on wheels, like one of the old Roman towers; but it was burnt by the besieged. Col. Evans dug here for coal, and discovered a stratum of culm 22 inches deep, but proceeded no further.

Toonmore, now Gibbon's-grove, the house and Gibbon'splantation of Mr. Gibbon, three miles S of Charle-grove.
ville, is famous for a celebrated cider apple, called the Toonmore-apple. Some years ago, there was discovered, near this place, in the centre of a large stone, the rowel of a spur; which is still kept, as a great curiosity, by Mr. Gibbon; and which is an evident proof of the growth of stones. Not far hence, is Cooline, the house of Mr. Bowerman, seated on a nising ground, and beautissed with fine plantations.

Five miles S. of Charleville, is Annagh, a pretty Annagh. thriving village; on the estate of the earl of Egmont; this place, with a large tract of the adjacent land, were, at a very great expence, reclaimed from a deep and dangerous morals, now pleasantly planted and well improved, large drains and canals being cut through the morais, which empty themlelves into a branch of the river Awbeg. Here stood a strong castle, that, in the wars of 1641, was for four years garrisoned, at the expence of fir Philip Perceval, bart. and, by its fituation, in the midst of a bog, was deemed impregnable; but it was, at last taken, anno 1645, by treachery; and the whole garrison put to the sword, in cold blood, by order of the lord Castleconnel, who then commanded the Irish army, consisting of 5000 horse and foot; and who was an inveterate enemy to fir Philip Perceval, because he had refused to give him his daughter in marriage before the war. This castle was demolished by the late earl of Egmont, who drained the ground, built the village of Annagh, and established the linen manufacture therein. Through this morafs, the road runs from Church-town to Charleville, which, from the deepness of the soil, is in winter, extremely bad. As limestone abounds in all parts of this country, tillage might be carried on at an inconsiderable expence, the soil being naturally very rich; on the contrary, one sees very little corn here, but herds of black cattle, and sheep, every where; so great is the encouragement for beef and butter, in the markets of Cork and Limerick, and so small is that for corn; yet there are large quantities of wheat yearly imported into the city of Cork, which is one of the most plentiful places in the kingdom.

X 2

₿

Church-

Church-town is a small village, prettily planted; in it, are the ruins of the old church, called Bruhenny, in which is a small monument, to the memory of Deborah, the wife of William Taylor, efq, and daughter of Mr. Anselm Fowler, of Glocestershire, in England. She died June 29, 1697. In the 9th of queen Anne, an act of parliament was obtained, by the late earl of Egmont, for removing the scite of this church. The new church is a good building, in form of a cross, the chancel is paved with black and white marble, the produce of this country; in this chancel, is a vault, where feveral of the house of Egmont are interred. On the filver flaggon, chalice, and other plate, is this inscription, Ex dono viri honorabilis Johannis Perceval, equitis aurati, in usum ecclesiæ parochialis de Bruhenny.

Burton.

Burton, near Church-town, was formerly a noble feat of the Perceval family, burned down in the late wars, by the same party of king James's forces who burned Charleville. The plantations and improvements are very beautiful and extensive. Here are large orchards, and a noble park. The walls of the house still remain, which shew it to have been a large elegant building, mostly of hewn stone. From Burton to the new parish church, there is an handsome avenue, well planted; this place gives title of baron to its owner, the right hon, the earl of Egmont. The manor of Burton is very large; all the land within it, as well as the royalties, belong

II.

ied

na-

ery and ent

ere

nto

Iti-

d;

n-

ry

nd

re,

th

d, te

g, în

ſe

n,

Ó

i,

belong to the same nobleman. It would be tedious to enumerate the smaller districts which depend upon, and were incorporated into a kind of honour, by king Charles I. in favour of sir Philip Perceval (12),

(12) This sir Philip Perceval, was one of the most eminent subjects of his time; he had a wast estate, both in England and Ireland; in which last kingdom, he had 78 knights fees, containing 99,900 statute acres of land. He was a privy counsellor to king Charles I. register of the court of wards, and held sevenl other employments, in this kingdom, at the same time. When the Irish rebellion broke out, he fortified and defended five of his castles for several years; and suffered in the destruction of his woods, houses, castles, and loss of his rents, in fix years time, 60000l. The parliament of England appointed him commissary general of the army, with an allowance of 1200l. per annum, and also made him providore general of the horse, in which post he expended 1800of. which the family were never repaid. In 1643, he was ordered to attend the treaty with the Irish, at Kilkenny, and figured the cestation with them, In 1644, he was furnmoned, by the king, to attend as a commillioner at the treaty of Oxford; he was there offered a peerage to promote the measures of the court, which he refuled, and was obliged to fly from the king's quarters to the parliament; upon which, the king conficated his estate in England. Being a member of the famous long parliament; he opposed the independent faction, and the army, to the utmost of his power; and thereby drew down many inveterace acculations from them, against which he defended himself with wonderful abilities and proof of his innocence. But Cromwell, and the army, growing stronger, and attempting to make themleives mafters of the parliament, Mr. Holles, fir Philip Stapleton, and many of the leading members, were impeached by the army and fled; at which juncture, fir Philip Perceval had the resolution to stay, and was chairman of those committees appointed by the parliament to raise forces, and conduct the defence of the city and parliament, against the army ! But the city being terrified, and the army coming up to London, he was obliged to fly, and conceal himself in the country for some time, till new accusations were framed against him; upon which he refolutely returned to take his trial the week after. At this juncture, he was, by the province of Ulfter, appointed a commissioner, to manage their affairs with the parliament of England: He was, at the same time, secretly concerned in the delign to bring the English army over from Ireland, who had, by an unanimous address, put their interests in the year 1637, with the privileges of court baron, court leet, free warren, and all other preeminences and royalties under the manor of Burton, which likewise comprehends the castle and manor of Annagh above mentioned: This patent also grants fairs and markets to the town of Burton. The soil, in this neighbourhood, is exceeding good, being a light loamy earth, considerably deep, over a limestone bottom.

Near Burton, is Egmont (13), which gives title of earl to the same family; in this house, which has been under his direction; but the danger he was in, and the virulence of his enemies, so affected him, that he fell ill of a fever upon his spirits, and died the 10th of November, 1647, in the 44th year of his age. He was fo respected by his very enemies, that he was buried at the expence of the English parliament, in the church of St. Martin in the fields, London; and over him was placed the following inscription, wrote by R. Maxwell, lord bishop of Kilmore; which monument, on the rebuilding of that church, has been, within a few years, entirely destroyed.

Epitaphium clarissimi viri Phillippi Pearceavelli, equitis aurati Hyberniæ, qui obiit bonis omnibus denderatissimus 10°. die Novembris anno dom. 1647.

Fortunam expertus jacet Phillipus utramque,
Dotibus ac genere nobilitatus eques;
Qui nifi (sed quis non multis) peccasset in uno
Quod vitio vertat vix habet invidia.

Which has been thus translated.

Philip here lies, at length subdu'd by fate,
By birth illustrious, and by fortune great;
Capricious chance loug taught him to explore,
By turns, her fickle fondness and her power.
Could the remembrance of his virtues sleep,
Envy herself at the sad loss wou'd weep.

The reader will observe, this epitaph to be both false latin, and bad metre; but we give it as we find it.

(13) John, late earl of Egmont, was made a privy-counsellor before he was of age; he was afterwards offered a peerage, which, from the circumstance of the times, he refused. At the accession of king George I. being continued in the privy-council,

CHAP. VI. HISTORY of CORK.

KI

t ba-

pre-

rton.

anor

alforton.

ood,

title

has peen

yiru-

ever

the.

ene-

rlia-

and

R.

the

en-

rati

die

been fince taken down, the grandfather of the present earl was born. It is finely situated, with a pleasant park adjacent, which is well stocked with deer. The country, for some miles, is planted with ash, elm, oak, and large quantities of fir; than which last, council, he was created a baron, by the stile and title of baron Perceval, of Burton. In December, 1722, he was created a viscount, by the stile and title of viscount Perceval, of Kanmrk, with the fee of 20 marks, to be annually paid out of the king's exchequer. Upon the accession of his late majesty, he was still continued a privy counsellor; and not long after, in the commission granted for the settlement of Georgia, in America, he was appointed the first of the trustees, and prefident of the same commission, in which he conducted himself with great zeal and application for the interest of that colony. In the first parliament of the same reign, he was returned member for Harwich, in Effex; and upon the death of the earl of Orford, was made recorder of the fame borough; Lord Orford had succeeded to this place, by the impeachment and flight of the late lord Bolingbroke: having steadily persevered in loyalty and duty to the crown, his majesty taking into consideration these his merits to himfelf, as well as his zeal to promote the interest of his country, both in this and the new world, as it is expressed in the preamble to his letters patent, and also in regard to the greatnels and antiquity of his extraction, he was, upon the 6th of November, 1733, advanced to the dignity of an earl, by the file and title of Egmont, the above-mentioned ancient feat of the family. John now earl of Egmont, his only fon, was member of parliament for the borough of Dingle, in Kerry, being chosen at the age of 20, and was permitted to maintain his feat, notwithstanding that defect of qualification; which place has been exercised for fix descents in this family, excepting one, which happened during the short time that fir John Perceval, grandfather to the prefent earl, enjoyed his estate; which was in the reign of the late king James, when there was no parliament called in this kingdom. On the 31st of December, 1741, the late earl, when lord vifcount Perceval, was elected a representative in parliament for the city of Westminster, being attended by 6000 voters, of all denominations, to the hall where the election was made, and his lordship was unanimously chosen by the concurring voices of all present; notwithstanding a violent opposition threatened by the opposite party. His lordship was also representative for Weobly, in Herefordshire, and gentleman of the bedchamber to his royal highness the prince.

312

last, no timber tree, in the winter season, affords more beauty to a landscape. Round Egmont, the foil is a grey clay, refembling marle; but it does not ferment with acids, and yet the rocks are all good limestone. Walsh's-Town, a mile N. E. of Burton, is a good house, inhabited by Mr, Conron, round which are good plantations; here was formerly a castle, built by the Barrys, several conturies ago; in the wars of 1641, it was fortified and garrifoned, at the expence of fir Philip Perceval; but was taken by the Irish in 1645, with the rest of his castles. And more eafterly, on the river Awbeg, is Ballinguile, a good house of Mr. Freeman, with large orchards, and numerous plantations; this house was built on the foundation of an ancient castle of the Stapletons, erected foon after the reign of king John.

Buttevant.

Buttevant (14), called in the ecclelisitical books
Bothon,

plowlands and an half of Buttevant, and the moiety of the lands called Buttevant and Rice's lands, which were feveral years before mortgaged to his father, and to him, for the fun of 20001. Iterl. and after his father's decease, leafed by him, under certain covenants and conditions, for 31 years, unto lieutenant col. Agmondesham Muschamp, for the sum of fix fore pounds per ann. and then in lease to Denny Muschamp, etgl and all his estate and title in Rathonge, and al. chief rent issuing out of the lands of Turmote and Ballytramly, by the name of five castles, all lying in the county of Cork, to Richard earl of Burlington, his brother, the honourable Henry Boyle, of Castle-Martyr, and fir Robert Southwell, of Kinsale, and their heirs for ever.—And first, after the said lands are fold, and all debts, suneral expences, and other legacies are paid, he bequeaths to the poor of the parish of Stalbridge, in England, and of the parish of Permoy, in the county of Cork, and other parishes in this kingdom where his lands do lie, the sum of 300 l. sterl. also the sum of 200 l. sterl. to the most distressed persons who have been frighted out of Ireland, and were resident in England, with other legacies, to be paid out of the sale of said lands. The one half of the purchase money he bequeaths, by a codicil annexed to his will, to be shared among the younger children of the lord Clifford, son and heir apparent to his said brother.

The W. Prospect of the Nave, Choir & Steeple of Son Buttevant Abbey with S. Mary's Chappel & Anth: Chearnley Sculpt

II, ords the not

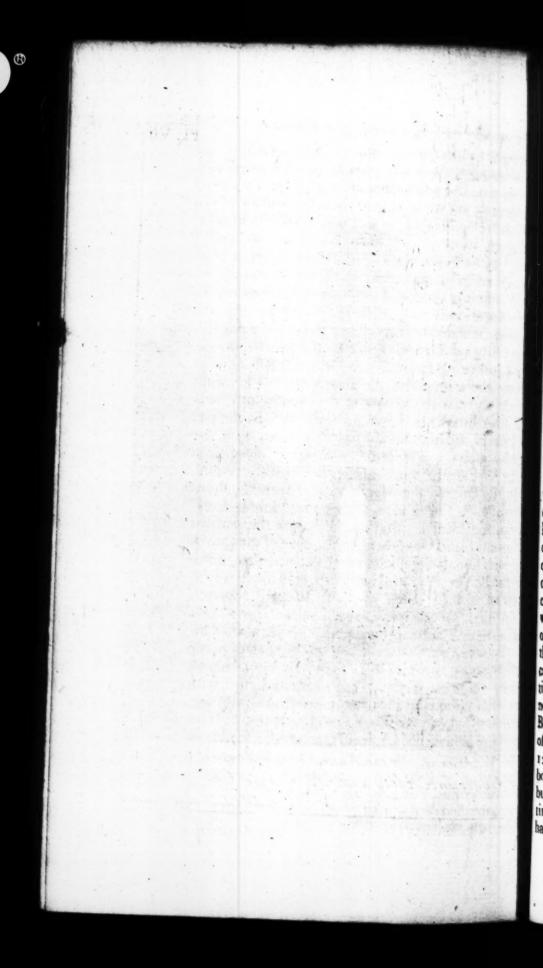

not ood on,

nd a o;

o; ed, en

s,

101

Bothon, by the Irish and Spenser Kilnemullagh, was formerly an ancient corporation, being once governd by a mayor and aldermen, but by the wars gone to decay; and, it is faid, to have fuffered greatly in me last plague of Ireland. There are still to be feen, the remains of a wall, that furrounded the town; and they also shew the traces of an outward wall, which enclosed the other, and took up a considerable circuit of ground, In this place, are the remains of a fumptuous ruin of the ancient abbey of friars minors, founded by David de Barry, in the reign of king Edward I, who lies buried therein; he was lord justice of Ireland, and his tomb still remains in the choir, opposite the great altar. The walls of the choir, with the nave of the church, and feveal other buildings, remain entire; also the steeple, which is an high square tower, erected on a fine gothic arch; to the fouth, is St. Mary's chapel, in which are several tombs of the ancient Irish families, viz. the Barrys, the Magners, Fitz-Geralds, Prendergafts, O Callaghans, Donegans, Meads, Dowings, and Healys. In this chapel, are the remains of an altar, and two others, in the nave of the church on each fide of the choir; in which, are other tombs of the Barrys, Nagles, Lombards, and Supples; alfo one of a later date, of Mr. Richard Morgan, who died October 15, 1748, in the 107th year of his age: This man lived above 70 years at Cafthe Pooky, near Doneraile; he had been clerk of the frown and peace for this county, in king James's ume, never eat falt with his meat, and died with no other complaint than the mere effect of old age. Befide the above-mentioned tombs, there are others of the Coghlans, Mac-Auliffs, and O-Kiefs. About 12 years ago, as they were making a grave, the body of a woman was discovered, who had been buried here 20 years before, quite whole, and enlire; she died of the small-pox. The skin appeared hard, dry, and very stiff, of a dark brown colour;

314

she was interred in a dry vault, between two lim walls, through which the wind and air had a fre passage; which, probably, contributed to parch up the body, and keep it so long from corruption.

On the N.W. fide of the abbey, stands a ruined tower, said to have been erected by an earl of Def mond, who retired here; they call it Cullin. On each hand of the W. entrance of the abbey, are two hugs piles of skulls, which, some fay, were brought his ther after the battle of Knockninoss, and was fough but five miles from hence. Near this abbey, stands a part of another ruin, said to have been nunnery, dedicated to St. Owen; or, according to others, to St. John Baptist. The name Buttevant. according to tradition, takes its rife from a word given in a battle, fought near this place, by David de Barry, who here overthrew the Mac-Cartys, and cried out, "Boutez en evant," i. e. push forward, which is the present motto of the Barrymore family, who take title of viscount from this place. In this town, is a free school, founded by Frances lady Lanesborough, fixth daughter to Richard earl of Dorfet. She was first married to fir George Lane, knt. who was afterwards created lord vifcount Lanesborough; and secondly, to Denny Muschamp, esq; out of whose estate the school is endowed. The master has 20 l. per ann. with an house and garden. This school is kept in a castle, built here by the Lombards. To the east of the town, fland the ruins of the lord Barry's castle, boldly and strongly erected, on a rock over the river Awbeg; the infide of this building, forms an octagon, and was no inconsiderable fortress, before the present art of belieging places was Within the court, is now a good discovered. modern house, inhabited by Mr. Piers, Somewhat the E. stands the church, which is a modern structure; but the ancient remains of two churches, one dedicated to St. Bridget, and the other Caftle.

Church.

R II

lim

fre

h u

ine

Del

each

lug

t his bey,

n

t to

ant.

ord

vid tys.

01-ore

ice.

ces

arl

rge

uf-

n-

an

le,

he

le,

he ns

S,

as

d

at 0

e

r

n.

ther to the Virgin Mary, are still visible, both having stood in the same church-yard, which is very mommon. There are also the ruins of a chapel of ease at Spitle-Bridge, one mile east of Buttemant; this whole town formerly seems to have been a assemblage of churches, and religious houses, which being dissolved, consequently went, with them, to ruin; so that these lines of Mr. Pope may be now justly applied to this place.

The levell'd town with weeds lies cover'd o'er,
The hollow winds through naked temples roar,
Round broken columns clasping ivy twin'd,
O'er heaps of ruin stalk'd the stately hind;
The fox obscene to gaping tombs retires,
And savage howlings fill the sacred quires.
Windsor Forest.

This town belongs to the earl of Barrymore; and the new turn-pike road from Cork to Limerick runs through it (15). Near Kilmaclenine, two miles S.W. of Buttevant, there is a pit of good yellow ochre aled for painting. At Ballybeg, on the other fide Ballybeg. of the river, a small walk from Buttevant, was a monastery of Augustinians, founded anno 1237, and dedicated to St. Thomas, by Philip de Barry, being endowed by his fon David, who founded the mary of Buttevant, before mentioned: this house, and its revenues, were granted to fir Daniel Norton, ant. in trust for the lady Norris, wife of fir Thomas Norris, lord prefident of Munster, and mother to the lady Jephson, wife to fir John Jephson, who passed a patent for the same. The lands belonging to this abbey contained 2060 Irish acres, and, by a valuation taken in 1622, were only worth 60 1.

⁽¹⁵⁾ Anno 18 Henry III. Sept. 26, 1234. Rex dedit domino David de Barry, mercatum apud Buttevant fingulis septimanis die sabbati & unam seriam singulis annis per 8 dies, viz. in vigil & die sanctæ Luciæ & sex dieb. sequent. Rot. Canc.

316

belonging to it, were valued at 2001, per ann. more Some part of the building, particularly the steeple which was a strong structure, and the east window of the chancel, have out-lived the injuries of time By the holes which remain in the vaulted roof of the steeple, there were here a chime of bells. The traces of the foundation, and an high tower, de tached a considerable way to the S. W. once a par of this fabrick, shew it to have been a very large and magnificent structure.

Then did religion in a lazy cell,
In empty, airy contemplations dwell,
And like the block unmoved lay, but ours
As much too active, like the ftork devours;
Who fees those dismal heaps, but wou'd demand
What barbarous invader sack'd the land?

Cooper's Hill

One would, indeed, imagine, that if these abbeys had been converted into parish churches, and some part of the buildings appropriated to the support and maintenance of the poor, it might have had a much better appearance than so many ruins, which one cannot look upon without pitying their sate.

Spring-

Near Ballybeg, is an handsome house and improvement, called Springfield, inhabited by Mr. Norcot; at the back of the house, is a rising hill, crowned by a beautiful grove of fir. The lands from hence to Doneraile, are hilly, with a shallow clayey soil, and lime-stone bottom.

Lifcaroll.

Five miles W. of Buttevant, stand the ruins of the castle of Liscaroll; near which, on the 3d of September, 1642, was fought a battle, between the English, commanded by the lord Inchiquin, and the Irish, under the lord Mountgarret and other generals, where was stain the valuant Lewis lord viscount Kinalmeaky, governor of Bandon, and

HAP. VI. HISTORY of CORK.

OK

nore

eeple

ndor

time

of d

Th

dd

par

arg

nd

Till

eys

me

ort

da

ich

mdr.

all,

ids

WC

of

of

he

er

rd id

on

into the first earl of Cork. But the victory fell the English, with the slaughter of 1500 of their This battle was fought to the W. of the memies. afte, in which fir Philip Perceval, before mentined, kept a garrison, for several years, at his own spence, and raised many out-works about it, in me modern stile of fortification. In August, 1642, was belieged by a regular army, confifting of 1000 Irish, who, after a very gallant relistance of 13 ays, obliged it to furrender. The day following, and Inchiquin coming up with the English army. defeated the Irish, as is above mentioned. The Irish gain befreged it, anno 1646, with an army of 5000 foot and 500 horse, commanded by the earl of Caltlehaven, who then took most of the strong holds n this country, lord Inchiquin for want of supplies being then obliged to stand upon the defensive. The news of Castlehaven's success had such an effect, that this castle, which had been before so well deanded, furrendered without firing a shot, though then in the best posture of defence, and commanded by the same officer, one captain Raymond. who had defended it to gallantly during the former fiege, and who, for his cowardice or treachery, was condemned to be shot, together with another fleward of fir Philip Perceval; but, by his indulgence, they were pardoned. This castle is a pafallelogram, or oblong square, of 120 by 240 feet; it was flanked by fix great towers, two fquare, and four round; the gateway, which faced the S. was defended by a strong castle, from which, on other hand, were the appartments; the walls were 30 feet high. This caftle is faid to have been built by king John; it was, at least, erected by ome of the Strongbonian adventurers. It was, for many years, possessed by the Barrys, before it belonged to the Perceval family: Sir Hardress Waller recovered it from the Irish, anno 1050; the breach made by him, is still visible, near the

1

8

S. W. tower; and it has ever fince remained in a ruinous condition. This castle has effectually suffered from the loyalty of its inhabitants; the ruins of its several turrets, and other works, afford the imagination a more pleasing idea, than the most magnificent structure could well do; as one looks on the wounds of a veteran with more veneration, than the most exact proportion of a regular beauty; and as these ruins call to mind the devastation caused by our intestine troubles, the history of those particular places is naturally fought after. In a field, S. of Liscaroll, is a deep hole, which, the country people affured me, could not be fathomed; I threw fome stones down it, which I heard distinctly for about fifteen seconds, before they reached the water, in which I heard them plunge; this place, they call Kate's-hole. There are also several subterraneous passages near the eastle, in a limestone ground. The lands hereabouts, are all pasture; the foil is a yellow clay, intermixed with a grey earth, in fome places deeper than others.

Altamira.

To the N. W. of Liscaroll, is Altamira, an elegant seat and neat house with pretty improvements, of James Smyth, esq; which commands an extensive prospect to the east. At a place called Kilabrahar, i. e. the church of the brotherhood, was a ruined monastery, but of what order is uncertain; it stood between Church-town and Liscaroll. A mile W. of Buttevant, is Dunbarry, a good house and plantation of Mr. Bunworth, on the Awbeg river. At Lisgriffin, on the earl of Egmont's estate, two miles west of Buttevant, several crystals have been found of the Kerry-stone kind; this castle was built, in the beginning of king James Ist's reign, by one Garret Barry.

Mountnorth Mount-north, within three miles of Mallow, is an elegant feat of John Lyfaght, efq, the house is a square building, with two wings; there are fine plantations to the N. of ash, oak, and fir, with large groves,

groves, beautiful avenues, and pleasant gardens; fronting the house, is a noble canal, well stocked with fish. The adjacent domain is also finely planted, and well laid out, into beautiful meadows and pasture grounds. N. E. of this place is Drumdowne, aruined castle of the Barrys.

From this part of the country, on both fides the river Black-water, down to Lismore, there are several pleasant seats, and large plantations of cider fruit; and from them, considerable profits arise to the industrious planter.

II

uf-

ins

na-

nithe

the

as

by

cu-

try

I

the ce, er-

one the

th,

eleits,

en-

2-

8 8

in;

Aufe

eg

te,

ave vas

by 18 ine rge

es,

From Mallow, up the Black-water, to the west-ward, the shores are composed of limestone pebbles, black flint, red marble, and some iron stone; in heavy rains, the river overflows great tracts of land, which are mostly laid out for meadows, and produce abundance of hay.

I shall finish this chapter with the following lines, taken from a poetical description of this part of the country; and, therefore, may not be imper-

tinently introduced in this place (16).

A Vast extended plain high mountains bound, Where rapid torrents from each rock resound, The north, fair Orrery's bleak hills divide From Limerick's fertile strand, and Shannon's tide; The eastern border Ballyhowra steep Proudly impends, and lofty Galtys sweep; St. Hillary's holy range the south defends, From deluges th' Iberian ocean sends: The Paps (17), the Reeks, the Mangerton, not least Of European mountains, to the west, With gradual progress rising, horrid stand, And in one view near half the isle command. Beneath this tow'ring coast collected rains With hasty emulation seek the plains:

And

(17) Those are in Kerry.

⁽¹⁶⁾ Vide the house of Yvery, vol. i. p. 103.

And new born rivers from their gloomy birth, Impatient break upon more fruitful earth: Where fondly gladden'd with the pleasing scene, They flay their fury, and enjoy the green. Thence Aviduff (18) (to Youghal's spacious bay, In hollow murmurs takes her circling way: And Allo (19) by fam'd Spenfer stil'd the strong, Impetuous from her mountains rolls along. Kanturk's proud ruins, foftens in her courfe. And joins her fifter but with half her force. While gentle Mulla (20), his once favourite them Records his muses truth in her flow gliding stream Along each precipice by ev'ry flood, Each craggy brow, and cavern fring'd with wood, The pine and oak in mighty forests rife, And crown the mountain tops, and touch the neighb'ring ikies. The vale beneath in wide enamel'd fields, The earth's best treasure to its owner yields. What though each craggy boundary contains Or beds of copper, coal, or richer veins Their flinty bowels mock the miners toil, The furest riches are a fertile soil, Where honest labour crown'd with certain wealth, Brings chearful innocence, content and health. The infant year in high grown verdure gay, Conceals the herds which in their pastures stray. There gentle zephyrs fummer's heat affwage, Confess his power, but subdue his rage: Potent to cherish man, and to adorn, But impotent to fcorch the golden corn. The fultry dog-ftar, prone to good and ill, Has leave to exercise but half his will : Subservient only to the peasant's joy, Allow'd to blefs, forbidden to destroy.

E'en

⁽¹⁸⁾ Spenfer's name for the Black-water.

⁽¹⁹⁾ Spenfer makes this river tumble from the mountains of Slewlogher, but they are some miles distant from any part of it.
(20) The Mulla of Spenser, is the river Awbeg, in this county.

CHAP. VI. HISTORY of CORK.

E'en savage winter with his hoary face,
Visits this land with less imperious pace;
Fearful the azure heavens to deform,
Behind the distant hills he leaves the storm,
Where unrestrain'd, the ratling thunder's rollShake the firm earth, and rend the vaulted pole;
Thus freed from nipping frosts, and chilling blasts,
The variegated verdure ever lasts.

And here the feather'd choir incessant sing, Chear'd by the beauties of eternal spring of the land of the land of the land to
The priftine grandeur of their Lords declare.

Kanturk, already nam'd, once rais'd too high
To bear suspicious Albion's sovereign eye, in the land haughty fragments of unfinish'd state,

Proclaims the cause of ber untimely fate.

Liscaroll next in fix tall flankers strong.

(A melancholy object of our fong)

Gives its own title to the neighb'ring plain.

Ennobled by itself, and Kinemesky slain.

From hence the eye directed to the right.

Brings Annagh's verdant ifland to the fight Which once encompais'd by a deep morais, Secur'd the flocks high bounding on her grafs A mighty bulwark on the border food and al To guard the passage of the miry flood lord A Impervious, but by one long trembling way Of yielding watsles spread on linking clay, bim A Which far remov'd from any folid shore, Defy'd the heavy cannon's distant roar The elevated bolts still fell too low, mediant all Nor hurt her ramparts with one feeble blow. Hence not far diftant Burton's groves appear, Where pines and elms in artful order rear, Where wandring eyes with fecret pleasure gaze, Where bow'rs, and lawns, and crystal rills amaze, Vol. I.

ñ

38

Where fylvan gods disport the live-long day, And wanton fairies dance the night away.

Next Egmont comes in view, Trinacrian height High-rifing emblem of its owner's flate; Egmont, which gives to the illustrious race. The highest honour, and the senate's place. 'Twas here, if old tradition's tale be true, When tyrant Denmark's lordly sons withdrew, Compell'd by Boirou's arms to fly the land, They hid their ravish'd plunder in the fand, Where long committed to the faithful earth, Ten centuries have yet deny'd them birth; And yet uncertain lies the shining ore, Condemn'd, perhaps, to see the sun no more.

And now the mule a distant tract surveys, So rich, so vast above the muse's praise. Here rooted to the earth, great Lognort stands A mole enormous, fam'd in foreign lands; Founded in justice and a pious cause, Remains a monument of heaven's applause. For when the English chiefs invaded first The wanton life in impious riot curs'd By them erected this ftupendous tow'r, Right to support, and quell the factious pow'r For many ages conftant to this end, This mighty fortiels did its plains defend. In later times, when arms the lands defac'd, A chosen band by its great master plac'd, Long kept this flation; and unfraken flood, Amidft the from of war, and tide of blood; Till falle fecurity betray'd the guard, And one vile milercant, for a mean reward, Its maiden state defil'd, and basely fold Such the relittless force of all-alluring gold? But Waller Loghors's rebel power shook, And from her lavage fons the polt retook.

Here stay'd the mule, and on her summit fat, Admir'd her magnitude, her strength, her state.

CHAP. VII. HISTORY of CORK.

Deep in amazement ran the prospect o'er, Such as her eye had scarce e'er seen before. Beheld immensely high from ev'ry side. The most luxuriant force of nature's pride: In vain attempted to survey the land, and mark each beauty of the high command; Though more than mortal, yet the visual ray Travell'd unbounded o'er the wond'rous way, Still wander'd on the yet unfinish'd fight, And lost itself in atmosphere and light:

Where the blue firmament confounds the green, And hazy vapours close the rapt'rous scene.

This barony gives title of earl to the right hon. EdmundBoyle, earl of Orrery, whose ancestor, Roger lord Broghill, was so created September 5th anno 1660, in consideration of his services in restoring king Charles II. as is expressed in his lordship's patent of creation; on the 5th of February following, he was made lord president of the province of Munster, and in October 1660, was declared one of the three lords justices for the government of this kingdom. Several particulars, relating to the actions of that nobleman in this country, will be found in the historical part of the work.

CHAP. VIL

The Topography of the Town and Liberties of Mallow, with the Baronies of Permoy and Condons.

THE manor of Mallow (1) lies next adjacent to the barony of Duhallow; it was a diffinet leigniory, which formerly belonged to the earl of Y 2

⁽⁴⁾ This manor contains eight plow-hads, and therein 3848 acres.

Desmond, and, upon his attainder, was granted, by queen Elizabeth, to sir John Norris (2), who settled the crown of Portugal on the present royal house of Braganza, and was lord president of Munster. Sir John Jephson, knt. marrying the heiress of Norris, became possessed of this estate, and obtained new letters patent (3) for the same.

(2) The celebrated Spenfer, among many other noble perfons to whom he fent his Fairy Queen, which he composed in this country, and presented with verses on that occasion, has those lines to sir John Norris, knt. lord president of Munster, which point out the character of that great man.

busider'd on the ver enfinitive

Who ever gave more honourable prize

To the fweet muse than did the martial crew;
That their brave deeds she might immortalize
In her shrill tromp, and sound their praises dew?
Who then ought more to favour her than you,
Most noble lord, the honour of this age,
And precedent of all that arms ensue?
Whose warlike prowess, and manly courage,
Temper'd with reason, and advizement sage,
Hath fill'd sad Belgia with victorious spoil,
In France and Ireland left a samous gage,
And lately shak't the Lustanian soil.
Sith then each where thou hast differed thy same,
Love him that hath thus eterniz'd your name.

(3) This patent grants to dame Elizabeth Jephson, and her heirs, in consideration of 50 l. paid by fir John Jephson, knt the castle, manor, and town of Mallow, the Short-castle, alias Castle-Gan, the fishing of the river Awmore, with other lands, &c. recited in the patent, containing 6000 acres, with a duty of 67 beeves, and three parts of a beef, payable yearly out of the barony of Carbery, some time called Mac-Casty Reaghs country, with all rents, services, walfs, strays, goods of selens, jurisdictions, &c. in as ample a manner as the crown ought to erjoy the same by purchase, or by the attainder of Gerald end of Desinond, to hold the same of the castle of Carigronolan, in the country of Cork, in free and common soccase, paying for the earl's beeves 61. 13 s. 4 d. and for all the other premise paid. As a cold at the seeds of the Annunciation and St. Michael, &c. This patent also grants a power to export com-

ll y

e.

re

ed

n-

Here were, formerly, two castles; one on the N. side of the town, called the Short castle; and the other on the S. end, being a noble pile of building, erected by the earls of Desmond which was ruined in the rebellion of 1641.

On the 11th of Feb. 1641-2, the lord Mountgarret marched, with the Irish forces, to Mallow,
his vanguard was commanded by serjeant-major Walsh: The town, at this time, consisted of 200
English houses, 30 of which were strongly built and slated, besides the before-mentioned castles.
The S castle was then, by its owner captain Jephson, committed to the charge of Arthur Bettes-

&c. the growth of faid premises, duty free, with liberty to impark 300 acres of land, with free chace and free warren, &c. Yet it may be lawful for the king to re-enter, provided the faid Elizabeth Jephson did not build houses for 45 families on the said premises, in seven years after the date of this patent, which also grants a court leet, and court baron, sensechal; &c. to hold pleas to the value of 40s. also two fairs and a weekly market, with the appointing a clerk of the market, sicensing butchers, bakers, merchants, of any seller of wine, &c. in Mallow. Dated Aug. 21. anno Anglia 10, & Scotia 21, Jacob. I.

In 1622, fir John Jephson set the 67 beeves, and $\frac{3}{4}$ of a beef, in Carbery, for 67 l. 15 s. per ann. At the same time, his estate, at 14 years purchase, was valued at 28076 l. 12s. 6 d. for which sum he offered it to the earl of Cork, who was then treating with him for the same. MSS. in Lismore.

By a writ of privy feal, dated July 10th, the 6th Carol. 1.
1631, directions were given to the lords justices for passing a new patent to fir John Jephson, and his heirs, of all his lands in Ireland, viz, the manor and cantred of Mallow, with the rent of 67 beeves, and $\frac{1}{2}$ of a beef in Carbery. And of all the lands belonging to those late dissolved monasteries and houses, called by the name of White-Abbey, of Athaire, in the county of Limerick, and Monaster ni Gittagh, in the said county, and all other lands possessed by fir Thomas Norris, at the time of his death, and also the lands, &c. of the late dissolved monastery of Ballybeg, in the county of Cork, with power to erect manors, freehold estates, court leets and court baron, fairs, markets, and court of pye-powder, with the forfeiture of all goods of felons, waits, trays, outlaws, wrecks of the sea, goods of fugitives, &c.

ani lat

tet

de

of ki

0

İs

worth, with a garrison of 200 men, arms and ammunition, one piece of iron ordnance, and two calivers. The north castle was then bravely defended by lieut. Richard Williamson (4), who stood many assaults from serjeant major Purcel, and had several breaches made in the wall before he surrendered, upon honourable terms, and then most of his men were slain: But finding the rebels were wavering, and not willing to sulfil the terms of the capitulation, he resolutely snatched up a sword, forced his way through them, with his remaining party, and got into the castle, still held out by Bettesworth, which, being resolutely and on a sudden performed, struck such a panic into the Irish, that he met with very little resistance.

Anno 1690, foon after the battle of the Boyne, Mac-Donough, who was one of king James's governors of this county, affembled fome forces, in order to burn and plunder Mallow; but Mr. Richard Nagle, attorney general to king James, and who had a large estate in the neighbourhood, having procured a custodium for Mallow, gave notice of that design to the garrison, who immediately sent for a reinforcement of Danes. Mac-Donough fearing nothing, marched up to the town, but in the great meadow, near the bridge, he was stopped

(4) The above account of lieutenant Williamfon's action at Mailow, is taken from Temple and Borlace, but another relation of it, which I received, is as follows.

Afterlient. Williamson had surrendered the Short castle, he went into a public-house, with some of his men, and a few of the Irish, to drink; he had not sat long, when an Irish officer entered into the room with another man, who said down a block, and a large broad sword, which apparatus startling Williamson, he asked, what they were for? and was answered, to strike off his and his mens heads; which was no some spoke, but Williamson snatched up the sword, with his lest hand took hold of the Irish officer by the hair, and drew him so the very walls of the other castle, not far distant, where he gave him some kicks, and letting him go, entered the castle with his men.

CHAP, VII. HISTORY of CORK.

nd foon routed, by the Danish horse, who, folwing the pursuit, made a considerable slaughter of the Irish, on both sides the river.

This town was once reckoned to be the best vilage in Ireland, and though not incorporated till ann. 1688, when a charter was granted it, by the ate king James, dated August 29, appointing Darid Miagh, provost, with 26 burgesses, which charter was used but a short time; yet it has the privilege of fending two burgeffes to parliament. pleasantly situated on the N. bank of the Blackwater, over which there is an excellent from bridge (5), whereby it is made a great thorough-fare. Not far from the castle, is a fine spring, of a moderately tepid water, which burfts out of the bottom of a great limestone rock, and approaches the nearest, in all its qualities, to the hot well waters of Briftol, of any that has been discovered in this kingdom. Here is generally a refort of good comparny during the fummer months, both for pleasure, and the benefit of drinking the waters, of the virtues of which, I shall say more in another part of this work. Near the spaw there are pleasant walks, agreeably planted, and on each fide, are canals and cascades, for the amusement and exercife of the company, who have music on these walks.

⁽⁵⁾ Lord Orrery, in a letter to the duke of Ormond, dated at Charleville, the 3d of April, 1666, takes notice, that there was then but one bridge over the Black-water, which he fays, 140 miles navigable for boats. This bridge is at Mallow, where there is a castle of good strength, if it had a little reparation, and is one of the greatest passes and thorough-sares in this province, and if seized on by any enemy, would, in effect, divide the country into two parts. The repair of this castle was presented by the grand jury of the country, but the judge reserved himself from answering, till he spoke with lord Orrery, the lord president, and again deferred the affair till he spoke with the lord lieutenant, the law only allowing presentments for bridges, cause ways, highways, sec. This was when the kingdom was threatened with an invasion from France, walks. There is also a long room, where assemblies are held for dancing, card-playing, &c. Adjoining to the well, is a kind of grotto, on which the following lines were wrote, and printed in the public papers, when it was first erected.

Joint work of judgment, fancy, tafte, and art, Nature's wild wond'rous rival's counterpart: By avarice oppos'd, by envy blam'd, By bounty built, to future ages fam'd, Live long; by time, by malice undeftroy'd; By av'rice, or by envy, unenjoy'd,

The town (6) being well situated, the country about it pleasant, and the company agreeable; it hath obtained, among some, the name of the Irish Bath. Here is a well built church, in which is a grave-stone, to the memory of cornet Charles Sybourg, only son to general Sybourg, who died here in the 20th year of his age; here is also a market house, and a barrack for a troop of horse.

The principal feats near Mallow are, Anabell, to the N. W. of the town, belonging to Courthorp Clayton, esq; and Quarter-town, to John Dillon, esq; with good plantations on the S, side of the Black-water; near which, a chalybeate spaw has been lately discovered.

The

(6) Mallow has a collector in it for getting in the king's quit rents and other duties; he has root a year falary. There are also in this diffrict one surveyor of excise, at 65 l. per ann. salary, seven gaugers at 40 l. each, and one supernumerary gauger, at 30 l. per ann.

There are great quantities of good leeches near Mallow, which are taken and fent to Cork and other places. In the adjacent limeftone vales and rocks, the foil produces Maidenha Polipodium, Speedwell, Paronychia Rucic Mountain Groundfell, Orpine, Woodfage, Gramen Leucanthemum, &c. and within half a mile of the town, there is a good quarry of a light and durable flate.

1

h

14

d

2

C

16

16

n

The barony of Armoy, alias Fermoy (7), is a Armoy or considerable tract, both for the quantity of land Fermoy. and the goodness of the soil; it abounds with simestone for manure; as also with a limestone gravel, which, being laid out, dissolves in the air, and is an excellent cheap manure for corn, but will not answer so well for meadow grounds.

The places of most note in it, are, 1st, Doneraile, Doneraile about three miles east of Buttevant, one of the most pleasant and beautiful villages in this kingdom; it is almost surrounded with groves of lofty fir, which, flourishing at all seasons of the year, render it always agreeable; but this place is indebted for the greatest part of its beauty to the fine house, and extensive improvements, of Hayes St. Leger, esq; situated on a rising ground, at the S. E. end of the town, facing the river Awbeg, which is formed into a fine cascade with reservoirs. In the front court, on a pedeftal, ftands the ftatue of a gladiator, with other leffer figures. The outoffices are large and regularly built; the gardens well laid out, and of a very confiderable extent: in them, is a wilderness and labyrinth; and towards the foot of the gardens, is a canal, of 370 yards long and 140 broad, well stocked with fish: the water is constantly supplied by a large wheel, that casts up a part of the river Awbeg into a refervoir, which is conveyed, under ground, into the canal, and returns back, over a cascade, into the road. On the other fide of the river, are pleafant lawns, and an extensive deer-park, well planted and enclosed; and to the E. of the house, is a fine decoy. Near the bridge, to the W. end of Doneraile, the river is broad and deep, being retained in a fine basin for supplying the cascades formed by it, as it passes the above improvements; and it is adorned with islands, planted with groves of fir, which add an inexpressible beauty to this place.

⁽⁷⁾ Fermoy is divided into 23 parishes viz. Killgullane, Ballinloghy, Glanore, Kilcrumper, Clondellane, Kilalty, Ballyhooly, Castletown, Monanimy, Ragheen, Moyallow, Cariglemleary, Cahirdowgan, Impherick, Templeroan Pharaby, Carigdownane, Derryvillane, Wallstown, Clennor, part of Whit-Church, Ballyhea, containing 190 plow-lands, and 69175 Irish plantation acres.

(B)

At this end of the town, flands a very neat parish church, with a pretty steeple, embellished with a spire, gilded ball, and weather-cock. On a black marble, over the E. door, is this infcription,

" This church was first built by the right hon. fir William St. Leger, then lord prefident of Munfter, ann. dom. 1633; and afterwards was rebuilt by the right hon. Arthur lord visc. Doneraile, ann.

dom. 1726."

This church is lightforne, and very neatly pewed. To the N. E. stands a small grove; and near it, are the ruins of the castle where the above-mentioned fir William St. Leger (8) kept his prefidency court.

(8) Abstract of a parchment roll, containing the genealogy of the family of St. Leger, anciently of Ulcomb, in the county of Kent, of Amery and Eggesford, in the county of Devon, and Doneralle, in this county, as far as is mentioned fince their coming into Ireland, collected by Laurence Cromp, York herald.

Anno 1540, fir Anthony St. Leger, gentleman of the king's privy chamber and knight of the garter, was fworn lerd deputy of Ireland, in Trinity church, Dublin, before whom a parliament was held at Dublin, June 13th, 33d Hen. VIII. in which it was enacted, that the king and his successors should be kings of Ireland. To whom, the Irish, and degenerated English, made their several submissions by indenture. He went into England, Feb. 10. 1543; and left fir William Brabazon lord justice.

Anno 1544, June 11, the fame fir Anthony St. Leger arrived at Dublin, lord deputy; and again left fir William Brabazon lord justice, anno 1546.

Anno 1547, the said fir A. St. Leger continued governor, first under the title of lord justice, then deputy: he overcame the O Birns, &c. He was succeeded by fir Edward Bellingham, marihal of the army. Surch, Ballyhea,

's hilly plantation acres.

nd had a fine house, and noble park adjoining but the house was burned down by the Irish, ann.

Anno 1550, he arrived at Dublin, the 4th time, lord deputy, to whom Charles Mac-Art Cavenagh fubmitted, foannly renouncing before him and many lords, the title of Mic-Morrough.

0

d

18 r,

-

h

k

.

t .

1

Anno 1553, Nov. 11, he landed at Dalky, and came to Dublin, where he was, the 5th time, fworn in Trinity durch, Dublin, lord deputy. He was buried at Ulcomb, in Kent; where he was born, March 12th, 1559. He was married to Agnes, daughter of Hugh Warham, of Croydon, in Surrey, and niece to William Warham, archbishop of Canterbury.

His second, but eldest surviving son, fir Warham St. Leger, was knighted, anno 1565, and appointed prefident of Munster. He was slain by Mac Gwire, within a mile of Cork, anno 1599. He married Ursula, daughter of George lord Abergavenny.

His fon William St. Leger, was lord prefident of Munifer. (of whom I shall have occasion to speak often in the historical part of this work) and left two sons, William and John.

His eldest son William St. Leger, was slain at Newbury ight, in the fervice of king Charles I. and died unmarried, His fecond fon John St. Leger, efq; of Doneraile, was marned to the lady Mary, daughter and coheires of Arthurearl of Donegall, and afterwards to Aphra, daughter and heir of -Harfleet, of Frapham, in Kent, esq; he died the 31st of March 1696, and had iffue two sons, viz. Arthur and John, and a daughter called Mary.

His eldest son Arthur St. Leger, esq; was married to lizabeth, daughter of John Hays, efq; both living, anno into the privy council of Ireland, Od. 3, 1715; he left iffue three fons and one daughter.

His brother, fir John St Leger, knt. was married to Mary, daughter and heir of fr James Ware, of Meggs-Town, near Dublin, and widow of recome Frazier, etg.

His fifter Mary was married to Randolph Gethin, third for of fir Richard Gethin, of Cariglemleary, in this country dailed

His eldest for Arthur, was the second viscount, and was married, same 1727, to Mrs. Mohun, only child of Charles lord Mohun, and by her left iffue one fon, win. comony rought Orpine, White Hellehore, Adianthum,

In the church-yard, is a monument of black marble, enclosed with iron rails, to the memory of David Fleury, and his wife, who was born at La Provotiere, in the parish of Torchand, in Normandy, France. He bequeathed the interest of 50 l. a year, for ever, to the poor of this parish.

On the remains of the castle, a barrack is erected for an horse troop. This place being a borough, has the privilege of returning two members to parliament. Doneraile (9) gave title of visc. to the late right hon. Arthur Mohun St. Leger, lord visc. Doneraile, and baron of Kilmeaden, in the county of Waterford, his grandfather being fo created, by letters patent, 23d of June, 1703, the 2d of queen Anne. In this place is a charity school, for 10 boys, which is supported by a bequest of the late lord Doneraile.

There was formerly a good pottery of white ware in this town, the clay feeming to be very good; for, from the specimen I saw, it appeared not unlike that of Carlingford, being a bluish stiff clay. There are round the town, feveral quarries of beautiful variegated marbles, of which hereafter in the 4th book.

Two

The late right honourable Arthur Mohun St. Leger, lord Doneraile, lord of the bed chamber to the prince of Wales, and member of parliament for old Sarum, in England.

John, second son to the first lord visc. Doneraile, was killed in a duel, 1719.

The hon. col. Hayes St. Leger, his third fon, married the daughter and coheires of Joseph Deane, efq; lord chief baron of Ireland, and was representative in parliament for this borough of Doneraile 1913 (9) The foil round Doneraile, is, on the hills, light but fertile; in the lower grounds, deep and rich ; producing, on the higher grounds Ceterach and Paronychia; and, in the lower, Orpine, White Hellebore, Adianthum, Tricomanes, &c.

being fine pasture and tillage.

II

of

n-

a

h,

to

it

of

n

e

Two miles N. W. of Doneraile, is Kilcoleman, Kilcolearuined castle of the earls of Desmond (10), but man. more celebrated for being the residence of the immortal Spenfer, where he composed his divine pem the Fairy Queen. The caftle is now almost evel with the ground; and was fituated on the N. ide of a fine lake, in the midst of a vast plain, terminated, to the E. by the county of Waterford mountains; Ballyhowra hills to the N. or, as Spenfer terms them, the mountains of Mole; Nagle mountains to the S. and the mountains of Kerry to the W. It commanded a view of above half the breadth of Ireland, and must have been, when the adjacent uplands were wooded, a most pleasant and romantic fituation; from whence, no doubt, Spenser drew feveral parts of the scenery of his poem. The Guardian (11) pays a noble compliment to the memory of this poet, when he fays, the generation of pastoral writers are very long lived, there having been (fays he) but four descents in above 2000 years. Theocritus, who left his dominion to

(10) There was a contention between Donald Roe Mac-Carty, prince of Defmond, who died anno 1302, and Maguire, prince of Fermanagh, who also died the same year, concerning the greatness of each other's hospitality, liberality, and prowess, says my author + and accordingly an Irish poet of those times, spent a year in each of their houses in the disguise of a Carrogh, or common gamester, in order to discover which of those Irish chiefs excelled each other in these qualifications, which were highly esteemed by the natives of those times, which poet by the following verses adjudged the honour to Maguire, countauts.

Tho' Desmond's plains be greater in extent,
And pay Mac-Carty twice the annual rent;
Maguire's houshold twice the number shew,
And twice the victuals from his cupboard slew.

(11) Number 33. + An ancient MS. o . silel 4 (21)

Virgil, Virgil bequeathed his to his fon Spenfer who was succeeded by his eldest born Philips. While he lived in Ireland, he contracted a friendship with sir Walter Raleigh, who was then a captain in this country, under the lord Grey, and had a large share of queen Elizabeth's bounty, out of Desmond's forfested estate, as well as our poet. The poem called Colin Clout's Come bome again, in which sir Walter is described, under the name of the shepherd of the ocean, is a beautiful memorial of this friendship, which took its rife from a likeness of taste in the polite arts; and is thus agreeably described by him after the pastoral manner.

Under the foot of Mole, that mountain hore; Keeping my sheep amongst the cooly shade Of the green alders, by the Mulla's (12) shore. There a strangeshepherd chaunc'd to find me out Whether allured with my pipe's delight, Whose pleasing sound yshrilled far about; Or thither led by chance, I know not right Whom when I asked, from what place he came? And how he hight, himself he did yelep, The shepherd of the ocean by name, and said he came far from the main-sea deep.

The Mulla, noted for excellent trouts, and fine cels; also falmon, and some carp, perch, and trench, is the river Awbeg, which runs not far from Kilcoleman, and washes Buttevant, Done-raile, Castle-town-Roch, &c. falling into the Blackwater, near Bridge-town. To which stream, and to the poet, those lines of Mr. Pope may justly be applied.

O early

⁽¹²⁾ Mulla, or Mullagh, aguiles, according to Librard, the top or fummit, as Mulaight ne Sliabh, the tops of the mountains.

CHAP. VII. HISTORY of CORK.

O early loft, what tears the river shed! -His drooping fwans on ev'ry note expire, And on his willows hung each muse's lyre.

Spenser also celebrates the Mulla in his poem on mutability, and this barony of Fermoy or Armoy, under the name of Armilla.

H er s. ip

of

t.

n,

le

8-8

15

t

The lake before-mentioned, abounds with pike: it is much frequented by coots, divers, and other water-fowls; and, in the feafon, by great numbers of bitterns. The country people use the water to ture warts, as they do also that of another lake in this neighbourhood, called Lough Au Ulla, which, they fay, has better fucces; but there seems to be a good deal of superstition in those fort of cures, as could discover nothing in the water whereby they might be effected. Pity it is, that some friendly stone, which might be placed, at a small expence, in the ruin of the castle, does not point out itsonce immortal inhabitant. In all at a line and

The parish of Doneraile is very large, and had in it, formerly, several chapels of ease, viz. at Roseagh, near Kilcoleman; and another at Old-Court, where there is a good house and improvements of

Mr. Watkin. About a mile E. of Doneraile, is Castle-saf- Castlefron, so called from large quantities of it for-Saffron. merly planted here, being greatly used by the his for dying their fhirts, &c. adjoining to which, is a well built house of John Love, elg. agreeably fituated on the banks of the Mulla, This river forms feveral pleasant cascades in view of the house, which has a regular front, of grey marble. The caftle was boldly erected on the banks of the river, and is faid to have been first built by the Coppingers. In limestone grounds, adjoining to this place, are found the resemblance of several petrified cockle-shells, in great quantities; as also at Kilburne, which lies W. of Doneraile. In an adjacent adjacent bog, is excellent marle, of a bluish kind that ferments with acids; in digging for which several things have been found, as a brass spur of an odd form, the horns and teeth of the moose deer; also a brass spoon, several hazel nuts, quantities of charcoal, &c. and near a Danish intrenchment, Mr. Love, a few years ago, discovered some large urns, the description of which I refer to another place.

In the house, is an original painting, well executed, of the poet Spenser, also a good picture of the taking down from the cross, and another of the holy family; and several rooms in this house are, handsomely stuccoed by the Franchinis, Italians. On the other side of the river, is a pleasant

park,

On the lands of Drumdeer, belonging to Mr. Love, is a red and grey marble quarry. Upon finking of this quarry, there was happily discovered a chink in the earth, leading to a subterraneous passage, not uncommon in limestone soils, by which the adjacent grounds were drained of great quantities of water, that before were unprofitable bog and mountain, for the greatest part of the year. He has also reclaimed a large tract of bog, on the side of the river, which is now a rich and valuable piece of ground.

Ballynemony. About a mile below Castle-saffron, on the Awbeg, is the ruined castle of Ballynemony, once belonging to the Nagles; lower down the river, is Walls-town, a large building; and near it, is the house of Mr. Andrew Ruddock, with some plantations. As the river winds towards the south, stands Ballyhemick, the seat of Robert Grove, esq. with good improvements on the N. side; near this gentleman's house, as they were diging the soundation of a barn, several large gigantic human bones, and, in particular, a great skull, were discovered; but by the negligence and incuriosity of the Ballyhemick.

diacent

the workmen, they were thrown into the rubbish,

and not preserved.

ind

ich

0

of

an

ch-

red

to to

XC-

of

of use

ta-

int

Ir.

on us us

ch

n-

r.

e

10

is

From hence the river winds foutherly, through Caftle ideep romantic glin, towards Caftletown Roche, town more the feat of the lords Roche, viscounts Fermoy (13), and who were barons of parliament, as early as the time of king Edward II. For George Roche was fined 200 marks, for not being prefent at a parliament held at Dublin in that reign.

This family was attainted, and outlawed, for being concerned in the Irish rebellion of 1641, and lost their estate; though Maurice lord Roche, who was the forfeiting person, had a regiment in Flanders, and gave king Charles II. a considerable part of his pay during the exile of that prince, for which, and other services, he expected, upon the restoration, to have his lands restored, and petitive to L. I.

(13) This family were called de Rupe, also de la Roche; for the lords signed de Rupe and Fermoy in Charles the Ist's reign.

In a petition preferred to the lords of the council of England, ann. 1614, it is set forth, that David lord Roche, viscount Fermoy, whose father served queen Elizabeth faithfully in Tyrone's rebellion, had three sons sain therein, and many of his servants and followers; and prays that a patent may be passed to him of the following lands, viz. the town of Canglemleary, 13 plow-lands; the castle and lands of Derryvillane, 3 plow-lands; Does-castle, 1 plow-land; the castle and lands of Ballygogan, 3 plow-lands, which he claimed by many descents. The queen became seized of Cariglemleary, he says, by the attainder of Philip Roche Fitz-Edmond, who was but tenant at will: He also petitioned for the castle of Rathgogan, which came to the crown by the attainder of Gerald late earl of Desmond, and the Clangibbons of the great wood, ancestors to David Comoge attainted.

A letter from the lords of the council of England to the lord deputy Chichefter, directs, that as the lord Roche had petitioned his majesty that the abbey of Bridge town, and the poor house of preaching friars, in Glanworth, with the lands belonging to them, were once in this family, that the same be restored to the petitioner David lord Roche, and that they be granted to him in fee farm.

Ex. Biblioth. Lambeth X. X. fol. 10.

CH

bre

eft

wh

cu

th ing

tle

w

W

th

W

10

01

ft

W -13

14. 图

ti

10

oned the king for that purpose, being then in a very poor way; but that prince did nothing more than allow a small pension to the family (14), so that they have been obliged to seek a maintenance in other binardoms.

in other kingdoms.

The castle is built on a rock, over the Awbeg, from whence there is a passage cut down to the river. Opposite to it is a field, which they call the Camp field; from whence a battery was erected, by a party of the parliament forces, anno 1649, against the castle, which was then defended by the lady of lord Roche for several days, in a gallant manner; this lord refused a composition for his estate from Oliver Cromwell. Castletown is but an inconsiderable village, and in it stands the parish church. The estate, on the forseiture of the

(14) The earl of Orrery, in a letter to the duke of Ormond, dated June 14, 1667, recommends the lord Roche to his favour, who was then in great necessity, assuring his grace, that both he and his children stood in much need of it; and (says he) "It is a greef to me to see a nobleman of so antient a samily left without any maintenance; and being able to do no more than I have done, I could not deny to do for him what I could do, to lament his lamentable state to your grace."

Orrery's Let. vol. II. p. 166. The present descendant of this family, whose name is John, was coufin german to Ulick, who affumed the title of lord Roche, being of a collateral line: He was, during the late war, in the king of Sardinia's fervice, in the rank of a general officer, and a great favourite of that prince. He was fent, at different times, to prevent the French and Spaniards paffing the Alps into Italy. He rendered himself very remarkable by his opposition to them at Exiles; and also, by his brave de-tence at Augusta. At Casal, he was besieged, with a small garrifon of 600: which he defended for 32 days, against an army of 25000 men. The French and Spanish generals were fo charmed at his conduct and bravery, that, upon the capitulation, they paid him all military honours, and entertained him nobly in their camp. He was, for some time, a prisoner of war about June, 1747, he returned to the king of Sardinia's army.

has Fermoy, became the property of the Wig-

II

n

ore

nce

eg,

all

ct-

19,

he

nt

nis

ın

h

le

s

t

8

2

On the opposite side of the river, are Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-Daniel's-

Between Doneraile and the Black-water, is Caf-Castle-te-kiffin, a seat of Mr. Edward Thornhill, and kiffin. which formerly belonged to the Roches. Two miles W. of which, is the castle of Cahirdowgan, another of the Roches castles, and granted after the wars of 1641, to sir Peter Courthorp, with nine plowlands The lands in this tract are but in different totwithstanding it is all a limestone bottom; the

(15) This Mr. Brown joined fir Thomas Southwell and other gentlemen, who, being unwilling to part with their horles and arms, as many of them were plundered of their tocks before, and justly suspecting, that if their arms were gone, neither their lives or substance could be safe, affembled with their fervants, and refolved to march to Sligo, to join the lord Kingston, for their common defence. Mr. Brown appened, on the way (his own horse being jaded) to make he with one belonging to Mr. Nagle, a near neighbour of his; but not liking the defign, he went back to his own house, and returned the horse; for this he was first brought before Judge Daly, at Limerick, who, upon examination of the matter, difinifs'd him, judging him innocent of any crime that would bear an indictment; but he was taken up again for the fame fact at Cork, and brought before judge Nugent (foon after king James had landed at Kinfale) who feemed, at first, to be of the same opinion with judge Daly; but after he had discoursed his majesty, he proceeded vigorously against the gentleman, and procured him to be found guilty by a partial jury. Every body looked on this only as an occasion fought for the king to shew his clemency. Mrs. Brown, with five or archildren, presented him a petition to save her bushand's ife, as the first act of grace on his coming into the kingdom, but he rejected her petition; and notwithstanding she reinforted it with all the interest she could make, the gentleman was langed, drawn and quartered. Vid. King's State, &c.

fields are full of low Irish furze, little or very poor pasture, being a shallow foil of clay, mixed with fand.

Carigoon.

At Carigoon, near Mallow, was a garrifon for king James, in the late wars, the Black-water being boundary of the English and Irish quarters: it was anciently the estate of the Stawells; and almost opposite to it, stood the castle of Ballymagooly, an English garrison in those times, the relief of which occasioned the fight of Bottle-hill, Cariglem- between Cork and Mallow. Lower down the leary.

Black-water, is Cariglemleary, i. e. the rock of Leary's-leap, formerly a castle of the Roches; it was, by fir Richard Gethin, named Gethin'sgrot (16). The house is boldly fituated, on an high rock over the river; and was adorned with fine plantations and improvements by William Canfabon, esq;

Ballygarret.

On the opposite side of the river, is Ballygarret, a good house and improvement of Mr. John Norcot, who was one of the gentlemen commonly known by the name of the Galway prisoners, as all those were called who joined fir Thomas Southwell

(16) The lands of Cariglemleary, and feveral other lands in the baronies of Fermoy and Carbery, were granted, by letters patent, to fir Richard Gethin, knt. one of the council for the government of Muniter, March 17th, the 19th of Charles II. the faid fir Richard fetting forth, that he intended to make an English plantation, and erect manufactures on the faid premifes. He also obtained new letters patent, August 20, 21st Carol. II. by which the lands of Cariglemleary. and divers other places, were erected in a manor, to be called the manor of Gethin's-grot, with a power to referve 800 acres for a domain, with court leets, court barons, and a court of record, to hold pleas to the value of 20 l. to erect a gaol, appoint fenefchals, bailiffs, gaoler, clerk of the market, and other proper officers; to be disturbed by no sheriff or sheriff's bailiff, also liberty to impark 700 acres for beafts of venery, with free chase and free warren; also two fairs, on the 29th of July and 29th of September, with all fines, customs, waifs, frays, &c.

d

e

3-

n

y

n

in that expedition. Lower down the river, is Rock-forest, a pleasant seat of Mr. James Cotter, Rockon a rising situation, commanding an extensive forest. prospect of the opposite country. Below this, is Ballymacboy and Carrignaconny; the former, the estate of Mr. Bowen; and the latter, a castle which belonged to fir Richard Nagle, attorney-general to the late king James; but is now the estate of This fir Richard Nagle fucceeded Mr. Knight. fir William Domville in this employ, who was removed, after having filled that post near 30 years: he was fet afide, because he would not consent to reverse the popish outlawries, nor to the other methods then taking to ruin the fettlement of this kingdom. Sir Richard Nagle being put in his place, was afterwards knighted, and made fecretary of state. He was, at first, designed for a clergyman, and educated amongst the jesuits; but afterwards studied the law, in which he arrived to agood perfection, and was employed by many protestants. Archbishop King (17) gives a flaggant infrance how he used his power as attorney general (18), in the administration of justice, to whom the reader is referred.

On the other fide of the river, below Cariglemleary, is Ballygriffin; a pretty feat of Mr. David Bally-Nagle; griffin.

(17) State of the Protestants, &c. chap. III. § 3. 95 &c. (18) The same fir Richard Nagle was speaker of the house of commons, in king James's parliament, being knight of the shire for this county; and he had a chief hand in drawing up all their acts. King James confided chiefly in him, and the acts of repeal and attainder, were looked upon as his work; in which (fays archbishop King) his malice and jesuitical principles prevailed so far, that he was not content to cut out two thirds of the protestant gentlemen of their estates, by the act of repeal, (by which, all estates acquired fince the year 1641 were taken away) and to attaint most of those that had old estates by the bill of attainder; but to make sure work, he put it out of the king's power to pardon them; therein betraying the king's prerogative, as the king himself told him, when he discovered it to him. King, ut supra.

CH

fpr is

W2 the

tai for

Ba

W

R

W th

t

n

342 Monanimy

Nagle; below which, is the ruined church of Monanimy (19), with a large chancel; and in it, is a modern tomb of the Nagles. Adjacent to it, is a castle, that, in former times, was a preceptory belonging to the knights of faint John of Jerusalem; round the castle, are traces of very large buildings, the whole augustly fituated on an high bank, over the Black-water. As there is no other mention of this house, than in the king's quit-rent books, the founder and time of the foundation is uncertain. On the opposite side of the river, are large rocks of limestone, wherein are several subterraneous caverns.

Bridgetown.

Lower down the Black-water, is Bridge-town, in Irish Ballindroghed, where are the ruins of an abbey of regular canons of St. Augustine, founded by Alex. Fitz-Hugh Roche, in the reign of king Edward II. an. 1314(20). Some fay the monks were of the congregation of St. Victor. The Roches added greatly to the possessions of this house. Opposite the great altar, is a ruined tomb, which belonged to the founder. In a fide chapel, is a large one, with this inscription, " Theobald Roche, A. D. 1635." This abbey was most pleafantly fituated, at the very confluence of the Awbeg and Black-water, which rivers glide through a deep rocky glin, opposite to the building. Here was formerly a bridge over both rivers. Adjacent. to the abbey, is a good house, inhabited by Mr. Roberts; and, on the E. side of the Awbeg, is Kilcummer, a good house and plantation of Henry Cole Bowen, esq; adorned with a pleasant grove of fpruce Kilcummer.

was Mr. John Norcot.
(20) Vid. the foundation charter, at large, in Dugdale's

Monasticon, vol. II. p. 1045.

⁽¹⁹⁾ The parishes or rectories of Clenor, Carigdownin, Carig and Templebodane, with the rectory of Cleghan, are charged 31. 10s. crown-rent, as belonging to the preceptory of Monanimy. The original patentee, in trust for the clergy,

11

lo-

sa

is ry age gh

er

nt

is

e

-

foruce fir on the east; and near the Black-water. Rinny, a ruined castle of the Fitz-Geralds, which was part of Spenfer's estate. The opposite side of Naglesthe river, is bounded by a part of Nagle's moun-mounains, which are here covered with wood; but was tains. formerly a forest of much greater extent, named hooly. Ballyhooly, from a castle of the Roches, near those woods, which castle came, on their forfeiture, to fr Richard Aldworth. On this fide of the river, is Ballymac-Allen, a good house and improvement of Mr. Graham. The last place on the Blackwater, in this barony, is Creg, a castle built by the Roches. Near it, is an handsome house and good improvements, now occupied by Mr. Odell; Here is a fine picture of the holy family, done by every mafterly hand, after the Italian manner and to the W. of Creg, is Ballyphilip, another of the Roches castles, Here are large orchards, where agreat quantity of cider is made, as there is at most places on this river, there being few foils where apples, of various kinds, thrive better than in this country.

Here to the fight, Apples of price, and plenteous sheaves of corn, Oft interlac'd occur; and both imbibe Fitting congenial juice; fo rich the foil, So much does fructuous moisture o'er abound. Philips's Cider.

The foil is deep, being a light loamy earth, mixed with fand. On the S. fide of the river, is another good house of the same name, built by Mr. Lombard.

Two miles N. of the Black-water, is Glan-Glan. worth, or Glanor, i. e. the golden glin; it was worth. anciently a corporation, but is now a small decayed village. Here was an abbey of dominicans, or friars

sh

all

rag

00

10

m

h

G

10

(

friars preachers, founded by the Roches, in the year 1227; of which, the nave of the church, with a low steeple, remain.

Near this abbey, on the verge of the Funcheon river, is a fine fpring, bubbling out of a limestone rock, of limpid water, held in great efteem, as an holy well, by the superstitious Irish; it is dedicated to faint Dominick, and visited on his festival. Over the well, is a large old tree; on the boughs of which, an infinite number of rags, of all colours, are tied, as memorials of their devotion to this water, which, they affirm, has performed feveral miraculous cures. Here are the magnificent ruins of a fumptuous castle, built by the Flemings, and afterwards possessed by the lords Roche, which confifted of feveral buildings, and a large high tower, all strongly erected on arched vaults, and built of very maffy stones. Our modern buildings may boaft of regular columns of Greek and Roman architecture, but to raise such ponderous fructures as these, would, in the present age, require an infinite expence. This caftle is environed with a strong wall, flanked with turrets; near it, is a stone bridge over the Funcheon. Glanworth had formerly the name of the golden prebend, partly from its value, and partly from the goodness of the foil. The parish church was lately rebuilt

Pharaby.

Three miles N. W. of Glanworth is Pharahy, where there is a decent new built church and free-ple; an English protestant school, with an acre of land set apart, by virtue of the statute for the education of poor children in the protestant religion; a glebe, and a parsonage house, pretrily situated on a rivulet, belonging to the deans of Cloyue, who as such, are incumbents of this parish; near it, is a good house and improvement of Mr. Bowen. The country adjacent is open, dry, and healthy, with good sheep walks, and is fit for sporting; excellent quarries of limestone shew themselves every where.

10

d

8

1

shere. On the river Funcheon, are some ruined assess of the Condons, viz. Dunmahon and Cuaghane; and there are several others of theirs in the next mentioned tract.

Condons and Clangibbon, (21) constitute but Condons

one barony; that part called Condons, formerly and Clanpossessions of O-Kief, belonging to Fermoy; it was gibbon.
possession of Condons of Cauntons, menglish family. Clangibbon was formerly called live-le-bane, i. e. the white or fair territory, or,
more probably, the white knight's country, and has its present denomination from Gilbert, alias Gibbon, commonly called the white knight; the lord of this tract, in Cambden's time, was John Fitz-Gerald, called John Oge Fitz-John Fitz-Gibbon, and from the grey hair of his head, had, says
Cambden (22), the name of the white knight; it is now mostly the estate of the right hon. the lord Kingston. Vide p. 47.

The principal place in this barony, is Mitchel'stown, adorned with a fine house, park and imtown.
provements, of the right hon, the lord Kingston,
seated on an eminence, that commands a noble prospect to the E. and W. In the house, is a large hall; round which, on the top, runs a handsome corridor; the stair-case is large and lightsome;
on the cicling of which, is painted the rape of Proserpine: Above the hall, is a gallery 70 feet long and 20 broad; from whence, is a fine prospect

⁽²¹⁾ In this tract are 15 parishes, viz. Leitrim, Clondelane, Kilcrumper, Gahirganihady, Kilgullane. Templemalagh, alias Anacrosse, part of Derryvillane, the prebendary of Nalane, and Phelane, a part of Glanore, part of Castlelyons, part of Knockmourne, a part of Macollop, the other part being in the county of Waterford, Brigowne, alias Mitchelstown, Marshalstown, and Ardskeagh; containing 87 plow-lands, and 44010 Irish plantation acres.

⁽²²⁾ In Comitat. Limerick.

C

6

n

of the Galty mountains to the N. E. the him mountains of Knockmeledown to the S. E. and i the centre of both, the Cumeraghs, in the count of Waterford; all ranged in the manner of th scenes of a vast theatre. Several of the chamber are furnished with variety of coloured marbles, found on the adjacent grounds. On the E. fide of the house, stands an handsome tower, in which is an elegant study, well furnished with books, and beautified with bufts and paintings; and to the N. is a fine canal, lately formed, the fides of which being rifing grounds, are adorned with penfile gardens. On the S. stands the park, finely wooded; and well stocked with great variety of deer. Here are also other gardens, kept in fine order; and near the house are the walls of a castle, which belonged to the white knight, and was a fine old building, but deftroyed in the wars of 1641. Mitchel's-town is 17 miles from Cork, fituated on an height, in a rich limestone soil. Here is a pretty market house, built of hewn stone, where is held a large weekly market and fome good houses. At one end of the town, is the church, in decent repair, being a chapel of ease to Brigowne, now in ruins, which, if we may believe Colgan, was an ancient bishoprick. The walls of this church still remain; they were built of large blocks of a very fine freestone, brought hither a great way from the mountains: I have observed, that most of our ancient churches were built of this stone: Here were the remains of one of the round towers, which stood 30 yards from the S. W. angle of the church, and fell in the memory of feveral people. A relic was kept here, called Baculus Finachani, i. e. St. Finachan's staff; on which the adjacent country people used to fwear, and to which faint this building is attributed; his feftival is kept here on the 25th of Novem. In this church, is a monument, to the memory of Margaret lady Kingston; but

h er

ari

10

of

1y

.

a

at there is little more of the inscription legible: ligowne, is a mile east of Mitchel's-town. Near helatter place, was a good chalybeate spaw, now apped up by the falling of the earth into the well. I gentleman having mentioned a water near Mitchel's-town, which, he faid, had the quality fpurging horses; when I went to the spot, I found it to be a fine limestone spring, and that the place abounded with the Cicuta Aquatica, or Hemlock-water Dropwort, which I imagine gave is purging quality to the water. A mile S. of Cahir-Mirchel's-town, on an hill, stands the castle of driny. Cahirdriny, i. e. Fort Prospect, built by the Rothes, at present on the estate of Arthur Hyde, esq; whose ancestor, fir Arthur Hyde, lived in this casthe, in which he was often attacked by the Irish. kcommands a very extensive prospect, and is also hen from every part of the adjacent country; and amile W. of Mitchel's-town, is the castle of Caiganure, built by the Condons. Kilworth, three miles S. of Mitchel's-town, is a thriving place, Kilworth. with a decent church, fituated at the foot of a large ndge of mountains of that name: through which agood turnpike road is carried from Dublin to Cork. Below the town, the river Funcheon beforementioned runs, being well ftored with falmon and trout, and discharges a mile S. of this into the Black-water. On the E. fide of this river, is a deer park, belonging to Stephen Moore, esq; and in it, a beautiful fummer-house, neatly stuccoed, commanding a prospect of the windings of the river; adjacent to which, is his mansion house, with fine improvements. Near Kilworth, is a good glebe, and new vicarage house. On this river, stands the strong castle of Cloghleagh, an ancient seat of the Condons, taken by the English, under sir Charles Vavasor, the 4th of June, 1643; who immediately after, was fet upon by the Irish army, between between that and Fermoy; where, being over powered by numbers, the English lost above 600 men. From this castle, is a subterraneous passage to the river Funcheon.

Fermoy.

Fermoy, a small village, pleasantly seated or the Black-water, over which is a large stone bridge of 13 arches, built ann. 1689, and coft 7500 ! although it is called Fermoy, it is in the barony of Clangibbon. Near this place, according to a remark made by fir Richard Cox, in 1690, "there " were fome mineral purging waters discovered; " found to be of the same nature as those of Tun-" bridge, in Kent; and every whit as effectual;" but the place is now stopped up. Here was an abbey for ciftertian monks, called our lady De Castro Dei, founded anno 1270, according to an Irish MSS. by fir Richard de Rupella, who was lord justice of Ireland, in 1261. The monks were brought hither from Suir-abbey, in the county of Tipperary; and afterwards received a new colony from Furnels abbey, in Lancashire. The spiritualities of this house were assigned, by the lord treasurer of England, to fir George Harvey, for the use of the first earl of Cork, who purchased them, and several lands in Fermoy, from fir Bernard Grenville, and, at the same time, the seigniory of Kinalmeaky, with the lands of Gilabbey, for the fum of 35000 l. About half a mile N. E. from Fermoy, is a fine bed of white free-stone,

Caftlehyde. old house, with large improvements, of Arthur Hyde, esq; whose ancestor, fir Arthur Hyde, was made a knight banneret, by queen Elizabeth, for his gallant behaviour, and raising a regiment in England, at the time of the invasion, by the invincible armada; her majesty afterwards granted him near 6000 acres of land in this county, which came to the crown by the attainder of Gerald earl of Desmond: He married the daughter of Poer,

01

e

of

e-

re

1

7

in

in

IS

e

of 1

d

her, baron of Curraghmore. This place was fornerly named Cariganedy, i. e, the rock of the hield, where stood a castle, said to have been built by the Mahonys. The upper grounds, and ides of the Black-water, are here finely planted with numerous groves of spruce, Scotch fir, and other imber trees, which, from the opposite side of that over, make a fine appearance. The offices are new, and well disposed; and to the south of the house, is a large deer-park. Near Castle-hyde, flands the parish church, in good repair, and adorned with a clock. The lands in this neighbourhood, are covered with excellent limestone, the foil being naturally a ftiff yellow clay; in this country, confiderable quantities of lime are burned; and, it is observable, that if the upper stratum be used, it swells so greatly upon burning, that it frequently bursts the kiln. There is also a dark kind of limestone, in some places, which being flinty, cracks and flies in the fire, but is, nevertheless, burned by an intense heat; furze kilns are generally used in this part of the country. Two miles north of Castle-hyde, is a place called Labacally, Labacally i. e. the Hag's-bed; which is a large rock, raised upon several stones, and seemingly designed as a funeral monument for some person of note. I shall give a further description of these stones in another

To the east of Fermoy, on the fouth fide of the Caricka-Black-water, is the caftle of Carickabrick, and on brick. the opposite side another, called Liclash, built by the Condons. The late revd. Mr. Harrison, of Carickabrick, gave 1000l. lately to the charter schools of this kingdom. Lower down, between the exit of the rivers Funcheon and Araghlin, on a pleasant spot, is the castle of Ballyderoon, which has the same signification as Mesopotamia, i. e. a place between two rivers; it belonged to one of the chiefs of the Condon family, who is faid to have taken

Carey's-

taken the title of baron from this place. On t other fide of the river, but more easterly, is the castle of Ballymac-Patrick, now Carey's-ville built also by the Condons, and is a pleasant sea of John Carey, esq; situated on a rising ground above the Black-water; over which, there is terrace, commanding a good prospect of the val up to Fermoy, and several castles. Here is a pret ty park, good orchards, gardens, and other plantations. In January, 1642, this castle (23) was taken, by David earl of Barrymore, after an obstinate relistance, and in view of the Irish army, on the other fide of the Black-water, who durft not come to its relief; the garrison were all made prisoners, and afterwards executed. The foil is here a limestone bottom, and mellow clay, mixed with fand, about feven inches deep.

Greenfield. On the opposite side of the Black-water, is Green-field, a good house, with orchards, &c. of Mr. Hill. To the west of it, falls the river Araghlin into the Black-water; not far from which, is Araghlin house, pleasantly situated. Near this place, considerable iron works are carried on; but charcoal is become very scarce in this part of the country, most of the woods being demolished.

Macloney.

Near this river, is Macloney, a good house and improvement of lieut. James Manserghe, agreeably situated. The north west part of this barony, is bounded by the counties of Waterford and Tipperary, and terminated by the mountains of Knockmeledown; which part of the country is mostly employed in grazing cattle, the soil near the sides of the river Araghlin abounding with grass in the summer season. This river winds through a deep romantic glin, and has its rise in the mountains of the county of Waterford.

In

te ne

5,

h the mountains near Araghlin, are excellent aftone for building, scythe-stones, and grinding nes; but of a coarser grit than those from Eng-On the fouth fide of the river, towards the Waternd. unds of Waterford county, is Water-park, for-park. rly a feat of the lord chief justice Pine, with a afant park now demolished, good orchards, and her improvements. Some years ago, the cider de here, by Mr. Drew, lost the præmium given the Dublin Society, (being so excellent in its id, that the gentlemen who were judges, imaned it to be mixed with foreign wine,) who, the llowing year, being undeceived, they granted the mium to an hogshead of cider (24) made here. M. Philips, in his admirable poem on this liquor, terves, that fuch mistakes are not uncommon in ingland.

In the spanish product, this to Gauls has seem'd the spanish product, this to Gauls has seem'd the spanish product, this to Gauls has seem'd the spanish product, this to Gauls has seem'd the spanish product, this to Gauls has seem'd the spanish product, this to Gauls has seem'd the spanish product, this to Gauls has seem'd the spanish product, that the seem'd that seem of the seem's will'd his throat, and sworn, beluded, that Imperial Rhine bestow'd the gen'rous rummer; whilst the owner pleas'd, laughs inly at his guests thus entertain'd with foreign vintage from his eider cask (25).

Water-

⁽²⁴⁾ Mr. Samuel Colepress, in the Philosophical Transactions, N. 27. p. 501. says, that a composition of the juices of sod cider apples and mulberries, produce the best tasted, and most curiously coloured liquor he ever saw.

⁽²⁵⁾ The best method of distilling cider spirits is as follows. When cider begins to turn sour, take what quantity you lease, and put it into a still, with a few raisin stalks, and a stille bay-salt, to keep down the phlegm, draw off a weak mous liquor, which suffer to lie a few days, then commit it to the still with the aforesaid ingredients, and draw off a proof

6

п

1

054

ADI

Carey's-

taken the title of baron from this place. On the other fide of the river, but more easterly, is the castle of Ballymac-Patrick, now Carey's-ville, built also by the Condons, and is a pleasant feat of John Carey, esq; situated on a rising ground above the Black-water; over which, there is a terrace, commanding a good prospect of the vale up to Fermoy, and several castles. Here is a pretty park, good orchards, gardens, and other plantations. In January, 1642, this castle (23) was taken, by David earl of Barrymore, after an obstinate relistance, and in view of the Irish army, on the other fide of the Black-water, who durst not come to its relief; the garrison were all made prisoners, and afterwards executed. The foil is here a limestone bottom, and mellow clay, mixed with fand, about seven inches deep.

Greenfield. On the opposite side of the Black-water, is Green-field, a good house, with orchards, &c. of Mr. Hill. To the west of it, falls the river Araghlin into the Black-water; not far from which, is Araghlin house, pleasantly situated. Near this place, considerable iron works are carried on; but charcoal is become very scarce in this part of the country, most of the woods being demolished.

Macloney.

Near this river, is Macloney, a good house and improvement of lieut. James Manserghe, agreeably situated. The north west part of this barony, is bounded by the counties of Waterford and Tipperary, and terminated by the mountains of Knockmeledown; which part of the country is mostly employed in grazing cattle, the soil near the sides of the river Araghlin abounding with grass in the summer season. This river winds through a deep romantic glin, and has its rise in the mountains of the county of Waterford.

In

11.

he

ne

e,

at

d

2 le

t-

1.

-

te

ie

le

f

ė

In the mountains near Araghlin, are excellent freestone for building, scythe-stones, and grinding fiones; but of a coarser grit than those from Eng-On the fouth fide of the river, towards the Waterbounds of Waterford county, is Water-park, for-park. merly a feat of the lord chief justice Pine, with a pleafant park now demolished, good orchards, and other improvements. Some years ago, the cider made here, by Mr. Drew, loft the præmium given by the Dublin Society, (being so excellent in its kind, that the gentlemen who were judges, imagined it to be mixed with foreign wine,) who, the following year, being undeceived, they granted the pramium to an hogshead of cider (24) made here. Mr. Philips, in his admirable poem on this liquor. observes, that such mistakes are not uncommon in England.

Some ciders have by art or age unlearned
Their genuine relish, and of sundry vines
Assumed the flavour; one fort counterfeits
The Spanish product, this to Gauls has seem'd
The spanish product, this to Gauls has seem'd
The spanish product, this to Gauls has seem'd
The spanish product, this to Gauls has seem'd
The spanish product, this to Gauls has seem'd
The spanish product, this to Gauls has seem'd
The spanish product, this to Gauls has seem'd
The spanish product, this to Gauls has seem'd
The spanish product, this to Gauls has seem'd
The spanish product, this to Gauls has seem'd
The spanish product, this to Gauls has seem'd
The spanish product, this to Gauls has seem'd
The spanish product, this to Gauls has seem'd
The spanish product, this to Gauls has seem'd
The spanish product, this to Gauls has seem'd
The spanish product, this to Gauls has seem'd
The spanish product, this to Gauls has seem'd
The spanish product, this to Gauls has seem'd
The spanish product, this to Gauls has seem'd
The spanish product, this to Gauls has seem'd
The spanish product, this to Gauls has seem'd
The spanish product, this to Gauls has seem'd
The spanish product, this to Gauls has seem'd
The spanish product, this to Gauls has seem'd
The spanish product, this to Gauls has seem'd
The spanish product, this to Gauls has seem'd
The spanish product has seem'd
The spanish product has seem'd
The spanish product has seem'd
The spanish product has seem'd
The spanish product has seem'd
The spanish product has seem'd
The spanish product has seem'd
The spanish product has seem'd
The spanish product has seem'd
The spanish product has seem'd
The spanish product has seem'd
The spanish product has seem'd
The spanish product has seem'd
The spanish product has seem'd
The spanish product has seem'd
The spanish product has seem'd
The spanish product has seem'd
The spanish product has seem'd
The spanish product has seem'd
The spanish product has seem'd
The spanish product has seem'd
The spanish product has seem'd
The spanish product has seem'd
The spanish

Water-

(24) Mr. Samuel Colepress, in the Philosophical Transactions, N. 27. p. 501. says, that a composition of the juices of sood cider apples and mulberries, produce the best tasted, and most curiously coloured liquor he ever saw.

(25) The best method of distilling cider spirits is as follows. When cider begins to turn sour, take what quantity you please, and put it into a still, with a few raisin stalks, and a little bay-salt, to keep down the phlegm, draw off a weak thous liquor, which suffer to lie a few days, then commit it the still with the aforesaid ingredients, and draw off a proof spirit:

h

B

01

th

Water-park is, at present, the estate of sir Henry

Cavendish, bart.

It was in a part of Clangibbon, in the wood of Sleive grot, that the white knight, towards the end of queen Elizabeth's reign, took the sugan ear of Desmond prisoner; for which the queen gave him a thousand pounds.

fpirit; this spirit highly mends weak cider. Four gallons with two of firep, made of fugar and water (two parts of the former to one of the latter, being diffolved over the fire to the confidence of a firup) is sufficient for an hogshead. Bu if fix gallons of spirit, and three of firup, be added, it wil be a strong wine, which, upon bottling, will emulate canary if two or three fpoonfuls of spirit of clary, with a small lump of loaf fugar, be added to each bottle; for this fpirit, a Ecmuller observes, has a strong citron flavour, very sharp and penetrating, exactly refembling fack in tafte and fmell. The spirit is thus made, take the leaves of clary fresh gathered cut small or bruifed two pounds; brandy three quarts; draw off the spirit in an alembick, pour this spirit on the same quantity of clary, which infuse for a night in the still, we luted, then with a flow fire draw off the spirit. It may no be amis to observe, that none of our made wines come i near to French claret as the fermented juice of black berne with fugar prepared in the common manner of made wines and improved by a cider spirit, hence I conclude, that seve ral wines might be prepared from our own vegetable juices, rich and well flavoured as those we import.

C H A P. VIII,

A Topographical Description of the Liberties of the City of Cork.

James I, by letters patent, dated the 15th of July, ann. regn. 7th, 1609, to remain a diffine county of itself, to be for ever called, the county of the city of Cork; reserving, nevertheless, place for a court-house and gaol, for the county of Cork, in the city. On the 25th of July (1), that year, the bounds (2) of the county of the city of Vol. I. A a Cork

(1) Great Council Book.

11

he

W

ms

of

e to Bu

mp , a

and The red raw ame wel no e for inea

5, 2

th

in

ho

ind

mt

s,

(2) These bounds were determined as follows, viz. three miles on the N. fide of the city, extending from the walls to the river of Awbeg, where it falls into the Lee, over against Carigrohanbeg, on the W. to the heap of stones on the hill by W. Bearna-an-Clynoa, to the highway leading thence to the pound or lough of Blarney, thence to the river by castle of Blarney, as it runneth to the mill of Blarney, which river is called Aw Martin, and northward to the brook or bog, near the lands of Ardamadane and Monefrinagh, which cometh from the bog of Killowen, a little to the N. of the church of Killowen to Almiclohifiny, and thence eastward to the glin or valley between Lifballyenvarig and Ballenvally, now Knockaneieg, to the two long stones called Gowlaneny, now Cloughatooren, and thence to Bealhaftey to the mill of Downbollog, and as the river of Glanmire runneth from thence to the King's channel. The bounds of the liberties, on the S. fide, were determined as follows: To extend three miles to the valley, called Glaunefune, as the brook, which runs through the same, falleth E. into the king's channel, leaving the lands of Ardmore, in the county of Cork, and the lands of Roche's-town, in the county of the city of Cork, to the ford of Ballyenvony, thence to the ford of Ballynreth, a little N. of that caftle, and as the glin runs between the half plowland, betwixt the castle and lands of Trasmyre, parcel of Balynreth aforefaid, thence to the highway through Glasgillan, and west ward to the highway to Lisnugreuf through Culfaltane leaving parcel thereof in the county of Cork, and parcel thereof in the county of the city, thence to the glin of Ballynireftig, leaving the lands thereof without the liberties and the lands of Ballydorny, Coffduff and Rathbearnagh, in the county of the city, and so to the bounds of Killinully without the liberties, and to the glin betwixt Killinully aforesaid, and Rath-mac-Ulick, leaving the lands of the faid Rath-mac-Ulick in the county of the city, thence to the ford of Bialilikie to the highway, dividing Ballydulrig, leaving the lands S. of the highway without the liberties, and the hedge and Shanvalliduhig within the county of the city, thence westward to the valley of Ballygarvane, without the liberties to the ford of Ballinacreny, called Ballenvarig, leaving Ballinacreny within the county of the city, so to the bog betwirt Ballyadam without the liberties; thence to the bog between the lands of Tul-agh and Ballyngromullagh and Ballinacreny aforefaid, and the lands of Killburihine to be within the county of the erty,

Cork were, by fir Dominick Sarsfield, knt. afterwards lord Kilmallock, fir Parr Lane, knt. fir Edward Fitz-Gerald, knt. and other commissioners, fet out and diftinguished from the rest of the county at large.

Carigrohan.

The bridge and castle of Carigrohan, terminate the liberties to the W. on the N. side of the river Lee, and is the shortest distance, in any one place. of the bounds from the city, being no more than two Irish miles; whereas the northern extremity, near the ruins of Carignavar castle, is near twice On the N. side, from the castle of Carias far. grohan to the city, the Lee is bounded by an high hill, which is continued into the baronies of Barrets and Muskery. This side being coarse and hilly, is not so well cultivated as that opposite, which being a fine limestone soil, affords plenteous crops to the industrious farmer. The nature of the soil, on the fouth fide, is a grey clay, mixt with fand, and a limestone bottom, intermixed with an iron coloured flaty stone, which they use in building. The northern part of the liberties is a coarse foil, hilly, and partly covered with rocks of the flaty kind, the earth being mostly a yellow gritty mould, and, in some places, a light clay, which they ma-thence along the bog betwixt Ballingromullagh, Knocknefcagh, Knockinleiragh and Ballymacadam, without the liberties on the S. W. and the lands of Ballynebuollie, Ballentawny and Inskenny, to be within the county of thecity, thence to the mears of the land of the abbey of Ballymacadane, Ballyhoven, Corbally, and Burdenstown without the liberties, leaving Ballynory in the county of the city and the ford of Maglin, without the liberties to Bohernymenane, as the mear goeth betwixt Ballencolly without the liberties northward to the river of Lee. The county of the city of Cork, befides the corporation lands, contains 11 parishes, viz. part of Carrigippane, Rathconny, Killcully, Shandon, St. Finbarrs, part of Carigaline, Inskenny, part of Bullyneboy; Kilnaglory, and Carigrohane; being, in all, 23713 Irish plantation acres. white of courties

Daniel B

nure mostly with lime, brought from Blarney. The river Awbeg falls down from Blarney into the Lee, through a deep and pleasant valley; and at its exit, passes under the bridge of Carigrohan, at a small distance from Mr. O-Bryan's house, which is pleasantly seated between both rivers, having the bridge in front. On the opposite side, Mr. Dunscomb has a beautiful country seat, well wooded on all sides, except the south, from whence there is an agreeable prospect over the adjacent country, the river Lee, city of Cork, and a part of the harbour; this seat is called Mount-desart.

Carigrohan castle, is built on a high precipice, desarts over the river; it was large, and had several out-

1

e

-

h

ts

to

n

d,

n

il,

ty

ld,

12-ire

nef-

er-

W-nce Bal-

ies,

d of

near

rard

Car-

ATTS,

nagntaworks, which were ruined in the wars of 1641; some time after, it became the retreat of one capt. Cape, who, with other ruined companions, robbed passengers, and plundered the neighbouring country; at the entrance of the outward gate, is a very large sycamore tree, whose branches form a circle 90 feet in diameter, and the thickness of the body is very great; a little S. E. of the castle, is a new church, erected upon the ruins of the old one. Here are large plantations of cider fruit, where a confiderable quantity of good cider is made.

In the river Lee, near this castle, are the fresh Pearls water muscle; they lie in the deepest part of the river, sticking in the gravel, on the small end of the shell; the sisherman is naked when he goes to take them, having a small olier in his hand, and in fair sun-shine weather, otherways they cannot be taken; for then only they open their shells, which being observed, he gently guides the end of his small stick between the shells; the fish feeling the stick, shuts them so close, that he easily draws them up. There are frequently found in those muscles a pearl, sometimes as large as a pea, and of a good water, which they fell in Cork for a trifle.

Ballycanon.

Sunday's-

well.

At Ballycanon, is a good house and plantation of Mr. Spread. On the north bank of the river, are feveral pretty improvements, and country houses, of the citizens; and to the N. W. of the city, several houses and pleasant gardens, which form a pretty hamlet, called Sunday's-well, lying on a rifing ground, and command a view of the city and river. Here is a cool refreshing water, which gives name to the place; but it is hard and does not lather with foap; this, together with all the springs on the N. side of the river, issue out of a red stone rock. Here are very great plantations of strawberries, of the largest and finest kind, as the chili, and the hautboy strawberry. The planters of those fruit pay considerable rents for their gardens, by the profits arising from them alone; and they have also great plantations of them round other parts of the city.

The fine tracts of cultivated lands, on both fides the river, have more the air of a garden than a rural prospect; and, in the fine season of the year, presents us with a pleasing account of the goodness of the soil, and industry of the husbandman. The soil is a light brown earth, near eight inches deep. In some places, there are limestone gravel pits, which being used for walks, are of a binding quality.

Although the banks of the Seine and Thames are adorned with magnificent structures, the Lee, far less opulent, and more humble, presents the eye with plain neat houses, small pleasant gardens, and pretty plantations, which begin to rise in proportion as the traffic of the city of Cork increases. The rising grounds, on both sides this river, have, of late, assumed an air of improvement, scarce to be met with out of our sister kingdom. Pity it is, that such a spirit of inclustry does not diffuse itself quite quite through the country; but this we have more than hopes of, from our happy constitution, and the continuance of that peace and ferenity, which providence, of late years, has been pleafed to be-flow on this kingdom. The ftrand, on the N. fide of the river, is a most charming outlet; upon it, is Lota, a pleafant feat, with gardens, plantations and water-works, inhabited by alderman Bradshaw; and near it, the late Joseph Bennet, esq; recorder of Cork, had a pretty villa; also nearer Cork, Mr. John Dennis, merchant, has a good house and neat gardens, with an aviary; the gardens aford a fine view of the harbour and opposite country. Lotamore is a pleasant feat, adorned with plantations; being the effate of Mr. Rogers, not far from the river of Glanmire. Nor ought I to forget a neat garden, and improvement, of Mr. Daniel Voster, with fountains, statues, and canals, and a pretty house seated on an hill, half a mile from the city, having a prospect of Cork, the harbour, and adjacent country. Mr. Voster lettled, several years ago, in Cork, being, by birth, a Dutchman; many of the merchants of the city have been educated by him in writing, arithmetic, and the most regular method of book-keeping; and feveral of them, formerly scholars to Mr. Voster, were to fenfible of his worth, that they gave him an annual public entertainment in the council chamber of the city; a laudable practice, and anciently followed by the old Greeks and Romans to their greatest masters. नं जीका

r

ł

À

On the opposite shore, are several pretty retreats, almost contiguous to each other, too many particularly to mention. On the N. side of the river, the banks are high, and, in some places, inaccessible, composed of a mellow clay, over a slaty rock of various colours, some red, others of a deep purple, and sky colour, used for building.

The

Blackrock.

The castle of the Black-rock was first built by the lord Mountjoy, in the beginning of king James Ist's reign, when the fort of Halbowlin was erected, for the defence of the harbour. In the year 1722, the city expended the fum of 2961. upon this tower, and made a very handsome octagon room in it; from whence, is a delightful prospect of the harbour from passage to Cork. In it, the mayors of Cork hold an admiralty court, being, by feveral charters, appointed admirals of the harbour, which, in the year 1627 (3), was contested with them, by one Edward Champion, for the lord Barry. On the first of August, it is usual for the mayor and corporation to have a public entertainment here, at the charge of the city.

Douglas. Douglas, two miles from Cork, is a neat village, where is a noble manufacture for making failcloth, being the largest in the kingdom, which was begun in 1726, when 40 looms were at first erected; fince which, at different times, there have been confiderable additions made; fo that there are now 100 looms at work, and about 250 persons constantly employed in hackling, bleaching, warping, weaving, &c. and more than 500 spinners, many of whom come above seven miles for work, which occasions a weekly expense of about 60 l. for labour only. There is a magazine for the hemp, yarn, &c. a fine water-mill for pounding the hemp and ashes, and convenient buck-house and bleach-yard, in the middle of which is a large dry-house for the yarn in bad wea-There are houses and gardens for the maiter-workmen, for which they do not pay any rent, and to which the journeymen, who do the best and most work, are promoted when vacancies happen. There has been manufactured, in the two years ending at christmas 1747, 4781 bolts of failcloth,

⁽³⁾ Council book of the city.

cloth, containing 172, 116 yards, worth from 14 to 20d. per yard, a great part of which has been exported, and much esteemed in England; 43 protestants were arrayed out of this little village, who did duty with the rest of the trainbands of the city of Cork in their turn. Thus manufacturers not only bring riches to our country, but also add greatly to its strength, in supporting its conflitution and liberties.

H.

he

es

7 ar on

on

£t he

by 11ed

he

for

er-

ge,

ch

rft

ere

hat

50 ch-

iles of

for

ent

of

ea-

naf-

ent,

æft

ap-

WO

ail-

oth,

Mary-borough, not far from Douglas, is an Mary-bohandsome house, adorned with a cupola, and good rough. plantations of Mr. Richard Newenham, merchant in Cork; a gentleman, who is the largest dealer in Ireland, in the worlted trade; and employs iome thousands, in different parts of this country, in spinning bay yarn, which he exports to Bristol. Not far diftant, is Donnybrook, Mr. Boyle Davis's, Donnya pleasant seat, on a rising ground, in view of the brook. More to the S. flood Caftle-Treasure, now entirely demolished, and said to have been original-Rochbuilt by the Danes. Rochford's-town, two miles ford's-T. W. from the city, on an hill, is a pretty feat and Chetimprovement of Swithin White, efq; Chetwynd, wynd. the feat of Emanuel Pigott, efq; is also a pleasant place, with good gardens, fine canals and waterworks, well stocked with carp. About two miles S. S. W. from Cork, is a celebrated holy well, dedicated to St. Bartholomew. The water gushes out of a flaty rock, through a round hole cut into it, about two feet diameter, and one and a half deep; it is walled and covered with an arch of stone; there is an avenue of large sycamore trees leading to the well. They relate feveral ftories of miraculous cures having been performed by this water, particularly on the person who planted the avenue, and walled the well round, whose name was Gallant, and who, they fay, received his fight by the use of this water. There is a flagstone set up, on which is a cross, with an inscription, importing, that David Fox got the use of his limb by bathing in it. It is still much frequented of St. Bartholomew's day, and the evening before by an infinite number of Romish devotees, who flock to it out of devotion, and for the cure of for eyes, pains in the limbs, &c. It is a pleafant, foft fweet water, lathers immediately with foap; but could not discover any other appearance, from whence it might receive its healing virtues.

Bishops

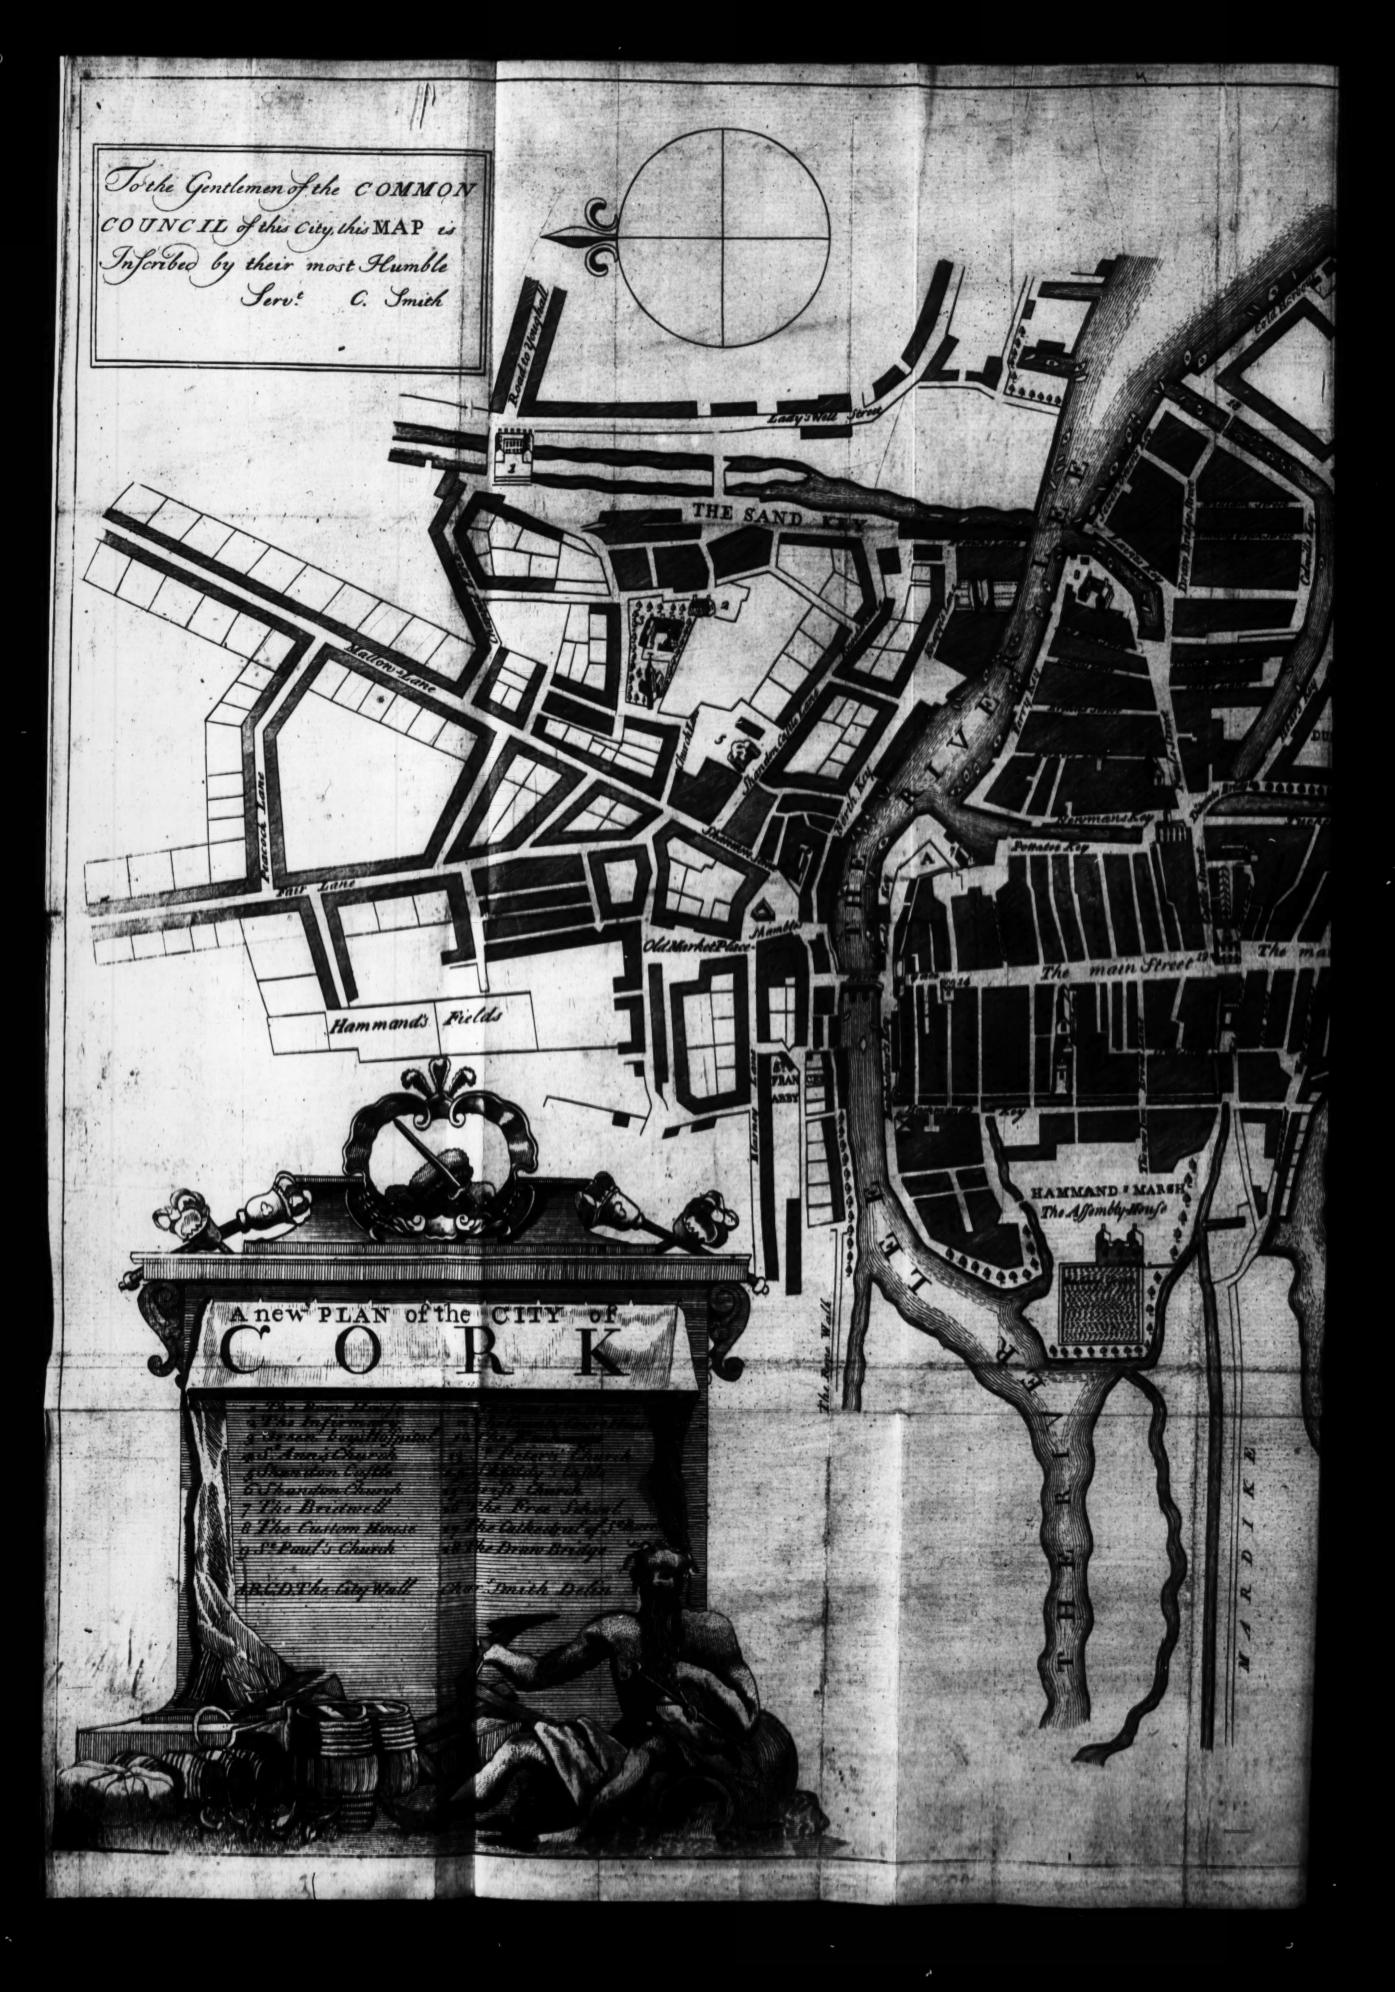

Ballynaspig, i. e. Bishops-town, two miles W of the city, is a neat house and chapel, built by Dr. Peter Browne, late lord bishop of Cork, upor which he expended upwards of 2000 l. He buil this house for a summer retreat, and left it to his fuccessors, free from any charge; as he did his improvements at Bishops court, in Cork, of a confiderable value, M. Hoord and Ga. Insilin the tol Salmon weirs.

Nearer to the city, are large weirs, croffing the river Lee, for taking falmon, which obstructs them from funning much higher up; otherways they would be equally plenty in feveral of the other rivers that join the Lee, Thefe wein were first erected by the monks of Gill-abbey, and granted, with the possessions of that house, to the first earl of Cork. The river, nearer Cork, divides itself into two main branches, washing the city at the N. and S. fides. There is also fmaller stream, which runs through the middle of the town, built over in most places. This division of the Lee, is well described by Spenser, in his Fairy Queen, in the episode of the marriage of the Thames and Medway, where he introduces feveral of our Irish rivers, in so just a manner, that this line of Horace may aptly be applied to that celebrated poet.

Liquidus puroque fimillimus Amni.

Lib. 2. Epod. 2.

CHAP. IX. HISTORY of CORK.

There also was the wide embayed Maire,
The pleasant Bandon crown'd with many a wood,
The spreading Lee, that like an island fair,
Encloseth Cork with his divided flood.

Cant. 11. Book IV.

The Maire bounds this county to the S. W. and the noble epithet of wide embayed Maire, is as just as it is elegant; nor has time much altered that of our Bandon river. The Lee was, in former times much deeper in the south channel than of late is that being the side most frequented by version but now the north channel is, by far, the desire; these changes have happened by the alteration of the weirs. Salmon is here never out of season; so that the old verse may be justly applied to this river.

Salmo non æstate novus nec frigore desit.

were erected a well itemay and

Salmon, in winter, is not rare; In furnmer, we have fome to spare.

CHAP. IX.

The present State of the City of Cork, its ancient and modern Names, Situation, Extent, Churches, Hospitals, Abbeys, public Buildings, Schools and other Foundations, Government, Officers, Courts, Franchises and Privileges, Companies, Militia, Arms, &c.

THE ancient name given to this city, by the Name. Irish, was Corcach (1), and Corcach Bascoin, which

⁽¹⁾ Colgan quotes an anonimous writer of the life of St. Cadroc (Abbatis Valfiodorenfis) supposed to be wrote about which fignify a marshy place; and the harbour, by the old Irish, was called Bealagh Conliach.

^{*} Act. Sanct. V. 1. p. 494.

First in-

The earliest and most probable account of the habitants. first planting of a town here, is given by the writer of the life of St. Nessan, a disciple of St. Finbarr, to whom the building the cathedral church of this city is attributed. He fays, "St. Nessan " was educated under St. Barr, at a school or mo-" nastery, founded by that bishop, at Lough Eirc, " to which, as the habitation of wisdom, and the " fanctuary of all christian virtues, such numbers " of disciples flocked from all parts, that it chang-" ed a desert, as it were, into a large (2)." The death of this St. Nessan happened, according to the annals of the four mafters (3), in the year 551. If this be true, St. Finbarr, who was his preceptor, must be placed almost an hundred years earlier than fir James Ware fays he lived, who makes him flourish in the 7th century.

Although this account feems to bid fair for the first settlement of this city, on the south side of the river, where the cathedral and the abbey, called Gill-abbey, were erected; yet it may not contra-dict the received opinion of this city's having been founded by the Danes, and enclosed by them with walls.

t

t

t

0

a

tł

li ar

a

in ta of

an

A

do

the

pre

of

lav

ly;

hin

25

the year 1040, which deduces the origin of some of the Irish from a city of Asia Minor, on the river Pactolus, called Choriscon, whose inhabitants made a migration, in order to settle in Thrace, but, by many storms and other accidents, some of them (equally fabulous as they are miraculous, which the author pretends to describe) at last were thrown on Ireland where they feized on feveral cities, among others on Corcach a city of the Mumienses or Munstermen; they called them felves Corischii, and the country Corischia. This, says Col gan, was many years before christianity arrived here; bu this whole relation has fo much the air of a fable, that w cannot impose it as any other upon our readers.

⁽²⁾ Colgan Act. Sanct. p. 607. (3) Colgan Trias Thaun p. 186.

CHAP. IX. HISTORY of CORK.

e

S

g

is

d

d,

he he

ed

ra-

en ith

lls.

rifh ho

ettle

ome

1 the

and

hem

Col

bu

at W

haun

walls, about the middle of the 9th century, who, at the same time, founded several other maritime towns, as Waterford, Limerick, &c. where they continued till after the English conquest. And we find, the cantreds of the Oftmen or Danes excepted out of the grants made by king Henry II. to Cogan and Fitz-Stephen of the kingdom of Cork. These Ostmen being settled in an enemy's country, and exposed to their attacks, as every misfortune forces mankind to think of a remedy, they found it necessary to wall their towns, which procured them fecurity and wealth. Thus, among the Greeks, those who lay most exposed to insults, were most open to trade. Cholcis, Corinth and Mycene, were the first opulent cities after the isles; riches foon produced subordination and inhabitants, the less powerful being contented to put themselves under their protection; and those, on the other hand, were glad of numbers for carrying on their affairs. The first sketches of their policy and laws were very simple, and had their rise from the necessities of the times, and the rude way of life then prevailing. The great law of hospitality, among the old Irish, as well as the Danes, made a principal part of their institution: And Aristotle informs us, that to violate a stranger, who had taken fanctuary under one's roof, had participated of one's table, or fat down at one's fire, was made among the Greeks, the most detestable impiety. Among the old Irish, a stranger had no more to do in order to introduce himself, than to sit by the fire, and put off his brogues, which cuftom is preserved to this day in the more uncivilized part of this country; fuch a person was entitled to the laws of hospitality, and reckoned one of the family; and if a fecond stranger came in, he took upon him to bid him welcome, with as much freedom as if he was mafter of the house.

te C

0 ai ſe

ca

in 12

on

He

.

T

ith

Dul ti

t

Pd

(5

(6

bod

he

erfo refe

e cr her e fr

ey o

The Danes, during their first fetling in the country, equally enriched themselves by traffic, piracy, and making descents upon foreign countries. Piracy, in the early ages of the world, was not accounted fo infamous as at prefent. Homer reprefents Neftor entertaining Telemachus and his company, very honourably, in his house; and after the repast, asking them, whether they were merchants.-

Η ΜΑΨΙΔΙΩΣ ΑΛΑΛΗΣΟΕ, ΟΙΑ ΤΕ ΛΗΙΣΤΗΡΕΣ:

- Or do you rove uncertain - Odyf. III. As being robbers? ---

Cork lies mostly on a marshy island, surrounded Situation. by the river Lee, that about ten miles below the city, discharges itself into the ocean, which renders it a most considerable port for commerce. And the industrious inhabitants have so improved their situation, and enlarged it with elegant buildings, particularly within these last forty or fifty years, that, after Dublin, it may now justy challenge the fecond place in this kingdom, and be called the Briftol of a principal r

Ireland (4).

The

(4) This city is very different from what it was when Cambden described it in queen Elizabethe's time. "It is, says " he, of an oval form, inclosed with walls, and encompas-" fed with the channel of the river, which also croffes it, " and is not accessible but by bridges, lying along, as it " were, in one direct street, with a bridge over it: It is a " populous little trading town, and much reforted to; but

" fo befet with rebel enemies on all fides, that they are o " bliged to keep constant watch as if the town was continual "! ly befieged, and dare not marry out their daughters into

"the country, but contract one with another among them " felves, whereby all the citizens are related, in some degree " or other." Cambden adds, "that Brife, the religious perior

" who flourished among the Gauls, and from whom the di-" ocef

II.

1-

S.

cen-

er

T-

.

II.

ed

ers

he

u-rit,

of

ha

nen

ays

af-

it,

it

a

but

0 al

nto

m ior

di

cef

The principal part first fortified by a wall was on Walls,&c. the marshy island above mentioned. The walls are faid to be repaired by king John, but were originally built by the Danes, long before the arrival of the English. Cork was originally built in the form of an oblong fquare; the length of which was from the N. gate to the S. gate, and its breadth from the city wall, on the W. marsh, to that parallel to it which faced the E. marsh; this wall had an interruption towards the middle, at the lower end of Castle-street, called Martin-gate, defended to the N. by a strong castle, which stood near the scite. of the new market-house called the Queen's-castle; and within the walls, on the ground where the prefent county court-house is built, stood another castle, called the King's castle. The former, was subsisting n the reign of king James I. and the latter, was aken down in the year 1718, and houses built on the ground. This castle was granted, by king Henry VIII (5), to William Coppinger, mayor (6) ocess of Sambrisk in Armorica, commonly called St. Brien, takes its name, was born and bred in this town."

This city, an hundred and 20 years ago, was much less than ither Waterford or Limerick. Stanihurst, after reckoning up Jublin, Waterford, and Limerick, thus proceeds *, "Quarta Hiberniæ urbs Corcagia dicitur ceteris minor, portu tamen excellenti & tuto est ornata. Hic etiam cives, copiis satis locupletes, operam mercaturæ navant, res suas domi forisq; frugaliter obeant."

(5) Charter dated March 11, 28 Hen. VIII. anno 1537.

(6) Here the mayors were anciently chosen; the old medod of which, as I find it in a council book, was as follows: he mayor and two sheriffs made choice each man of three rions out of the council, being nine in all, who, with the rient mayor and sheriffs made 12. These 12 went into ecastle, and there continued till they made choice of three her persons out of the common council, to be offered to refreemen as candidates for the mayoralty, one of whom by elected by votes; in case of disagreement of the 12 men till 12 o'clock at night, the mayor and sheriffs made choice, ^{*} Stanihurst de Reb. Hibernic- Antwerp, 1583.

of Cork, and his successors, who were to have the keeping and overseeing of the same, till it was otherways disposed of, by letters patent; but I do not find it ever was, except that by king Charles Ist's charter, a part of it was reserved for holding the affizes for the county of Cork.

To the fouth of this castle, at the lower end of Christ-church-lane, stood a strong tower, on the city wall, called the Hopewell; from whence I do not find any other till the S. E. angle of the wall, where there was a fmall tower; and from thence to the S. gate, there was no fortification. Both the N. and S. gates were defended by old caftles, one at each end of the bridge. From the S. gate to the S. W. angle, was a tower about midway, and one at that angle. The water-gate was defended by a fmall old caftle, between which and the N. W. angle, stood the belfry of faint Peter's church, taken down and rebuilt, anno 1683. From hence to the N. W. angle, is one small tower still remaining, and another at that angle; whence the wall ran, without any fortification, till it came to the N. gate, defended by a castle at each end of the bridge, as before mentioned. There was also a round tower on the strand, near the N. bridge; between which and the Queen's-caftle, were two small towers, all which are exactly delineated in a sketch of this city, given us in Pacata Hibern. which I take to be correct, as it agrees with other accounts, and with what remain of their walls at present.

Anno

b

V

d

P

ha

tic

wh

obi

tim

mai

deri

qua

are f

Pike

calle

Mir.

A

next day, of three more, and proceeded as before, upon a choice of three persons to be candidates to the freemen so the place of mayor. This was changed by a by-law of the corporation, made June the 10th, 1678, that the mayor and sheriffs, as formerly, should chuse three persons, who were to retire, as before, to the castle; and if they disagreed unt 12 at night, the mayor was next day, at 10 o'clock, to ca a council, the majority of which were to agree on three persons to be on the election for mayor.

Anno 1706, a great part of the city walls being in a ruinous condition, there was an order of council to have feveral of the breaches stopped, and all the stairs leading thereto taken down; and the same year, a great part of the city wall, facing the east marsh, was taken down accordingly.

8

.

-

f

e

0

l,

9

h

S,

te

y,

he

r's

3.

all

e:

till

at

ere N.

le, eli-

ata

ees

refe

nnd

no n fo

fth

ane

wer

unt

o ca

per

On the 14th of October, 1633, the N. bridge Bridges. of this city, and the castle thereon fell down, by a great flood in the river, and the remainder of it was taken down, together with the wall, called Lombard's-wall, May 23d 1635. Anno 1639, I find an order of council for making a new wooden bridge at the N. end of the town. Anno 1676, the S, bridge was rebuilt by the corporation; and anno 1678, by order of lord Shannon, governor of the city, there were draw-bridges made on both the N. and S. bridges. Anno 1712, the wooden bridge, at the N. end of the city, was taken down, and a fair bridge erected in its place; the piers, arches and butments being faced with hewn stone.

The following year, the wooden bridge on the S. end of the city was also taken down; and a handsome stone bridge (7) erected, at the corporation cliarge, in its room.

This

(7) There are several other bridges over the many canals which run through this city, the fituations of which may be observed on the ground plan; I shall only here mention the times of their being erected.

Tucky's bridge was built from Tucky's quay to the east

marsh, by capt. Dunscomb, anno 1699.

The wooden bridge was built on Dunscomb's marsh, by alderman Crone, anno 1728.

Anno 1731, the bridge on Hamand's marsh, leading to the quakers meeting-house, was erected; and on the same canal are feveral other small bridges.

In Sept. 1732, the large bridge between Hamand's and Pike's marsh was erected; which last marsh, with the quay called Pike's quay, were then filled up, and built upon, by Mr. Joseph Pike, anno 1718.

8

Fortifica-

This town being only defended by the above mentioned walls and round towers, was never a place of any confiderable strength, especially since the modern method of belieging places was in use Yet it made a refistance of five days, against a regular army, in September 1690, when it was befieged by the earl of Marlborough. The garrison. confifting of 4500 men, furrendered on michaelmas-day, and were made prisoners of war. This ftrength of the garrison, the belieger's want of heavy cannon, and the situation of the place (being furrounded by water) all contributed to make it hold out fo long: but the rifing grounds, on both fides, fo command it, that the best engineer in Europe could never make it a place of much strength.

In the beginning of king James Ist's reign, this city rebelled, set up the mass, and was besieged by sir Charles Willmot and sir George Thornton, commissioners of Munster, but opened the gates to the lord deputy Mountjoy, being not able to make any resistance; and upon this occasion, the fort, on the S. side of the town, called Elizabeth's fort, was rebuilt as a citadel, to curb the insolence of the citizens for the future; which work was a square fortification, with four regular bastions. On that side of the river, was also another small work, called the Cat-fort; but this was never of much importance.

Shandon castle.

On the N. fide of the city, flood Shandon-caffle, built by the Barrys, foon after the conquest, or, as some say, by king John. In it, the lords presidents of Munster, and the itinerant judges, often held courts of gaol delivery for this county. This castle is now quite demolished.

Skiddy's castle.

Skiddy's-caftle was built, anno 1445, by John Skiddy, who was, that year, bailiff of the city, and afterwards mayor. His descendants live in France, where they have acquired a good estate.

. Intho: Chearnloy gen: Burnt Court Delin.

1 The Exchange. 2 The Cathedral.

3 Christ Church.

5 South Gate.

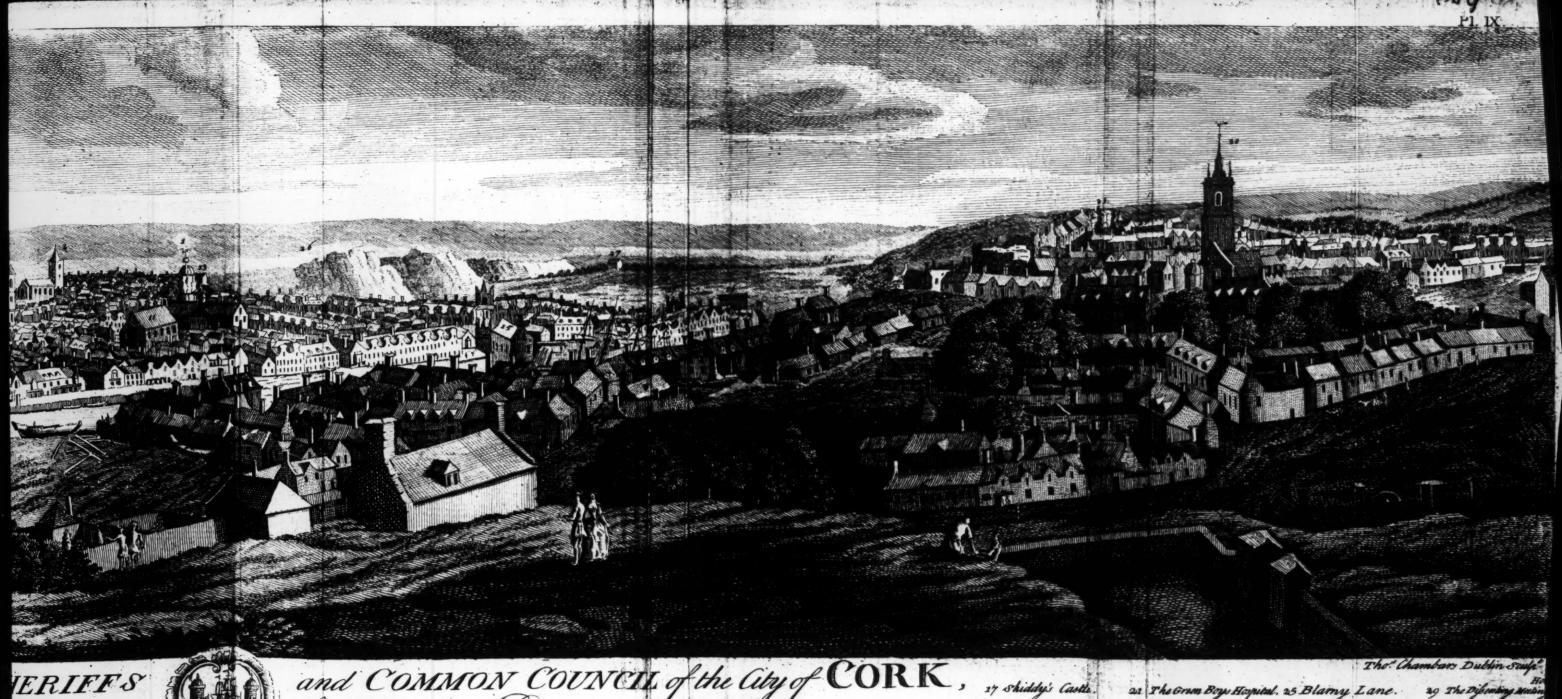

9 Red Albey 13 The Bishop's Palace. 10 The Custom House. 14 S. Peter's Church.

6 The Barnacks.

7 S. Nicholas's Church. 11 S. Pauls thurch. 15 The Bridewell.

4 The Fort otherwise y Cat. & The Blue Boye Hospital. 12, The Market House. 16 North Gate.

To the R' Worshipful the MAYOR, SHERIFFS This Kiew of that City from the North, is Inscribed and COMMON COUNCIL of the City of CORK, by their most Devoted humble Sent Ch. Smith.

10 The Salmon Weir.

19 Shandon Carde in Ruins

24 The Infirmary. 23 The Mass House.

26 Gillabbay. 30 The Reap Mar. 27 Red Howe & West Mark Walk & Cold Harbon 32 Sunday's Well

20 S. Anne's. 24 Mallow Lane.

20 The Draw Bridge.

CHAP. IX. HISTORY of CORK.

This castle is rented by the crown from the earl of Burlington, and is used as a magazine for gunpowder.

Formerly the suburb, on the S. side of the river, was better built, and more occupied, than that on the N. side: on the contrary, of late years, this last has got the advantage of the other in largeness and number of houses, occasioned partly by the channel on the N. side growing deeper, and by a much greater intercourse of people to it, as it lies open to the greatest part of the kingdom. But the chief enlargement of this city has been, within these sew years, by draining the marshes, and building several fair streets thereon; so that it is now above thrice as large as it was 40 years ago, and its commerce has also increased in proportion.

The air of this city (8) is indifferently clear and healthy, refreshed, in summer, by the gentle Vot. I. B b breezes

(8) The following description of the city, in respect to its situation, air, and diseases, is taken from Dr. Rogers's estay on the endemical diseases thereof, p. 36, 37, &c.

"The city of Cork is built upon islands, surrounded by several branches of the river Lee, in their own nature marshy, which were overslowed by the spring tides, till the ground was raised by art: It is situated in a deep valley, where the most of the marshes, both to the E and W are constantly covered by the overslowing of the spring tides; and, in the interim, putrid vapours are exhaling from thence. Continued ridges of hills bound this vale to the north and south, on which the suburbs are built.

Besides this situation, the great quantities of sith, animal offals, acc. that desile the streets, render it unwholesome." To which the doctor attributes the origin of the endemical epidemic disorders, that raged in this city, at the time of his publishing his work. "The inhabitants, he says, during the summer months, are necessitated to use unwholesome, soul and corrupted water. During the slaughtering season, the meaner fort live mostly upon animal offals; which occasions much mischief, by a sudden transition from a diet of another kind: The saughtering season begins in August, and contibreezes from the feveral canals in and about it; and moderated, in winter, by the warm steams and vapours which ascend from the same.

The city on the S. fide, being limestone ground, is but indifferently supplied with good water. On

the

t

S

fo

a

k

p

fi

Ir

1

th

ni

of 6.

9.

laf

rei

Id

as

for

Tri

Dil

gre

He

this feve

n t nues till January; and between those terms it is that the violence of our endemics is concluded." The doctor has noticed,

"that in the space of 24 years, an epidemic sever has appeared three several times, in a very singular manner. He first observed it anno 1708; the years 1718, 1719, 1720, 1721, were remarkable for the same disorder, during the aforesaid months; but it then began to dwindle in its effects;
and, by degrees, totally disappeared: during the above space
of time, dysenteries and a flow construent small pox appeared;
from 1721 to 1728, severs were but little heard of; but from thence to 1731, each winter was notorious for sluxes, and the latter winter for the small pox. The spring of 1728, was more than commonly stormy; and about the vernal equinox, happened the greatest inundation ever known in the memory
of man."

Beside the abovementioned causes, the doctor adds others, viz. "Our situation in a part of the kingdom, upon the edge of the great Atlantic ocean, our trade winds W. and S. W. blowing from thence three parts in sour of the year, so that we are almost perpetually wrapped up, and drenched in those warm watery sleeces, which are constantly detached from its surface. This connate disposition of the air, he says, must relax its spring, and abate its gravity; from which united cause will arise, a relaxed tone of the animal sibres, and a consequent lentor of all the juices; by this means, the morbid effluvia have a free admission into our blood, and, in conjunction with the other, lay the foundation of all the epidemic difeases incident to our climate."

The diseases of this climate, notwithstanding the above note, are really as few as in most countries in the world; these causes subsist annually, and yet we are not one year in seven visited with epidemical disorders, which must annually happen if these were the principal causes that produce them; and it will be really found, upon comparison of the bills of mortality of this city with that of other places, allowing ceteris paribus for the number of inhabitants, that this city is as wholesome as most others, it being washed every 12 hours by the tide of flood, which keeps it sweet and clean; and also prevents that stagnation of the air and vapours, which would otherways happen.

the N. fide, there are fome good springs; but the generality of the inhabitants use that of the river Lee, taken up at low water, which, it must be confessed, is far from being of the purest kind.

In this city, besides the cathedral, are the Churches churches of St. Mary Shandon, and St. Anne in the N. suburb. Christ-church, St. Peter's, and St. Paul's, within the city; and on the S. side, St. Nicholas's church. Besides which; there were formerly on that side a church dedicated to St Mary of the Spicknard, and St. John's.

e,

e

e

n

13

ť,

s,

ne

d

ed

ed

3, ni-

a

n-

ed;

in

lly m;

of

te-

25

by

uld

There were anciently eleven parish churches in and about Cork, as appears from a paragraph in king Edward IVth's charter, for which the citizens paid 24 marks yearly to the crown; but upon confideration that the said churches were destroyed by Irish rebels, and intestine wars, which continued 15 years, occasioning great decay and poverty in the city, these 24 marks were remitted to the citizens. This charter was granted, anno 1462.

These churches were, 1. St. Mary Shandon.
2. St. Catherine. 3. St. Brendan, all on the N.
of the river. 4. Christ-church. 5. St. Peter.
6. St. John. 7. St. Nicholas. 8. St. Bridget.
9. St. Mary Nard. 10. St. Stephen. These five last on the S. side of the river. And 11. St. Laurence's chapel, near S. gate. Besides St. Finbarr's. Ido not reckon those of St. Anne, and St. Paul, as they were since built.

The cathedral, dedicated to St. Finbarr (9), was Cathedral founded by that faint, in the 7th century. Gilla

B b 2

(9) The life of faint Finbarr may be feen in the library of Trinity college, Dublin, MSS. 37. and begins thus, Sanctus Dilectus, &c. The name Fin-barr, literally fignifies white or grey-headed; his real name was Lachan, being so baptized. He was a native of Conaught, and having sat 17 years in this see, died at Cloyne, in the midst of his friends; his bones several years after were deposited in a silver shrine, and kept a this cathedral.

According

₿

breezes from the feveral canals in and about it; and moderated, in winter, by the warm steams and vapours which ascend from the same.

The city on the S. fide, being limestone ground, is but indifferently supplied with good water. On

the

BOOK II.

nues till January; and between those terms it is that the violence of our endemics is concluded." The doctor has noticed,
" that in the space of 24 years, an epidemic sever has appeared three several times, in a very singular manner. He first observed it anno 1708; the years 1718, 1719, 1720, 1721, were remarkable for the same disorder, during the aforesaid months; but it then began to dwindle in its effects;
and; by degrees, totally disappeared: during the above space
of time, dysenteries and a slow constuent small pox appeared;
from 1721 to 1728, severs were but little heard of; but from thence to 1731, each winter was notorious for sluxes, and the latter winter for the small pox. The spring of 1728, was more than commonly stormy; and about the vernal equinox,
happened the greatest inundation ever known in the memory
of man."

Beside the abovementioned causes, the doctor adds others, viz. "Our situation in a part of the kingdom, upon the edge of the great Atlantic ocean, our trade winds W. and S. W. blowing from thence three parts in four of the year, so that we are almost perpetually wrapped up, and drenched in those warm watery sleeces, which are constantly detached from its surface. This connate disposition of the air, he says, must relax its spring, and abate its gravity; from which united cause will arise, a relaxed tone of the animal sibres, and a consequent sentor of all the juices; by this means, the morbid effluvia have a free admission into our blood, and, in conjunction with the other, lay the foundation of all the spide-

mic difeases incident to our chimate."

The diseases of this climate, notwithstanding the above note, are really as few as in most countries in the world; these causes subsist annually, and yet we are not one year in seven visited with epidemical disorders, which must annually happen if these were the principal causes that produce them; and it will be really found, upon comparison of the bills of mortality of this city with that of other places, allowing ceteris paribus for the number of inhabitants, that this city is as wholesome as most others, it being washed every 12 hours by the tide of flood, which keeps it sweet and clean; and also prevents that stagnation of the air and vapours, which would otherways happen.

for ry ari

Ć

th

co

ch th

St

St

pa fid Iri

ki

the tiz

of 6. 9.

laff rer I d as

for

Tri Dill gre He this

feve in t the N. fide, there are forme good fprings; but the generality of the inhabitants use that of the river Lee, taken up at low water, which, it must be confessed, is far from being of the purest kind:

In this city, belides the cathedral, are the Churches churches of St. Mary Shandon, and St. Anne in the N. fuburb. Christ-church, St. Peter's, and St. Paul's, within the city; and on the S. fide; St. Nicholas's church. Befides which; there were formerly on that fide a church dedicated to St Mary of the Spicknard, and St. John's.

There were anciently eleven parish churches in and about Cork, as appears from a paragraph in king Edward IVth's charter, for which the citizens paid 24 marks yearly to the crown; but upon confideration that the faid churches were destroyed by Irish rebels, and intestine wars, which continued 15 years, occasioning great decay and poverty in the city, these 24 marks were remitted to the cinizens. This charter was granted, anno 1462.

These churches were, 1. St. Mary Shandon. 2. St. Catherine. 3. St. Brendan, all on the N. of the river. 4. Christ-church. 5. St. Peter. 6. St. John. 7. St. Nicholas. 8. St. Bridget. 9. St. Mary Nard, 10. St. Stephen. These five last on the S. side of the river. And II. St. Lanrence's chapel, near S. gate. Besides St. Finbarr's. Ido not region these of St. Anne, and St. Paul,

as they were fince built,

1

8

d

d · d

.

2 pa (4

1111

.

5 n

y.

of

2-25

The cathedral, dedicated to St. Finbarr (9), was Cathedral founded by that faint, in the 7th century. Gilla to Marcel 2 d &6, heing

According

or rember in (9) The life of faint Finbarr may be feen in the library of Trinity college, Dublin, MSS. 37. and begins thus, Sanctus Dilectus, &c. The name Fin-barr, literally fignifies white or grey-headed; his real name was Lachan, being to baptized. He was a native of Conaught, and having fat 17 years in this fee, died at Cloyne, in the midft of his friends; his bones everal years after were deposited in a silver shrine, and kept in this cathedral,

BOOK II. Æda O-Mugin, bishop of Cork, from whom Gillabbey has its name, fucceffor to St. Finbarr, and also Gregory and Reginald, are enumerated among the principal benefactors to this church, which, by length of time, fell greatly to decay and ruin. In the year 1725, this church was taken down in order to be rebuilt, and was finished, anno 1735, when divine fervice was again performed therein. Some years ago, an ancient round tower food in the church-yard, a little detached from the church. The expence of this building was defrayed by a parliamentary tax of 1s. per tun laid on all coals and culm, confumed within the city of Cork (10)

According to Keating, there were no less than feven Irish faints diftinguished by the name of Bairsion, of whom our faint was the chief: It is faid, that in his convent were 17 prelates confrantly refiding, and 700 of the clergy.

Giraldus Cambrensis, in the 49th chap, of his ad book De Mirabilibus Hibernia, gives us the following legend of this faint, "A certain knight had feized some of the bishop's " land, and had already fowed it with barley; the bishop came to him, and adjured him, in the name of God and all the faints, to deliver up the land; which being refused, he " prayed, with tears, that his feed which he had fown might " never come to harvest; which accordingly happened, to the great admiration of the whole city; for it did not even " shoot out of the earth. Next year, the bishop's people "fowed wheat there, and in the harvest they reaped fine barley; the wheat not coming up until the harvest follow-" ing.

(10) By Mr. Richard Fenton's account, who collected the duty on coals applied to the building the cathedral, Christ-church, and the Work-house, there was received, from November, 1719, to November, 1726, being seven years, 1794 l. and from the first of November to March the 3d, 1229, being three years and five months, 999b 14s, the duty being is. per tun, making each year communibus ann. 2561. 5s. 8d. by which computation, there feems to be about 6000 tuns of coal burned in this city yearly; smounting to about 16 tuns and a half each day, and 500 tuns a menth, which may be supplied by 150 thips, being, one with another, 40 tuns; there are also great quantities of turf confumed here.

1

1

P

n

hi

to

it is built of the doric order, and hath a very handfome Venetian window to the chancel. There is a defign of adding a new steeple, and of raising a portico on the W. end of the church. On either fide of the W. entrance, are the veftry-room, and bishop's (11) consistory court. In this church, is a good an a terrolica a Las riento

(11) The following is a catalogue of the bishops of this cathedral.

St. Barr, or Finbarr, flourished about 630. We have but flender accounts of his fuccessors till the arrival of the English; the following are mentioned by our historians.

St. Neffan, whose death Colgan * places anno 551; if so, he could not be a disciple of St. Finbarr, or else St. Finbarr must be placed much earlier.

Russin, comorban or successor of St. Bar, died in 685.

Selbac, died in 773. Cathmogan, died in 961.

II.

ill-

ind

ong

by

In

or-35,

in.

in ch.

2

als

0)

It

ifh

UF

17

)e

is o's

P

ie

hr

to.

n

e

e

e

,

Columb Mac-Carucain, called comorban of St. Bar, died in 990. Cellach O-Selbae, died in pilgrimage, ann. 1026.

Niel O-Mailduib, died in 1027-

Airtri Szirt, died in 1028.

Cathal, died in 1934.

Mugron O-Mutan, was murdered by robbers, in 1057. Maclothod O-Hailgenen, died in 1107.

Patrick O-Selbac, died in 1111.

About the year 1140, a certain poor man, a foreigner, was, by Malachy, archbishop of Armagh, promoted to this fee, with the approbation and applause of all the clergy, and people.

Gilla-Æda O-Mugin, fat in 1152, he died in 1172; from him Gill-abbey has its name.

Gregory succeeded in 1172, died in 1186, Reginald, time of his succession uncertain.

O-Selbaic, died in 1205.

Geffry White, was recommended to this fee by king Henry III. about the year 1215.

Maurice, or Marian O-Brien, was translated from hence to Cashel, ann. 1224.

Gilbert, archdeacon of Cork, confecrated in 1225; he died in 1238.

Lawrence, died in 1264.

Trias Thaum. p. 186.

₿

good organ; here are also choristers and singing boys. The stalls seats and throne, are neatly finished.

William of Jerepont succeeded in 1266.

Reginald, treasurer of Cashel, succeeded in 1267, and died in 1276.

Robert or Richard Mac-Donough, a ciftertian monk, succeeded in 1277, and died in 1301.

John Mac-Carwill fucceeded in 1302, refigned in 1321, being translated to Cashel.

Philip of Slane succeeded in 1321, and died in 1326. John Le Blond, dean of Cloyne, was elected in 1326, but it is not known whether he was confecrated.

Walter le Rede, or Rufus, succeeded in 1327, and in 1330

was translated to Cashel.

John de Balinconingham succeeded in 1330, and died in 1347.

John Roche, canon of this cathedral, succeeded in 1347, and died in 1358.

Gerald de Barry succeeded in 1359, and died, aged 90, in 1393.

Roger Elesmeer succeeded in 1306, and died in 1406.

Patrick Ragged refigned in 1477; he affifted at the general council of Constance in 1415 and 1416, where he acquired great reputation.

Milo Fitz-John fucceeded in 1418, and died in 1430.

Anno 1430, the fees of Cork and Cloyne were united by pope Martin V.

Jordan succeeded to those two sees, and fat in them about 30 years.

Gerald Fitz-Gerald succeeded him, and died in 1479. William Roche succeeded in 1479, resigned in 1490. Thady Mac-Carty succeeded in 1490.

Gerald fucceeded and refigned in 1499.

John Fitz-Edmund Fitz-Gerald succeeded in 1499.

John Bennet, or Ferret, died in 1536.

Dominick Tirrey succeeded in 1536, and died in 1556. Roger Skiddy succeeded in 1557; he refigned in 1566, and the see was vacant sour years.

Richard Dixon succeeded in 1570, and was deprived in 1571

Matthew Sheyn succeeded 1572, and died in 1582.

William Lyon succeeded in 1583, and died in 1617; in 1582, he was consecrated bishop of Ross; and, the year following, obtained those of Cork and Clayne.

ed, and well disposed. This being a new church, there are no monuments of antiquity, or other inscriptions worth inserting here.

The church and parish of faint Mary Shandon, St. Mary with that of faint Catherine annexed, which last Shandon. has been long fince demolished, are in the N. suburbs. This church had the additional name of Shandon, being erected near Shandon castle, to distinguish it from St. Mary de Narde, which stood on the S. side of the river, where the old barrack now stands.

Over the W. door of this church, on a stone, is this infeription in gold letters,

Ad Edificandum Templum Hoc Quantulum est Agri Donum Parochiæ Sanctæ Mariæ de Shandon Dedit Nobilissimus Dominus, Henricus vicecomes Sydney Hyberniæ Prorex. An. Domini MDCXCIII. Cujus Memoriæ in Æternum floreat, This, Rugler Seasons edite en unit och to a This, Bishops of Cork, Cloyne, and Ross, united by letters patent of queen Elizabeth, the 17th of March, 1 486 John Boyle succeeded to those sees in 1618, and died in 1620.

II.

1-

d,

ed

C-

1, ıt

Q

n

,

1

t

Richard Boyle succeeded in 1620, and in 1638 was transla-

William Chappel succeeded in 1638, and died in 1649. Michael Boyle, dean of Cloyne, fucceeded upon the reftoration of king Charles II. in 1660. He was translated to Dublin, in 1663, and from thence to Armagh, in 1678.

Edward Synge succeeded in 1663, and died in 1678. From the death of this prelate, the fee of Cloyne hath been feparated from Cork and Rofs.

Bishops of Cork and Ross. Edward Wetenhall, fucceeded in 1678, and was, in 1600, Dive Downes fucceeded in 1699, and died in 1709. translated to Kilmore and Ardagh.

is

ft

fe

b

ci

in

v:

A

P

in

Ca

hi

in

F

R

of

B

T

A

This is a neat parish church (12) with two windows in the east end, good pews, galleries, &c. Here are early service and facrament the second sunday in every month.

The church of St. Anne was begun to be built, upon the old foundation where St. Mary Shandon flood, anno 1722, and is to be made a diffinct parish, on the demise or removal of the present incumbent. It was erected by a subscription, and

Peter Brown, D. D. succeeded in 1709, and died in 1735. Robert Clayton, D. D. succeeded in 1735, being translated from Killalla to those sees, and from hence to Clogher.

Jemmet Brown, D. D. succeeded in 1745, and was in 1772 translated to Elphin.

Isaac Mann, D. D. succeeded in 177-2, and is the present

lord bishop of Cork and Ross.

(12) Among other legacies bequeathed to the poor of this parish, Mr. William Masters, of this city, left 30l. per annum to be employed as follows, 16l. to be distributed to eight protestant tradesmen, who can have two credible neighbours to certify their being careful industrious men; and that they believe 40s. may assist them, so as to keep them above want, and enable them to carry on their trades, at the discretion of the treasurer of the green-coat hospital, and the minister of this parish. The sum of 10l. to be employed yearly in matching two protestant servant maids to protestant tradesmen, and every such couple to be encouraged the first year with 40s. as a needy family; the remaining 4l. a year he bequeathed to the green coat hospital for ever. Mr. Daniel Thresher, by act of parliament being one of the trustees of the green-coat hospital, gave considerable fums towards building it. He also gave the clock, which cost 181. 10s. and was an annual subscriber of 21. 10s. He clothed 25 boys and 25 girls, twice at his own expence; and bequeathed to that foundation 26l. per ann. for ever. 50l. towards building St. Anne's, and 251. towards the fteeple; and at his death bequeathed, to pay an arrear due for the building of the faid church, towards finishing the steeple, and to buy a bell, the fum of 400l. For a lecture fermon at an early hour, for the benefit of fuch as cannot attend at the usual hours, and for the inftruction of those that are pleased to attend in the principles of the christian religion, every first funday in the month, he bequeathed the interest of 2501. for ever: He also left 1351, to the poor house-keepers of this city.

CHAP. IX. HISTORY of CORK.

is a very neat plain church. The steeple is of hewn stone, 120 feet high, with an handsome spire, 50 feet more, erected the last summer; also a musical ring of bells, chimes and clock; which building being on an eminence, is a great ornament to the city. It was designed after the model of St. Mary's in Limerick.

The entrance at the W. door, is by 14 ftone steps, and the under part of the building is well vaulted. On a tomb-stone, in the church-yard, are these lines.

Quem tegit hoc marmor cupias jam feire viator,
Mahoni gentis flos medici artis erat.
Attoniti fugiunt Morbi quocunque vocatur,
Attamen a Letho, proh dolor! ipse perit
Preclarus Daniel, & utraque in Apollonis arte
Non obstant fatis, Munera neque vires.

Against the W. wall opposite to the infirmary, in the same church-yard, is a tomb belonging to captain Francis Bernard; where, after mentioning his age and time of his decease, is the subsequent inscription on Mrs. Cusack, a daughter of the Fitz-Geralds of Munster: wrote by the revd. Mr. James Dalacourt.

Alfo,

Here resteth from her labours Anne, relict of Rowland Cusack, esq, of Killowen, in the county of Cork.

'Tis not the sculptur'd arms, or titles high,
But the poor widow's tears, and orphan's sigh;
'Tis not the sluted pillar, antique urn,
That mark this marble, but the maim'd that mourn;

Where charity extinct is all the buft, And hospitality reduc'd to dust.

Where

Where conjugal fidelity is laid,
And truth departed like a fleeting shade:
What tho' no weeping angels guard this grave?
The prophet's privilege these bones shall save;
No impious hand disturb this burying place,
But piety and friendship rest in peace.

Chriftchurch.

Christ-church, dedicated to the holy trinity, and generally called the King's chapel, was the church to which the mayor and corporation reforted upon all public feftivals, as also the judges of affizes, The old church being in a ruinous condition, the parishioners were under a necessity of taking it down, in 1716; and it was rebuilt anno 1720, the first sermon being preached therein, on Sunday the 27th of November, that year, by the revd. Philip Townshend. This Arricture was also erected by a parliamentary tax of 1 s. per tun, laid on all coals and culm brought into the city, the 7th of George I, this act to continue in force for feven years, from the 1st of November 1710: which tax being found infufficient to defray the expence, it was continued for eight years longer, from the 1st of November, 1726 (13): By which

(13) This act observes, that the money arising from the former act, together with the sum of 2034 l. 3s. 10d. raised by parish rates and voluntary contributions, has proved insufficient for building this church, and that the sum of 1500 l sterl. was necessary to finish the said work, and pay a debt of 480 l. 5s. 4 d. due on account of the same; so that the building of the church and steeple cost as follows.

By duty on coals, the first seven years,	1.	s.
By rates and subscriptions, as above, By the late act,	1500
A ST A ST A ST A ST A ST A ST A ST A ST	5328	0	-

The corporation gave 200 l. to this building.

the steeple was, at length, finished; but it being erected on a bad foundation, one fide of it funk; upon which, a great part of it was taken down and rebuilt; and in the year 1748, the same angle still continuing to fettle, so that the S. side hung over very confiderably, it was, to prevent mischief, taken down as low as to the roof of the church. The body of this church is capable of containing 3000 people, with good pews and galleries, and is all built of hewn stown. Here is early service and sacrament, the fourth funday of every month.

The church of St. Peter is now the oldest church St. Peter's standing in the city. The steeple is detached a confiderable way to the W. of the church, and ferved as a tower to defend the city wall as is before mentioned. This church is about 90 feet long, but not of proportionable breadth; it has a tolerable neat altar-piece, confifting of fluted corinthian pilasters; over the communion table, is a dove painted, furrounded with a glory in a pediment; on the W. is a mayor's gallery, over which are the king's arms, carved and painted; and on each fide, are parallel galleries, and double rows of pews.

On the S. fide of the altar, is a monument of fir Mathew Deane and his lady, with their effigies in plafter of paris, as large as the life, in a praying pofture, on each fide of a delk. This monument confifts of three pillars, of black marble, with white bases and capitals, supporting an open pediment. On the base, is this inscription.

> Sir Matthew Deane, Knight and Baronet. 1710.

On the cornice, are cherubims; and on the top, images supporting banners. There are some gravestones, with dates as old as the year 1500. In this church, there is early service and sacrament every third funday of the month.

St. Paul's The church of St. Paul was built by a subscription of the parishioners; the ground on which it stands, was granted by the corporation to the late bishop Brown, May 14, 1723; and divine service was, for the first time, celebrated therein, by the revd. Edward Sampson, October the 9th, 1726, By an act for the union and division of parishes, &c the east marsh belonging to St. Mary Shandon, and Dunscomb's marsh in the parish of Christchurch, were, by the confent of the respective incumbents, made one entire parish, called the parish of St. Paul; which, by a valuation on houses, affords a fuitable maintenance for an incumbent. This is a neat well built church, with a carved gallery at the W, end, and other parallel galleries; alfo a handsome plain altar-piece, and a double range of pews, well laid out; and the whole is lightfome, and regularly disposed.

St. Nicho- T

The church of St. Nicholas, pursuant to the above act of parliament, for the union and division of parishes, was begun to be erected on the 10th of January 1720; a church being wanted in the fouth part of the city, by the increase of the protestant inhabitants. This work was chiefly promoted by bishop Brown, and by the joint and cheerful contribution of other well-disposed perfons, by whose affistance it was completed, in 1723: and the first fermon preached therein, on the first of September, by archdeacon Ayres. It is a small neat church, has a pretty gallery on the W. end, and is well pewed. The altar-piece and pulpit, are well carved, and adorned with fluted columns of the corinthian order. The incumbent is supported by a voluntary subscription of the inhabitants. Here is early fervice and facrament every fourth funday of the month.

CHAP. IX. HISTORY of CORK.

The church of St. Brandon stood on the north fide of the river, on one side of the road leading to Youghal, where there is still a burial ground. The tythes, and a considerable part of the lands of this parish, were formerly appropriated to the maintenance of a leper house.

In this city are, a French church, using the liturgy of the church of England. One presbyterian, one anabaptist, and one quaker meeting house; with several mass-houses, the two principal of which, are in the north and south suburbs, both

erected, anno 1729

The abbies in this city were, 1st. Gill-abbey, Abbies. founded on the S. W. fide of the city, by St. Finbarr, for canons regular of St. Augustine, in the 7th century, the buildings were finished by Gil-Æda, bishop of Cork, from whom this house had the name of Gill-abbey. Cormac Mac-Carty king of Cork, granted its possessions, A. D. 1134. Near it, is a cave, called, in ancient MSS, the cave of St. Finbarr. According to fir James Ware, this is the house which St. Bernard calls Monasterium Ibracense. The possessions of this abbey were granted, by queen Elizabeth, to feveral perfons, viz. part to Henry Duval, gent. by letters patent, 28th of November, 22d of her reign, and to fir Richard Greenville; knt. They were afterwards purchased by the earl of Cork. This abbey was, within these few years, entirely demolished.

ed, on the fouth fide of the city, by Patrick de Courcey, baron of Kinfale, about the year 1420. Sir J. Ware places the foundation earlier, viz. in the reign of king Edward I. The steeple, which is 64 feet high, and the walls of the church, with a part of the buildings, still remain. The east window, the only one in the choir, was 30 feet

high

(3)

g

0

A

ti

ti

high and 15 broad, being very magnificent; but is now closed up with brick. This house, some years ago, was converted into a sugar house, and went by the name of the Red-abbey.

4thly, A priory of the benedictine order, founded by John earl of Morton, afterwards king John, in the 12th century, which he made a cell to the abbey of Bath in England. This house stood on the S. side of the city, where the ruined church of St. John now remains.

5thly, A monastery of franciscans or grey friars, founded, according to Wadding, in the year 1231, but Ware fays, in 1240, by Philip Prendergast: Wadding says, the founder of this house was Mac-Carty More, whose tomb stood in the midft of the choir. From the strict discipline obferved in this house, it acquired the name of the mirror of Ireland. Here was a most stately church, where feveral of the principal persons of Munster were interred; and near it, was a celebrated fpring, which the friars pretended, had the virtue of curing fore eyes, by the miraculous intercession of St. Francis; this water oozes out of a red stone rock, and does not lather with foap. In the chapel of this place, the late king James heard mats, in March, 1688, being supported, through the streets of the city, by two franciican friars, and attended by many others of the same order, in their habits. The polieffions of this house, were originally grantCHAP. IX. HISTORY of CORK.

ed to Andrew Skiddy, by queen Elizabeth, who assigned them to the earl of Cork, and by him given to his son, the lord Broghill, afterwards earl of Orrery. This building stood on the north side of the city, and is now entirely demolished.

6thly, Near the present new market-house, within the city wall, stood a benedictine nunnery, in a street formerly called Jone's-street, sounded by William de Barry, and dedicated to St John Baptist, anno 1300. In the additions to Dugdale's Monasticon Anglicanum (14), there is an inquisition, ad quod damnum, for the foundation of this house, 19 Edward I. There are no remains of the building; but the scite of it I accidentally discovered, by the digging up of some old tombs on this ground.

Charity foundations, in this city, are, 1st, St. Hospitals. Stephens's hospital, or the blue coat hospital (15), which owes its foundation to Dr. Edward Worth, formerly

(14) Vol. 2. p. 1020. (15) The revenue of this hospital, is now a	s follows
THE POST OF STREET AND ADDRESS OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY	1 5. d. 261 12 10 1. 195 12 7 2
Which fum has been thus disposed of,	457 $ 6
Forty boys, at ol. 1s. per ann. each, The mafter's falary, Allowance for pens, ink and paper. Referved yearly for the encouragement of four students in Trinity college, Dublin,	36a 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0
natives of and bred in Cork school, to be distributed by Mr. Worth and his heirs for ever. Repairs of the house, at a medium.	30 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0
	30 0 0
्र पुरस्कार प्रकार है जिस्से का जिस्से के प्रकार के स्थान	Their formerly bishop of Killaloe, and dean of Cork, some time before the restoration of king Charles II. for the maintenance and education of poor boys. The lands, at the time of the soundation, were set very low; so that in the year 1700, there were but eight boys kept in this house; but they are since considerably increased in value, and, at present, there are 40 children provided for, with sufficient food.

Their diet is as follows.

For breakfast, bread, butter and beer; for supper, bread cheese and beer; the breakfast to be changeable, at the master's discretion, to hot broth and bread; and the supper, to bread and milk, or potatoes. For dinner, on sundays, suesdays and saturdays, siesh meat, according to the season, with a competency of broth, bread, and beer. On mondays, wednesdays, and fridays, for dinner, milk-pottage, peas-pottage, or green peas, with bread and butter fufficient.

October 7, ann. 1674, there was an order of council, that a grant should pass under the seal of this city, of the place of prior of the hospital of St. Stephen, to William Worth, esq, to hold the same as Richard Ward, esq, enjoyed it, which grant the said William Worth, esq, is to deposit into the hands of the mayor, together with the resignation of the said Mr. Ward; and also, all deeds and leases relating to the lands of the said hospital, in the north liberties of the city, until a proper instrument be perfected by the said William Worth, reliaquishing all other titles to the same employ, but what he shall receive from the corporation; which deed being perfected, the said grant is to be delivered to the said William Worth, esq. Signed John Bayly, mayor.

William Worth, esq; Signed John Bayly, mayor. September 2, 1699, an indenture passed between William Worth, of the city of Dublin, esq; and William Goddard, of the city of Cork, merchant and mayor of the staple, that the said William Worth, out of a pious intent; that a convenient house should be built in the S. suburbs of the city of Cork, near St. Stephen's chapel, to educate and maintain a certain number of boys for ever, with a maintenance for a school master, in consideration of the sum of 5s. sterl. paid to the mayor and constables of the staple. He the said William grants to them, and their successors, all the Spittle-lands, with those of E. and W. Ballymoght and Callingall, at the yearly rent of 20 l. sterl. which sum is to be distributed among four students of Trinity-college, Dublin, to be natives of the city or county of the city of Cork, or, for want of such, food, raiment and schooling, and, when of a competent age, are bound apprentice to trades, and the sea service.

CHAP. IX. HISTORY of CORK.

The building is fituated on a rifing ground, in the S. E. suburb; it consists of a large house, with one return; on the top, is a lanthorn, with a bell, to be natives of the county of Cork, and for want of such, to other natives of this kingdom, to be chosen by the lord bishop of Cork, and the mayor of Cork; the heirs of the fald William Worth, and the provost of the college, all for the time being ; the heir of the faid Worth to be always one of any three of them. That a convenient house be erected for the accommodation of the fald boys, and for a mafter, who is to instruct them in reading, writing and arithmetic: The mayor and common council to be governors of the faid hospital, to appoint a school-master who is to provide decent blue couts and caps for the boys on every St. Stephen's day, and other convenient clothing, with mean and drink; also to nominate the number of boys, with power to remove fuch master and boys at pleasure, and to place others in their room: To be done in one month after fuch removal, otherways the faid William Worth, and his heirs, to have power to nominate to such vacancies. The mayor and council to make regulations for the government of the hospital, and to visit the same. The mayor and constable of the staple, with confent of the corporation, to make leafes for at years, and to renew the last 7 years, the fines for fuch renewal, to go to the use of the hospital, as the common council shall direct. The school-master to have convenient lodging for his family, 25 l. a year falary, with 10 l. for each boy, and 15 l. per ann. to a receiver of the sents; none to be admitted under 7 years of age, not to continue after that of 14, and then, or focuer, fuch boys shall be put out apprentice; and if it shall happen that more money be expended than the lands produce, it may be lawful for the mayor, &c. to keep one or two vacancies void, till such money be repaid, which vacancies are then to be filled up ; in witness whereof they have interchangeably fet their hands and feals, the day and year abovementioned.

Jan. 4, 1713, the council ordered, that when any vacancy happens in the faid hospital, the mayor and council-men, according to their feniority, shall present a boy in their surns.

Nov. 9, 1732, bonds passed to the mayor and constables of the staple of the city of Cork, for the sum of gaol, at 31. per cent, interest, lent by the corporation for the use of this hospital. Thomas Newenham, esq, in consideration of his havto assemble the boys on proper occasions. In the lower part, is a common hall for the boys to eat in, with the school-room; and above, are apartments for the master, with commodious lodgings for the boys. From the garden, is a pleasant prospect of the city and river.

Greencoat hospital.

March 6, 1715, the hospital, called the greencoat hospital, was begun to be erected, on a waste piece of ground, belonging to the revd. Dr. Henry Maule, then incumbent of the parish of St. Mary Shandon, which he gave for that purpole, adjoining to the old church-yard, where the old parish church formerly flood, till it was demolished in the late wars, and a new one built in a more convenient place, and made parochial by act of parliament. The managers first subscribed to this work. The defign was for two schools, where the boys were to be taught to read, write, and cast accompts; and the girls, to read, knit, few, and fpin, until they became old enough to be bound out apprentices. This charity took its rife from a fmall fum of 121. lodged by Mr. Thomas Newenham, of Cork, in the incumbent's hands, with directions to apply it to whatever charitable defign he thought most convenient. In a short time, 60 l. per ann. was subscribed, and an excellent stone quarry was found within 30 feet of the spot defigned for the building, the incumbent gave 10 l. towards raifing the stones, and thus the foundation was laid. The expence, from the year 1715 to the year 1720, was 8111. 138. 4d. yet the original fund was but 82 l. but the annual fubscribers advanced their subscription of 60 l, which greatly forwarded the undertaking; and some time after, other charitably disposed persons (16) gave several.

ing given 2001. to this hospital, has liberty of hominating two boys in his turn, to him and his heirs.

(16) In May, a right rev. prelate, gave 121. A rev. benefactor for timber 601. In June, 2 persons in the city 101.

CHAP. IX. HISTORY OF CORK.

feveral fubscriptions, and a further annual one was added to the former, by which donations the work was completed. On the 12th of August, 1716. the children went decently clothed to the parish church of St. Mary Shandon, the mayor and judges being present, when a fermon was preached on the occasion by the incumbent, and a sum of 48 l. collected, besides other additional benefactions (17). Praid up a child. &c. Freverb 22.

The mafter, befides teaching the children their books, &c. is to instruct them in the principles of edt no bun i moor o Cciantia dans do or the

each. A lady in London, 20 l. Capt. James Maule gave a bell to call the children to prayers, and 51. per ann. Mr. Daniel Thresher gave several benefactions, mentioned p. 375.

(17) At this time, the earl of Inchiquin sent in 4 moidores, and Mr. Noble Ruddock, of Briftol, gave 5 1 per anni Several persons gave different sums, amounting to 23 1-13 s. John Harrison, esq. gave 500 weight of sheet lead for the building, and there was found in the charity boxes at 1. 9 s. And some time after, other subscriptions came in, to the amount of too! belides, in 8 months after, 351. more was found in the charity boxes. Tight

Till the year 1718, feveral well disposed persons gave, in

And others, an annual subscription of 221. per annum. The 24th of May, captain William Maule dying at Maestricht, in Flanders, left 3001, to this hospital. Colonel Robert Rogers, befides 4 l. per annum for ever, gave 50 l. to be put, to interest, the produce to be given in bread to the poor, every funday next after the 14th of August for ever.

By a clause of an act 4th of Geo. I. entitled an act for settling the quarter parts upon the parochial clergy of the diocels of Tuam, &c. it was provided, that this foundation, with the ground thereon, should be for ever applied to the uses they were at first defigned; and that the buildings that then were, or that might at any time hereafter be erected thereon, should be vested in the right hon. the earls of Kildare and Barrymore, patrons of the church of St. Mary Shandon and the bishop of Cork and his successors, and several their heirs, others, with the minister and church-wardens of the faid parish; the faid persons made a body politic, by the name of the truftees of the green-coat hospital, in the faid parish, and five of them to elect, from time to time, fuch trustees as they shall think convenient.

OD

Natural and Civil | Book II.

the protestant religion, and to attend public and private prayers

On the fouth front of the building is this infeription :

MDCCKV. for the christian instruction of the poor children of the parish of St. Mary Shandon, Cork.

Train up a child, &c. Proverb 22.

This school consists of a building, with two wings, adorned with a cupola, and clock. In the centre of which, is the school room; and on the W. is an handsome library; the books were given by feveral worthy benefactors, with a pair of globes. In the library, are the pictures of general Sterne and capt. Maule, who gave large benefactions to this house.

Bertridge's almshouses. The city being vested, by act of parliament, with ground for the building of alms houses, &c. took into their consideration the state of the poor in Bertridge's (18) and Skiddy's foundations; they judged the place of their dwalling too narrow and incommodious for want of sir; resolved, for their advantage, to dispose of the ground whereon they dwelt, to the highest budger; and, with the produce, to build a more convenient boute for their reception. In order to which, the corporation took a piece of ground from the trustees of the greencost hospital, at an easy rent of 20 s. per annum, or the clothing of a child yearly, in the same. The old ground being sold for you per annum, as much money was raised, at 6 per cent, as completed completed the building, where 7 aged persons, of each sex are lodged. This work was beginn on the 5th of July, 1718, and simisfied on the 21st of September, 1719, although carried on through many difficulties. This charitable foundation is raised on stone arches or piazzas, which were built at the private charge of brigadier general Sterne, alderman Edward Knap, and three or four more; they give both strength and beauty to the edifice, and are of real convenience to the old people: This building cost 1150 l.

⁽⁴⁸⁾ The original foundation of captain Robert Bertridge, was for the support of 7 old soldiers, who were to have 1 a. 6 d. per week each, a long coat and hat, and a pair of shoes every year; the overplus to be applied to the apprenticing of protestant soldiers children: This legacy was charged on the lands of Drumcumer, on the Black-water, near Mallow, which set for about 63 l. per annum.

As an addition to this foundation, there are 12 Skiddy's aged women, who receive the furn of 241. paid foundaby the company of vintners in London, at 48 s. tion. each; bequeathed, formerly, by Stephen Skiddy, alias Scudamore (19), for this ule; to which furn the city has added 51. per ann. with reversion of an advantageous leafe, when the term is expired.

On the outlide of Bertridge's alms-house, is

this infeription:

old protestant foldiers; for whose support, and the apprenticing poor protestant soldiers children, captain Robert Bertridge gave an estate of 631. per annum; ann. Dom. MDCLXXX.

The Righteous shall be had in everlasting Remembrance. Pf. 112."

On

(19) This Stephen Skiddy, allas Scudamore, by his will, bearing date the a8th of May, 1782, and the 27th of queen Elizabeth, bequeathed, among other legacies, that the mafter, wardens and commonalty of vintners of the city of London, and their successors, should, out of certain rents mentioned in his will, pay yearly the fam of 241 stell, at the common half of the fald vintners for the time being, to the mayor of Cork, in Ireland, or his deputy, on the agth of March and 29th of September for ever; to be by him distributed among ten of the honest poor of the faid city, of the age of 40 years at the least. The mayor of the starple is governor of the said hospital and his successors. Every alderman nominates a person to the said hospital in turn, as is done in Stephen's hospital.

On the outlide of Skiddy's hospital, is the fol-

"This building was begun, by the city of Cork, July the 5th, A. D. 1718, and finished Sep. the 21st, A. D. 1719."

The corporation pays 20 l. per annum to the decayed widows of aldermen, and 15 l, to those of burgeffes.

In the year 1719, the charitable infirmary was Infirmary. begun to be erected in the old church-yard of faint Mary Shandon; the work was supported by the voluntary subscriptions of several worthy perfons, and the shell of the house was finished in the year 1721. The building is, in length, 70 feet, and 24 broad, and is capable of receiving 24 lick persons, on three floors, 4 chambers on a floor, and two persons in each chamber. In every chamber there are fire places, and all other conveniencies for the fick, and a fair gallery on each floor for them to walk in. Here are also a kitchen and store-room, a chamber for medicines, with a convenient room adjoining for the furgeon, and other offices, under ground, for the nurle-tenders, &c. On the outfide of the infirmary, is this infcription:

Nosocomium
Hoc Deo Auspice
Fundatum, Anno Salutis
MDCCXX.

For want of a proper fund, little was done in this infirmary for some years, till in January, 1744, the members of the charitable and musical society came to a resolution, that the surplus money arising from their subscriptions and performances, should be applied to the support of this infirmary: Upon this encouragement, several other gentlemen became subscribers to this laudable design, this enabled the directors to repair the house, which was again opened for the reception of the sick poor of the city, Feb. 19, 1744, who have ever fince been regularly and carefully attended, by ten physicians and four surgeons, who generously offered their advice and affiftance, without fee or reward. All persons, being sick and necessitous poor, recommended by any subscriber, are admitted and supplied with advice and medicines till cured, or judged incurable by the physicians or surgeons. The physicians attend from 11 in the morning till 2 in the afternoon; and the furgeons every day. There are, as yet, but fix beds erected in the house, for the accommodation of such as are unable, from the nature of their disorder, to attend as out patients, who are supplied with diet, medicines, and attended by careful nurse-tenders. The directors meet on the first monday of every month, to examine into the state and settle the accounts of the house, five of whom make a board, and all differences are determined by a majority. The number of out-patients are very confiderable, some years above 2000 are dressed and attended, as appears from the accounts published by the directors annually. This hospital, with the church and steeple of St. Anne, the green-coat school, also Bertridge's and Skiddy's alms-houses, being contiguous, form an handfome area,

On the 15th of October, 1719, the corporation Captain granted to capt. Thomas Deane, a piece of ground Deane's adjacent to St. Peter's church to erect a school Foundand alms-house thereon. And the house was built secondingly, for the education of 40 poor children, 20 of each sex, who are clothed, and taught gratis to read, write, &c. by a master and mistress, who are lodged and accommodated in the same building, and have 141. per annum salary, the sum of 521, yearly is bequeathed, by the pious donor, for the use of this charity, who further gives a loaf of bread to each poor child every sunday. The late revd, archdeacon Pomroy, minister

fi

ti

fi

tl

q

11

minister of this parish, added six boys to the foundation, and gave 180 l. to be put to interest for this use. In the alms house are maintained 8 poor, 6 men, and 2 women, who have a weekly allowance of 1 s. 6 d. each. They have also a suit of clothes every other year, a great coat, and other necessaries. The building is plain, and commodious for the purpose. On the outside are represented in their habits, a man and a woman, in different compartments.

In Blarney-lane is a small alms-house, endowed by the late Mr. Jonas Morice, for the poor of the people called quakers.

Pomroy's

On the E. side of St. Barr's church, is a free-school and library, founded by the late archdeacon Pomroy, for the education of such children as the bishop shall recommend. The master has a salary of 10 l. per annum. The children are taught to read, with writing, and arithmetic. In the library, on a cartouch of Italian marble, adorned with the founder's crest, viz. a lion rampant gules, holding an apple or in his dexter paw, and on each side cherubims, &c. neatly carved, is this inscription.

Scholæ Hujus & Bibliothecæ Parochialia Testamento suo
Prima jecit fundamenta
Reverendus
Johannes Pomroy.
Omnibusdum vixit Charus,
Mortuus ab omnibus
Destetus.
Anno Domini 1735.

On the W. fide of the same church-yard, is a free school, for the education of youth in the Greek and Latin tongues.

Joseph

Joseph Harris, of this city, bequeathed the iffues Harris's and profits of his eftate, after the death of his bequest. father, mother, fifter and wife, who are long deceased, to the bishop and mayor of Cork, for the time being, to be for the support and maintenance of the mathematical lecturer, who is to hold fuch lectures in this city: And if it be neglected for fix months after the deaths of the faid persons this lecture, and the fund for supporting it, he bequeaths to the school of Middle-town, to be held in the faid school. After the death of the said persons, this lecture was, for a fhort time, held by Mr. Wallis, who was made lecturer; but few or none attending the same, it soon dropped.

Mrs. Mary Sheerman, among other charitable bequests, left 10 l, per annum to St. Peter's, Christchurch, and Shandon parishes, towards charityschools. A charitable foundation at Burton, of 42 l. per annum, given by the right hon, the late earl of Egmont, in the year 1713, was the first establishment of this kind in Ireland.

In the year 1721, there were feveral charityschools in different parts of this county, but the greater part of them, by non-payment of the subscriptions, the deaths of the original subscribers, and neglect of profecuting a further subscription, are now dissolved. However, their want is happily supplied by the charter working-schools erected in many places.

The cultom-house, is a large elegant building, Public of one main structure, and two returns; it con-buildings. fifts of three stories; the angles, door-case, and window-frames, are of hewn stone, as is the cornice and ballustrade at top; the other part of the building is of brick. In this house, are the several offices for the management of the affairs of the excise and customs of this port; together with an elegant apartment, and all proper con-

veniencies

veniencies for the collector (20), who refides in the house. On either side of the building, are the store-houses, which form two handsome plazzas, Here is a good key, furnished with cranes and other conveniencies for the discharging of goods, and a new canal made almost quite round the custom-house, so that several vessels may lie here at a time. In the year 1724, the old custom-house being too small, was taken down, and this elegant building was then begun to be erected, at the king's expence, wich was finished the following year. There is a house standing in the main ftreet S. of the exchange, which was formerly used as a custom-house; and on it, are the arms of England, with a ship, cut in stone, near the roof.

The management of the revenue of this port, which is very confiderable, is committed to the care of feveral officers (21).

The

(20) Names of the late collectors of this port fince king James.

Anno 1690 Sir James Cotter, knt.

1690 Christopher Carleton, esq; for king William.

1693 Arthur Bush, esq; 1698 Warham Jemmat, esq;

1716 Henry Arkwright, esq; 1717 William Maynard, elq;

1734 Hugh Dickson, esq; and recorder of Cork.

1734 John Love, efq;

1734 Hugh Dickson, esq; again.

1738 Henry Hamilton, elq;

1743 Henry Cavendish, esq; 1746 Bellingham Boyle, esq;

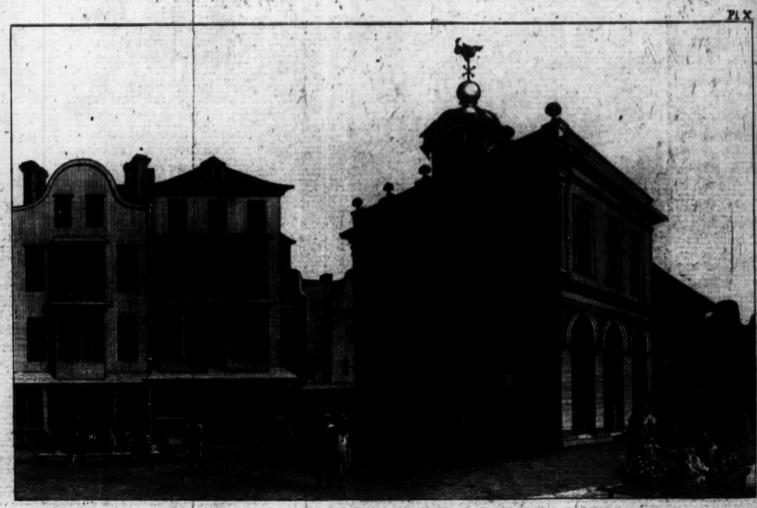

1749 John Love, esq; again. 1750 Sir Richard Cox, Bart.

1755 Hon. James O'Bryen. 1767 Hon. Joseph Lysaght.

(21) Viz. besides a surveyor general of the province, who commonly refides in this diffrict, and whole falary is 300 1. per ann, here are

A port collector, at 150 l. falary.

A collector

The EXCHANGE.

The exchange, which almost divides the main Exchange. ftreet of the city into two parts, N. and S. is an handsome regular structure, of hewn stone. The front confifts of five arches, with three others next the paffage to the street. The middle arch, or principal entrance, is adorned with columns of the doric order, over which are fluted ones of the ionic order; between the front windows are pilafters of the fame, with a handsome cornice and ballustrade over these. On the top, is an elegant cupola, covered with lead, a gilt ball, cross and dragon. This building is in excellent proportion. and I may venture to pronounce it the neatest and most regular of the kind in Ireland (22).

A collector of excise, at 100 l. a year.

Two furveyors, one on the key, and one in the stores, 60 l. each.

Three land-waiters, at 40 l. each.

A riding furveyor, at 65 l.

A walking furveyor on the out keys, 301. A ftore keeper, 201.

A tide-furveyor, at Cove, 50 l.

His deputy, 35 l. Surveyors at Cross-haven, and Passage, 35 l. each.

A door-keeper of the stores, 20 L Three coast officers, at 35 l. each.

Twenty-five tide-waiters, at 30 L each,

Eight boatmen at Cove, and 5 more at Cork, at 20 l. each. Six boatmen at Paffage, at 18 l. each.

Two scale porters, at 20 l. each. Twelve fupernumerary tide-waiters, at 5 l. each.

Two furveyors of excise, at 65 l. each.

In the whole diffrict 18 gaugers, at 40 l, each. And

Two fupernumerary ones, at 30 l. each,

(22) The places abroad, where merchants affemble to transact business, are named burses, from one of those houses built in Bruges, by one of that name. The royal exchange in London, built by fir Thomas Gresham, queen Elizabeth caused to be so called by sound of trumpet. That of Amsterdam vies with it. The exchange of Bristol, is a fine tructure. The ancient Romans also had such buildings. The college of merchants was erected in Rome, under the confulate of Appius Claudius and Publius Servilius, 429 years before the Christian Æra, some remains of which may be still discovered in the place St. George.

Book II.

On a table in gold letters, hanging up in this exchange, is this infeription.

"This building was erected, by the public revenue of this city, and its foundation laid, Anno MDCCVIII.

Joseph Franklin, Esq; Mayor.

Edward Hoar, Esq;

John Hawkins, Esq;

Sheriffs,

Continued, Anno M DCC IX.

Rowland Delahoyde, Efq; Mayor.
William Lamb, Efq;
James Morison, Efq;
Sheriffs.

Finished, Anno M DCC X.

Noble Rogers, Efq; Mayor.
Richard Philips, Efq; Samuel Wilson, Efq;
Sheriffs.

Alderman Daniel Crone, Alderman James French,
Alderman William Goddard,
Alderman William Brown.

On the S. of the exchange, is the city court-house, in which the Judges hold the affizes for the city; and above stairs, is a spacious room, called the council chamber, where the mayor and corporation assemble to transact the affairs of the city. It is adorned with the king's picture, and that of the late lord chancellor Brodrick, who was recorder of this city, both at full length. Round the top, are drums for the regiments of militia, and halberds for the same.

The county court-houle, was built near the castle of Cork, beforementioned, anno 1680. The County courthouse. Π.

nis

e-

corporation gave 100 l. towards the building. It is a plain, large, commodious structure, with adjacent grand and petty jury-rooms, and being near the centre of the city, lies very convenient for room, where the fire thembles were built. Sporting out

The north gate makes an handsome gaol, and Gaols, acc. is ftrongly built of hewn ftone, for the use of the city, being well arched and vaulted to prevent fire, It was erected, by a tax upon the inhabitants, anno 1715, and is contiguous to the N. bridge, which being well built, together with this gaol, makes a fair appearance.

The fouth gate of the city is used as the county gaol, and was built at the expence of the county of Cork, anno 1728, and finished in the year 1730. The gate next the bridge, is neatly built, of the tufcan order, with an handfome pediment of hewn stone; but it is too high in proportion to the breadth. From the battlements, is a fine prospect of the city, and both the east and west sides of the reallon wide days and fair roovs.

In the year 1731, a new bridewell was erected. at the expence of the city, which is a large, ftrong, and convenient building for the purpole.

The work-house, already mentioned, was built by the duty laid of 1 s. per ton, on coals; and being finished as far as two fides of the finare, it was opened for the reception of vagrant beggars, and foundling children, in March 1748.

The new corn market-house, is a large commo- Markets. dious edifice erected on pillars of the tufcan order, of hewn flone, in a place convenient for the carriage of corn, meal, &c. by water; but in fo narrow a lituation, that it is almost hid. Nothing adds more to the beauty of a building than the advantage of a convenient place before it; for which reason, if the opposite houses were levelled, and the ground opened as far easterly as St. Paul's church, it would form an handsome area, round which protellant which shops, &c. might be erected, which would afford the city a better revenue than the low houses which fland opposite to this structure! The upper rooms were intended for a granary. In the year 1693, the flesh shambles were built, by the corporation, in the centre of the city, at the expence of 481 l. 5 s. The corporation receives, one year with another, about 140 l. for the rent of these and other shambles built by them. Here is an excellent flesh-market of all kinds of butcher's meat. which is generally very reasonable and cheap in this city. Anno 1733, the corporation erected another fhambles for felling of meal and milk, on the S. fide of the city, which cost 140 !. for which they have a yearly rent. The fish-shambles are very convenient, being erected on a branch of the river. which runs thro arches under the middle of the town, by which means they are kept clean, cool, and fweet. This market is well supplied with fish, chiefly from Kinfale. The weekly markets are There is also held on wednesdays and saturdays. a flefh-market on the N. fide of the town; as also a large market place for purchasing live cattle, particularly bullocks and cows; great numbers of which are flaughtered here during the winter feafon : From hence the revenue of the city, called the gatage, principally arises which is commonly about 600 l. per annum, of late years, at 1d. a head. and founding children, in March Barracks. Theold barrack to the E. of Elizabeth's fort, was erected in 1698, as was the new barrack in the faid fort, anno 1719; both together, are capable of containing 700 men, with rooms for the officers. Near the former, lie 20 pieces of old iron artillery, difmounted fince the fiege of Cork, and now become useless.

Bishop's palace.

Near the cathedral, stands the bishop's see house, with a chapel, and good gardens. In it is the picture of bishop Lyon, who was the first protestant 11.

bla

fes

er

ear

08-ce

ar

ıd

-

t.

in o-

e

y

1

,,,,

protestant bishop of Cork; and adjacent to it, is the deanery house, called Dean's-court, where the deans reside, which is also a good building, and has gardens belonging to it. The bishops of Cork have also a country seat, built by doctor Peter Brown, at Bishop's-town, a short way from the city, which I have already mentioned.

The public walks of this city, in comparison of the number of inhabitants, are few, and not over commodious; that mostly frequented is called the mall, which has little to recommend it, except its being planted with trees, and the benefit of the adjacent canal, at high-water, but is equally offenfive when the tide is out in fummer; this mall is ill paved; yet, on public days, is well filled with the beau monde of the city, and, during the affizes, with confiderable numbers from the country. On Hamond's-marsh, is a large pleafant bowling-green, planted, on its margin, with trees kept regularly cut, whose shade makes it an agreeable walk; it is also washed by a branch of the Lee; and on it, a band of music has been supported by subscription, for the entertainment of the gentlemen and ladies who frequent it : adjacent to it, is the affembly house, where affemblies are held two days in the week; as also a weekly concert, which is maintained by a subscription for the support of the infirmary: Here is an organ, the other performers play on violins, german flutes, &c. with vocal mulic, and are formetimes affifted by gentlemen, who play to encourage this charity. Mardyke is a pleasant walk, being a bank, walled on both fides, and filled up, extending westerly from the city near an English mile, and washed, on each hand, by the channel of the river. This bank is carried through a marshy island, and was done at the private expence of Mr. Edward Webber, anno 1719; who also built an house on the W. end, where are good good gardens, planted with fruit, for the accommodation and entertainment of those who frequent this walk. Friars walk, on the S. side of the town, is an agreeable retreat, being planted with trees, and situated on a rising ground, commanding a pleasant prospect; this is no bad walk, but it lies too much out of the way. It was formerly a part of the Red-abbey beforementioned.

(3)

Diversi-

As to diversions, every entertainment that has the authority of fashion in Dublin (which place alfo takes its example from London) prevails here; and fome, perhaps, in a higher degree. Card playing, in the winter evenings, is an entertainment observed to be more used in Ireland, among polite people, than in England: The ladies are rather fonder of this amusement than the men; and dancing, that pretty innocent house diversion, hardly yields to it in their eyes. For which purpose, here is a weekly drum, befides the affembly, where card playing is intermixt with dancing. Belides the public concerts, there are feveral private ones, where the performers are gentlemen and ladies, of fuch good skill, that one would imagine the god of music had taken a large stride from the continent over England to this illand; for, indeed, the whole nation are of late become admirers of this entertainment; and those who have no ear for music are generally to polite as to pretend to like it. A ftranger is agreeably furpriled to find in many houses he enters, Italic airs faluting his ears; and it has been observed, that Corelli is a name in more mouths than many of our lord lieute-The humane and gentle disposition of the inhabitants, may, in some measure, be attributed to the refinements of this divine art: The harp, which is the armorial enlign of the kingdom, wrought great atchievments in the hands of the Itraelite king; and Cambrenfis (23) affirms, that the (23) Topograph. Hybern, dift. 3. cap. 11.

H.

ment vn,

es,

ies

art

ce

e ,

rd

n-

2-d

y

d

e

Irish, some hundred years ago, were incomparably well skilled in this instrument, beyond what he had observed in many other nations, which is also confirmed by Polydore Virgil (24). In this city, is a good theatre, where the comedians from Dublin entertain the town generally during the fummer affizes, and a month or two longer, as they meet with encouragement. There is a smaller one in Broad-lane, which is not now made use of; and, indeed, one play-house seems to be more than sufficient for this city. Here are only two coffeehouses, both near the exchange; they are much frequented, and befides the English news-papers, have most of the Dublin ones: The better fort are fond of news and politics, and are well verfed in public affairs.

According to the accounts returned into the furveyor-general's office, there are in this city 7366 houses, which by allowing ten persons to an house, contain 73660 fouls (25).

The High-street, called here the Main-street, is Buildings, intermixed with old and new buildings, and, as the former decay, new ones rise in the modern taste. Most of these houses have balcony windows, in the Spanish fashion, and are built of brick. The marshes, which retain the names of the principal persons who drained and filled them up, are mostly built upon; that to the E. called Dunscomb's marsh, has several good streets and houses on it, (24) Hift. Angl. lib. 13.

⁽²⁵⁾ From a return made by the hearth-money collectors, in the years 1732 and 1733, there were in the city of Cork 2569 protestant samilies, and 5398 popish, and allowing 7 to each samily, there are 17983 protestants, and 37786 papists in the city. In the county, there were 4520 protestant samilies; and 36983 popish, which, by allowing 5 to each family, makes the number of the former to be 22000, and the latter 184915, viz. in the city 55769 souls, and 207515 in the country; but the number to a family is here under-rated.

Keys.

particularly those facing the several canals: The W. marsh is also daily building upon, it is called Hamond's marsh, and is laid out into streets. On the keys are several good private houses, as well as ware-houses. That called the Abbey-key, is well built, and planted with trees. The suburbs to the N. is above a measured mile in length, particularly the street called Mallow-lane, which is much frequented by country people, both for buying and felling their commodities. Blarney-lane is also of a great length, and in the same suburb, in which are an infinite number of flaughterhouses that make it very disagreeable. The S. fuburb is equally as large, but has not fo much trade as the N. In this part the poorer fort of the inhabitants dwell. Their doors are thronged with children, who, notwithstanding their hard fare, coarse diet, and labour of the parents, are more strong, lufty and healthy, than children more tenderly reared.

The keys of this city are very numerous, (26) yet ships of heavy burthen load and discharge, by the means of lighters, at Cove and Passage, which method is safe, expeditious, and of little expence, the general freight for one of these lighters being small, they carry about 30 tons, and being built so as to draw little water, are loaded at the cellar doors, which saves the charge of porterage in a great measure. The principal ones are, the custom-house key, cold-harbour, and the adjacent canal, the key to the south of the rape-marsh, the coal-key, or ferry-key, Kyrle's-key, the north-

(26) Anno 1637, a great part of the key out of the fouth gare was Luilt by alderman Thomas Ronayne.

Anno 1670, the channel to the fourh of the King's-marth, now called Dunfcomb's-marth, was cut, and the key on the fame began to be filled up.

Anno 1719, the key called Kyrle's-key, on the east fide of the north gaol, was built.

key, &c. all frequented by veffels, besides many others only by boats, whose names are expressed on the map of this city. Floods, attended with spring tides, sometimes do great damage to the merchants, whose warehouses lie low for the conveniency of shipping off their commodities. The inhabitants, upon great inundations, have fometimes been obliged to pass from house to house in boats in the very middle of the high street: These floods happen but seldom; yet they who dwell on the keys prepare for them every winter, by providing materials to stop up the doors of their cellars; these high tides are mostly about the equinoxes. On the 14th of March, 1727, happened one of the greatest inundations in this city known before that time; it was one foot two inches over the highest part of the keys; it blew a ftorm all the night before, strongly at S. E. and was full moon that day. Another very high tide that overflowed the keys, and filled all the cellars, was at the time of the autumnal equinox, viz. in September 1745; which did also very considerable. mischief. But one much higher than these happened on the 28th and 29th of January, 1749-50, when most the city was overflown, the water being four feet deep in the houses on Dunscomb's marsh, and three in the middle of the city, which inundation did incredible damage to the merchants. This flood was preceded by an aurora borealis, that happened on the 21st in the evening, and continued about an hour; it extended from E. to W. over the heart of the city, tinged with so deep a scarlet, that, at a distance, the town feemed to be in flames; during which time, it moved in a compact body, from N. to S. with a very flow motion.

As the war before the last not a little damped the Trade: trade of this city, which immediately on the peace was more than ordinarily increased, I have subjoined

Dd 2

an abstract of its imported and exported commodities, as I find them returned in the custom-house books (27), before the rupture with France. Qne year

(27) An account of the quantity of beef, butter, hides, tallow and wool exported from Cork, in the years 1743, 1744, and 1745.

Anno 1743, there were exported 86951 ; barrels of beef, 83844 C. wt. of butter, 8586 tann'd hides, 37509 raw ditto, 16054 C. wt. of tallow, and 420 stone of wool.

Anno 1744, there were shipp'd 118306 barrels of beef, 97852 C. wt. of butter, 3873 tann'd hides, 50750 untann'd ctitto, 19289 C. wt. of tallow, and 367 stone of wool.

Anno 1745, there were exported 73594 barrels of beef, 70620 C. wt. of butter, 5361 tann'd hides, 27578 raw ditto, 18852 C. wt. of tallow, and 1100 stone of wool.

There are also very large quantities of woollen yarn exported annually to Briftol.

Anno 1741, the following goods were imported into Cork, viz. before the breaking out of the war with France.

Ale and beer, 253 bar.

* Bark, 3781 bar.

Bottles of glass, 9317 doz. Brandy, 3734 gal.

Coals, 9018 tons. Coffee, 600 lb. weight.

- * Copper plates, 35 C. wt. Cork, 352 C. wt.
- Barley and malt, 1455 quar.

- Wheat, 962 quar. Drapery, new, 4087 yards.
- * Ditto, old, 1444 yards. Dying stuffs.
- * Alum, 327 C, wt. Cochineal, 1618 lb.
- Copperas, 948 C. wt. Fustick, 183 C. wt.

Indigo, 10117 lb.

- · Woad, none. Logwood, 386 C. wt.
- * Madder, 121 C. wt. Redwood, 120 C. wt.

Smelts, 4270 lb. · Herrings, 1918 bar. * Flax, undrest, 6 C. wt.

Fustian, ends, 163.

Glass, cases, 83. Drinking glaffes, No 1 3464. Grocery.

Almonds, 135 C. wt. Cinamon, 366 lb. Cocoa nuts, 1840 C. wt.

Currants, 113 C. wt. · Hull'd barley, 176 C. wt. Nutmegs, 168 lb.

Pepper, none. Pruens, 91 C. wt. Raisins, 791 C. wt.

Rice, 469 C. wt Liquorice ball, 6345 lb.

Loaf fugar, 167 C. wt. Muscovy ditto, 9560 C. wt.

- White ditto, 1590 C. wt. * Hemp, undreffed, 3509C.wt.
- * Hops, 11340 C. wt. Ironmongers ware.
- Iron, 10879 C. wt.
- Marmites, No 3060.
- Pots, 4000.

Scythes,

year with another, there were near an hundred thousand bullocks, and cows, slaughtered in this city, from August to Christmas; and the chief exportations

- Scythes, 368 dozen. Lead, none.
- · Cambrick, 2324 7ards.
- Lawns, 585 yards. Linfeed, 22 hogfheads.
- · Oatmeal, 25 barrels.
- Flour, 5953 barrels. Oranges and Lemons, 5953 hundred.
- Linfeed oil, 1714 gallons. Seville oil, 3059 gallons.
- Sweet oil, 1123 gallons. Printing paper, 2287 reams. Deal boards, 286 hundred.

 Writing ditto, 730 reams. Hoops, 1223 thousand.
- *. Writing ditto, 739 reams. Pitch, 86 barrels.
- Pot ashes, 1365 barrels. Resin, 51 C. wt.
- Rum, 48406 gallons.

- Salt-petre, 7 C. wt.

- Silk, manufactured, 797 lb.
- Steel, 155 C. wt.
 Cider, 66 tons.
- Tan, 222 C. wt.
- Tea, 14489 lb.
- Tobacco, 667793 lb.
- Vinegar, 87 tons. Wine, French, 564 tons. Wine, port, 61 tons.
- Wine, rhenish, 2 tons.
- Spanish, wine, 62 tons.
- Wood, 2100 baulks. · Barrel staves, 4896 hundred.

- Timber, 9 tons. Cotton, 65 C. wt.
- Spanish ditto, 15 C. wt. Wire, iron and latin, 32 C. wt.
- Salt, English, 3982 bushels. Cotton yarn, 6531 lb.

 Foreign ditto, 80131 bush. Mohair, 904 lb.

Those with an we may raise at home, or manufacture ourfelves.

The fame year, the following goods were exported out of this city.

Beef, 73108 barrels. Butter, 50917 C. wt. Candles, 4978 C. wt. Candles, 4976 C. wt.
Cheefe, 584 C. wt.
Feathers, 105 C. wt.
Herrings, 873 barrels.
Salmon, 26 tons.

Rabbits fkins, 1000.

Rabbits fkins, 1000.

Tallow, 14288 C. wt.

Tongues, 1563 dozen. Hogs lard, 449 C, wt. Hides, tann'd, No. 6120. Raw ditto, 11795. Linen cloth, 138788 yards. Worfted, 22597 tone. Pork, 10360 barrels, for yes out to the an east of the act

Rabbits fur, 50 lb. Calves fkins, 3726 dozen. Lambs ditto, 230 hundred. Wool, 592 flone. Yarn, linen, 26 C. wt. Yarn, woollen, 11463 stone.

Our

The total of the customs of the port of Cork, for the following years, stands as follows:

Years.	All Perchase in the	I.	8.	d.
1740		52404	2	8
1741		54946	1	101
1742		53023	16	51
1743		57991	3	25
1744		54819	3	41
1745		51764	18	5
1746		58827	18	9
1747	2 2 2	54490	18	10
1748	10 25 / A Charles - Man (19 1.18)	64727	11	01
1749	Quarter ending 24th of June,	27037	6	9

Upon enquiry, I find that the inland duties, viz. excife, licences, quit rents, and hearth money, amount to about 14000 l. per ann. in the diffrict of Cork, besides those of the collections of Kinsale, Baltimore, and Mallow, in this county.

In the year 1698, according to captain South's account, in the Phil. Transact No 261, p. 591 there were in the city 58 seamen, 34 fisher-men, 91 boatmen, in all 183; whereof 117 were papits; but the number is, at present, so great, they are not eafily to be reckoned.

For packing, falting and barrelling beef, this city gives place to no other in Europe. The want of bark occasions the exportation of fo many raw hides, which might, in a great measure, be supplied by the use of tormentil roots. Shank bones are also exported, in considerable quantities, to Holland and other places; they are used by turners, toymen, cutlers, bead-makers, &c. Of the parings of the hides, as also of the feet and finews, they make glew. The horns afford various manufactures, and are of use to horners, turners, lanthorn-makers, cutters, and comb-makers, &c. Confiderable quantities of foap and candles are manufactured of the tallow. The short hair is used for stuffing saddles, &c. the longer fort is curled for the same use; and that which is longest, they make into carpets and floor-cloths, at Rouen and Elbeuf, in Normandy. The bowels being prepared, are used by goldbeaters to manufacture their gold and filver. The goll is useful to scourers and clothworkers, and large quantities of bladders are exported for various uses. By an arret of the 29th

Our first exportation of corn and butter was to Spain, about the year 1633, as appears by lord Strafford's letters, which met with very great success, the merchants making large returns in specie. About the same time, they began to barrel up their beef and butter, with hoops bound about with twigs after the English manner; and set two letters, B. C. the mark of Bristol, upon the barrels.

In the year 1729, a proposal was made in the house of commons, to set up a ballast office in this city, notwithstanding the goodness of the harbour, and the very little use such an office could possibly be of here, but rather a detriment, by increasing unnecessary taxes, which would prove a burthen and discouragement to the merchants of the city, and prevent foreigners from frequenting this port; upon which, and many other accounts, it was not put in practice.

The revenues of the city do not exceed 12001. City Reor 13001. a year, at most; which arise in this venue. manner.

tound rent for the exchange, }	Sig Sig 9	d.
They have in fee farm rents,	343 19	81
In leases for years, about	73 0	0
The gatage is variable, worth about	600 0	0
Rents of Mambles, about at bolling and	140 0	0
For standings of pedlars, &c. in)	moot than a	10
the ftreets, about	50 0	0
Paid by the water-bailiff, about	80 0	Q
A STATE OF THE STREET, STREET STREET STREET, STREET		1

1286 19 84

The

of June, 1688, there was a duty laid, in France, upon Irish beef, of 5 livies the hundred weight; but by a second arret of the 7th of December, the same year, and by another of the 20th of May, 1704, salt beef imported into the towns of Havre, Nants, St. Maloes, Rochelle, Bourdeaux and Brest, in order to be exported again to the French American colonies, was to be discharged from paying the said duty, observing, notwithstanding, all other injunctions in the said arret.

e days a guines for each felmon, of algernien, 201 per aun.

The corporation (28) has other small incomes. arifing from the freedom of bailiffs, canting goods on the exchange, &c.

Govern-

The government of this city is by a mayor, ment and sheriffs, and common-council; and is incorpoprivileges rated by the name of the mayor, sheriffs, and commonalty of the city of Cork. It has been en-dowed with large and ample privileges, granted by feveral kings (29) of England, from the nor infile ding the good west the

(28) The falaries of the city officers are as follows:	w : per i	ınn.
tot here, but rather a detyment, by ne-	CL OS.	d.
The mayor's falary has been, of late years,	500 0	0
That of the recorder, on the chamberlain	60 0	0
The chamberlain, it stangisted mayorg bas	30 0	0
A fword bearer,	10 0	7 X/ En
The city furveyor, (USID DIE . DAW HOOD	20 0
Two serjeants at mace, to attend the mayor, each gl	101000	0
Two belimen 81. each per ann. and for the clothing 61. each, Keeper of the exchange,	as of T	_
Keeper of the exchange, Holl Ma 1897 B.	6 6	. 0
Keeper of the city clocks,	3110	10
The city pays ground rent for the exchange,	and .
feite of a castle, called Golden-castle, that stood where the exchange is built; and	30 0	0
the same family had another castle, in Shan-	or gatag	FF
don-caftle-lane, called Short-caftle,	· To side	ST
For a guard room for the officers,	910
Dan the landage landalams		9
For fire and candles for the city guard,	ordison B	9
To the austale of the bill sides	1 10
To the captain of the halberdiers,	4 13	0
Total	726 12	-

The city pays on state days a guinea for each fermon.

To reduced widows of aldermen, so i. per ann.
To reduced widows of burgeffes, 15 i.
Other city officers are, a common speaker, a coroner, common clerk, mayor, and constables of the staple, a serjeant of the ftaple, a clerk of the crown and peace, a notary public, m water balliff, a cuftom-man, &c.

(ag) The dates of the respective charters granted to this city, as they are expressed in the several exemplifications, are as follow :

English conquest to his present majesty's reign; the principal of which are as follows. The members

The charter of king Henry III. is dated at Westminster, Jan. 2, Anno regni 26, viz. 1242, and runs thus,

"Henricus Dei Gratia, Rex Angliz, Dominus Hiberniz, Dux Normand. Aquitaniz, comes de Anjou, &c. Archiepiscopis, Abatibus, Prioribus, Comitibus, Baronibus, Vi-

cecom, &c. salutem. Sciatis, &c.

By this charter, the city of Cork is granted to the citizens, in fee farm, paying for the same 80 marks to his majesty's exchequer in Dublin, at easter and michaelmas, by two equal payments; also the prifage of wines and cocquet. No citizen to be impleaded out of the city, but within their walls, viz. at guild-hall. The citizens to be free of all lastage, passage, pontage, &c. throughout the king's dominions. No citizen to be fined, except by the laws of the hundred, which court is to be held, once a week, by the provoft. The citizens to have all reasonable guilds, as the burgesses of Bristol have. not to be hindered to build houses on the river fide, to enjoy all lands and waste grounds without the city, except such lands as were granted, by charters, from his royal father king John, which lands the citizens are not to dispose of, but to be subject to fuch customs as the lands of other citizens are. All churches, hospitals, and religious houses (the priory of St. John excepted) to be under the jurifdiction of the city, and his majefty doth forbid any person to molest the said citizens contrary to the tenor of these his letters patent. Witness these venerable persons, William, archbishop of York, primate of England, William, bishop of Carlisle, Peter de Gabandia, John de Monem, William de Cantilupo, Galfridius de Spenser, Berttrand, de Grault, Roger de Montealto, Robert de Musegros, Paulino Pelace, allas de Briver, Johannes de Plessetis, Galfridius de L'Angell, & alli. Given under the King's hand, at Westminster, the date and year above mentioned.

An. 1610, the judges gave it as their opinion, that in Cork, by the charter and act of parliament, the king was to have the great and petty customs of all strangers; but that the citizens were to be discharged of the great customs. All charters granting customs between the last year of Edward I, and the 1st of Henry VII. are void by the act of resumption 1°. Henry VII. with a saving for Waterford only.

The above charter is confirmed by that of king Edward I. dated June 12, at Northampton, the 10th of his reign, anno 1201, which abolifies a custom, that obliged the mayors to go

bers of the corporation confift of a mayor, two sheriffs, a recorder, and as many aldermen and bur-

to Dublin to be fworn, and allows the mayor to be fworn before the old one, or before the king's judges, if refident in Cork. Exempts the citizens from being obliged to attend on juries out of the city. Grants to the mayor and bailiffs the affize of bread, ale, weights, and measures, with the office of clerk of the market, and all other privileges mentioned in the charter of Henry III. The witnesses to this charter are, William, archbishop of Canterbury, primate of all England, John, bishop of Ely, the king's chancellor, John, bishop of Norwich, Richard, bishop of London, Adam de Valentis, Comit. de Pembroke, Humfrid, de Bohun, Comit. de Hereford and Essex, Hugon. Le Despenser, Seniore, Roger, de Mortuomari de Wigmore, Batth. de Badlespere, & alii.

The same charter is literally repeated, with that of king Henry III. in a new charter, granted by king Edward II. the noth of January, 1318, and the 12th of his reign; adding, that no ftranger, except the king's fervants, shall bear arms in the city. Witness Roger de Mortimer, ford lieutenant of Ireland, at Clonmel, the said date. The above charters were again confirmed, by a new one of king Edward III. dated at Woodstock, July 15th, the fourth year of his reign, 1530. Witneffed by H. bishop of Lincoln, the king's chancellor, John de Eltham, earl of Cornwall, the king's brother, John de Warren, earl of Surry. Roger de Mortuomari, earl of Marsh, Oliver de Ingham, John Maltravers, the seneschal of the king's house, and others. The same king granted to the city another charter, the following year, dated at Westminster, the 12th of February, reciting his having feen letters patent, which Edward late king of England, his royal father, had granted to this city, at the instance of Roger Mortimer, earl of March, then lord lieutenant of Ireland, which letters patent, &c. he now confirms to the citizens aforefaid. Witnesses the same as before.

King Edward IV. granted a new chatter to the city, confirming all the former ones, dated apad Castellum suum, the 1st of December, the 2d of his reign, viz. ann. 1462. This charter takes notice of 11 parish churches having been in the city and suburbs thereof for one mile round it; for which they paid 80 marks to the crown, as long as the said suburbs remained undestroyed; and that now the aforesaid churches and suburbs, by reason of the wars of Irish enemies, and English rebels, were burned and laid waste, for the space of 15 years burgesses, as with these four, shall make up the number of 24, who are all together named the common-

past, by reason whereof the citizens were become unable to pay his majesty the said sum, and did seek a pardon for the same from his majesty's noble father; upon consideration of which, he remits the aforesaid see farm rent. And the said king grants the custom called cocquet to the city for the rebuilding of their walls, to hold the same until they could travel a mile round their city in fafety.

King Henry VII. confirmed all the former grants, with the port of the city from Rew Rone on the W. to Denowdram on the E. and in regard of the poverty of the city, and the ruin and spoil of the same, he grants a release for all rents due before the date of these letters patent, and in lieu thereof accepts of 201. of wax, to be paid every easter into his exchequer in Dublin, during the king's pleasure; this charter also restores the city to the king's savour, it being dissranchised for aiding Perkin Warbeck.

Tefte Rege apud Westmonast. 1º. die Augusti

An. Regn. 15°. A.D. 1500. King Henry VIII. confirmed all the privileges hitherto granted to this city, by letters patent, dated at Westminster, Feb. the 4th, in the 1st year of his reign, anno 1509. Also, by another charter, in the 8th of his reign, dated at Westminster, Dec. the 10th, which makes the mayor, recorder, and four fenior aldermen, justices of the peace in the faid city and libertles thereof, and to be justices of gool delivery, with power to commit felons, and to erect a gallows for their execution; all fines, waifs, strays, goods of felons, &c. to go to the use of the city. The same prince, in the 28th year of his reign, for the honour and munificence of this city, granted to William Coppenger, then mayor, and his successors, to have a fword, decently fheathed and adorned, carried before them in the faid city and liberties thereof; and granted the custody of the king's castle to him and his successors, until the king should figuify his pleasure to the contrary; and that, in the mean time, no heriff of the county of Cork, shall have any thing to do with the faid caftle, or any matter touching the same. And that the mayor, bailiff, and commonalty, may employ an agent for them in England, to provide and buy them 40 fuits of armour, with liberty to thip them from England to Cork, without moleftation.

Teste Rege apud Westmon. 11. Martii. An. Regn.

Sui 28. viz. 1537:

common-council of the city. The number of aldermen are uncertain; for there are none of that title,

All the privileges of the city were renewed and confirmed by king Edward VI. by a new charter, dated May 9, ann. reg. 3, 1549, in which, befides the foregoing privileges, the following are added: No foreigner to buy corn, wool, leather, &c. but of the citizens in the city, nor to fell wine but in his ship, nor merchandise longer than 40 days, without licence from the mayor. No citizen to be arrested for debt out of the city. The goods of citizens, dying intestate, not to be claimed by the crown. Power to the citizens to match their children as they shall think proper, and that they shall have all reasonable guilds as in Bristol.

Queen Elizabeth, in the 13th year of her reign, gave a filver collar of S. S. to Maurice Roche, mayor of Cork, ann. 1571, for his services against the earl of Desmond, which collar, and a patent relating thereto, were left in the custody of Francis Kearny, of Garret's town, esq, and the said queen confirmed all the charters granted to this city, by letters patent, ann, 1576.

King James I. granted a new charter to this city, bearing date March the 7th, in the 6th of his reign; this charter changes the mayor and bailiffs to mayor, sheriffs and com-monalty of the city of Cork, to be a corporation, to sue and be fued in all his majefty's courts, to have one common feal, to be changed at pleasure; Dominick Roche to be the first and modern mayor, David Gallway, and William Hore, the first sheriffs. The mayor, sheriffs and commonalty, to make by-laws, and punish the breakers of them by fine and imprisonment; to appoint an escheator, coroner and other officers, and remove them at pleasure; all lands (except the castle of Cork, called the king's old caftle, and the fireet of the same, with the county gaol) for the space of 3000 paces round the city, to be a diffinct county of itself, to be measured according to the statute, by commissioners appointed for that purpole, viz. fir Dominick Sarsfield, knt. fir Parr Lane, knt. fir Edward Fitzgerald, knt. &c. a copy of which admeafurement was to be returned by them into the high court of chancery, and another to the mayor, under their respective hands and feals. The mayor, theriffs and commonalty, are to build, at their own charge, within the precinct of the faid castle, a session house for the judges of assize, and to repair the same at their own expence. His majesty grants to the mayor, recorder, and four senior aldermen, the office of justice

CHAP. IX. HISTORY of CORK.

title, but those who have first passed the chair; and if there be not a sufficient number, with the mayor, recorder,

justice of the peace and of gaol delivery, in the said city and liberties; the mayor or recorder to be always one, to hear and determine all felonies, trespasses, &c. His majesty grants a duty on fift to the corporation, for the support of Black-All arrears from the 18th of queen Elizabeth Rock-caftle. were discharged, and in lieu thereof 20 l. of wax to be paid yearly into the exchequer. Two fairs granted to the city, one on the morrow after Trinity funday, and the other on the eve of St. Matthew, each to continue three days, with courts of pye powder, &c. The mayor and corporation to have power to tax the citizens, liberty to purchase lands, &c. to the value of 40 l. The mayor may punish whores, scolds, and disorderly persons. All privileges granted by any former charter confirmed by this. The corporation may appoint a mayor, constable, and society of merchants of the staple, to be incorporated into a body politic, with the same power as those in London or Dublin. The same king granted, in the 16th year of his reign, viz. ann. 1618, to the mafter and company of the shoe-makers and brogue-makers of this city, power to drefs and curry all manner of hides, fkins, and leather; to make by-laws for the better regulation of the company, and to elect masters and wardens, and all other privileges usually granted to any guild or fraternity.

The great charter of the city was granted by king Charles I. dated at Canterbury, April the 7th, in the seventh year of his reign.

This charter recites several of the former charters, confirms all the privileges mentioned therein, and specifies, That upon advices of his commissioners for Irish affairs, and in confideration of the fum of 2000 l. paid by the citizens towards the relief of the king's army, and other faithful fervices, the mayor, sheriffs and commonalty, of this city, shall be henceforth incorporated by that name, and be one body politic, to fue and be fued, &c. Maurice Roche to be the first mayor, Nicholas Skiddy and Patrick Brady, to be the first and modern sheriffs. The mayor, sheriffs and citizens, to affemble in their common hall, on the monday after St. Bartholomew, to elect their mayor. All religious houses to be under the jurisdiction of the city, and liable to be rated, viz. the four diffolved abbies, Gill-abbey, St. Dominick's, St. Augustine's, and that of St. Francis, with the two parishes within the city, and all the persons resident within recorder, and sheriffs, to make up 24, the deficiency is supplied out of the burgesses.

BOOK II.

By

the same to be, for the future, in the liberties of the city, and all other lands within 3000 paces of the same, as is expressed in the charter of king James I. to be a diffinct county of it felf. The sheriffs to hold a court, once a month, for the better government of the fame. The king's old caftle, the county gaol, then called the lower room of the faid castle, with the common place of execution, to continue in the county at large. The corporation covenants with his majesty, to build the fame fession house, and keep it for ever in repair. mayor, recorder, and four senior aldermen, to be justices of the peace; and any three of them, the mayor or recorder to be always one, to hold fessions of gaol delivery for all felonies, &c. committed in their liberties, and to erect a gallows for the execution of criminals. All fines, forfeitures, goods of felons, and fugitives, &c. granted to the city. When of felons, and fugitives, &c. granted to the city. the mayor is out of his mayoralty, he is to be elected an alderman, and one of the common council is to be chosen mayor, by the mayor, theriffs and community, or the major part of them; the number of aldermen and common council, shall not exceed 24. Sheriffs to account in this city by commission, or before the judges of assize, if there, but not to be compelled to account in Dublin. None but freemen to retail goods in the city, except at fairs. All goods to be unladen at the common key, and not elfewhere, under pain of forfeiture of the same, except by licence from the mayor. The mayor to be fird named in all commissions; the mayor, &c. to chuse their town clerk, clerk of the crown, and notary public, to continue for life, unless they are removed for misdemennors. James Gold appointed, by this charter, the first town clerk, clerk of the crown, and notary public. All fmall duties and petty customs granted to the citizens for the support of the city, to be levied by the sheriffs, or their deputies, as in Youghal. The mayor, sheriffs, &c. have power to elect fix aldermen of the city for the feveral wards, to hear and determine all matters whatfoever, not exceeding 40 s. The constables, ferjeants at mace, and all other officers in the city to be affifting to put the judgment of the faid aldermen into execution. No person to practice physic in the city without licence from the mayor, unless he be educated in some university, under the penalty of 40 s. a month, during the time he fo practifes. The mayor, sheriffs, and commonalty, to have power to erect guilds and companies of artificers,

CHAP. IX. HISTORY of CORK.

By the charter, the mayor and theriffs are to be elected the monday after St. Bartholomew the apostle, to have fuch power as those in London or Dublin. The mayor, &c. to elect a mayor, and conftables of the staple, and merchants of the staple, to be a body corporate, with the like power as those in London or Dublin, Youghal or Kin-The day of their election, to be on the monday before the feast of all Saints. The said mayor and constables of the staple, to make such freemen of the said staple as they shall think proper, to export out of the city, all forts of wool, flocks, hides, pelts, &c. and other staple commodities, at their election, to those places following, viz. London, Chester, Briftol, Barnstaple, Liverpool and Milford. The major part of the fociety to elect and admit merchants of the staple in the faid fociety. And for feeding of sheep, and their increase in this kingdom, no duties are to be paid to the king by any of that fociety, but fuch as are mentioned in the charter, viz. 12 d. in the pound for every 21 l. value. The mayor and constables to keep weights by the king's beam, who are to have the profits of the same. Whis city had a charter from Oliver Cromwell, which was only in force during his ufurpation.

Dec. 18, 1661, there was a proclamation iffued for all corporations to renew their charters, upon which an order of council was made, that Henry Bathurst, esq; and others be appointed agents for this city to renew their charter. And a new one, confirming all their privileges, was granted, Jan. 16, 13th Carol II. The exemplification is under the great seal, and witnessed by sir Maurice Eustace, knt. lord chancellor of Ireland, and Roger earl of Orrery, then lord justice.

Anno 1734, August 26, there was an order of council, that there be a petition to the king, for a new charter, or letters patent, to make every alderman of this city, after serving as mayor, a justice of peace for the city and liberties, and that the sum of 300 l. be allowed for procuring the same. And May 29th, 1735, this charter was sent from London, to their excellencies the lords justices, who laid it before the attorney-general. August 10th, 1735, they recommended it to his grace the duke of Dorset, lord lieutenant of Ireland, to be laid before her majesty queen Caroline, who was regent during his majesty's absence in Hanover. The queen, by letters to the lords justices, granted a charter, dated Jan. 2, 1735, which arrived at Cork, Jan. 11, 1735, and cost the city 267 l.

December

apostle, and to enter and be sworn into their office the monday after michaelmas day. Notwithflanding which, they are now elected the monday after St. Peter and St. Paul's day, being the first monday in July, and then they are fworn as above. For according to the new rules, made by the lord lieutenant and council, anno 1672, for the regulation of the corporations of Ireland, all elections of magistrates, in this and other cities, after the last day of December that year, should be three months before the day of swearing, and entering upon their office, in order that they might be approved of by the government.

Courts.

The mayor, recorder and theriffs, hold courts of record, court leet, as also a court of admiralty; which power was questioned in the year 1664, by persons authorized by the duke of York, to act as admiral of Munster; upon which, I find an order of council, " that a copy of the record out of the exchequer, on which the rent paid by this corporation for the admiralty of this city is grounded, be taken out, and produced to the next judge of affize."

Privileges of the Mayor, &c.

The mayor had formerly a butt of fack given him by the corporation, for his entertainment, in lieu of 20 nobles. By an order of council, August 25, 1634, the mayor elect was either to give up the butt of fack, or pay the chamberlain the fum of 10 l. at his election. The mayors had an ancient custom, before going out of their office, to make a freeman at large, provided the person proposed was approved of by the mayor elect, and the rest of the common-council; but December 13, 1697, the chamberlain was ordered to pay feven guineas to Mr. Walker, on his producing the great charter of king Charles I. which was loft and miffing feveral years.

ľĹ

ir

t-

g

e,

0

this being found inconvenient, the fum of 51, was afterwards given to the mayor in lieu of this privilege, which fum, on the augmentation of the mayor's falary, has been fince taken off.

In the year 1668, letters patent were passed to fir Thomas Allen, knt, for the fealing of leather through Ireland, and the same was demanded to be done in this city, by one Thady Callaghan, gent. but the corporation opposed him, and afferted, that they had been in possession of the same privilege for twelve years before, by a more ancient grant from his majesty, than what the faid Cal-laghan produced; so that he was obliged to defift. The same year, on the 4th of September, a patent was produced in right of fir John Stephens, knt. to the corporation, with a docket of fees, to be craner of this port. The council ordered the mayor to give this answer, that this office belonged to the corporation by charter, a more ancient patent than that granted to fir John Stephens. And to support the surty the mayor was defired to take in subscriptions from the merchants.

By a by-law of the corporation, made November the 8th, 1670, the fons of a freeman, at the age of twenty-one years, are admitted to be free, without paying any fine except the officers fees.

Anno 1697, on the 22d of November, the freemen of this city petitioned the hon, house of commons, complaining of several unreasonable taxes laid on them by the mayor, theriffs and council, ever fince the time of the surrender of the city to his majesty king William, under pretence of a by-law made by the mayor and council, who had exempted themselves from quartering soldiers undenthe colour of another by law. The house resolved, nem. con. That the free-Vot. I.

" men had fully prove	ed the allegations of their custom of taking the duty
	plained of, was exorbitant,
	al. Ordered, that Mr. James
" French, late mayor	of the city of Cork, be ta-
	ly of the ferjeant at arms, mptuous words against this that Mr. Theophilus Morris,
one of the late the	riffs of the faid city, be fum-
" moned to attend the	is house, to answer a com-
" plaint against him f	for discouraging the prosecu-
" tion of the faid pet	tition, Signed Robert Roch-
fort, Speaker."	THE TRUE OF SELECTION OF STREET
	he food formanter belowied

Prisage of The prisage of wines, (29) formerly belonged wines. to this corporation, but, on the 1st of August 1666, they made a present of it to James duke of Ormond.

(30) In the year 1634, the following fums were received for the prifage of wines, as it is found in the large council book of this cary.

Dec. Out of the barque to Maurice Roche, al-	1. s.d.
derman, one ton of Spanish wine, from St. Maloes,	14_0 0
One ton more, and one ord in the	14 000
April From Bourdeaux, per Robert Vernon, 2	140000
From St. Maloes, 1 ton,	14 0 0
From ditto, 1 ton,	14 0 0
A Flemish ship to Richard Creagh of Bour-	14 0 0
May. A small barque from ditto, 1 ton,	7 0 0
June. A barque from St. Maloes, 1 ton,	14 0 0
Ditto from ditto,	14 0 0

This privilege has been a long time in the house of Ormond, for the prisage of wine of Limerick, Cork, Ross Kinsale, Galway, Dungarvan, and Dingle, in the year 1467, was taken from John earl of Ormond, during his life. The instrument, whereby the city relinquished the prisage of wines, was pretented to the duke, in a filver box, with the city arms engraved thereon, by Noble Dunscomb, esq, then mayor.

Ormond. This duty was granted to the city by king Henry III, and was very confiderable.

The franchises of the city I have already let Franchidown page 353; they have been formetimes per-fea. ambulated by the mayor and corporation, in an handsome manner, particularly on October 20th, 1714; and the night concluded with very fine fire-works and illuminations, in honour of his majefty king George I. whose coronation was that day celebrated in the city. By an order of the court of D'oyer Hundred, the mayor was ordered to ride round the liberties and franchises of this city, May 30th, 1726, and to have the same usage continued every third year, and an allowance of go !: was given to Mr. Ambrole Cramer, then mayor, to defray his expence on this occasion, who rode the franchifes accordingly; but this usage has been again discontinued.

In this city, they have an odd custom of throwing bran on the new mayor, his officers and retinue, the day he enters into his office, which has prevailed time out of mind, being they say, an emblem of plenty; and notwithstanding it has been often prohibited, the custom still prevails.

This city returns two members to parliament, who had formerly wages (30) for their attendance,

Roml, Cand. Nr. 102

Ee 2

(31) It was also the custom of the knights for the county, to receive pay, as appears from the following record

Robert Rochfort, etch and Rogen Sonkeston, knt. Being elected knights of the shire, to serve in parliament for the county of Cork, refused to serve, unless Garret, of Desmond, sheriff of the said county, would become security to them, to pay them for their trouble and attendance, as much as other knights of the shire received for theirs, which the said Garret did: And as it was not known what wages the said knights ought to have, because none were returned for a long time from thence; therefore, at the petition of the said Garret, it was enacted, that the said sheriff might levy and take from every carucate of land within the county of Cork, 8 d. to as all others then had, concerning which there is this memorandum in a council book. "That " Dominick Roche, alderman, doth hereby ac-" knowledge to have received of George Terry, " efg; sheriff and chamberlain of Cork, towards " the allowance granted by the corporation, be-" ing employed as one of the city burgeffes in " parliament, at the rate of 7 s. 6 d. a day, viz. " 232 days for the 3d, 4th, and 5th fessions of the " faid parliament, the fum of 87 l. sterl as follow-" eth. For the 3d and 4th fitting, 82 days, the " fum, of 45 l. 15 s. fterl. and the 5th, and now " last fitting, 110 days the sum of 41 l. 58 sterl. " in all 87 l. sterl. and 12 st for the writ; for "which furns, this shall be to the chamberlain " and corporation, a fufficient acquitance and dif-" charge. Witness my hand, the 29th of August; Dominick Roche." 1641.

This city, although destitute of walls or other fortifications, is esteemed a garrison town, and has a military governor (31) constantly appointed for pay the said knights, as is done in the county of Dublie, and other counties. This was at a parliament held before Thomas earl of Desmond, lord deputy of Ireland, anno, 3d Edward IV, 1463.

Anno 1357, the 50th of Edward III. John Draper was cholen member for the city by writ, and ferved in the English parliament. Upon his complaint to the king, that he was denied to be paid his expences by the citizens, care was taken to reimburse him.

(32) Names of the late governors of Cork.

Anno 1644 Major Muschamp, governor of Cork fort.

1678 The lord viscount Shannon.

1689 The ford Clare, and M. Boilean for king James.

ork, refuled to ferve,

governors. Lord lieut of the county for king James, the lord Mountcastel. Deputy lieutenants, Pierce

Nagle,

t; which is a post of more profit than danger,

and is in reality a finecure.

I have in the 58 and 59 pages of this Volume, Militia. fet down the number of men arrayed, at different times, in this city. In 1746, the militia of Cork, confisted of 3000 foot and 200 horse, the latter of which were in uniform, and armed with broad fwords and piftols. There were belides those, an independent company, commanded by colonel Henry Cavendish, who called themselves the True Blues, being in uniform of that colour, turned up with scarlet, with waiftcoats of the same, goldlaced hats, &c. This company was composed of a hundred gentlemen, who were extremely well difciplined, and performed the manual exercise and evolutions, with the greatest exactness.

The arms or device of this city, is a ship be- Arms. tween two castles, all proper, with this lemma, Statio fida bene Carinis.

Nagle, Daniel Mac-Carty Reagh, O Sullivan Bear,

Charles Mac Carty, alias Mac-Donough. 1600 Colonel Hales and colonel Haltings, for king

Add Add College . Tree Jake Callingv. Richard Pelahond Tres Addition of the

. to We day Role of 1 good storter of Vangent

ting Richard Mexicane. 1358 Attention 1326 Educ De Talour. 1 of Whiten Street. 1797 Roger Tryal 124 1 Sen Parcetal Vigoria

William, upon the furrender of the city.

1691 Sir Richard Cox, knt.

1692 Sir Toby Purcell, knt. 1691 Sir Richard Cox, knt.

1701 Sir James Jefferies, knt.
1722 James Jefferies esq; his fon.
1746 General Gervais Parker.

1752 Lieut. General James St. Clair.

1764 Lord Robert Bertie. 1769 John Wynne, elq;

Albra No Carl Do Landiff.

ayor Teregral Mincing.

hil Alonn La Dilyanter. . 1 62 William La one's.

and Market Market

1011 Abra, de Sindmole.

1328 Reser Le Blon.

A list of the Magistrates of the city of Cork, from the earliest accounts to the present time.

A. D. PROVOSTS.	A.
King John.	ann.
1199 John Difpenser.	13:
Henry III.	133
1236 Walter Eynoff.	133
1249 Eliah Stackpole.	13
1251 John Wenchedon.	133
1252 Walter Wright.	13
MAYORS.	13
Edward I.	133
1272 Richard Morren.	133
1273 Richard Wine.	133
1274 Richard Lee.	133
1279 Walter Tardiff.	134
1281 Walter Rute.	134
1285 Peter Ruffel.	134
1287 William Pollard.	134
1290 Walter Tardiff.	134
1291 Walter O-Heyn.	134
Edward II.	134
1293 John Lavallen.	134
1310 John Walters.	134
1311 William Bond.	134
1312 Nich. de la Weily.	135
1313 William Hadvivre.	135
1314 Walter De Kerdiff.	135
1315 Nicholas O-Heyne.	135
1316 John De Ligre.	135
1317 Nich. de la Weily.	135
1318 Adam Milksbury.	135
1319 Stephen Coppenger.	135
1320 Richard Delahoid.	135
1321 Abra, de Stackpole.	135
1322 Walter Reisch.	136
1323 Gilbert Monk.	136
1324 John Le Dispenser.	136
1325 Richard Morraine.	136
Edward III.	136
1326 Edw. De Tailour.	136
1327 Roger Tryal.	136
1328 Roger Le Blon.	- 16
The second second second

	A. D. MAYORS.
	Edward III.
	9 /
	The state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the s 1338 John De Briftol.
	1339 John Fitz-Abraham. 1340 David De Montibus.
	1342 Elias De Stackpole.
	1343 Walter Reifch.
	1344 William Pollard.
	1345 William Pollard. 1346 Walter De Kerdiff.
	1347 William O-Heyne.
	1348 John Wallen.
	1349 Will. de Wandespar.
1	1350 Walter De Kerdiff.
	1351 Nicholas O-Heyne.
	1352 Nicholas Delahoyde.
ė	1353 Walter De Kerdiff.
3	1354 Perceval Vincent.
	1355 John Gallenger.
	1356 Walter de Kerdiff.
	1357 John Gallenger.
	1358 Adam Ruth.
	1359 Walter De Kerdiff.
-	1360 Perceval Vincent.
	1361 Perceval Vincent.
	1362 William Drooper.
	1363 Adam Ruth.
	1364 William Skiddy.
	1365 William Skiddy.
	1366 Perceval Vincent.
	1357

CHAP. IX. HISTORY of CORK.

I.

CHAP. IA. HISTOR	erof CORK.
A.D. MAYORS.	A. D. MAYORS.
Edward III.	Henry IV.
1367 William Skiddy.	1406 William Sughin.
1368 Jordan Kerdiff.	1407 John Wright.
1369 William Drooper.	1408 William Sughin.
1370 John Leblown.	1409 Thomas Morton.
1371 John Leblown.	1410 John Warner.
1372 Thomas Thish.	1411 Thomas Murrough.
1373 William Drooper.	Henry V.
1374 William Downane.	1412 Thomas Mordonton.
1375 Thomas Thish.	1413 Patrick Rice.
1376 William Drooper.	1414 Thomas Mollenton.
Richard II.	1415 Robert Gardiner.
1377 William Downane.	1416 Robert Gardiner.
1378 Thomas Thish.	1417 Robert Gardiner.
1379 David Miagh.	1418 Robert Gardiner.
1380 John Lombard.	1419 Thomas Mollenton.
1381 David Miagh.	1420 Thomas Mollenton.
1382 Robert Drooper.	1421 Robert Borderner.
1383 John Mynne.	Henry VI.
1284 John Mynne.	1422 Thomas Mollenton.
1385 John Mynne.	1423 Pierce Drooper.
1385 John Mynne. 1386 Robert Drooper. 1387 John Malby. 1388 John Malby. 1389 John Lombard.	1424 Robert Gardiner. 1425 David Landebrook.
1387 John Malby.	1425 David Landebrook,
1388 John Malby.	1426 Geoffry White.
1389 John Lombard.	1427 David Landebrook.
1 3go vv illiam Folent.	1428 Edward Dantz.
1391 Redm. Kerrick.	1429 Godfry Waile.
1392 Andrew Stackpole.	1430 Geoff. Gallaway.
1202 Redm. Kerrick.	1431 William Anafey.
1394 Robert Flemming. 1395 John Warriner.	1422 William Anafey.
1395 John Warriner.	1433 John Menia.
rach Thomas Honyheard.	1424 Geoff. White.
1397 Thom. Burdeys. 1398 John Warriner.	1435 John Murrough.
1308 John Warriner.	1436 Godfry Gallaway.
Henry IV.	1437 John Murrough.
1399 John Mainen.	1428 John Skiddy.
1400 John Knap.	1430 John Skiddy.
1401 Richard Lavallen.	1440 John Meagh.
1402 William Sughin.	1441 John Murrough.
1403 John Benefiat.	1442 William Gold,
1404 John Skiddy.	1443 William Gold.
1405 John Lignce.	1444 John Murrough.
140 3 sunt Library	1445

A. D. MAYORS.

Henry VI. 1445 John Gold.

1446 Richard Skiddy.

1447 John Gold. 1448 Patrick Gallaway.

1449 John Gallaway.

1450 Richard Skiddy.

1451 John Gold. 1452 Richard Skiddy.

1453 William Gallaway. 1454 William Skiddy.

1455 Richard Lavallen. 1456 William Gallaway.

1457 Richard Skiddy.

1458 William Skiddy.

1459 Patrick Gallaway. Edward IV.

1460 Thomas Murrough.

1461 Richard Skiddy.

1462 John Gallaway.

1463 William Gold.

1464 John Gold.

1465 John Skiddy. 1466 Richard Skiddy.

1467 John Meagh.

1468 Godfry Naiole.

1469 John Mezca. 1470 Richard Skiddy.

1471 John Gallaway. 1472 William Gallaway.

1473 Tho. Murrough.

1474 William Skiddy.

1475 Richard Lavallen.

1476 John Gallaway.

1477 William Gallaway.

1478 Richard Skiddy.

1479 William Skiddy.

1480 William Skiddy. 1481 William Gallaway.

1482 Richard Gallaway.

Edward V. Richard III.

1483 William Gallaway.

1484 William Skiddy.

A. D. MAYORS.

Henry VII.

1485 Patrick Gallaway.

1486 William Gallaway. 1487 William Skiddy.

1488 Maurice Roche.

1489 William Gallaway.

1490 John Watters.

1401 Maurice Roche.

1492 John Lavallen.

1493 William Gold. 1494 John Walters. 1495 Tho. Coppinger. 1496 John Lavallin. 1497 Maurice Roche.

1498 John Lavallin.

1499 John Walters.

1500 Maurice Roche.

1501 William Gold.

1502 William Gallaway.

1503 Edmund Gold.

1504 John Gallaway. 1505 William Terry.

1506 William Skiddy.

1507 John Skiddy,

1508 Richard Gallaway. Henry VIII.

1500 Edmund Gallaway.

1510 Edmund Gold.

1511 Edmund Terry.

1512 John Gallaway. 1513 John Roche. 1514 Edmund Terry.

1515 Richard Skiddy. 1516 Walter Gallaway.

1517 John Skiddy. 1518 Nicholas Skiddy.

1519 Patrick Terry.

1520 Edmund Roche.

1521 David Terry.

1522 Richard Gold.

1523 Maurice Roche.

1524 Edmund Gold. 1525 William Terry.

CHAP. IX.	STORY OCKA.
A.D. MAYORS.	A. D. MAYORS.
Henry VIH.	Elizabeth.
1526 John Skiddy.	1565 Richard Roche.
1527 Walter Gallaway.	1566 William Gallaway.
1528 John Skiddy.	1567 Edmund Gold.
1529 Patrick Terry.	1568 John Gallaway.
1530 Edmund Roche.	1569 Andrew Gallaway.
1531 Richard Gold	1570 John Meagh.
1532 Patrick Gallaway.	1571 Maurice Roche.
1533 David Roche.	1572 Stephen Coppinger.
1524 James Gold	1573 John Walters.
1534 James Gold. 1535 William Coppinge 1536 Robert Meagh.	r. 1574 William Terry.
1536 Robert Meagh	1575 James Roynane.
Lear Thomas Ronsume	1576 William Roche.
1537 Thomas Ronayne. 1538 William Terry.	1577 John Gold.
1539 James Roche.	1578 Walter Gallaway.
1540 Richard Terry.	1579 Maurice Roche.
1541 Christopher Creagh
1542 William Sarsfield.	1581 Christopher Walters.
1543 William Skiddy.	1582 Patrick Gallaway.
1544 James Gold.	1583 James Roche.
1545 Richard Gold.	1584 George Gold.
Edward VI.	1585 Stephen Walters.
1546 William Gold.	1586 Stephen Terry.
1547 William Gold.	1 582 Robert Conninger
1548 Patrick Meagh.	1587 Robert Coppinger. 1588 Edmund Terry.
1549 Thomas Ronayne.	1589 John Skiddy.
1550 Dominick Roche.	1590 Dominick Roche.
1551 William Terry.	1591 David Terry.
1552 James Roche.	1592 Henry Walth.
Mary I.	1593 Patrick Gallaway.
1553 Patrick Gallaway.	Took Francis Martel
1554 Richard Terry.	1594 Francis Martel. 1595 James Meagh.
1555 Christopher Meagh.	1596 Patrick Gallaway
1556 William Sarsfield.	1597 George Gold.
1557 William Skiddy.	1598 John Skiddy.
Elizabeth.	1599 James Sarsheld.
1558 Dominick Roche.	1600 William Mead.
1559 Edmund Gold.	1601 John Mead.
1560 Edward Gallaway.	James I.
1561 John Gallaway.	1602 John Coppinger.
1562 Andrew Gallaway.	1603 Thomas Sarsheld.
1563 Maurice Roche.	1604 Edmund Terry.
1564 Stephen Coppinger.	1605 Robert Coppinger.
Joh orchiren oabbringer.	1003 Moodit Coppinger

1606

A. D. MAYORS. James I.

1606 William Sarsfield.

1607 Philip Martel.

1608 David Terry.

1609 Dominick Roche. 1610 Edmund Gallaway.

1611 George Gold.

1612 Dominick Terry.

1613 William Skiddy.

1614 David Terry.

1615 William Gold.

1616 John Coppinger. 1617 Patrick Terry.

1618 William Gold.

1619 John Coppinger. 1620 William Terry.

1621 Andrew Skiddy.

1622 John Coppinger.

1623 John Roche.

1624 John Roche,

Charles I. 1625 Henry Gold.

1626 Edmund Martell.

A. D. MAYORS.

Charles I.

1627 William Hoare,

1628 David Terry.

1629 James Murrough. 1630 Thomas Ronayne.

1631 Maurice Roche.

1632 Geoff. Gallaway.

1633 William Roche.

1634 Richard Roche.

1635 Thomas Martell. 1636 Robert Meagh.

1637 David Meagh.

1638 Patrick Lavallen.

1639 Thomas Sarsfield. 1640 Thomas Gold.

1641 Melcher Lavallin.

1642 Maurice Roche.

1643 John Roche.

1644 Robert Coppinger.

1645 James Lombard. 1646 For 10 years, no civil

Magistrates during Cromwell's usurpation.

Protestant Mayors and Sheriffs.

A. D. MAYORS.

Charles II. 1656 John Hodder,

1657 Will. Hodder,

1658 Philip Mathews,

1659 Jonas Morris, 1660 Christ. Oliver,

1661 Walter Cooper,

1662 Rich. Covett,

1663 James Vandeluen, 1664 Rich. Baffet,

1665 No. Dunfcomb,

1666 Tho. Farren.

1667 Chrift. Rye, 1668 Christ. Rye,

1669 Math. Deane,

1670 James Finch,

1671 Jn. Newenham,

SHERIFFS.

William Hodder, Philip Mathews. Richard Covett, Timothy Tucky.

Richard Baffet, John Bayley. Richard Lane, Noblet Dunfcomb.

Thomas Farren, John Flyn. Christopher Rye, Nicholas King.

Robert Williams, Thomas Crook. William French, Richard Purdon.

James Finch, Mathew Deane. John Newenham, Patrick Ronayne.

John Hawkins, Timothy Tucky. Thomas Mill, George Wright.

Thomas Kitchenman, Rob. Fletcher, William Field, Richard Harvey.

William Wren, Thomas Walker. Jonathan Perry, John Bayley.

CHAP. IX. HISTORY of CORK.

A. D. MAYORS.

SHERIFFS.

-		-
	arles

1672 John Hawkins, Thomas Franklin, John Terry. 1673 Thomas Mills, 1674 John Bayley, 1675 Geo. Wright, 1676 Will. Field, 1677 Tim. Tucky, 1678 Th. Kitchenman.

1679 John Bayley, 1680 Robert Rogers,

1681 Will, Alwin, 1682 Rich. Covett,

1683 John Wright,

1684 Edw. Webber. 2685 Chrift, Crofts,

1686 Edward Hoar,

1687 Will. Ballard. Ignatius Gold,

1688 Patrick Roche,

1689 Dom, Sarsfield, 1690 Will. Ballard,

1691 Daniel Crone,

1692 Will. Charters,

1693 Will. Howell, 1694 Peter Renew,

1695 Samuel Love, 1696 James French,

1697 Will. Roberts,

1698 Will. Goddard, 1699 Theo. Morris,

1700 John Sealy,

1701 Simon Dring,

1702 John Whiting, 1703 Edm. Knap,

1704 Will. Andrews, 1705 Fran. Cotterel,

1706 Bernard Poye,

1707 Jos. Franklin, 1708 Row. Delahoyde,

1709 Noblet Rogers,

1710 Edward Hoar, 1711 Richard Philips,

1712 Dan. Perdriau,

1713 John Allen,

James Mills, Thomas Wills, Robert Rogers, William Hull. John Wright, Edward Webber. Edward Youd, John Sealy. William Allen, Christopher Crofts. William Maleborn, Richard Terry. William Ballard, William Howel. Randal Hull, Henry Gerald. Thomas Croneen, Stephen Cook. William Charters, Eleaz. Lavers. Zach. Coke, Samuel Bayley. James II.

Edward Hoar, John Bayley. Daniel Crone, John Champion. Thomas Brown, Edward Tucker. William Coppinger, William White.

for king James.

William and Mary.

Bate French, Thomas Murrough. Patrick Mead, Patrick Nagle, William Roberts, William Green. Peter Renew, Samuel Love. John Whiting, Richard Slocomb. James French, Simon Dring. John Raynes, William Goddard. Ed. Knap, Jonath. Treffilion. Theop. Morice, Ferd. Pennington. Richard Crab, Thomas Kinfmell. William Andrews, Edw. Yeamans. Barth. Taylor, John Allens

Joseph Ruddock, Fr. Cotterel.

Joseph Franklin, Bern, Poye. Will. Masters, Abraham Watkins. Mathias Smith, Edward Brown. Dan Pardriau, Rowl. Delahoyde, William Cockeril, Daniel Pierce, Noblet Rogers, Patrick Hamilton. Edward Hoar, John Hawkins. William Lambly, James Morison. Richard Philips, Samuel Wilson. Thomas Barry, Samuel Ablin. John Terry, Richard Addis. Philip French, Anthony Goss.

Abraham French, Joseph Lavite.

 \odot

A. M. MAYORS.

SHERIFFS.

1715 Philip French, 1716 William Lambley, 1717 Abrah. French, 1718 John Morley, 1719 John Terry, 1720 Joseph Lavite, 1721 Will, Hawkins, 1722 Daniel Pierce, 1723 Ed. Brocklesby. 1724 Geo. Bennet, 1725 Abm. Cramer, 1726 Robert Atkins,

1727 Thomas Brown, 1728 Hugh Millard, 1729 John Atkins, 1730 Joseph Auftin, 1731 James Hulet, 1732 Semuel Croker, 1733 Tho. Pembroke, 1784 Geo. Fuller, 1735 Amb. Jackson, 1736 Tho Farren, 1737 John Baldwin, 1738 Adam Newman, 1739 Will. Fuller, 1740 Harding Parker, 1741 Rich. Bradhaw, 1742 Will. Owgans, 1743 Rand. Westrop. 1744 Will. Winthrop, 1745 Will. Lavite, 1746 Will. Taylor. 1747 Hugh Millard, 1748 Daniel Crone. 1749 Will. Holmes. 1750 Robert Wrixon, 1751 Will Bufteed. 1752 Mathias Smith, 1753 Sir John Freke. 1754 George Hadder, 1755 John Reily. 1756 Will. Harding, 1757 Ufher Philpott. 1758 John Swete, George I 1714 Edward Browne, John Morison, Hugh Millard John Morley, Francis Power. Thomas Shears, Thomas Brown. William Hawkins, Charles Cotterel. Edward Brocklefby, Joseph Austin. John Meunsel, George Fuller. amuel Croker, James Farreaut. William Ougan, Augustus Carre. Robert Atkins, George Benner. Amb. Cramer, James Huter, Fran. Rowland, Thomas Pembroke. William Bustead, John Franklin. James Crook, Ambrose Jackson.

George II. John Atkins, William Lane. Dan. Engane, Thomas Austin. Francis Healy, Harding Parker, Whetenhal Hignet, John Baldwin. James Piercy, Robert Travers. Will. Newenham, Ad. Newman. Robert Dring, Walter Lavire. Thomas Farren, Will. Delahoyde. William Fuller, Thomas Brown. Daniel Crone, Richard Bradhaw. Christ, Carlton, Horatio Townshend. Randle Westrop, Nath. Barry. John Terry, Noblet Philips. George Fuller, William Clarke, William Taylor, William Winthrop. Mathias Smith. Hugh Millard. Robert Wrixon, William Harding. Sir Rich. Cox, Bart. Uther Philpot. Nicholas Ford, David Bruce. Phineas Barry, William Holmes. William Buftead, George Hodder. James Chatterton, Hugh Reily. John Webb, John Swete. Sir John Freke, Robert Newenham. Francis Carleton, John Swayne, John Wrixon, Stephen Denroche. John Caffart, Kevan Izod. John Smith, Joseph Witherall. Samuel Maylor, Godfrey Baker. Thomas Newenham, John Roe. Boyle Travers, Palms Westrapp. William Parks, Christopher Collis.

CHAP. IX. HISTORY of CORK A. D. MAYORS. SHERIFFS.

George II.

1759 Phineas Bury, Andrew Franklin, Daniel Connor. 1760 Joseph Witherall, Henry Harding, Thomas Owgan. George III.

1761 AndrewFranklin, 1762 John Wrixon, 1763 John Smith, 1764 Boyle Travers, 1765 William Parks, 1766 Samuel Maylor, 1768 Noblet Phillips, 1769 Godfrey Baker, 1770 Chrift. Collis, 1771 John Webb,

William Titton, James Mornifon: Walter Travers, Robert Lane. Francis Rowland, William Coles: Henry Wrixon, William Butler. Samuel Rowland, William Willcocks. John Travers, John Harding. 1767 James Chatterton, Sampson Twogood French, Hugh Lawton.

Seber Kent, Richard Lloyd. Benj. Boresfield, Richard Kellett, Peter Coffart, Jasper Lucas. John Wrixon, Henry Puxley: 1772 John Roe, Richard Harris, John Franklin.
1773 FrancisRowland, KingfmillBerry, Fran. Carleton, jun.

END OF VOL. I

